If you have one of those gardens that has a clay-type soil that's as hard as a rock and just as difficult to work, there are several measures to take that will help loosen the tight soil. Well-rotted manure, rotted leaves and spent mushroom compost all will help loosen a clay-like soil, if you happen to have them available. All of these materials should be worked thoroughly in with the top several inches of the soil.

Coal ashes may be used and will be a great help. We'd suggest taking out the large clinkers, but do not sift the ashes. Put up to four inches of unsifted ashes on the ground, spread evenly, then work them into the top-soil. Don't just plow them under; work them in by raking, harrowing or discing.

Several friends have been asking about putting sawdust on the soil. This idea has its merits—but do not use fresh sawdust. It may be acid and absorb much of the nitrogen from the soil. Well-rotted sawdust is good.

So—when you're lugging the winter accumulation of ashes up from the basement, don't think about having the trash man haul them away. With an eye toward the coming summer, think of the soil and the health-giving vegetables it can provide. Use those ashes, or other compost, to "feed" your garden, and it will feed you better during the summer.

He's Always Coming Up About This Time

- Report from PARIS -

By MARJORIE HABERKORN

Exclusive to the St. Joe News

I wonder whether March came in like a lion or a lamb there in St. Joe. I have always been anxious each year as to the outcome of this well known saying, and was always glad when March came in like a lion, so that the end of March would be lamb-like—to me meaning an early spring.

But I was not so pleased about the lion's roar this March first. June and I had left Paris and were in Belgium for our mid-semester week vacation from the Sorbonne University from February twenty-fourth until March third. By the morning of March 1st we had made our way from Luxembourg to Brussels to Antwerp, and were then in Bruges, a quaint, quiet little Belgium village. We had been hoping for nice weather that day so that we could spend part of the afternoon in Osten, a near-by town which is an important port of Belgium, and only a half hour ride from Bruges by train. Our hopes were dashed as we waited for the cloudy sky to clear. It was very windy, and though every half hour or so the sun would shine brightly, it would then disappear in a very few minutes, giving place to a sudden hail or wet snow storm. This changeableness of weather lasted through the whole day, but we decided to go to Ostend anyway. Our main interest was to see the harbor and ocean and we hoped perhaps to get in a quick look during one of the short sun shiny periods.

The railroad station of Ostend is located right next to the port. so we could see many of the ships as our train pulled in. Then we had to cross a small canal-like structure to get across to the "mainland," the street which lay in front of the station, lined with restaurants and stores. The wind was so strong from the sea that, as we crossed, we had to hang on to the rope that was stretched along this walk to help people maintain their balance. Even the dammed up protected water in the small canal had little waves.

Not having had lunch, we stopped in a small combination patisserie and tea shop, more well know as a French institution, but which we also found as frequently in Belgium, one of the neighbors of France. Sitting at one of the cute little tea tables, we ate our chocolate-covered cream-filled patisseries, drank our hot chocolate, and chatted with the lady proprietor of the shop, being the only customers at the moment She told us that the storms there that morning had been so bad that the waves had washed up over the embanked beaches of the town, causing the electricity to be shut off all day. She also gave us directions so that we could walk to the beach only a few blocks away. More fortified against the wind and cold by the patisserie and chocolate stowed inside, we set out for the beach, following the lady's directions.

WESTINGHOUSE PLANS TELEVISION STATION AT FT. WAYNE

More than half a million persons in Indiana, Ohio and Michigan are to have television service under plans for a new station at Ft. Wayne outlined last week in an application filed with the Federal communications Commission by Westinghouse Radion Stations Inc. The new would-be affiliated with WOWO and WOWO-FM, Westinghouse stations in Fort Wayne.

Commenting on the new application, R. G. Duffield, Mgr. of WOWO, said: "'We are applying for Channell 2 (54- 0 mc) and propose using a three -bay superturnstile antenna system mounted on a 464-foot guyed tower. This will provide an effective radiated power of 15,000 watts. Overall height of the tower and antenna will be 545 feet above ground. The installation will be located in the southwestern section of the city.

"Conservative estimates of coverto be provided by such an installation show an area of more than 4000 square miles and a population of well over 500,000. However, in view of the flat terrain I am confident that a dependable service will be provided well beyond those limits."

Westinghouse acquired WOWO in 1936. WOWO-FM was inaugurated in 1942. The Westinghouse group has one television station - - WBZ-TV, in operation, and application before the Commission for stations at Pittsburgh and Portland, Oregon.

EASTER SEAL SALE WILL OPEN

Approximately 100,00,000 Easter Seals, tiny messengers of hope for the physically handicapped, will be mailed to Indiana residents as the sale opens March 17, according to Kenneth R. Miller, Executive Director of the Indiana Society for Crippled Children.

Approximately 1,000,000 letters, each containing a sheet of Easter Seals will flood Indiana post offices in the Society's "once a year" appeal for funds to carry on its service program.

Money derived from the sale will buy wheelchairs, walkers and all kinds of artificial appliances. It will pay for education, pre-school centers, real camping and furnish remunerative employment to the housebound. Occupation therapy. physical therapy and speech and hearing services are just a few of the items your Easter seal dollar will buy.

There are approximately 200,000 physically handicapped girls and boys under twenty-one residing here in Indiana today besides all the adults who need help. 91.7% of your Easter seal dollar stays right here to help each crippled person become a participating, self-sufficient member of his community

The continuous growth of the Society since it was founded in 1938 is evident that Hoosiers prefer to aid the physically handicapped through the Society on a voluntary basis.

Look at the Label

A lot of persons, who like to think that they think, are bandying about a couple of terms that mean less than a whole lot to a whole lot of people. I refer to the terms: "liberal" and "reactionary." May I put in my two cents worth in hopes that you may know these modern labels better?

What I mean is that armchair commentators and soapbox spellbinders throw these terms at you, without any apology. Sure, you can get their meaning, whether they are for it or against it, by the way their lips are curled and their epithets hurled. But that's not enough. We need to know what the labels mean. A man can't think straight unless he can know his ideas as he picks them up.

The Real Test

Jesus said of false teachers: "By their fruits ye shall know them." That is still the best way to size up a man and his idea. It is even possible to put that test to labels. That way, a man cannot call himself one thing and be another.

The word liberalism comes from the same basic word that gave us the term liberty. The ancestors of this label, therefore, are of the best blood. The term has the finest possible background, for it implies all sorts of freedoms and puts strong stress upon human liberty. Then how is it that those who claim liberalism as their doctrine are found waving the banner for the very worst enemies of all liberty?

State Supreme

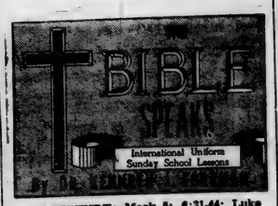
We Americans declare that we hold sacred the right to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. We have said that man is to be as free as possible, while also being responsible. The nation's founding fathers clearly insisted that government must be set up to serve man, and not man to serve the government.

But here and now we have the sorry mess of the liberals today wanting to change all this. They propose to improve this arrangement by "planning" us into either a socialist or a communist or a fascist society in which all signs of human freedoms must certainly vanish. These planners and plotters would have the society (government or state) to be supreme in all things. Even God they would replace by the State.

A New Serfdom

What need would we then have to guarantee personal rights and freedoms, if the state is to assume all the responsibility for everybody? No need, at all, if the State is supreme. These liberals (I am now applying the label test to their works) care nothing for the Constitution. They are all totalitarians at heart. Their aim is political power to suppress the personal liberty that belongs to the individual. Here we have the strange spectacle of dangerous "liberals."

What else is the explanation, when those who love to call themselves liberals denounce as "reactionary" anybody who distrusts the police state and would halt the trend to totalitarianism? A "reactionary," strictly speaking, is one who objects to progress and desires to turn back the clock. We must conclude then, that the real reactionaries of today are those liberals who would return us to the slavery of the State. They would make the coming century a new Dark Age.



SCRIPTURE: Mark 5; 6:31-44; Luke 7:18-23; 19:1-10.
DEVOTIONAL READING: Matthew 25:34-40.

God's Signature

Lesson for March 13, 1949

IN A STRANGE city you may suddenly need to be identified. Some suspicious clerk wants to know if your signature is genuine. It is a fair challenge, for too many liars are in circulation. Jesus himself had to furnish identification. No less a person than his old friend John the Baptizer had grown uneasy. "Are you the one we are looking for," he inquired, "or shall we look for someone else?" Jesus' answer to John was not to discuss the theology of the Incarnation, or anything of that sort. He just went about his usual day's work.

Dr. Foreman

In the course of that day he cured a good many sick people, and preached to some very poor people. "Now go back," he said, "go back and tell John what you have seen and heard." What those men saw that day was what Jesus at another time called the "finger of God," the genuine divine signature.

Jesus wrote no book, no letters even; he wrote in action, and his acts were the handwriting of God. It is important to see where Jesus underscored that writing. It is true, his healings were what we call miracles. But Jesus did not even mention that feature.

What he asked John to notice was simply this: the blind see, the lame walk; lepers are cured, the deaf hear, the dead are raised, and (as a climax!) the poor hear good news. The signature of God, in short, is not sheer power; it is using what power one has, to help people in trouble.

Not By Bread Alone

THE EXPRESSION, "needy people," nowadays suggests people who haven't enough to eat or wear. Jesus helped such persons; but he knew well that men's needs go beyond well-cared-for bodies. There was the poor man from the graveyard, for example,—he was happy enough. He didn't want clothes, and he was strong enough to steal all the food he could eat. All he wanted, in fact, was to be let alone. But Jesus knew that what he needed above all was a sane mind, a mind no longer run over and trampled by a regiment of devils.

When Jesus got through with him he was clothed, but that was not the best part of it. He was in his right mind. So God's signature is not only written in a sound body, it is in the sound mind. Again, at Jericho when Jesus invited himself to dinner with the pint-sized tycoon Zacchaeus, Jesus did not go just for the meal. He went because he knew that Zacchaeus needed something. Jericho needed something, too, something only Zacchaeus could give.

We do know that after dinner Zacchaeus was a changed man. He was going to give back every dishonest penny, with interest; and since he could not locate every one he had cheated, he was going to give away half of his holdings for the benefit of the poor.

What Jericho needed was a new administration, any honest one; they needed slum clearance; and Zacchaeus was going to give it to them. But first of all Zacchaeus had needed a new heart—and Jesus gave him that.

We Too

ALL AROUND us is a troubled world. Some men, seeing it, infer there is no God. Others conclude that if there is one, he must be bad or weak. The truth is that the signature of God is not to be found in the evil and the confusion of the world. It is to be seen wherever freedom is standing against slavery, wherever truth is pushing back ignorance, where diseased bodies are being healed, where sanity replaces madness.

More people would believe in God if they could see more of the handwriting of God. Do you want to help?

We cannot always do things as simply as Jesus did. Curing the diseased is not for us a simple matter of saying, Be well. A Christian woman, distressed by what she had learned of the plight of the insane in her backward state, was asking the head of the state hospital (himself a church officer), "What can we Christians do?" "Get behind the legislature," he said.

HERE 'N THERE IN SPORTS

By LEWIS H. WALTER

THERE isn't very much that hasn't already been said about the brilliant Auburn Red Devils' victories to take the Fort Wayne Regional Saturday. However, for the benefit of the out of staters, the Auburn Red Devils completely outclassed the Howe Military Academy in the first afternoon game by a score of 45-20. In the evening game they showed the people of Northeastern Indiana that they really do have a good ball club and won a trip to Muncie for their trouble. Although the Red Devils did lead about the whole game and were never behind at the end of the half or any quarter, they did have to come back the hard way to cool off a hot shooting Ft. Wayne Central team who had taken a 35 to 30 lead in the third quarter. The final score was 51 to 47. Central had advanced into evening play by a 56 to 49 win over Syracuse.

SATURDAY the Red Devils will mix it with the Kokomo Wildcats in the first afternoon game at Muncie. Other Muncie Semi-finalists are New Castle and Jefferson Twp. of Randloph County.

AS FOR our pick we will have to express about the same views as Milt Marx, Ft. Wayne sportscaster did in his broadcast Mon. evening. Milt, about the only member of the city press and radio who can see farther than the Ft. Wayne city limits sign, picked the Auburn Club to win their sectional, and to also clean up the Fort Wayne Regional. He can see no reason to jump off the Auburn band-wagon because opposition is tougher and is picking them to win over Kokomo by six points and an evening win over New Castle by a 3 point margin. QUOTE OF THE WEEK: a Ft. Wayne columnist in giving his regional choices throughout the state: "At Ft. Wayne we'll have to pick Central because they looked good in winning over North Side to take their sectional." Apparently without even checking the record books the writer must have thought that Howe, Auburn and Syracuse were winnning their sectionals while playing on crutches and with their arms in slings, while playing against teams that had only beaten three or four of the lesser Ft. Wayne teams.

BESIDE the two not so thrilling afternoon games and the evening game that more than made up for it, here are a few other things of interest we saw:

Central Coach Herb Banet, jump about four feet straight up in the air on several occassions when he thought his boys were getting a bad deal;

Coach Showalter, fall about two inches short of Banet's high jump record when the ref's called Bates for charging in that hetic last quarter of the evening game. Incidentally Bates was bounced up into about the second row of bleachers seats.

The Howe Cadets with a strickly male voice routing section, and their sticking to the Central Tigers in the evening game.

Both the Auburn and Howe teams and the two striped shirt boys try to catch a big floppy eared dog who didn't want to be caught, who almost bit Rog Wertenberger.

A rifle squad of three Howe cadets who stood about 4 feet tall, guard the Cadets while they were practicing just before the game.

The Monroeville Cub sticking to their own county team even against a smaller school and wishing the Central team good luck in their evening game.

Jim Schooley being hoisted up to cut down the nets and then having to look all over to find a knife.

Most of the Central girls in the cheering section, breaking out in tears during the last minute, but all of the boys and some of the girls holding up long enough to show good sportsmanship and wishing Auburn good luck at Muncie.

A St. Joe fan in near panic at the North Side gym entrance Saturday evening, who thought he had lost his ticket and had gone thru his pants, coat and overcoat pockets about 14 times, and had all the contents of his billfold out looking for it. - - (I finally found it! I always knew I had one secret compartment in my new Christmas billfold, but I never knew there were two.

FINALS in the Vim League tourney will be held on Friday evening with the Auburn Clutch meeting the winner of the ParTee and Butler game which is scheduled for the second Wednesday evening game. THE Clutch eliminated the St. Joe squad by a 44 to 33 score last Thurs. evening.

IN FRIDAY evening games the Butler outfit had little trouble in winning over the Garrett Legion. After a close first half the ParTee boys won easily from the Auburn Legion.

Calling all outdoorsmen

By JIM MITCHELL

The U. S. Forest Service recently released a raft of information on our national forests and, frankly, we were quite amazed at the extensive U. S. holdings that annually serve as a playground for millions of outdoorsmen.

First, there are 152 national forests scattered through 36 states, Alaska and Puerto Rico, with a total of 180,000,000 acres.

This extensive acreage serves in producing land for livestock. In fact, this is an important aspect of the U. S. forests; yet it is the recreational benefits that gain the greatest recognition. For instance, a recent survey shows that more than 2,000,000 head of deer, elk and other big game animals—about one-third of the entire population—live in the national forests. Too, there are approximately 90,000 mi. of unposted streams and 1,500,000 acres of fish-producing lakes. And last year 4,500,000 fishermen and hunters practiced their sport in the forests.

Some other facts gleaned from the report of Lyle F. Watts, chief of the U. S. Forest Service, were that the forests contain 4,500 camping and picknicking sites, 230 winters sports areas, 400 organization camps for group outings, 77 wilderness and roadless areas and 50,000 miles of highways and secondary roads. More than 20,000,000 people visit the forests each year, and an estimated 50,000,000 people motor through them annually.

Operating these national forests is big business, and surprisingly enough some of them actually pay their own way with income exceeding expenditures.

The overall cost of operating the forests in 1948 was $32,000,000. In addition about $13,000,000 was spent for roads and in buying new land. These expenditures were partially offset by income that totalled $25,000,000.

What does it all mean? Well, first, as a citizen of the United State these national forests are yours to enjoy as vocation spots. And there is actually more than one acre for every man, woman and child. Second, these foresta, under proper supervision, mean that in the generation ahead we still will have a wilderness outdoors - - places where you can fish for trout and other game fish; places where you can see bear and deer and elk. And that's worth protecting always.

Uncle Sam Says

In February we observe the birthdays of two very famous Americans, George Washington and Abraham Lincoln. Practical men, they understood the value of thrift, the necessity for a well-ordered method of saving. You specify the sum to be alloted each payday, where you work. That is the Payroll Savings Plan. If self-employed, use the Bond-a-Month Plan at your bank. And in 10 years, you reap the reward—$4 for every $3 you invest.

FESTIVE NEW SALAD WITH ROSY APPLES

There's an American Beauty look to this crimson and white apple salad that's pretty enough for your company dinners and so easy to make you'll want to serve it for family meals, too. It's especially timely now when the markets are featuring the crisp, spicy-flavored Winesap apples from Washington State because these tender, juicy apples are perfect for salads, as well as for fresh fruit eating. (P.S. to mothers: these shining red Washington Winesaps are just right to tuck into Junior's lunchbox to be sure he gets his apple a day!)

To prepare the salad, core the apples, but do not peel. Cut into slices, then spread the slices with softened cream cheese or roquefort. Add walnut meats and serve with French dressing.

Another appetizing salad that makes extra good eating these days is this tossed apple-cabbage dish. The delicious flavor of the Winesap apples makes a special treat of this healthful salad, and it's appropriate for either luncheon or dinner service.

Tossed Apple Cabbage Salad

3 red Winesap apples
3 tbsps. lemon juice
1 cup seedless raisins
4 cups cabbage, shredded
1 cup mayonnaise
Salt and pepper

Core and dice unpeeled apples. Add lemon juice and toss. Mix with raisins and shredded cabbage, then add mayonnaise and season to taste. Toss and serve at once. Serves 8.

NERVOUS STOMACH

MANY people have spells of nervous indigestion. Most of them gulp down a dose of bicarbonate of soda, or else munch one of the numerous anti-acids available on drugstore counters. Doctors call this nervous indigestion gastric neurosis.

The stress and strain of modern day civilization is to blame. Nervous persons find their stomachs reacting quickly, sometimes violently, to their daily problems and troubles. Many times there is a complete loss of appetite. In other cases the patient finds his appetite cannot be satisfied; he literally grows fat on worry. Some excitable children will vomit on slight excuse.

Nervous diseases may be organic. In that case, actual damage is being done to nerves somewhere in the body. Other nervous diseases are functional. In that case the organ involved is not functioning well due to interference from "nerves." So, in gastric neurosis, the nerves of the stomach are acting in such a way as to cause numerous digestive discomforts.

Bicarbonate of soda and patent remedies may mask the situation, but they cure nothing. The only cure for nervous indigestion is to learn to control one's nature. If letting your emotions run your life instead of you running your emotions is your problem, better learn to control those emotions short of developing an ulcer.

DAIRY DAY EXHIBITS WILL BE ON DISPLAY, MARCH 22

"Agitated Abe," a magically suspended manikin who cannot make up his mind, will be one of the eight features in the "Dairy Day" exhibits which will be in DeKalb County on March 22.

"Agitated Abe," who seemingly stands suspended in thin air has been attracting many farmers to the exhibit, entitled "Herd Health." There farmers have been talking with E. A. Gannon, dairy extension specialist, and having many of their own dairy questions answered.

In the display, "Agitated Abe" does not know whether to apply artificial breeding in his program or to go on as he has been doing in the past. Many farmers have found themselves "agitated" and they will be able to have many of their questions answered by the Purdue dairy specialists who will be with the exhibits .

Other exhibits which will be on display when "Dairy Day" comes to DKalb County are "Control of Cattle Grubs" by three methods, spraying, washing and dusting; "Farm Safety," a guide to prevent dairy accidents and injuries; "Methods of Curing Hay," a comparison of different curing methods to prevent heavy loss of its nutritive value; "Ladion," a demonstration of seeding and management and its value in pasture; "Herd Health," a demonstration of "why cows leave home" or why Indiana dairymen are forced to raise 60 percent more heifers for replacements under existing conditions than is actually necessary; and "Home pasteurization," a demonstration showing how to pasteurize milk.

LIVING PROOF

...That Cancer Can Be Curbed!

CANCER CAN BE CURBED

2. A painless lump or thickening, especially in the breast, lip or tongue.
3. Bloody discharge from the nipple or irregular bleeding from any of the natural body openings.
4. Any change in the color or size of a wart or mole.
5. Persistent indigestion.
6. Persistent hoarseness, unexplained cough, or difficulty in swallowing.
7. Any change in the normal bowel habits.

THAT LET DOWN FEELING

THE months just ahead, the late winter and early spring months, are sickness breeders. Coughs and colds, respiratory illnesses of all kinds, hit their seasonal high at this time. Cold weather and exposure join with a lack of sunshine and exercise to make the body an easy prey for germs. These less healthful conditions all combine to give you that "let down feeling," nature's warning that you should set up your body's defenses.

Your family doctor suggests you get plenty of sleep at this time. Watch your diet carefully, be sure you get nourishing food, and if your physician suggests one or several vitamin supplements, be sure and bolster the sagging body defenses as he suggests. Avoid crowded places, keep the temperature of home and office in the medium seventies, keep from getting chilled, or your feet wet. By taking these common sense precautions you can get yourself through this time of low body resistance to the more healthful days of spring.

If you have any particular health problem which becomes more acute at this period, by all means consult your family doctor and get his advice on your particular case. And, of course, should you become ill during this time of low physical reserve, insure a quick recovery for yourself, without complications, by calling your doctor immediately. At this time of year, your motto should be: "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure!"

Ohio has about 500 miles of navigable rivers, 9,000 miles of railways and over 16, 000 miles of state highways.

Remember when a bare bulb like this was the last word in lighting? That's when you started calling your electric bill a "light" bill.

Then electricity began to take on more chores. It learned to cook and sew and clean, to wash and iron, preserve food, entertain the family—in general, to make life healthier and happier and easier all around. Lighting became only a fraction of that job.

Naturally, you came to depend on electric service for more and more jobs—until now you couldn't imagine living without electricity! Today your electric bill is just about the smallest item in your family expenses—yet what else does so much, for so little?

Yes, it's still a "light" bill—it lightens your chores, your home, and the business of balancing your budget!

RAIL CHIEFS FOR A DAY

Three happy youngsters "take over" the Grand Trunk Western Railroad for a day as a reward for their alert action in saving the railroad from a possible wreck. When the boys spotted a large piece of iron imbedded in a tie and overlapping the track recently, they quickly notified the Grand Trunk and stood by to flag oncoming trains until the iron was removed. To show the road's appreciation, Charles A. Skog, vice president and general manager, entertained the three at luncheon on his private car, where they were served a turkey with all the trimmings. A U. S. savings bond was presented to each of the lads, and they had great fun inspecting the line's equipment. Left to right are: Donald Vandenburg, Mr. Skog, James Riddle and Carl Knight. All of the boys are from South Bend, Ind.

SEWING WORKSHOP HELD IN AUBURN LAST THURSDAY

Style trends was one of the main topics of discussion in the special interest Sewing Workshop held in the Auburn Courthouse assembly room on March 4. This discussion was led by Frieda Stoll, Purdue clothing specialist. Miss Stoll said that the selection of the pattern is very important in selecting the fabric to use for the special style which you have chosen to amake, regardless of the style. If you want to have an attractive garment a good quality of fabric is most important. Cotton taffeta is one of the newest cotton fabrics which has a permament finish and is crease resistant Several crease resistant fabrics are now on the market this year and are sanforized or sanfra-set.

Essential tools for home sewing were discussed by Mary Lenore Moore home demonstration agent. Some of these important tools are sewing chests or sewing screens where all sewing equipment is kept.

In the afternoon session, instructions were given to the women on the individual garment which they were working on.

Those present at this all-day schools were as follows: Bessie Witt, Spencer; Josephine Beree, Newville; Harriett Baker. Concord, Kathryn Crow, Concord, Mrs. Grace Laub, county home economics president, Spencer.

Farm products of Nebraska consist of corn, wheat, oats, barley. rye, hay sugar beets, potatoes, buckwheat, flax clover and sorghum.

Chicken Lice Control

Chicken lice live on the fowl's body the year around. They are not blood suckers, and experimental evidence does not show that they seriously harm the bird, except by the irritation they may cause by crawling over the sensitive skin. They are easily controlled by dusting or dipping the hens with sodium flouride powder or solution, according to instruction on the container. Flock treatment is accomplished by painting certain liquid products on the roosting poles before dusk. This method will destroy most of the lice.

Sheriff Frank Carpenter reported Monday that his department is investigating a break-in at a St. Joe residence that netted burglar $150 in cash and antique dishes valued at $150 to $200.

The burglary occurred at the home of Jesse Loftus, a town employee. The sheriff said the theft occurred sometime last week but was not discovered by the Loftus family until Saturday evening.

The cash and the dishes were stoen from a box which had been placed in a closet in a first floor bedroom.. The sheriff said that the family told him that 14 pieces of antique dishware, some of which were were 200 years old were stolen with bills and coins estimated at $150.

Officers said that the burglar apparently entered the home through an unlocked door. The family said the doors were seldom locked. Aside from the box, nothing in the home was distubred.

LOCAL NEWS

Over one hundred persons were in attendance Sunday at the Church of Christ here, to hear the special musical program presented by the Mission Aires from Ft. Wayne. The four boys, 12 and 13 years old, presented a grand musical program in the morning and were then called back in the afternoon for several more numbers. A delicious and bountiful pot-luck dinner was served in the basement in honor of the boys and also in honor of Mr. Hurni who has given so much of his own time in the decorating of the church. Visitors from Mt. Pleasant, Coburntown, Spencerville and the boys' parents from Ft. Wayne were present. Many enjoyed renewing their acquaintance with Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Gerig and son, Lou.

Several of the town boys were among the several thousand who tried to get a look at the big turtle in the lake near Churubusco, last Sunday afternoon. Now understand we aren't criticizing the boys for driving all that way to get a glimpse of that freak of nature, for how were they to know that we have a curious member of the Chelonia family (turtle to you) right here in our own town. The story didn't unfold to us until late Sunday afternoon when Mr. E. Howard proprietor of local soda shoppe, told us of the land tortoise sent to him from the sunny southland. Although not claiming his turtle to be as big as a box car, weighing several tons, we think Mr. Howard's turtle has it over the "Beast of Busco" forty ways to a dozen. He has had the tortoise about a year and one of his features is that he has a small trap door below his head and when he gets mad or disgusted with world he slams the door shut and goes to sleep. However, the thing that makes this turtle so outstanding is his unexplainable taste for fried chicken. Howard says anyone who will bring a chicken, live or dressed to his home may see the turtle. Mr. Howard will fry the chicken, himself.

Those who called on Mrs. Glen Wineland on Sunday were: Gayle Rugman from Ft. Wayne, Etta Chapman from Sturgis, Michigan, Frank Baker, Dorothy Hall, Maurice Henke and friend from Pleasant Lake, Robert Rugman, wife and two daughters and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Carslon from Auburn, also Mrs. Roy Reidenbach, Pluna Hamilton, Mrs. Don Keller and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Ervin.

Mrs. Armstrong is also in Auburn assisting in caring for her husband.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Wilt of Fort Wayne called on Mrs. W. H. Randall Monday morning.

Mr. Marshall Andress suffered a light stroke of paralysis last Saturday morning and was taken to the home of his daughter, Mrs. Melba Wyatt in Ft. Wayne.

Calvin Coburn, age 94, who died at Hicksville, O., Saturday night was the father of Earl Coburn of St. Joe. The deceased was a pioneer resident of Hicksville. Mrs. Nettie Abel of St. Joe was a sister. Funeral rites were held at the Perkins and Reeb funeral home in Hicksville, followed by burial services Wednesday at 2 p.m. and were followed by burial in the Alton cemetery.

Mrs. Lulu Woodcox underwent an operation, March 15 at the Hicksville Community Hospital. Her condition was described as fair.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Miller and Mr. and Mrs. Wellington Wilson of Ainger, Ohio, called on Mrs. Lulu Woodcox Saturday evening.

By MARJORIE HABERKORN

Exclusive to the St. Joe News

I was amazed when we turned the corner which brought us into full view of the shore and sea, first because we could hardly get around the corner. The wind here was even much stronger than at the station. June and I had to clutch each other, and the wall of the building next to us, to keep from being blown away. That was one time that I was thankful for those few extra pounds that mother thinks I need but that I think I could better do without. We felt as though we would literally be lifted off our feet and crashed to the ground onto the rocks which we saw strewn around our feet. They were the second cause for my amazement.

This long street along the shore, onto which we had just turned, was back about one hundred yards from the built-in rock embankment of stone which sloped down to the sea, and was also made of built-in rocks about one half of a foot square. The high waves, caused by the extraordinary strong wind, had flooded over the embankment and sidewalk and into this street, flooding the whole sewer system, and washing these six-inch rocks out of their places, strewing them around where they had once been the parts of a well-made street, and even onto the sidewalk. The ocean water had also flooded its way into the basements of all the houses within four or five blocks from the shore, the lower region of the town.

All this had happened about noon that day, just a few hours before, when the wind had been even stronger than it was then. I could not imagine how it could have been much more violent. The wind was still fantastically strong as June and I either vainly tried to walk against it, or were pushed along with it, always faster than we wanted to go.

It was a sight to see, though not a pleasant sight, but a sight of destruction. It looked as though some one had turned a huge sugar bowl upside down and scattered giant sugar cubes around the streets and sidewalks. Not only the main street was torn up like this, but also the side streets leading into the town from this one street. Some of the windows in the houses and restaurants on the opposite side of the street, facing the sea, had been broken; also to the contrary, some of the buildings looked completely untouched.

Looking out at the ocean, we saw the white capped waves, still huge, washing their way in and onto the embankment.

There were many other curious spectators, also trying their best to walk around in this high wind, viewing the destruction. One of the Belgian bystanders, or rather bymovers, since it was almost impossible to stand still in that wind, told us that this was the first time such a thing had happened in Ostend.

One car, which had been driven by some person who apparently had not wanted to try to walk in the wind, was stuck on one of the partially torn-up side streets, the tires caught in the holes among the uprooted rocks..

Our scarfs were practically pulled from our heads, as we fought our way along in the wind. By the time we got back off of the open street partially protected by buildings from the wind, we felt as though we had gone through another major hurricane, and thanked our lucky stars that we had at least been standing on land and not rocking probably seasick in a boat out on those high waves.

That night we both had severe cases of wind burn. We looked as though we had been basking in the sun on the Riviera rather than in the winds, waves, rain and snow of Ostend, Belgium.

When we got back to Paris, we found that the storms in Ostend had even made the Paris papers. Maybe you have already read about it there already.

So that is why I almost hope that this 1949 March 1st came in like a lamb for Indiana, even if it does mean a little later spring, rather than like the much too fierce lion which roared his way into Ostend, Belgium.

LOOKING AHEAD

An Enterprise Story

Freedom of enterprise is a strong and dynamic principle. It continues to work us wonders despite the many ways we have hedged it about. The sorry plight of our time is that we have found such a fine way of life, proved that it works so well, then cared so little to protect and cherish it. Yes, a lot of us pay first-rate lip service to free enterprise.

But when it's time for the crucial test, what happens? We let the politicians (who ought to become statesmen when elected) spread the death-web of bureaucracy far and wide. We seem to agree that government can do it—oh, just almost anything—so much better! We tax industry and incomes until capital is too scared to have any enterprise left. In short, we back enterprise right up to the precipice, and seem not to realize what we have done.

50,000 Lives

I have said that free enterprise still works us wonders. One of the most amazing examples of freedom of business enterprise has been working miracles right before our eyes now for five years, and we have sarcely noticed it. One of the nation's top science writers, J. D. Ratcliff, has outlined the miracle-story of penicillin manufacture in the January issue of "Nations Business." Ratcliff says this great medicine is now the biggest selling item in the drug trade, saving 50,000 lives yearly from pneumonia alone.

Just a few short years ago penicillin was made in laboratory flasks and sold for a fancy price. But, then, American industry tackled the job of producing penicillin. At first the quoted market price was $20 per 100,000 units, but today a dollar's worth of penicillin will rout dreaded pneumonia.

Courage and Vision

How did all this happen? Well, it took enterprise and lots of it. Penicillin manufacture was pretty much a guessing game—at first. It took courage to invest and to plan. According to Ratcliff, one small company in the chemical industry had this courage and vision.

It seems that a man named John L. Smith, president of Charles Pfizer & Company, Brooklyn, gets the main honors for penicillin manufacture. Smith was an immigrant to this country at the age of two years, and worked his way up to an education in chemistry. After he became president of that small firm, specialists in microbes and fermentation processes, Smith heard of penicillin. Then Smith took a chance, made possible by America's system of enterprise.

A Real Test

This man Smith made plans to spend 4½ million dollars for a giant new penicillin plant. That was big money, for his company was doing only about twice that amount of business annually. Besides, science was not certain about what penicillin could do. But Smith had seen it save lives, and he intended to produce it. He did, in vats as large as tank cars. The demand was great. Then others began to make it. Still, the Pfizer company's sales jumped to 50 million dollars a year. The country had its precious penicillin.

This is a grand success story. But it is not a new one. The same kind of story has been repeated countless times in the building of America. Freedom of enterprise has helped make our land into a land of plenty. It would be well if we should test every bill in Congress, every national policy, with the question: will it encourage, or will it hinder, private enterprise?

Leadership School

Lesson for March 20, 1949

IT TAKES more than a call of God to be a Christian leader. It takes study, it takes work. The call is necessary, of course, but it is not all. Jesus set the church an example here as always. He called his Twelve; but he was not so foolish as to think that just because he had called them they were all ready to go out and take the lead. Jesus put them through what may be called the first Leadership Training School in the history of the Christian church.

Who Was Enrolled?

THE TWELVE Apostles were the training class. Not all Jesus' disciples were equal to it; perhaps some of them actually did not have the time. But these Twelve had already been set off from the others, not because they were better men, but in order to do more direct service in Christ's name. There was nothing formal about Jesus' training school.

It met wherever he was at the time—in a house, or by the roadside, or on a hill-top. There were no set hours, no textbooks, credits or diplomas.

Jesus kept it going to the very end, for even after the Resurrection, as Luke tells us (in Acts 1) he was still teaching his Twelve.

What Did They Study?

THERE WAS no printed circular, no bulletin, no prospectus or catalogue. All the "courses" amounted to just one thing: learning to do what Jesus was doing. To this day, that is the aim of all Christian training. Mark and Luke mention at least four things Jesus' training-school students learned from him: preaching, healing the sick, feeding the hungry, and praying. It would not be quite true to say that part of what they learned was spiritual and part practical, for there is nothing more practical than praying as Jesus taught it, and Jesus never ministered to people's physical needs without touching their spirits too.

Many a person now in some hospital for the insane need not have gone there if he had had the help that a well-trained minister can give.

Ministers today are not taught how to perform miracles like the feeding of the 5,000; but knowing that people's physical well-being has a gread deal to do with their spiritual welfare, the alert young Christian minister of today will be keenly interested in Christian social action.

How Did They Learn?

THE TWELVE learned by doing. It is the only way you learn anything of a practical nature. Memorizing a textbook, memorizing rules, is not learning. You have learned how to do a thing only when you can do it. Of course you have to see it done, first. A boy on the farm learns to be a farmer by watching his father and helping him, more than from school courses in agriculture, useful as they are. There is nothing to take the place of apprenticeship under one who knows. So Jesus' Twelve watched him, listened to him, helped him, before they were trusted on their own.

Will It Still Work?

THE METHODS Jesus taught are just as effective today as they ever were. Not all churches nowadays follow his line to the letter; in fact, most churches do not. But the basic principles which Jesus drilled into his first traveling representatives are still good. One is faith.

Missionaries in the 20th Century are required to take a great deal more equipment with them to their fields than one pair of shoes, one cane and an empty purse. Yet who can deny that any missionary of any church in China or in Korea today, must live by faith from day to day?

Another of Jesus' principles was direct contact. People are not won to Christ chiefly by sermons from pulpits, but by in-the-home contacts. Ministers know this, missionaries know it; Sunday school teachers ought to know it too. Getting acquainted with your boys and girls at their homes, and being a friend to them there, is what will give your Sunday teaching its greatest force and success.

HERE 'N THERE IN SPORTS

By LEWIS H. WALTER

AGAIN this week, primarily for our readers who don't get another Hoosier paper, we are proud to report that the Auburn Red Devils, for the first time in the school's history will be among the four finalists at the Butler Field House next Saturday when the blue chips go on the table to crown this year's state champion.

THE county seat boys won their trip to the state capital this Saturday by unleashing two of their best games of the year for the some 7,500 onlookers to view, last Saturday afternoon and evening. The Kokomo Wildcats took the first look and, hence handicapped by not ever having seen the big Auburn boys in action, were not around very close at the finish. They took their afternoon game 54 to 43. In the evening game which turned out to be a thriller deluxe, against New Castle who downed Jefferson in their daylight encounter, the Auburn boys proved for the second straight Saturday night that they "had it" against tough opposition and came thru with a 45 to 43 win.

The evening game produced a battle that never went decisively in either team's favor until the Auburn five found themselves putting on a last minute stall with a four point lead. The score was tied 10 times throughout the game and Auburn trailed at the half 23 to 19. AUBURN'S opponent in the big show Saturday will be Jasper. The two other clubs who will be making a bid to wear the crown home are Madison and South Bend Central.

THE 57 press and radio representatives were again treated to the very nice accomodations that comes with a visit to the big Muncie field house. Radio and newspaper men were seated on the first row of the main floor, with tables placed before them for their convenience.

SITTING right in front of the New Castle cheering section gave the writer plenty of chance to watch the tumbling antics of the male members of the New Castle cheer leader group (more than enough, much yelling came from the first row men to get them to set down so they could see the game.). Well anyhow, the three boys were about the best performers of that kind ever seen outside of a vaudeville act, and were displaying all of their tricks to pep up their rooters. In the second afternoon game when New Castle wasn't playing as they should, although winning from Jefferson, one of their fans remarked that they did have the best yell leaders in the state, if they didn't have the team. Remarks like this gave us the clue that New Castle either wasn't showing everything they had or were actually having a bad game, and all the predictions that Auburn would win easily,, just couldn't be taken serious.

The first game was one of the best officiated we have seen all year, the second was the worst and the night game, in between. Doc Silvers worked his last game of his career last Saturday and is hanging up his whistle after blowing it in over 1700 games. - - Several of the boys on the bench were wondering if he made the decision before or after his work in the two games.,

The New Castle coach had a red cloth that his boys used to wipe the prespiration. Apparently it was supposed to be a good luck piece.

The St. Joe and Spencerville boys and their guardians had very good seats at the Muncie games.

It looks like Jr. Curie, a loyal Auburn fan, can't take the close games anymore. Before the evening he was trying to assure himself that the boys would have an easy time with New Castle, and not one of those close ones. Can you imagine anyone driving all the way to Muncie and then not wanting to see his team play in a super duper, triple thriller like that game was?

Never let it be said that big, Theo Webb, substitute center on the Red Devil team, doesn't believe in giving a player a big hand when that player turns in a nice play. In the afternon game, Webb went into the game in the last minute of play, and was promptly caught wide open under the basket; after taking a pass and making the basket, and getting fouled on the play, all the boys were clapping their hands and yelling as he approached the foul line for his gift shot. But who should be doing any more applauding than Theo, himself.

BUTLER Junior High took the Jr. High School tournament last week, winning the final game from Auburn. The Butler and St. Joe 5th and 6th grades who put on quite a tussle some weeks ago, played a return engagement for the curtain raiser. The Butler boys took the game this time, by about 10 points.

Calling all outdoorsmen

By JIM MITCHELL

As you look back through the years it is interesting to compare the popularity of the various breeds of dog. And, apparently, canine popularity has changed as greatly as the styles of automobiles.

Way back in the late 1800's the hunting dogs were leading the hit parade among canine companions. The English and Irish setter ranked one-two, and the Irish water spaniel was a close third. The pointer, a great favorite with quail hunters today, was fourth. And such other breeds as the collie, cocker spaniel and beagle were in the select 10.

Then followed a period when the pet breeds dominated the dog field, pushing the hunting dog down and down the ladder until around 1915 most of the sporting dogs were out of the running. The lone exception was the beagle that kept plugging along and in 1948 this breed had climbed to the runnerup spot, with the cocker spaniel on top.

Today, the pet breeds - the boxers, collies, boston terriers, pekinese and German shepherds -lare the most widely distributed along with the cocker and beagle. But moving into a contendinng position is the English springer spaniel, a fine little hunting dog that has made immense strides in gaining favor with sportsmen in the upland game and waterfowl regions.

And by looking back, possibly we can forecast the future. It is almost certain that our taste in dogs will change as before. But we will wager a diamond-studded dog collar against a penny that a decade from now there will be more of the sport breeds in the top 10. Our reasoning is simple: More and more sportsmen are learning that hunting with a dog is one of the greatest sports on earth. Too, these sportsmen have discovered that a hunting dog is a great conservationist in finding crippled and dead game that frequently is left unretrieved by dogless hunters.

Leaky or inadequate eavestroughs, downspouts and other conductors are among the greatest enemies to building preservation. Government statistics show conclusively that more buildings deteriorate prematurely because of faulty elimination of roof water, than from any other cause. They point out further, that a few dollars spent to keep these important water flumes in good repair is money wisely spent and our considered opinion that such money spent to get Widney Metal Works quality and workmanship is truly money wisely spent.

New installation, repairs or changes by Widney craftsmen is fully guaranteed. Call Auburn 752 for a free estimate on the job you have in mind. You're assured prompt, courteous information on estimate service at all times.

John Deere is an honored name; a name which today is associated only with the finest farm machinery that modern science and manufacturing facilities can produce.

That is why, in a review of this character, we are pleased to salute our friendly John Deere dealer for DeKalb County. We refer of course to Burgoyne Bros., 138-140 E. 7th St., Auburn a concern that has served the agricultural interests of this area reliably and well; a concern fully equipped for sales and service of these quality tractors and and implements, with genuine John Deere parts, specially trained mechanics and dependable shop or field repair and replacement service if any when they are needed.

Th power farm machinery season is near at hand, and upon the performance of your tractor and implements rests the success or failure of your harvest. Between the day of plowing and the time of reaping, the all important problem is operational expense, and John Deere machinery has long been recognized as an economical aid to every farming operation. Low fuel consumption, time-tested construction, and quality materials makes John Deere a "buy word" for those who have learned from actual experience the difference in power machine operation and the additional profits these nationally recognized machines turn in.

Make this your John Deere year, and enjoy the care-free advantages of these fine tractors and implments. They've got every labor-saving device known to the industry.

It is our pleasure to compliment your friendly John Deere dealer, and to commend this fine service to the attention of readers.

The phone number for service is, Auburn 999.

NEATEST TRICK of the winter was leap of Grady, full-grown cow, through a 17-by-25 inch door into a concrete silo near Yukon, Okla! Next neatest was getting her out. A lavish greasing job, plus simultaneous nose-pull and rump-push, did it.

Red Rocks Theater

Newest of the great open air theaters to plan festivals of music or drama and other entertainment is the spectacular Red Rocks theater in the front range of the Rocky mountains, just west of Denver. Nearing completion just before the war, the great theater has been opened only occasionally for concerts, conventions and pageants. First full scale use of the theater is now being made.

New Plymouth on Display

Plymouth's new special deluxe is featured above. Brilliant new styling is combined with outstanding riding comfort, increased roominess, and sweeping mechanical improvements in the new line of Plymouth automobiles.

Completely redesigned, the new Plymouth has a longer wheelbase for a better ride and more road stability, but less front and rear overhang for easier parking and garaging. While the silhouette has been lowered and the width decreased, there is more head and leg room and seats are wider. Typical of Plymouth's many refinements is the ignition-starter combination, with which a turn of the key starts the engine.

The new Plymouths are sleek in appearance. New rear-end styling provides a graceful balance with the horizontal grille lines which emphasize the broadness of the front. Fenders which blend perfectly into body lines are nevertheless separate and detachable, thus avoiding sheet metal panels so costly to repair or replace.

The new Plymouth line includes nine distinct automobiles. Special deluxe and deluxe types are on a 118-inch wheelbase, one inch longer than last year's. Special deluxe models are: four-door sedan, club coupe, convertible club coupe and station wagon. In the deluxe group are the four-door sedan and the club coupe. In addition, Plymouth will build three deluxe models on a brand new 111-inch wheelbase, a two-door sedan, a three-passenger coupe, and a new body type, the Suburban.

The 97-horsepower engine has improved performance and efficiency with a new design cylinder head which increases compression ratio to 7 to 1. A new chrome plated compression piston ring reduces cylinder wear and provides greater protection during the break-in period. There are improved oil rings for greater oil economy, while a newly-designed intake manifold induces quicker, smoother engine warm-up and produces faster throttle response.

Body styling which produces greater passenger room without excessive bulk also increases visibility. V-type windshields have 37 percent more area and provide excellent vision without distortion. Windshield wipers clear 61.5 percent greater area and the rear window is 35.4 percent larger.

Practical, and Pretty

. . of course it's electric

WHY settle for less than both? Today your kitchen can be a dream to look at and a joy to work in, too . . . IF you go all electric.

Take an electric range for instance. Really clean heat . . . pure and dependable as electric light. Pots and pans stay shiny bright for keeps, walls and drapes retain their freshness longer. And you retain your freshness, too—for you dial the heat you want and RELAX while automatic timers do most of the work.

Speaking of pretty . . . what's less pretty than a garbage can! Or more practical than the new electric disposal units! What's more practical than electricity for refrigeration, dish washing, water heating, for washing and ironing clothes?

The more electrical it is, the more practical and pretty your kitchen becomes. Add that next electrical appliance now!

HINTS ON HEALTH

WHEN a man or woman reaches the advanced age of 80 or 90, reporters crowd around and ask what kind of a formula he or she has for a long life. No two answers are ever the same. One person smokes, another doesn't. Another believes a little wine warms the stomach, still another swears milk and milk alone will keep one healthful. One guess is, the people who live the longest know least about it; it just happened.

Fortunately we do know the answer, or at least part of it. Mortality tables show overweight people don't last as long as those with normal weight.

Even if you tend to be overweight, you still have an ace up your sleeve for the game of long life: EAT LESS. One famous doctors always advised his patients, "Leave the table while you're still hungry."

The overly-fat person becomes a likely subject for disease, and obesity puts a great strain on the heart, kidneys, and blood vessels.

Here are some "persuaders" for you: After the age of 35, expectation of life decreases one per cent for every pound overweight.

Between 45 and 55, the person with 25 pounds of excess weight is carrying a 25 per cent greater chance of dying within the year than the person of normal weight. And 50 pounds overweight means a 50 per cent greater chance of death within the next year.

As you grow older, if your weight increases more than 10 per cent over what is normal for you, and you continue to gain year after year, you are advised to consult your physician on a plan to control your weight.

TOWN & FARM

EVERETT MITCHELL

Farm Commentator, heard Monday through Saturday, 6:15-6:45 a. m. on WMAQ, Chicago, 670 on your dial.

THE many farmers who are thinking of constructing new buildings, or remodeling older structures, must remember that these buildings should be working tools and not monuments to a long-gone generation.

Among the requirements that should be considered in building a first-rate farm structure is that of designing it so that it can be converted and used for some purpose other than that for which it was originally built.

Combined with the convertability factor is the consideration that a building should have just enough permanence so that it will be worn-out by the time it becomes outdated.

Long life and low depreciation are usually desirable qualities in a building, but lose much of this desirability when the building no longer serves the purpose for which it was built. For example, a long-lasting building designed to stable horses loses much of its value when the horses are replaced by a tractor.

The cost of a building should be as low as is consistent with efficient operation. Average original costs of buildings per animal, as reported by farmers in a recent survey, are as follows: $200 to $300 per beef cow; $50 to $80 per sow; and $4 to $5 for each hen. If the life of the structure is less than average, the above costs per animal are too high. On the other hand if the building can be expected to last 40 or more years without becoming out-dated, a slightly higher cost may be justified.

Buildings are economical working forces only when they earn the storage cost on crops, livestock and supplies. Inefficient, out-dated structures—and those which are over-costly—cannot do this.

Spring on the Farm

Spring must come to cities with a certain type of charm, but if you really want to feel it, you've got to be out on the farm. Walk up on a hill top, smell the sweet breath in the air, feel the quickening mother earth, preparing soon to bear a myriad of blossoms, a carpeting of green, and a million new arrivals who though as yet unseen, may be here by morning, by downing, or maybe still this night —

Oh Spring may come to cities with a certain kind of charm — but how could you really see it, if you're not out on the farm? Not see the funny lambs as they laugh and dance and play, not see the wistful little colts when first they stand and sway and look around so surprised, as if they never had surmised, that things would be this way? Not see the fuzzy chicks, the wriggly pigs and everything? Might as well stop living, 'cause I wouldn't know it's Spring — without the farm, and the barn, and the hilltops —

MODERN FARMING

Championship Yields

START AT PLANTING TIME

1948 may long be remembered as the year of the record corn crop. Yields almost everywhere hit an all-time high. The U. S. average of 43 bushels per acre was nearly a dozen bushels more than the 1937-46 ten-year average.

Here in the Corn Belt, 100 bushel per acre yields were reported by thousands of farmers. In 10-acre State corn growing contests, many of the champions produced yields over 150 bushels per acre . . . unheard of 10 years ago. In a national corn growing contest entered by more than 5,000 farmers this year, some of the winning yields officially topped 180 bushels per acre. An unofficial yield reported from Lincoln, Ill., is said to have hit 220 bushels!

Great corn-growing weather, of course, gets some of the credit for 1948's unusually high yields. But farmers, and the industries that serve them, deserve much of the credit, too. Good hybrid corn, new weed killers, commercial fertilizers, better power tillage implements, and use of better corn growing practices by farmers all contributed to making 1948 our greatest corn year.

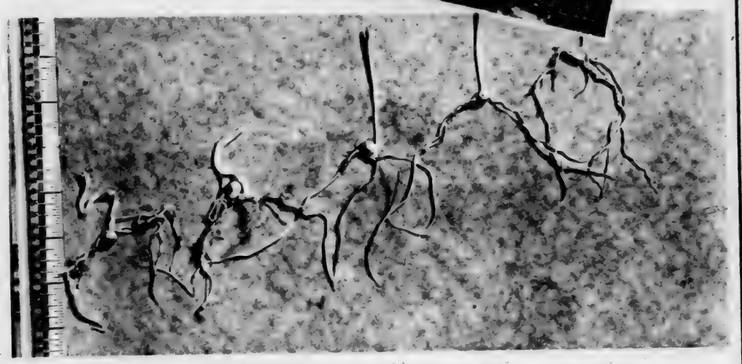
What will the 1949 corn crop do? No one can say till harvest time. But this much is certain: Yields over 100 bushels per acre start at planting time and anything the farmer can do to get his corn crop off to a strong start will pay off in more bushels per acre. The pictures below show some of the ways farmers can give their corn a real start toward a championship harvest.

By producing the almost unheard of yield of 194.5 bushels of corn per acre, Gerald Stafford, Tipton, Indiana, was declared the 4-H Corn Yield Champion and also won a scholarship to Purdue University. Looking on as Gerald scoops off the last load of his prize winning yield is J. B. Oyler, agricultural teacher of Tipton, who supervised Stafford's corn growing project.

To insure accurate planting and a full stand, use the correct planter plates for the grade and variety of seed you'll plant. Don't wait till the day of planting to order the right plates . . . get them now, as soon as you know your seed. Your local implement or seed dealer can help you select the right plates.

For a bumper yield, choose the right hybrid for your farm . . . one you are sure will mature in a normal season on your kind of soil. Check with your neighbors and with seed corn dealers. If you still haven't found the "perfect" hybrid for your farm, plant several different varieties and compare results next fall.

Before you plant, check the soil temperature. Wait till it is about 55° F. Putting seed corn in the ground when the soil is too cold may cut germination and reduce stand and yield. New methods of "cold-proofing" seed, helps keep it alive in cold, wet soil so it will germinate when the soil warms up.



Be sure to set your corn planter so it doesn't plant too deep. Corn planted one inch deep (above) came through the soil in good shape, but corn planted four and five inches deep was unable to push through the ground and died.

THESE NUBBINS NEEDED POTASSIUM

Fertilizer at planting time is a "shot in the arm" for the corn crop. It releases food for the young plant almost immediately so that it can get off to a fast start and keep ahead of weeds. In addition, a program of good soil management including use of fertilizer and rotation, will avoid nubbins like the two above.

Cultivate to rout the weeds, but don't set the shovels too deep or too close to the corn. If you do, root pruning will result. When surface feeder roots are cut off by the cultivator, corn can't gather enough plant food from the soil and yields drop. Killing weeds by chemicals avoids cutting off feeder roots.

ROLLED BALE locks in the leaves

This is the new gentle way to bale hay, saving more of the leaves.

The ONE MAN ROTO-BALER lifts the windrow and rolls it up like a carpet. Leaves and blossoms are wrapped inside so they cannot escape. The pictures here show how it is properly done. Wide double windrows cure fast and make the best rolled bales. They unroll easily in a thick, soft carpet of fluffy straw or hay.

Rolled bales can also be fed whole in the feedrack. They stack compactly, will not buckle, and feed with a minimum of waste.

The ONE MAN ROTO-BALER was designed and priced for home ownership. The hour your crop is ready, you can get it safely into rolled bales that shed showers like a thatched roof.

See your Allis-Chalmers dealer early if you'd like to own a ROTO-BALER this year.

Double windrows are easily made by reversing direction of raking.

Designed especially for tractor operation is the new POWER-DRIVEN air-tired Allis-Chalmers Tractor Rake and Tedder, with selective reel speeds, ball and roller bearings. It steers true, makes straight, airy windrows.

Youth Leaders

The high quality of America's youth leaders, judging by the outstanding records of the many national winners from every state present at the 27th National 4-H Club Congress, held in Chicago last No. 28 - Dec. 2 bespeaks a bright promise for our country's future. Their abilities and enthusiasm forecast finer, larger crops; healthier livestock; greater dairy resources; more efficiently run farms and better managed soil conservation programs — all of which adds up to a higher standard of living for all of us.

The pictures below show only a few of the hundreds of boys and girls who were rated as "champions" in their field, and who were rewarded not only by the honor of achievement, but scholarships, trips, and prizes as well.

NATIONAL ACHIEVEMENT WINNER Dick T. Brown, 18, Olathe, Col., received a silver trophy from the President of the United States.

Hybrid Chickens WHAT THEY MEAN TO YOU

Hottest topic of conversation in the Nation's four million "chicken yards" this spring is hybrid poultry. In fact, the hybrid hen is stirring up more interest than any other farm development since the coming of hybrid corn.

Like hybrid corn, this new type bird results from the crossing of two or more inbred lines. Judging from extensive tests and from the reports of farmers who have tried them, good hybrids may be as superior to standard bred flocks as hybrid corn is to the old open-pollinated varieties.

Of course the word "hybrid" is no magic guarantee of superiority. Hybrids can be good or bad depending upon the breeding behind them. Because large numbers of birds must be tested to carry out a sound program of hybrid breeding, only a few very large organizations now have the facilities required. Two of these, the producers of Hy-Line and Ames In-Cross chicks, are already selling hybrids in relatively large numbers. Another, the DeKalb Agricultural Association, is well along in a large research program but as yet is not offering chicks for sale.

The pictures below show some of the steps being followed to develop superior strains of hybrid chickens for you.

Complete record keeping is of top importance in developing hybrid chicks. After hatching, each chick is identified for life by a metal number band placed in the wing. The life-time record includes hatchability, livability, rate of feathering, rate of growth, adult body size, egg weight, shell color, texture, egg production, etc.

At ten days of age, each chick is checked for feathering, which indicates rate of development. Fast feathering is important in developing broilers as well as egg layers, since a chicken that develops rapidly has few, if any, pin feathers.

Ames In-Cross foreman Reuben Larson, recording number of pullet on the egg she has produced so that a history may be maintained of her performance, and the performance of her progeny.

Dr. E. E. Schnetzler, head of the DeKalb program, holds an inbred Barred Rock male. Generation after generation of inbreeding concentrates characteristics so that inbreds become more uniform, not only in apperance, but in performance.

Inbreeding concentrates bad characteristics as well as good. The "cross beak" characteristic above, is just one of many that are brought to the surface by inbreeding. Others include blindness, crooked back, bald heads, etc. By exposing bad characteristics, inbreeding helps the poultry breeder eliminate them.

These birds have been inbred for six generations. When outstanding inbreds are developed, test crosses are made. Some experimental inbred-crosses have produced as much as 40 per cent more eggs than good standard bred flocks kept under identical conditions.

Hy-Line breeders break out egg samples of every hen in all breeding pens. Selection for good interior egg quality was started more than six years ago. Selection for this characteristic further complicates an already very complicated breeding program.

It makes dollars and sense... TO FEED THE WAYNE WAY

Proof by Louis E. Beck, Smithfield, Nebr.: "We've fed Wayne for many years, very profitably. The last 3 years we started 6,000 poults on Wayne Turkey Starter, followed up with Wayne Growing Mash and Turkey Supplement. We averaged 18.5 to 19.6 lbs. dressed turkey at 28 weeks. Feed per lb. of turkey ran 4.4 to 5.2 lbs. One year we fed half our flock a cheaper feed, but found our Wayne-fed turkeys made more profit!"

Proof by Mrs. E. R. Johnson, So. Vernon, Mass.: "We started 900 pullets on Wayne Chick Starter, at 6 weeks still had 890 and then changed to Wayne Growing Mash. We picked up the 1st egg at 4 months and 3 days. Our birds are in good flesh and coming into high production. We'll house 850. We have raised our poultry the Wayne Way for 17 years, and have yet to be convinced that we could do better. I certainly recommend the Wayne Way to anyone!"

Proof by Redding Dairy Farm, Ft. Wayne Ind.: "We like the Wayne Calf Feeding Program. It's much more economical than the old milk-feeding way. Our calves start on Wayne Complete Calf Starter at 7 to 10 days. We feed milk with nipple pails. At 2 mo's, we switch from milk and Wayne Starter to a mixture of 1/3 oats, 1/3 shelled corn, 1/3 Wayne Calf Pellets. During the last 5 years only 1 calf has scoured. We get big, slick calves with minimum milk the Wayne Way!"

Proof by Verle I. Gallagher, Washington, Ia.: "I've been feeding Wayne ever since I visited Allied Mills Research Farm several years ago and learned the real meaning of "Ingredient Quality." I had 27 Wayne-fed sows farrow between Feb. 26 and April 2. I weaned 262 head. Sold 258 on Sept. 14, averaging 213 lbs. at average age of 4 days less than 6 mo's. That's 9.5 pigs and over a ton of pork marketed per sow. I fed the Wayne Way from start to finish. My pigs started fast on Wayne Pig Starter, then went on corn and Wayne Hog Supplement. I'm highly pleased with my Wayne results!"

IQ This "IQ" Seal, boldly displayed on every bag of Wayne, means you get nutrition that brings top results every time. It signifies triple-tests—chemical, biological and Research Farm—of its "Ingredient Quality." We know of no surer way to guarantee your feeding results. If this quality-control, for your protection and your profits, makes sense to you . . . switch now to the Wayne Way of feeding your poultry and livestock and let it start making dollars for you. Your friendly Wayne Feed Dealer will gladly help you get started.

SURGE The Machine with the Built-in TUG & PULL!

Teat cups that climb and keep climbing do choke off the flow of milk and slow up milking . . . they do harm the delicate tissues at the top of the teat . . . they do cause some kinds of udder trouble.

This trouble can be almost wholly avoided if you are there to bear down on the claw at the right time and it can be lessened by attaching various weights.

The Surge has a built-in TUG & PULL that holds the teat cups down where they belong so that they don't climb upward.

That is one of the big reasons—it is probably the main reason—why more thousands of men switched to the Surge in 1948 than ever before. That's why more of them are making the change every day.

Have you seen a new Surge lately? What has been mighty good for more than twenty-five years is even better in 1949. Ask your Surge Service Dealer to show you one.

CIVIC THEATRE GROUP TO PRESENT "THE HASTY HEART" AS ITS NEXT PRODUCTION

Production of John Patrick's comedy-drama, "The Hasty Heart," as it's next play was announced today by the Civic Theatre. The play begins the usual four-day run Thursday, March 24.

The play, which enjoyyed a marked success on Broadway during the 1945 season, first brought John Lund to the attention of theatre goers and began a rapid rise to stardom. Set in a British military hispital in Buma, "The Hasty Heart" tells of six convalescing soldiers from all parts of the world, Austrailia, America, New Zealand, England, Africa, and Scotland. Into the hospital ward comes Lachlen MacLachlen, a young Scotsman, who has but six weeks to live. The senior doctors have kept the knowledge from the Scot, but have asked the other men to make his last few weeks a happy time. Breaking down the stubborn pride and coolness of the youth is an almost insurmoutable task, but gradually he succumbs to the charm of the others, including Nurse Margaret. He reverts to his personal privacy when he learns of his impending death, and he seems destined to die alone without the friendship of his hospital mates.

"The play is free from the horrors of war," Director Erekson said, "and is concerned only with the gentle philosophy of brotherly love. The play is full of gay charm, laughable situations and delightful characters. I recommend it highly as a fine play, and one which this particular time of years calls for."

As Lachlen, Harvey Collins has a role which he says is one of the best he's ever had the opportunity of portraying. Gwen Wilson is cast as Nurse Margaret, who brings love and tenderness to the dying Scot. Others in the cast include Cam Applegate, Bob Tripplett, Herb Willis, Jr., Wilbur Boltz, Glenn Smith, John Tuggle and Rogers Thompson.

The play will be presented nightly through Sunday, March 27, with a Sunday "family matinee" as usual.

ADVISE CARE IN SORTING MOLDY CORN BEFORE MARKETING.

Care in sorting out moldy corn will pay liberal dividends to farmers bringing their grain to market according to Harold Anderson, head of the Anderson Truck Terminal, where thousands of bushels of grain are being received daily from farms in a 150 mile radius.

Farmers generally are doing a better job of sorting out their moldy corn, and the percentage of damaged corn now being received is not alarming ," Mr. Anderson said. "However, discounts on moldy corn are heavy, and since this corn can be fed to cows, hogs and sheep, farmers will profit by sorting before driving to the elevator."

Mr. Anderson also pointed out that other high moisture grains should be moved to market during the cold weather; otherwise there will be considerable musty wheat and beans with moisture too high to safely store.

The policies of the society are that all kinds of service is to be given to individuals with all kinds of crippling conditions, carefully avoiding the duplication of the service of the other public and private agencies. Physically handicapped persons of all ages, races and creeds are eligible to service.

The society's definition of crippling condition is any condition which constitutes a physical handicap is considered a crippling conditon. In addition to orthopedic handicaps this includes defective vision, impaired hearing speech defects and all other disabilities.

The Society's Five Main points of service are: 1. Early discovery; 2. Medical care and Treatment; . Education, 4, Recreation, including camping. 5. Vocational Training and Employment.

The society keeps its service program flexible and free of red tape so that any need may be met including the homebound child and adult. The following is an example of the services rendered.

1. Licensed teachers paid to tutor the homebound.
2. Special schools sponsored.
3. Pre-School Centers for the cerebral palsied, the deaf child and for crippled children with all kinds of crippling conditions.
4. Rehabilitation Centers set up with Occupational and physical therapy, and sheltered work.
5. Wheelchairs, walkers and all kinds of artificial appliances furnished.
6. Medical care and treatment is provided when not available from any other source
7. Plans for camping and other recreational programs provided for more than 350 children in 1949
8. Vocational training and work that they can do provided for the homebound and other severely handicapped individuals.

The Indiana Society and its affiliated county chapters are largely financed by the sale of Easter Seals. One appeal each year is made by direct mail. 91.7% of the Easter Seal dollar remains in Indiana where there are approximately 200, 000 physically handicapped children.

Kenneth R. Miller is Executive Director for Crippled children.

The Race Question

Lesson for March 27, 1949.

JESUS DID NOT know there was a race question. That is to say, there was no question for him, though he well knew that his neighbors found the race problem a hot one. All the germs of any race problem, even of race riots, were there in Palestine as in all of our world today.

Dr. Foreman

First there was the feeling of racial superiority. Few, if any, peoples think of themselves as an inferior race. Nobody would mind being kicked around if he thought he deserved nothing better. The Jews, to which race Jesus belonged, were no exception to the rule. They felt themselves the superior of any race on earth.

Two Sides of the Question

IN JESUS' time the Jew of Palestine was in the middle. The Romans, having conquered the land, were top-dog in Palestine. With the Romans, the Jews saw the under-side of the race question. But there were other races, much less pure than the Jews, races called "Canaanite" for want of a better name. These people were kicked around by the Jews, just as the Jews in turn were kicked around by the Romans. Looking at the Canaanites, the Jews saw the race question from the top side.

In Palestine the wounds of race quarrels were made worse by the vinegar of religious differences. In those days it was taken for granted: Different race, different religion.

Jesus' neighbors and relatives in Nazareth, like most Jews, supposed that God would favor only the "chosen people," namely themselves. So the Jew's resentment toward the Romans above him and his contempt of the Canaanites beneath him were made more bitter by his conviction that they would all end in hell except his own race.

What Jesus Did About It

THE TWO STORIES in our lesson (see the Scripture references) show the astonishingly simple way in which Jesus walked straight through those walls as if they did not exist. He passed no resolutions, denounced nobody; he simply treated all races alike. He helped the Roman army officer and the Canaanite woman precisely as if they had been Jews. (By the way, his remarks to that woman should not be misunderstood as rude. She did not take them that way. He spoke to her, we may well believe, with a smile, and she took him with equal good humor.) Jesus appreciated faith wherever he found it.

He was the last person to fancy that all human beings are alike. But he was the first to give all an equal chance. He took people as human beings, not as "Romans" or "Canaanites."

He neither cringed to the Romans nor bullied the Canaanites. He looked at all men and women with level eyes, seeing not their skins nor their clothes, but their hearts.

What We Can Do

OUR NORTH AMERICA is also criss-crossed by walls of prejudice — racial, political and religious. In Canada (for example) there is the friction between Canadians of French and those of English or Scotch descent; in the United States (not by any means confined to the South) between Negroes and white people, or between Japanese and white people; between the "old stock" and recent immigrants; and so on. Those walls look pretty solid; but a Christian will find that if he follows Jesus' example he can walk right through them. Last winter a national interdenominational organization challenged its 28 million members and through them the Christian world, with one of the most sweeping declarations of human rights ever drafted by an American church body.

Hitting at every type of discrimination—racial, political, social, economic, religious—the group has challenged the Church to work for the creation of a non-segregated society "as proof of their sincerity."

Yet the real breakdown of human prejudices, hatreds and contempts, with the injustices growing out of these, does not come at one stroke by resolutions. It comes only by degrees, as Christ-inspired individuals make their own bright doorways.

Calling all outdoorsmen

By JIM MITCHELL

Hunters and fisherman are going to have to pay more for their fun -- if they expect to continue to enjoy America's great outdoors.

Possibly that statement is a little too bold. At least, it is an unpleasant thought. However, the idea was given considerabe prominence recently at the annual North American Wildlife Conference in Washington, D. C.

And before you jump to conclusions and condemn the idea, think the question out; study the different phases. For many decades sportsmen in America have been getting a lot for a bare minimum in expenditures. A dollar or so for a fishing license has entitled the holder to countless hours of sport and relaxation on streams and lakes. This sport, too, has provided plenty of "meat" for the table. And the same is true of a hunting license.

Of course it is true that the cost of a license is only a small part of the overall expense of hunting or fishing for tackle, guns and other equipment, plus travel and housing costs, mount up to many times the cost of license. But look at the other side of the ledger. Conservation departments must operate mostly on revenue from license sales. It is their job to keep the good fishing, the forests and uplands filled with game for gunners. That's where the troubles come in the current setup:

Today you go to your favorite meat market and buy a steak --no at the price you paid a decade ago but at an inflated level. Your housing costs more; so does your clothing. Still, in most places sportsmen are paying a little more than they did a decade ago for the right to stalk deer, to gun for upland game or waterfowl. And game and fish management is suffering for lack of sufficient funds to do n first classs job.

If all license fees were doubled, the cost to individuals would be insignificant. We know of few outdoorsmen who couldn't pay an extra buck for the right to hunt or fish. Most of them will waste that much money every day. Then project this increased license cost over several hundred thousand buyers and the total would swell the revenue of game and fish departments to a figure that would be great enough to accomplish the task they have undertaken in keeping the outdoors

The Wildlife Conference endorsed doubling the fee for a migratory waterfowl stamp--from a dollar to two dollars. We'd like to go on record as encouraging every state to double its current license fees. And before you start tossing brickbats at this column, think the problem through. Then, we believe, you'll agree that double license costs would be a drop in the bucket if the streams and lakes produced more fish and wilderness, uplands and marshes had more game.

HERE 'N THERE IN SPORTS

By LEWIS H. WALTER

THIS writing just about winds up basketball for this season. The Auburn High Red Devils went down to defeat to the Jasper Wildcats by a 53 to 48 score, Saturday in the second afternoon game at the state finals, at Butler Fieldhouse. The Jasper club, who went in to the finals as the underdog, went out and then whipped the high flying, favored Madison Cubs to take the finals.

• • • •

JIM Schooley, Auburn center received the Trester award, formerly the Gimbel award, for mental attitude. Everett Paschen, principal and coach of Spencerville High School made the presentation at the fieldhouse after the final game.

• • • • • •

SUNDAY afternoon, Auburn and most all of the county paid tribute to the Red Devil's team as they returned to their home town from Indianapolis.

• • • • • •

THE fans promised the boys a reception, win or lose, but hardly any of the boys or coach Showalter were prepared for the bang up way the home crowed went about doing it. The team and their coach were picked up outside of town and transferred to the new fire truck, and then escorted up the streets lined with onlookers, to the court house, where the remainder of the welcome home ceremony took place.

• • • • • •

WITH the windup of basketball happenings in these parts, we would like to say that we have enjoyed covering the games of the High School here and at Spencerville and reporting them in this column. We also enjoyed reporting the Red Devils winning their three tournaments We would also like to take this means to thank all of you who have given us words of encouragement on these articles!

ALTHOUGH basketball is finished for about 7 or 8 montths we will continue to cover the softball and baseball games and other sporting events of interest that we can.

PLANS for the High School summer softball league which was initiated last year at Harlan have not definitely been formed yet, but it is almost sure that the league will continue again this year with possibly several more schools added to the League. Harlan, Leo, Spencerville and St. Joe comprised the league last year.

LOOKING AHEAD

President—Harding College

A Dangerous Tax

There's talk in Washington of a $4 billion tax increase. If Congress permits this new siphoning of income and savings from the people into the federal treasury, the results can be dangerous for the whole nation. This is fact, regardless of whether or not the President and his administration would be cramped in spending a proposed $42 billion budget.

Of course, like our Senator McClellan told homefolks recently: Mr. Truman's program means that taxes can go only one way—up, up, up. Senator Fulbright, our other distinguished senator, tried to ease the misgivings of the economy-minded by pointing out that saving federal money and reducing taxes is a question of "what you are willing to give up." That is a problem, all right. Too many of us have the attitude of the well known politician, who said he had never voted for a tax bill nor against an appropriations bill.

Justify Spending

If we manage to fool ourselves into thinking the other fellow is going to have to pay for the handouts, we then show no enthusiasm about economy. Citizens and congressmen alike, too often see economy as a fine thing when it's not close to home, but work like mad for all the government "aid" they can get—for themselves.

One thing is wrong with the question our Senator asked about what we would give up. It puts the burden of proof on the citizen who would economize! That proof belongs elsewhere. Every bureaucrat who demands funds should explain and justify the expenditure of every dollar!

Wherein lies the danger to the nation in heavier taxes at this time? It is proposed that the burden of a $4 billion tax increase be placed upon corporations and businesses. This might look to some like an easy way to shift the tax load onto somebody else. Actually, a tax that is shouldered by business is still borne by the people—because people buy the products of corporations that are owned by people.

Don't Kill Incentive

At present the nation's business corporations pay a 38 per cent tax on income. Earnings distributed to owners may get taxed up to 92 per cent. (Other taxes, also, are levied upon corporations.) Tremendous sums, therefore, are handed to Uncle Sam by industry. But right now, the nation's economists are agreed that America's industry must have huge amounts of additional capital for growth and for expansion. There's danger, if instead these billions must be poured into Washington.

Any industrial plant that is not able to spend money continually for expansion or for newer, better equipment is a corporation moving toward failure. An amount roughly equal to the President's proposed budget of $42 billion is the least we ought to put this year into our industrial plant. If America is to have the industrial strength it should have, if jobs are to remain plentiful, and if wages are to be high—then we had better have a care about penalizing our industry. America can lose out by exacting too much "take" from business.

Unless industry is allowed to expand, modernize, and meet today's needs, there'll be nothing at all to tax one of these days. When taxes take what would be invested, and when incentive to invest is killed—the country will go into reverse. Another $4 billion in taxes on corporations would be most unwise.

SPENCERVILLE, INDIANA

THESE are the people who own your electric light and power company. Chances are you are one of this group, too.

They represent a cross-section of America — housewives, doctors, teachers — industrial workers, craftsmen, farmers — mechanics and milkmen. Yes, people from all walks of life have put their savings into companies like ours. They're direct owners.

But there are countless indirect owners, too — many who don't know they have a stake in the electric industry. They're people with life insurance policies and savings accounts. When banks and insurance companies accept your money, they must invest it wisely and productively. And because business-managed electric companies have a long record of successful service, much of that money is invested in utility securities.

So, you see, the electric industry is owned by the people it serves.

Dairy Day Program Largest Ever Held

The 4th Annual DeKalb County Dairy Day attracted 1465 people from DeKalb County who were very much impressed by the program at the Waterloo High School gym on March 22 by the dairy industries and Purdue University in cooperation with the extension office and local dairy committee. This was the largest DeKalb County Dairy Day held this far and marks a steady growth in the interest in extension activities held in DeKalb County. Dairy Day was first held in 1946 in Auburn where 350 attended; in 1947 the event was held at Butler with 700 in attendance; the 1948 event was held at Garrett where slightly over 1000 attended. This year's event marks the largest single county Dairy Day held in Indiana thus far.

The co-operation of the Waterloo school system with the county extension service, dairy industries serving DeKalb County, Purdue U., extension committees, and businesses of DeKalb County all aided in sponsoring the program which was as follows:

10:00 a. m.— WOWO, Nancy Lee & the Hilltoppers

11:30 a. m.—Waterloo High School Band
Waterloo Band Parents under supervision of Mrs. Lavern Stuckey

1:00 p. m.—Style Show under direction of Lorraine Amy, Purdue Home Economist. Garments modeled by 14 DeKalb County women

2:00 p. m.—Nancy Lee & the Hilltoppers.

2:30 p. m.—Grand Finale - Style Show presented by the men modeling women's garments.

The 16 Purdue and industry exhibits on display were as follows:

Purdue

1. Control of Cattle Grubs
2. Farm Safety
3. Methods of Curing Hay
4. Ladino Clover
5. Herd Health
6. Artificial Breeding
7. Home Pasteurization
8. Washing Milking Equipment

Industry

9. Dairy Products
10. Dairy Barn & Milk House plans
11. Sediment Tests
12. Microscopic & Methyylene Blue Tests
13. Washing Milking Equipment
14. Strainer Pad

Milik House & Eqipmemnt

16. American Dairy Association

Doyle Thompson, 4-H club member of Kosciusko County was one of the highlight events of the program when he demonstrated fast milking on a Holsetin cow using the elevated plaform-type milking parlor recently being adopted by dairy farmers.

Purdue specialists, G. P. Walker, Frank DeLaCroix, F. R. Willsey, W. P. Graham, and Dr. F. A. Hall were on hand to answer questions on dairy, agronomy, veterinary, and safety throughout the day.

Entertainment was provided by DeKalb County Farm Bureau, Steckley's Feed Mill, Auburn Grain Co., Avilla Feed Mill, Haynes Dairy at Garrett, Auburn Dairy, Corunna Feed Mill, Auburn Hatchery and Feed Mill, Butler Hatchery and Produce Co., City Dairy at Kendalville, Superior Dairy at Garrett, DeKalb County Dairy Herd Improvement Assoqiation, Longaker Mills, Hudson Elevator, Waterloo Dairy, Myers Elevator at St. Joe, William Mertz-Surge, DeKalb Co., Artificial Breeding Association, Burgoyne Implement Store, Culbertson Hardware and Implement Store, Hamilton Elevator and Feed Mill, Koeneman Farm Equipment at Auburn, Bercaw Implement Co., at Butler, Mid-West Dairy at Auburn, Ashely-Hudson Lumber Co, Dice Brothers Ford Tractors, Kline's Dairy at St. Joe, Spenceville Elevator, Bovee's Implement at Stroh. Hudson Hardware, Helmer Elevator, Edgerton Lumber & Supply Co., Meyer Elevator & Coal Co., at Edgerton, John Deere Implement Store at Edgerton, Hicksville Grain Co., Sears & Roebuck at Kendallville and Farmer's Equity Exchange at Waterloo. The lunch was provided by Sherman White and Co., Defiance Milke Company, Pet Milk Co., Page Milk Co., Kraft Foods, Allen Dairy at Ft. Wayne, United Milk Products Co., Isaly's, Central Dairy, County Line Cheese Co., and Wayne Co-op.

The directors of the Dairy Herd Association and the directors of the Artificial Breeding Association, and the home economics presidents cooperated with the industries in planning this affair.

WOULD PASS BILL TO INCREASE POSTAGE RATES
(Editorial from the Farm Journal)

Information pays dividends to every active American. Farmers without information would soon become farmers without progress. Business conducted without information would soon become business without advance or profit.

Free citizenship depends upon a constantly informed people. Dictators can seldom gain power where the flow of information is unimpeded.

Among agencies for making Americans an exceptionally well informed people one of the foremost, and perhaps least appreciated, is the Post Office Department. From the beginning of the nation, the prompt and generous distribution of information through the mails has been a fundamental policy, and a very wise one. Next to the public schools, the postal service without doubt is the most valauble American educational institution.

People who overlook this fact sometimes asks why the postal service does not make a profit. They do not expect the school system to return its cost of tuition, nor the Depatrment of Agriculure to turn back into the treasuy as much money as it costs.

An administration bill, HR2945, now introduced into Congress, proposes to increase postal rates to levels which, theoretically would make the postal service self-supporting.

Naturally, since we have opposed government subsidies in general it might seem consistent for us to support increased postage rates, even though postage, next to printing and paper is the largest single item in Farm Journal's operating costs.

As a matter of fact, we do agree that a reasonable increase in postage rates should be made. We do not agree that second class postage rates have ever been a subsidy to the publishers.

Whatever money, if any, the government loses through carrying periodicals is comparable to the money it spends for education, or for the Agricultural Extension Service, or for any othtr activity designed to provide a free people with unlimited, uncensored information.

Perhaps the administration bill under discussion has been made drastic for particular purposes. Perhaps the intent is to awaken the public, and Congress, to a fuller appreciation of the postal service and of their fundamental purpose. For the bill is indeed drastic.

The rates proposed, if adopted, would put out of business most agricultural, labor, and religious publications; and many rural newspapers. Periodicals that can reach their readers through newsstands could survive, as might a few with very high subscription prices.

Repeated increase in printing, paper and other costs have already forced Farm Journal to accept the increased subscription rates which go into effect April 19. We cannot expect subscribers to pay a rate doubled and redoubled.

The actual results of the huge rate increases which the bill proposes would reach far beyond either damage to publishers or limitation of information.

The decline in advertising would result in decreased sales, in declining business and in unemployment which, if not enough to set off a depression, would certainly so reduce the taxable income that the net loss to the Federal Treasury would make any past postal deficit look trivial.

Our readers will do themselves as well as the whole public a service if they will ask their Representatives and Senators to oppose HR 2945.

Trail of The Cross
Lesson for April 3, 1949

THE TURNING-POINT in Jesus' career was dramatic. But the few friends who were present did not then realize what it meant. On a vacation journey, Jesus put to his most intimate friends this question: "Who do men say that I am?" Peter's answer, "Thou art the Christ," may sound obvious to us, but was not obvious then.

Dr. Foreman

It was sensational, so much so that Jesus did not want the publicity that would come to him if that name "Christ" were freely circulated. For the word "Christ" meant nothing less than "King." To the Romans it would sound like treason; but to the Jews it would sound like Judgment Day.

When Peter said, "You are the Christ," he was implying also: "You are immortal. You are the coming conqueror of the world. You are not in the same class with any other man. You will do for mankind what no other hero has ever done."

God's View and the Devil's

ON ALL THAT glowing devotion Jesus' next announcement fell liko icy rain. In the ears of those friends of his it sounded like the bell of death. Never before had Jesus told them anything like this, and they must have found it hard to belive. For he had not a word about a throne, nothing about success, nothing about mastering the world. Quite the contrary. He must "suffer many things . . . be rejected . . . be killed." If they heard the words "rise again" too, the words made no impression.

For Jesus had announced what to them seemed impossible, absurd: He, the Christ, would be killed! Small wonder that Peter broke out—No, No! But Jesus would not compromise. He even called Peter "Satan" for thinking as he did.

The Christian church agrees with Jesus, not with Peter. We realize today, as Peter himself did afterwards, what the Cross of Christ means.

Buddha, founder of a very different religion, died in old age of overeating. Can you imagine Jesus doing that? Suppose Jesus had taken Peter's advice and made arrangements to retire comfortably where he would never see a cross? Then we never should have heard of him. He would not have been worth hearing from.

One Cross is Not Enough

YES, WE KNOW now that the Cross of Christ is important. But we are a good deal like Peter, after all. For we do not listen to what we do not like to hear. And the next words of Jesus, on that historic occasion, must have sounded then as they do now, most chilling of all. "Whosoever would come after me, let him take his own cross and follow me." In Jesus' time no one was ever seen carrying a cross who was not already under sentence of death and on his way to be executed.

Translated into modern terms, what Jesus said would sound as horrible as this: Any man who wishes to follow me must take his seat on the electric chair . . . must take his place in the lethal chamber . . . must put his neck in a noose . . . and follow me.

One cross is not enough. There must be other crosses. My road is a death-march. I want for my followers only those who are willing to take the same trail.

SUCH WORDS sounded harsh then; they do still. But in the light of the centuries, we can see what Jesus meant, better than that little band of frightened men around Jesus who did not want to hear the words "suffer . . . die." Jesus was not advocating pain for pain's sake.

Why did Jesus set his own face toward the cross? The Christian answer is, He did it—for others. Now what is wrong with the world today? It isn't that we don't wish our neighbors well; but the trouble is, we don't want to be bothered, our good-will is too tender to stand any strain, we will do anything for other people provided it doesn't hurt.

But the world can be saved only as men and women imitate and multiply the spirit of the crucified Christ.

We predicted some weeks back that next fall's duck and goose season would be longer and the bag limit more lenient than druring this past season. Now a release from the U. S. Fish andWildlife Service bears out this forecast.

Although Albert M. Day, director of the Wildlife Service, has not openly said that the season will be longer, he is on record as saying that the outlook is "encouraging" for more lenient regulations. And his reasoning is based on a survey just completed of waterfowl wintering grounds.

This annual waterfowl inventory in the southland and Mexico disclosed that the continent's duck and goose population has increased. A heavy decline in the number of coots, however, has kept the overall 1949 waterfowl count at about the same figure as for 1948.

Mr. Day credited the increase shown in the wintering grounds to southland for waterfowl and to the stringent hunting regulations the last two seasons. Also Mr. Day said that the Wildlife Service's refuges helped by providing resting and feeding grounds for the birds on their migration south.

"The regulations have been purposely severe during the past two years," said Mr. Day," to overcome the 1945-47 tailspin in waterfowl populations. The duck and goose inrease in the 1949 inventory indicates that the regulations have had the desired effect and have halted the decline."

Setting of regulations for next season naturally will depend largely on the summertime survey in the breeding areas in the north. But duck hunters are almost assured of a longer season this coming winter.

There has been lots of yelling the last two years about the short season and the comparatively small bag limit, but apparently this did not have the desired effect. Now that it is over let's forget about the strict regulations and plan for the future. And let's not let the "tailspin" in waterfowl populations happen again.

WITH just three weeks of league bowling remaining in the Intercity Bowling loop which uses Brown's Alley's of Hicksville for their battle ground, 4 teams are staging a blistering finish to the 28 week's bowling grind to try and nail down the first place spot and the extra pocket cash that goes with the league winners. With last week's results incomplete, four teams were bunched in the top spot. The St. Joe Legionaires with a three game Hicksville, were one of the teams in that spot.

NEWS that may be of very great interest by the time basketball rolls around again, came out of both Auburn and Garrett today. Plans were announced at both places for remodeling of the gyms, a long discussed project that will add greatly to the seating capacity. At Auburn, plans call for a project that will raise the seating capacity from the present 2500 to about 3500. To make the project a reality by next basketball season, the gym floor will have to be changed from east to west and will run north and south. Built in bleachers will be erected on what are now the ends, to encircle the whole playing floor. At Garrett, the plan that will increase seating capacity in their goalry is to remove the more or less temporary floor bleachers and erect steep bleachers from the floor as high as possible to permit good vision.

THREE members of the Auburn Red Devil basketball team, were honored by sportswriters and radio broadasters to be nominated as among the 25 outstanding graduating seniors from the Muncie semifinal district to complete in the annual Indiana and Kentucky all star game that will take place in June. 25 boys are also picked from the other 3 semi-final districts to make a field of 100, from which just ten will be picked for the game. The players need not necessarily have appeared in the Muncie or any other semifinal, but are taken from those districts. Jim Schooley, Ken McInturf and Don Derrow were the Auburn picks of which Schooley should receive the nod, and probably as a starter. The five receiving the most votes will make the start ing five.

Socialism and Taxes

Can high taxes take us down the road to socialism? Yes, a whole lot farther than most people think. Top economists are pointing right now to danger signs that affect you and your job. With taxes having long ago neared the "breaking point," it is just possible that unwise legislation for more spending and more taxes could upset the nation.

The plight our nation is in right now, because of a tax load that requires more than a quarter of every dollar of national income, was apparent in the President's recent message. Mr. Truman stressed the need for high steel production and for expanded facilities. (Steel output is hitting new all-time peaks—even better than war time highs.) It would be the part of the federal government to build plants and produce steel, if private industry did not, Mr. Truman said. For this, who would put up the capital?

Contradiction?

Obviously, you would. By paying taxes. When government goes into business, the effect is to spend money, not make it. That has been proved too many times. But on the face of it, Mr. Truman's proposition—that the government get into the steel business—is nothing more nor less than socialism pure and simple. Continuing, Mr. Truman said there must be $4 billion in new taxes, mostly from corporations. The contradiction of it all makes food for serious thought.

With one breath, the government thus orders business to "plan for steady, vigorous expansion," and with the next proposes taxing policies that will make it impossible for industry to have funds for expansion. Despite already high taxes that make capital timid, the steel industry has somehow reached enormous production levels. But more taxes remain a dangerous threat. What Congress does about taxes this year may have great influence on the production of the future.

Incentive Destroyer

Heavy taxes are a certain hindrance to production, and hence to prosperity and national well-being. More than any other one factor, taxes can smother initiative. They destroy incentives to get ahead, to save, and to invest. Taxes take at least half the total income of all persons with incomes of $5,000 a year or more. This group represents only one-tenth of America's families, but it is from this group that the bulk of risk capital must continually flow into new enterprises.

A Plague of Taxes

That high taxes are now keeping funds away from business enterprise is a sobering fact. Figures will show that in the eight year period from 1940 through 1947, individuals cut back their holdings of corporate investments by nearly a billion and one-third dollars! Taxes do prevent savings for investment.

Be assured that if the federal budget takes $42 billion from the people, the price of everything from bread to shoestrings will contain its share of that multi-billion dollar figure. That is why government spending must interest you. The more government spends, the more it must collect. And government has nothing, except what it gets from the people. Then when people pay, incentive is in grave danger. The Gargantua that can overthrow America is "Big Government." This destroyer feeds on taxes.

HINTS ON HEALTH by the INDIANA STATE MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

OH, WHAT'S THE USE!

OUR daily jobs get tiresome for all of us occasionally. The housewife gets discouraged over the eternal round of meals and dishes; her husband gets fed up with going to his work day after day. Just thinking about work can make us tired when we're in that kind of a mood.

If the mood persists, or comes back frequently, even well people get to thinking there's something wrong with them. Actually these people don't know how to combat mental fatigue. Strong emotions wear us out, as well as humdrum existence. Worry, fear, love, and hate are all very fatiguing. In that case, our "too tired" feeling may well result from a desire to escape some unpleasantness or duty.

Your interests and enthusiasms stimulate your energy and strength, and are the secret of banishing mental fatigue. Very often your feeling of tiredness comes from the dullness and sameness of your life. Your fatigue falls from you when something you really want comes into view. A tired shopgirl always can get up energy enough to go out on a date. The student who falls asleep over his books brightens up when he thinks about the basketball game. A man may be too tired to drive his wife to her bridge club meeting, but a call to a game of poker later that same evening may find him raring to go.

Give yourself a new viewpoint, something new to struggle for, and you'll get over being tired, provided you are in good health.

by EVERETT MITCHELL

Farm Commentator, heard Monday through Saturday, 6:15-6:45 a. m. on WMAQ, Chicago, 670 on your dial.

EVERY farmer knows that farrowing time is a critical period in the control of swine disease. It isn't often, though, that he realizes he should take precautions to protect himself.

Veterinarians point out that in addition to taking precautions which will prevent infection of the shoats, the owner should protect himself from the danger of contracting undulant fever in cases where Brucellosis or Bang's Disease is present in the herd. Unless a blood test has been made, the owner may not be aware of the presence of the disease in his herd. The wise hog man always will use rubber gloves when handling or drying off newly farrowed pigs.

To protect the young pigs from disease, a separate farrowing pen should be provided for each sow. This will prevent any infection present from spreading from one litter to another.

Good hog breeders also take steps to protect their shoats against cholera. This can be done most economically by vaccinating the pigs about two weeks before weaning or about two weeks after they have been weaned. If the sow has been vaccinated the pigs will get some immunity from the mother while nursing, but will need the protection of vaccination after being weaned.

As in so many other farm undertakings, protection plays a dual role. Both the farmer and his livestock must be safe-guarded from the ever present dangers of disease.

The fifth grading period which ends this Friday will change the list a little. Watch next weeks paper for up-to-dat report.

Special praise must be given to the 7th grade for their attendacne the 4th grading period (from Jan. 17 to Feb. 11). Out of a possible 570 days class attendance they were present 564 for an attendance percentage of 98.14. Congratulations

COUNTY TREASURER WILL MAIL OUT TAX BILLS, STARTING SPRING OF 1950

County Treasurer John C. Brown of Auburn reported Monday that the Indiana General Assembly's enactment of a law requiring county treasurers to mail out tax bills rather than hold them in the office budget for next year.

He said the postage expense for mailing the statements in the spring and in the fall taxpaying period will amount to an estimate $1,280.

The treasurer added that the postage expense would be only a small part of the total cost, for an addressing machine and other automatic office equipment probably will be necessary.

The law was passed by the state legislature several weeks ago and is scheduled to go into effect in the spring of 1950.

Mr. Brown also reported that the payment of the spring installment of taxes has slowed down with a great majority of the taxes unpaid. The taxpaying periods ends the first Mondy in May. He urges taxpayers to settle their installments as soon as possible and escape the rush during the final few days of the period.

"RESSURECTION RALLY" TO BE HELD AT EDGERTON CHURCH OF CHRIST

Of great interest to all in the tri-state area of Ohio, Michigan and Indiana will be the "Resurrection Rally" which will be held at the Church of Christ at Edgerton, Ohio, April 11th through April 16th. It will be the purpose of this rally to establish in this area firmly the foundations which undergirds "the faith once and for all delivered to the saints." The emphasis will be upon proving the historical fact of the resurrection of Christ and showing its significance to the world and to the individual. Every effort will be made to make the evidence presented clear, concise and conclusive While this will not be an evangelistic meeting, the evangelistic import of the subject will not be disregarded.

In order that it may be known with certainty that every argument of one who would reject the evidence presented has been met, an open challegne to debate upon any subject affirmed during this rally is being offered . The purpose of this challenge is not merely to arouse controversy, but it is rather an attempt to make certain that the proof presented is considered conclusive by everyone who hears it.

The first three nights of the rally will establish the historical fact of the resurrection. The last three will show its significance. The speakers will be as follows:

Monday, April 11th—"The Character of The Witnesses" by Darris Hamilton of Sturgis, Mich.

Tuesday, April 12th—"Witnesses On The Stand" by Herbert Watkins of Hicksville, Ohio.

Wednesday, April 15th— "The Ressurrection Proves Jesus' Deity" by James McCord of Metz, Indiana.

Thursday, April 14th—"The Resurrection Has Changed World History" by Johnny Lee Sennett of St. Joe, Indiana.

Friday, April 15th—"Pure Christianity, The Only Valid Religion" by Charles Matthews of Fort Wayne, Indiana.

Saturday, April 16th—"The Resurrection is Important To You" by Lee Carter Maynard of Angola, Indiana.

There will be also special features during the course of the rally, all of which will be centered about the theme of the rally. Special music by both local and visiting singers, and declamations will be among these.

The emphasis of the rally will be continued in the Sunday services on April 17th. The minister of the Edgerton congregation, Waren Humphrey, will present a message, "How And Why Observe The Ressurrection?" in the morning service.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

International Uniform Sunday School Lessons

By DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

SCRIPTURE: Mark 10.
DEVOTIONAL READING: Mark 9:33-37.

Lesson for April 10, 1949

ONCE THERE WAS a farmer who owned a large farm. Its wide acreage was divided into pastures and fields and a garden and orchards and hog-lots and chicken-yards and so on. But whenever any one would ask the farmer about some particular part of the farm, he would answer, "That's not my business—that's only the orchard, it isn't the farm;" or "—That's not the farm, that's a flock of sheep," or a rye field or whatever it might be. Of course such a farmer never lived, or if he did, he should have his head examined.

What Does Religion Cover?

YET THAT FARMER is not a bit more idiotic than a Christian who, when asked about this or that activity or aspect of life, answers, "That's not religion. I have no interest in it." Religion isn't a little fenced-off pasture for lambs, a tiny garden plot behind thick hedges.

Religion covers the whole farm, every bit of life from end to end. Jesus knew this very well. He never once refused to discuss anything on the ground that it was not religious.

He cast light on everything that touched him. He called his followers the "light of the world." Not flashlights, shining in one narrow beam! Not flashlights, but lamps, set on a lampstand and "giving light to all who are in the house."

The Light Of God

A GOOD cross-section of Jesus' methods and ideas can be seen in Mark 10, into which one chapter Mark packs his whole account of a number of weeks which Jesus spent in the region called Perea. Observe the variety of situations which confronted Jesus. First there was a question about divorce. When they brought that question up to Jesus, he did not dodge it. He did not call it a personal matter in which he, as a teacher of religion, had no interest. He did not say it was strictly a matter for the civil courts. You may read what he did say in Mark 10. You will not that first of all he brings God into his answer.

Religion And Little Children

THIS CHAPTER includes the famous story of the little children who were brought to Jesus—evidently quite small children, for Jesus lifted them into his arms. We do not here Jesus saying, "Children are too small for me to take any interest in them. Wait till they are older. What good can religion do these tiny tots?" On the contrary, Jesus not only blessed them, but held them up as models for older people.

Is your church following Jesus here? Is your church interested in the little children as much as it is in the "paying" members?

Or are the little ones shoved off into some damp corner of the church basement? In your state or province, do the Christian people take an interest in the children? Do children in your section get as good attention as pure-bred cattle do?

As Wide As Life

THEN THERE WAS a question about eternal life. Of course Jesus answered that one, it was obviously a religious question. (Except that he gave it what some people even today would consider a not very religious answer!) Jesus went on to talk about money and the effect it has on a man's prospect of eternal life. Jesus would be the very last person to imagine that a man's bank account has nothing to do with religion. Some people to this day don't like to hear a preacher mention money in his sermons. Well, such people might have been offended by Jesus, for he often preached about money and property.

Then there was the question of ambition, the audacious request that James and John made of him. He had some strong remarks to make about that.

And finally at Jericho, not long before Palm Sunday, there was the blind beggar Bartimaeus. Jesus did not say to him, "Health is no affair of mine. I cure souls, not bodies."

Calling all outdoorsmen

By JIM MITCHELL

With lead poisoning taking an annual toll of something over a million waterfowl, finding a way to erase this malady is vital if we are to continue to enjoy decent duck hunting. Possibly you will say that a million ducks is only a drop in the bucket in the overall waterfowl picture but acually, saving only a few thousand ducks each year will, in time, add greatly to the sport.

Some weeks back we reported that a project had been launched at Havana, Ill., by the Illinois Natural History Survey where trained biologists were to conduct experiments with hopes of finding a remedy for lead poisoning. We're happy to bring you up-to-date on these experiments for some progress has been made.

Apparently a diet consisting of a high percentage of corn is a contributing factor in the death of waterfowl from lead poisoning. And since corn is a major food item in many parts of the nation for ducks in their annual migration south, this unquestionably has been a factor in the large number of waterfowl that have died after scooping up the lead pellets from the bottom while feeding in heavily shot areas.

In the Survey's experiments more than 500 ducks -- Pekins, domestic and wild mallards-have been under observation for about eight months. In one test, some Pekin ducks that were dosed with as many as 25 No. 4 lead pellets survived when they were fed a balanced diet. But Pekins given the same dose of lead pellets then fed on corn, died within a few days.

Four No. 6 lead pellets of a commercial shot proved fatal to nine of ten domestic mallards fed on corn. The rate of mortality of wild mallards under similar conditions was even higher than the domestic ducks.

In further tests it was discovered that the addition of magnesium, phosphorus or other metals to the lead alloy used in commercial shot didn't seem to reduce the lethal effect of shot pellets. In another test, three of six Pekin ducks died within 16 days when dosed with four no. 4 magnesium-lead pellets and fed on corn. Following this in another experiment, eight of 10 wild mallards died in 12 to 30 days when dosed with a single magnesium-lead No. 6 pellet and fed on corn, and nine of nine died in 12 to 22 when dosed with two pellets and fed a diet of corn.

Whatever the experiments uncover, it is well to know that "experts" on wildlife are on their toes and battling to keep our outdoors productive in enjoyable and clean sport. And with the cooperation of all sportsmen in worthy projects, we need not fear that the outdoors as we know it will vanish.

HERE 'N THERE IN SPORTS

By LEWIS H. WALTER

PLANS for the new softball field in Auburn, that have lagged for the last two years mainly because of lack of funds, received a shot in the arm this week when the Y. M. C. A. Softball Association turned over approximately $1500 to be used to finish the field. Actual work on the new park which will be located on South Phillips street, will start immediately or as soon as the ground will permit heavy machinery. The date of June 1st has been set as the deadline for getting the diamond in shape for the Y league to start.

THE $1500 urned over to the project represents the amount taken from concessions and gate at the old park over the past several years. The Softball Association was permitted to retain the concession right. A permanent backstop of heavy screen will be put in place, and the playing field will be lighted by 36 reflectors, which will be placed on poles 70 ft high.

WITH the big league baseball clubs heading north on the final leg of spring training and the opening date actually less than two weeks away, here are a few of the early attraction games that may be of interest to fans whose favorite team is within driving distance of "these parts."

The Chicago Cubs, with an improved club over last year's, which had little, if any trouble in knocking off the cellar spot, have three scheduled doubleheaders at home, this season. On Sunday, May 29th they will entertain the Cincinnatti Reds in a twin bill; they also have have early single games on Sunday, May 1st with St. Louis and May 22nd with Boston.

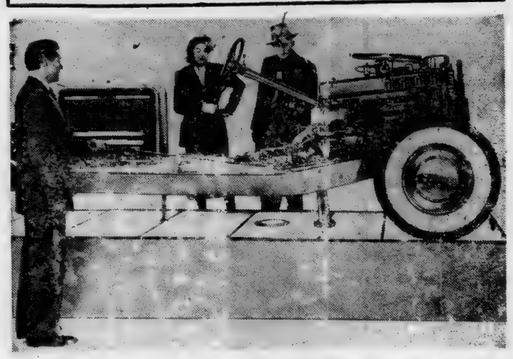
Detroit has no early Sunday twin bills scheduled at home, but do have early single games with New York and Cleveland. The dates for those games are May 1st, and 8th respectively. July 4th would be a good date to remember for Detroit or Cleveland fans, for the two clubs come together in a bargain bill that date at Detroit.

Cleveland will have their first home double header on May 8th with Washington and will have another Sunday double header with the Browns on May 30th. Sunday. June 5th, Philadelphia will be at Cleveland for two and the Yanks will follow the next Sunday there with a double header.

The White Sox first home double bill, will be on Sunday May 8th with Philadelphia, and this will be followed on the next Sunday, 15th with Cleveland coming there for a pair of games.

On Sunday, May 1st the Cincinnatti, Reds will entertain the Pirates on May 15th, in two games and on Sunday, May 22, Brooklyn will be at Crosley field for two.

Feature of Automotive Exhibit



ONE of the outstanding attractions of the General Motors show in Detroit April 10-17 will be Buick's special chassis pictured above. The chassis is animated by electric motors with working parts—engine, Dynaflow transmission and drive-shaft—in cutaway sections so that visitors may see a dramatic demonstration of how power is transmitted from the engine to the rear axle through the unique torque conve.er. Engineering representatives will be on hand to explain operations to visitors, while an electronic control device, left, visually pictures what happens to the transmission and the drive-shaft as engine speed increases.

LOOKING AHEAD

You and Your Share

If ever this nation needed an economy-minded Congress, it is now. The cost of government has shot up all out of sight. Current high costs of government represent more than just dollar inflation. What we have had, without clearly realizing it, is a boom in government. This boom has flourished until there is danger of collapse from the very size of the superstructure itself. Our ship of state is indeed top-heavy.

Lumping all government together—federal, state, local—tax collections for the 1948 fiscal year came to 26 per cent of the national income. Perhaps you can see it better if we should divide up that $55.2 billion of tax collections to find what was your part. It amounts to $377 for each man, woman, and child in the nation. You didn't pay that much? Brother, your share was tucked away in the price of everything you spent your money for!

Government Unlimited?

You can see how much taxes have grown, if you compare the above figures with those for 1940. Then tax collections were $14.4 billion, or 18.9 per cent of national income. The amount for each person in 1940 was only $109. In eight years, therefore, we have more than tripled our taxes. A lot of it results from the war. We're spending a lot in Europe, certainly. But let us not use that as an excuse for lack of vigilance about the rest of it.

We are inclined to justify boom government and resulting high taxes in a number of strange ways. In depression times, we call for more and more spending. That means taxes, but we put them off until later. Then in time of plenty, we think up more things that government can do "better" for us, feeling sure that we can afford it. At the same time, we ignore wartime debt and forget that we ever did any "deficit" spending! Must we dedicate ourselves to unlimited government?

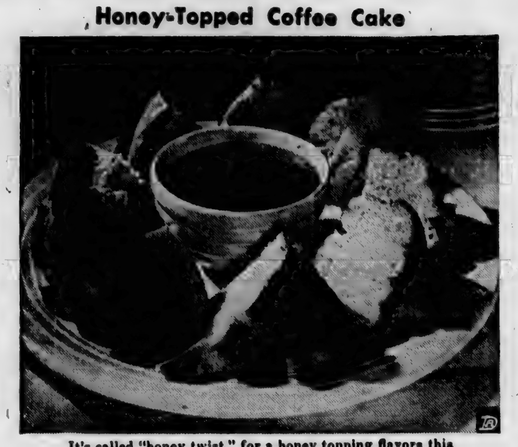
Voters Are Taxpayers

Knowing that "power to tax is power to destroy," the founding fathers placed tax power upon Congress. This power was not meant to be abused. Citizens then were aware that government was meant to serve them, not they to serve the government. That is the viewpoint of taxpayers.

But times have changed. Nowadays American voters (though they be taxpayers to the tune of billions) look upon themselves first as receivers of government benefits, last as payers of tax. Our federal government is now making payments direct to 15,830,899 persons. Some of these are necessary. But too many of us, far too many for the good of the nation, have a personal interest in seeing government expenditures continue. Will any of these 16 million bite the hand that feeds them?

You see, this is the way we ourselves can undermine the cornerstone of freedom. Almost without knowing it, we have created a huge central government, then given it power to perpetuate itself. If big government can minimize the dangers of entrenched bureaucracy, keep public waste and extravagance out of sight, and go on taxing—then this thing will continue regardless of the party in power. When big government sells people on the idea of lavish handouts which they themselves pay for by high taxes, you can call this bribing people with their own money!

Honey-Topped Coffee Cake



It's called "honey twist," for a honey topping flavors this coffee cake. Extra honey may be served to those who like coffee cake dripping with sweetness.

Women who enjoy baking rolls and coffee cakes are always discovering how to make new good things to eat from a basic sweet yeast dough. A honey twist is another one to try. This delightful coffee cake results when you coil a slender roll of rich yeast dough 'round and 'round in a pan, then brush on the honey topping. Set it to rise until light and then bake it. The honey topping makes the icing.

Since food should be nutritious as well as taste-satisfying, it is in order to mention that the honey twist is full of good food value. Enriched flour makes all breads important sources of B-vitamins and iron.

Note that the recipe calls for "from five to six" cups of enriched flour. This means you should add only as much as is needed to make a dough which can be easily handled. A dough just stiff enough to hold its shape when formed into a ball is the right consistency. Too much flour will make a stiff dough that rises slowly and produces coarse-textured breads. Too little makes the dough so soft the coffee cake won't hold its shape.

Your family will make honey twist one of its breakfast favorites. It is also a good coffee hour companion, yet it is plain enough to serve as luncheon or dinner bread.

HONEY TWIST

2 packages yeast, compressed or dry granular
¼ cup lukewarm water
1 cup milk
¼ cup shortening
½ cup sugar
2 teaspoons salt
2 eggs, beaten
5 to 6 cups sifted enriched flour

HONEY TOPPING

⅓ cup butter or margarine
⅔ cup confectioners' sugar
1 egg white
2 tablespoons honey, warmed

Soften yeast in lukewarm water. Scald milk. Add shortening, sugar and salt. Cool to lukewarm. Add yeast and eggs. Add flour to make a soft dough. Turn out on floured board or pastry cloth and knead until smooth and satiny. Form into a ball and place in greased bowl. Cover and let rise in warm place until doubled. When light, punch down, and shape into a long roll about one inch in diameter. Coil the roll into a greased cake pan beginning at the outside edge and covering the bottom. Cream together ingredients for Honey Topping and brush over Twist. Let rise until doubled. Bake in moderate oven (375 degrees F.) 25 to 30 minutes. Makes two Twists nine inches in diameter.

by EVERETT MITCHELL

Farm Commentator, heard Monday through Saturday, 6:15-6:45 a. m. on WMAQ, Chicago, 670 on your dial.

SWEET clover is the cheapest fertilizer the farmer can buy.

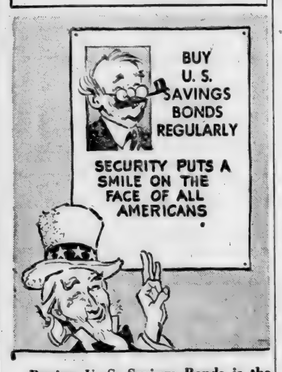
As an intercrop—sown in small grain this spring and plowed under next spring for corn—sweet clover will provide nitrogen for the soil, excellent ensilage and a lush mid-summer pasture at a time when the bluegrass is brown. The taproots will punch holes in tight subsoils. The leaves and stems will slow driving rains, protecting the surface soil. The same leaves and stems plowed under can loosen tight soils, give wet soils better drainage and enrich poor soils.

Farmers who hesitate to plant sweet clover because of the relatively high seed cost should remember that 10 pounds of seed produce 20 tons—green weight, including roots—of some of the best green manure they ever turned under. It has proved its ability to return a 15 to 25-bushel per acre increase in corn yield for a planting cost of three to four dollars an acre.

To insure a stand before planting sweet clover, test the soil in your small grain field. Add lime if it's needed. Then inoculate the clover seed and sow it carefully and shallowly in a firm seedbed. Advancing or delaying seeding time is one way to deal with the sweet clover weevil. In northern states, seedings made as late as mid-June have produced good crops because weevils were too few to cause damage. Spraying with DDT and sowing the clover as far as possible from other stands are other safeguards successfully used.

Experts say the best time to plow the sweet clover under—to kill all the plants and yet save as much nitrogen as possible—seems to be fairly early in the spring when the clover is knee-high.

Uncle Sam Says



Buying U. S. Savings Bonds is the best way I know to stop worrying about money. And if you persist in worrying, after starting to pile up money the sure, automatic way, the only worry you'll have is how best to spend it when you start cashing in after ten years.

Your government offers two great plans, both of them automatic and both profitable. They are the Payroll Savings Plan where you work, or, if self-employed, the Bond-a-Month Plan at your bank. If you can sign up for a $37.50 bond each month they'll grow to $4,998 in 10 years.

HINTS ON HEALTH by the INDIANA STATE MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

GOUT

MANY people have attacks of gout; few of them realize they are suffering from a particular kind of rheumatism, a special variety of arthritis.

One of the first medical treatises on gout was composed by Dr. Thomas Sydenham, an English physician of the 17th century. The good doctor wrote with exceptional feeling on the subject; he had attacks of gout for the last 34 of his 65 years of life.

But gout is not a disease of the later years. History shows that Alexander the Great, conquerer of the ancient world in the days before Christ, suffered often from gout, and he was only 33 at the time of his death.

Doctors tell us that gout is an inflammation of the joints. Furthermore, there are grounds for thinking the disease is hereditary. Not all gout is caused by rich foods, too liberal imbibing of wines and liquors, and lack of exercise; gout may belong in your family, a kind of unfortunate heirloom.

An attack of gout occurs without warning; the pain is exquisite and severe. There is a throbbing, splitting sensation in the affected part, and the slightest touch or jar adds to the misery. The joint attacked becomes swollen and inflamed. The swelling may last only for days; but on occasion it can become chronic, meaning it can run for weeks, or months, or longer.

Through diet and medicine, your doctor can improve this distressing condition, and under favorable circumstances may effect a complete cure.

Willis K. Batchelet Addresses Lions Club

State Senator Relates Highlights Of Last Session Of Legislature

The St. Joe Lions Club was favored by the presence of State Senator Willis K. Batchelet of Angola at its regular meeting on Monday, April 11, at St. Mark's Lutheran Church.

After a delicious dinner was served by ladies of the Young People's Class of the Lutheran Sunday School, Mr. William Staman introduced the guest speaker, who commented that it was a "pleasure to be home among friends and people whom you know and can trust and do not have to look around and behind you before saying anything. Neither do we have to worry at home about miked rooms."

Since Mr. Batchlet's speech was itself a condensation of the happenings, it is presented in its entirety.

It was a hectic session. I was very much disappointed with the antics of a large majority of the new House members who were swept into office from th large industrial areas of the state in the past landslide, with no conception of government and the responsibilities pertaining thereto. They acted like pouting school children.

Criticism has been made regarding delays and late passage of numerous bills, among them being the Budget Bill. The delay on that bill can be laid to the door of the Governor of the House. Early in January we in the Senate requested of the Governor his budget estimates for the coming bienninum. The first knowledge we had of such was in the form of the budget bill passed by the House and brought to the Senate Friday, February 25th. That only gave us 10 days, counting Saturdays and Sundays to work upon the bill, along with numerous other bills held in the House in the same manner. The budget bill consists of 92 pages.

This bill is one that I went on the floor of the Senate to have modified.

The bonus bill was likewise held up in the House. It was passed in the Senate January 31. Vote 48-0. This was brought back from the House to the Senate, March 2nd and placed in conference committee.

Like the budget bill no agreement could be reached and the final vote on the conference committee report made March 7th to concur with the Houes rather than lose the bill in its entirety. It was this conference committee report that I, along with 5 other Senators, voted against.

Keeping in mind that pursuant to the Constituion the Senate cannot originate or levy any taxes, such measures must originate in the House and all the Senate can do is to try to modify or change such. Therefore, all we could do was to protest and try to modify. We held out until the last hour and moment, hoping and praying that we could get a change in the Gross Income Tax, keeping in mind that all of us represented the State of Indiana and the district from which we were elected. I myself received over 750 signed letters and over two hundred telegrams plus numerous telephone calls from constituents in every town and city in my district, requesting me to work and vote against the Gross Income Tax. In this as in other cases, I did everything possible to comply with the requests of my constituents. The Governor refused to co-operate or change his mind on the bonus tax payment and that was it, or none, and likewise with the Truck Tax bill. Rather than lose all, those bills were placed on the floor for vote. Six of us voted against and explained our votes which were made a part of the record. As we were only given one minute to explain our vote and the hour was very late, I wrote mine out and read it.

We also filed a formal protest signed by 28 of us that was entered in the Journal.

There were numerous other bills that were vital to the state. One House Bill 199, amending the Indiana Employment Security Act, which if passed in its orginal form would have wrecked industry. This bill originally contained 59½ pages. It was purely communistic in form and nature.The first draft in the House provided for $40.00 per week for 40 weeks, changed the standard 4% formula to 5 percent; had a provision that an employee was not required to seek employment before receiving benefits; that on a sale of a business to another who had not operated a previous business, the compensation rating and money paid in that business pool was not a part of the assets and the new purchaser, even though he took over the same employees, had to start new and operate on the 2.7% charge, although the previous employer had the benefit of the lower experience rate. This made the employer lose all he had paid in the account. It is

Howard Shilling Home Gutted By Fire

Fire gutted the entire upstairs of the Howard Shilling farm home a mile west and a mile south of St. Joe early Sunday morning, causing loss estimated between $3,500 and $4,000.

Units from several county fire departments fought the flames for over three hours before bringing the blaze under control. St. Joe firemen were given aid by the Spencerville Department shortly after they arrived at the blaze and Auburn's rural fire truck was also called.

The fire was discovered by Mr. Shilling when he awoke about 1 a.m. He said the flames, which are believed to have started in the attic or on the roof near the chimney of the house, had already eaten into the main section of the house.

Mr. and Mrs. Shilling and their son, 16 later assisted by neighbors and firemen, succeeded in removing a majority of their home furnishings.

Partially destroyed in upstairs studio, operated by Mr. Shillngs, was about $800 worth of photography equipment. Also destroyed was the material Mr. Shilling was preparing for home movies of the Shillings' tripto Florida. Several days' work had already been put in on the movie.

Firemen said the intense heat caused heavy damage in several of the rooms where the flames did not not reach. There was also considerable water damage.

Mr. Shilling said insurance would cover part of the loss.

The family is temporarily residing at the home of another son, Richard, at Spencervlle.

Grain Bin Housecleaning

Insects in grain bins are tiny in size but tremendous in the damage they do. The bureau of entomology and plant quarantine figures that they make away with one out of every 20 bushels of farm-stored grain, as a national average, and in some states they double that toll. The place to start in getting such insects under control is at the empty grain bin, the entomologists advise. They point out that a thorough job of housecleaning bins and spraying them with DDT, before newly-harvested grain is put in them, will get rid of hold-over infestation and give new grain a good chance to escape damage.

Heaven Is Real

Easter Lesson for April 17, 1949

HEAVEN IS just as real as Chicago. More so, because Chicago will in time cease to be, while heaven lasts forever. A few atomic bombs, a whiff of some new plague, can make Chicago vanish; but no atomic bomb can touch heaven. The pity is, so few Christians really believe this. We can get mail from Chicago, but who ever heard of mail from heaven?

Dr. Foreman

Wait, though . . . there is mail from heaven, and you have it there in your Bible. If you accept it for what it is, the Word of God, then it is the Word from heaven. To be sure, it does not tell us much about heaven. If you were actually traveling to Chicago, you would not begin by studying a street-map of that city. What you would need is a map of the roads between.

So the Bible is not a guidebook to the "City Four-Square;" it is more of a road-map to help us find the way between here and there. Nevertheless, the Bible does assure us that heaven is real.

Christians have many reasons for believing in the reality of the future life, and some of these may not be in the Bible; but the best reasons are there.

Jesus Believed It

WINIFRED KIRKLAND has truly said that Jesus did not simply believe in immortality; he lived it. Jesus would never have called this world or this life trifling or unimportant. But all around, under and over and through this visible world, Jesus was aware of another. He lived and acted as a citizen of both worlds. He talked of life after death—or for that matter, of his own life before his birth—as calmly and naturally as you would speak of next week or next summer.

Christ is Risen

MANY PEOPLE feel it would be easier to believe in the future life if someone who had been across the line of death would return across that line to bring a message from the beyond. So they attend seances and they listen to table-tappings and go through all manner of weird performances in order to get a word or two from someone who has passed on.

But all the time we do have a record of a Return. Indeed it is The Return. We call it the Resurrection. The message of Easter is not summed up in songs about some "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere;" it is in these three words: "Christ is risen!"

He did not return in darkness, he was not under the control of any "medium," he did not make himself known by ghostly hauntings. He was seen at supper-tables, he spoke to his friends on a mountainside, he came to fishermen on a spring morning by a lake shore. The earliest Christians doubted some things; but few doubted that the Lord was risen indeed.

Heaven Begins With God

THE CURE for the troubled heart, Jesus said, is faith in God. One of the strongest reasons for believing that the future life is real, is the nature and character of God himself. Jesus said as much once, in an argument with men who did not believe in immortality: "God is not the God of the dead, but of the living." If we were God's paper dolls or toy soldiers, he might weary of us as a child wearies of its toys, and sweep us all into destruction without a moment's thought. But if we are truly his children, then when life's evening comes, he will call his tired children home.

Eternal Life has two sides, the heaven-side and the earth-side. The church has never believed that simple immortality is the same thing as the heavenly life.

A Judas, when he dies, goes (as Peter saidly said) "to his own place." A Judas carries out his own hell with him. But a man like Paul, or any Christian who has been at home with God here on this earth, when at last death comes, will, as Whittier said:

"Find himself by hands familiar beckoned Unto his fitting place."

BILL REQUIRES LICENSING OF REAL ESTATE BROKERS

The following is a summary of House Bill 41 signed by Gov. Shricker, which requires all real estate brokers and salesman to be licensed in order to transact real estate business in this state:

Establishes the Indiana Real Estate Commission having the power regulate the issuance of licenses and to suspend or revoke licenses either on its own motion or of a member thereof, or on complaint of any other penson whenever a licensee is alleged to be guilty of misrepresentation of property and titles. Unjust retention of earnest money deposits and harmful errors and misunderstandings which result from real estate transaction are now borne by the victim rather than prosecute a suit at law against irresponsible and shiftless persons. This law, will place protection within easy reach of the people. It will be the function of the administrators to investigaet complaints and where the facts warrant bring the accused to jus-

Any resident of this state who has been an active broker or a real estate salesman for at least six months prior to January 1949 shall be granted a license without examination, upon making an application before October 1, 1949 to the Indiana Real Estate Commission and paying the required fee.

After October 1, 1949 new applicants must show themselves honest and qualified to begin handling real estate transactions. Those who need time and help to prepare themselves to begin will be granted the time and can easily find many different ways in which this help is available to the most humble person. Thus new beginners will profit by being prepared to start and the public will be protected from costly errors. All applicants for a license must pass a written and oral examination before the commission.

Persons peforming for a commission or compensation of any kind in the buying, selling, exchanging, leasing or renting of real estate or in negotiating for others will be refuired to hold a license and to keep it renewed and unrevoked. Persons acting for themselves as members of a firm, partnership association or corporation partnership or engaged in real estate brokerage or as a salesman must keep a current license.

Applicants for a brokers examination will pay an exmination fee of $5.00 and a license fee ! of $10.00. Applicants for a salesmans examination will pay an examination fee of $5.00 and a license fee of $5.00 Those failing the examination will have the license fee so paid returned to them. All licenses must be renewed annually on or before January 1st.

Non residents of the state maintaining a business in another state and duly licensed in such other state may become entitled to do a brokerage business by filling with the Indiana Commission an authorized or a certified copy of the license issued in the home state. In case there is not a license law in the home state, proof of good character, brokerage reputation, paying the license fee and giving written consent that action and suits at law may be commanded against him for unlawful dealings will be necessary.

Exempts persons selling their own property as owners or leasors and members of their immediate family, attornies and those persons selling property under the order of the courts.

The attorney General, the Indiana Real Estate Commission or the prosecuting attorney of any county may under the law of this state covering injunctions maintain an action in the name of the State of Indiana to enjoin persons in the practice of real estate brokerage and salesmenship without a license.

Hearings on complaints will be in the county of the residence of the person so accused. Upon conviction a fine of not less than $50.00 nor more than $1,000 to which shall be added the amount of commission paid or earned on such violation shall be imposed for each violation of the act.

The act contains an emergency clause providing that it shall take effect immediately from and after its passage.

BATCHELET SPEAKS

sound in principal that when a business is sold, the "money in the bank", as represented by the experience account, should be recognized as an asset that goes along with the busines to offset the liability for benefits that might be paid to employees of the purchased business. As written, it would kill all incentive for anyone to start new business and indicated a trend for government to take over business by ending indivdual ownership.

We modified this, changed the bill to $25.00 per week, for 25 weeks, retained the 4% formula which is recognized by all insurance actuaries as the only sound basis of computation without wrecking the State Pool, and further adding that employee must make reasonable effort to seek employment. Labor agreed to all the amendments except that they did not want the clause, "to make a reasonable effort to obtain suitable work," therefore the bill died, because of that one clause only. Labor did not want to seek employment.

There were numerous other bills that were of benefit to the welfare of the state. On agriculture, H. B. 166 permits use of school busses in transportation of school engaged in cultivating, producing or harvesting of crops. Emergency H. B. 351 creates Office of County Agriculture Extension Servite, including agricultural agents, home demonstration agents, assistant agricultural agents, assistant agricultural agents, assistant home demonstration agents and 4-H Club agents to be appointed by the Board of Trustees of Purdue U. This was done in order to be able to share in and receive Federal aid for such work. H. B. 90 that removed the ceiling on allowanees which County Commissioners may make out of County funds to agricultural societies. This should be of great assistanee to 4-H Clubs throughout the State. In some counties such need was very acute in order to continue 4-H Club work. It is a May bill-leaving it to local units to decide. S. B. 180 authorizes establishment of Bangs disease-testing laboratories at licensed sales barns. When this bill gets into operation, it should help in promoting the sale of live stock and the delays now encountered by the farmers in the sale of their livestock.

Of course there was the famous goat bill which you have read about. Regardless of the fun made of this bill, it was a good bill and necessary. When the first original law was passed years ago that required all livestock to be fenced from the highways and the "commons" as all land was then called, the livestock was listed by name in that bill, but this bill omitted including goats. Result in some sections of the state, goats were running at large and no law existed to corral them.

Bill 158 permits merging of local school units to form partial or complete county unit for school administration by favorable referendum or by action of trustees. Provides for county board of education consisting of five members to be elected from three residential districts by county voters outside cities at primaries without party designaion. Allows combinations to extend across county lines if majority in affected area votes affirmatively.

Bill 161 permits merging of local school units to form partial or complete county unit for school administration by favorable referendum or by action of trustees. Provides for county board of education consisting of Township trustees. Provides for county board of education consisting of Township trustees. Allows combinations to extend across county lines if majority in affected area votes affirmatively. Emergency.

Bill 120-Revises the method of distribution of state aid to schools and provides for a maximum $53,000,000 distribution. Also makes grade school teaching units smaller, by providing for a teaching unit of 30 pupils in elementary and 27 pupils in high school grades. This should be of help in rural communities.

Bill 131-Revamps laws relative to consolidation of schools; permits consolidation of schools in adjoining counteies; provides for operation of schools under a consolidated units; provides that in ease of protest against consolidation, referendum need be conducted only in district in which protest was made.

Bill 143 providing for retirement, reducing the years of service from 32 years to 30 years and increasing disability allowances for teachers with 25 years of sevice.

There were numerous other school bills passed, all of which are all lengthy and would take too much space. They are all progressive in nature with the view point in mind of advancing our educational system to meet the present day requirements and eventually ease the school burden on rural local units of school. However, they will require several years of planning and operation before any great relief can be obtained. Like all new programs it will take time. Most of these bills are May bills and left to the vote of local communities before being put into operation. This is as it shoul be, as each local community will have different problems facing it.

The assembly including the Senate, has been criticized for delay in passing bils. On February 28th we had completed all of our bills, but 4, which we considered dead and were not going to take any further action on.

In the Senate there were 28 Republicans and 21 Democrats. We were the only body that could stop legislation and upon numerous occesions, thinking members of the House who could not go along with the wild ideas and bills presented would come to us and ask us to stop bills that could not be stopped in their house, which proves there were some sensible legislators in the House, both Democrats and Republicans.

I have given some of the serious things, there are many other but space will not suffice to cover all. However, we did have some humorous times. One day, after hearing consderable talk on the floor of the Senate about Lake County from its Senators when they had been presenting bills for Lake County only, and stating how important Chicago was to them in their busniess life, I prepared a resolution (first consulting the President so he would be prepared) to sell Lake County.

All motions must be made in writing and signed by the Senator presenting same before being eligble to be read. We sent up, upon different occasions, such motions to make a break in the montony and create good humor and feeling. However, such took very little time, and answered their purpose. The Lake County sale stopped Lake County from asking for further special bills.

One bill that I understand from the press and other sources, the publice seems to have been given the impression was passed, is the salary bill passed by the House giving $6.20 per day expense money to the legislators. I inform you that that bill died in a Republican Committee in the Senate. We would not even consider it, even though considerable pessure was brought to bring it out of committee.

The next question that may be in your minds is "How Much did the last Legislature boost the Direct taxes of the average Hoosier Taxpayer " The only direct tax boosts were for the motor vehicle registrations and Gross Income Tax, and those at the request of the Governor, made in order to get other important bills passed and signed.

In all, there were 792 bills outside of Resolutions presented we managed to kill 515 of them, passing only 277. This record alone should tell the story.

Considering all factors presented, the lobbyists and all organizations present, demanding something for themselves, every attemp was made to make this session one of "Give Me" in nature.

It also was very evident that we are becoming a physically and materially minded nation. Day by day we are getting more selfish and egotistical as individuals, and this is also becoming evident in our Government.

We have heard and continue to hear statements about the "Equality of Man." There is no such thing as "Equality of Man"; our forefathers came here for religious feedom and to promote the right to establish individual enterprise and ownership of business upon the merits and qualities of each individual.

Our Constitution calls this nation "A Republic" and not a "Democcy." "Democracy" is the wrong conception of its meaning. Democracy being a state of Socialism, controlled by govenrment directives that will eventually be th downfall of our Republic, a "Government of the people, by the people and for the people." This allowed us to establish a two party system of government under which all that we have today was created and made us the leading nation of the world.

Our Pilgrim Fathers believed in the dignity of man because he was the Son of God--not that Democracy was the key.

By leaving the principles laid down by our forefathers, we are becoming a physically and materially minded nation. We are becoming selfish and demanding. We have reached the point where we believe the government owes us, leaning more and more upon laws for our protection and the furtherance our business enterprises.

What America needs today is a revival of religious vitality in each generation, by so doing will be the only way any freedom can be established.

We can operate for a short period upon artificialy created economic levels. However, like, the flood waters in the rivers, they will eventually recede. We must begin to realize that the Honeymoon is over; that we owe the Government something, not the Government owing us.

Integrity and Contracts

One of the qualities in human beings that our civilization today needs so desperately is integrity. What is integrity? The word comes from a Latin term which meant "untouched" or "whole." That's about the way it is today. A man who has integrity is so morally sound that he is not to be touched—in a way that will affect his honesty and uprightness.

Many labor-management disagreements would disappear, if we honestly would undertake to solve them with each side of the conference table keeping its integrity. If each party to an agreement keeps his word—that is integrity. It used to be said of a neighbor I had: "His word is his bond." That's the kind of neighbor this world needs. It will require integrity from each one of us, if this world is to become a better place.

An Example

Let me illustrate—with a labor-management example. Less than a year ago, the General Motors "cost of living" wage agreement with United Automobile Workers was acclaimed as a solution to the frequent wage battles that upset our industrial communities.

Under terms of the contract GM can raise or lower wages according to government statistics. As living costs rise or fall in reports of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, the company can adjust wages accordingly. While the formula did not rule out wage increases for other reasons, it was an honest attempt to solve the cost-of-living problem.

Pay Cut Due

Last year under the contract GM employees got a flat 6-cent hourly raise, plus a "cost of living" increase of 5 cents. What are the prospects this year? Employees are in line for an increase not related to living costs, but under the formula will get a pay cut of 2 cents because the Bureau of Labor Statistics index of living costs has gone down. The effect would be to hold wages at about the same levels as last year.

Employees still would have the advantage of the decline in living costs. However, according to a recent Associated Press dispatch, a GM local in Cleveland wants to reopen the contract, which has more than a year to run. This local of 2,500 workers wants UAW headquarters to block the carrying out of the contract. According to the AP story the local's president said that workers' living conditions "ought to be of greater meaning than the sacredness of a contract."

Moral Issues

Moral issues are involved when you talk about breaking contracts. As against a pay increase of two or three cents, a contract should have plenty of sacredness. What is involved is integrity. The contract was made in good faith. It has more than a year to run. If it does not meet the needs of the UAW, the parties will have determined this by the time for expiration. There are few human relationships that have greater meaning than do contracts. The courts of the land expect contracts to be kept. Good neighbors are made by men who keep their word. This applies to groups as well. Good citizenship requires integrity.

SPECIAL ORDER OPENS SEASON FOR FISHING

There will be no closed season this year on pan fish such as red eared sunfish, bluegill, yellow perch, rock bass and crappie. This good news for fishermen was brought about through the issuance of a director's discretionary order signed by Kenneth M. Kunkel, director of the Indian Department of Conservation, and H. P. Cottingham, director of the division of fish and game. The order will continue in effect until December 31, 1949.

The season was open year round last year in order that the Indiana Lake and Stream survey conducted by Dr. W. E. Ricker, Indiana University, might be concluded. Dr. Ricker, following a conference with Mr. Kunkel and Mr. Cottingham, concluded that more time was needed in which time to further continue an exhaustive study of the matter. Heretofore the season for fish mentioned above has been closed from May 1 through June 15. The discretionary order, however, does not affect the closed season on bass, and other game fish not listed.

Dr. Ricker pointed out that during last summer, checks made by his field men of the bluegill fingerling production showed good qualities of young 1948 bluegills present in 25 representative lakes sampled.

However, he explained, that was only one year. The success of the fish hatch varies greatly from year to year. A sudden cool spell after the eggs are laid may kill a great many nests. Only favorable weather can bring off a good hatch even when the supply of breeders is limited. For a completely satisfying test of the open season, Dr. Ricker said he was convinced that it should continue on operation for another year. For best results, he said, the open season should be compared with closed seasons that occur within the same period of years.

To accomplish this, Dr. Ricker said, the season should be declared open for the year. It is planned to follow up with two closed seasons in 1950 and 1951. Thus alternating, the effects of weather can be averaged. The production of young each year can be estimated by trial seining as was done in 1948. Another and better estimate of the relative productions of open and closed seasons then will be made when these first grow big enough to be caught. The number of fish produced by open seasons can be compared, he said, with the number produced by closed seasons. If the open seasons have a consistantly poor record, then the open season experiment can be considered a failure. If they do as well as in the closed season, he pointed out, then the closed season can be finally discarded as useless.

"It was decided to issue the discretionary order," Mr. Kunkel said, "in order to encourage the removal from state waters of certain legal sized fish that have reached the age of maturity, thereby providing more natural food for the young of such species produced in such waters or introduced from artifical sources in all areas of the state. Mr. Cottingham and I conferred with other members of the division of fish and game also acted in accordance with the wishes of the members of the Indiana State Conservation Advisory Committee. The order was issued following a public hearing conducted in this office.

"We wish to make it plain that nothing in this order shall change the laws and or the rules and regulations governing the size of fish that may be possessed, the daily bag or possession limits pertaining to the above mentoned fish or the method of taking."

LEO AUXILIARY NOTES

"Far AwayPlaces" was the Venezeula Theme of the Legion Auxiliary. Miss Jean Neuman unrolled her "Magic Carpet" for the members of Leo Unit 409, and transported them to the exciting country of Venezuela. In addition to Miss Neuman's impressive review, colorful pictures were shown of the capital, Caracus perched on the northern slope of the coastal range a hot, cool "city of eternal spring." This country is controlled by a military communistic government, and fails to recognize the American Government. All natives speak Spanish, and belong to either the 97% poor class, or the 38% very rich class. All of the poor class work in the near-by oil fields. Prices there are 100% inflation.

At the close of these pictures and discussions, our knowledge of this mountainous country was greatly broadened.

Bulletins were secured from the library and a large colorful map of this region was displayed.

Mrs. Robert Horn, 4th District Chairman, and Mrs. Wave Kain, 4th District former President and present Publicity Chairman of Unit 82 in Fort Wayne were guests.

A nominative committee was appointed to report at the May Meeting, two names were chosen for each office, which they considered capable to carry on the coming year. This committee consists of Mrs. George McCrory, Mrs. Mable Stevick, Mrs. Fred Marolf Jr., Mr. Ray Soules, and Mrs. Ronald Rhonemus. Further results will be found in the June Election.

Delegates consisting of Mrs. Keith Wolfe, Mrs. Floyd McNiece, Sr., Mrs. Robert Wahlig, Mrs. Wm. Warner, Mrs. Vernon Halter, and Mrs. Harold Kryder are to visit the Irene Byron Sanitarium. Stamp Books will be given to the seventeen veterans mentioned who would appreciate our services.

Advance sale of Polly Cards were sold to many members of the Unit.

A card of sincere thanks and appreciation was received from Mrs. Byron Cook on her food shower.

Junior members have planned to particic;pate in the music contest at Indianapolis, May 14th.

Plans have been completed to serve the Alumni Banquet, Saturday night, May 23rd. Mrs. Chas. Disler and Mrs. Wm. Warner are to serve on the Supply Committee.

The announcement was made of the 4th District Meeting at Monroeville, May 12th. Memorial services will be held and election of officers.

Americanism Essay Contest medals were awarded at the P. T. A. Meeting, Monday, April 11th. The band will play patriotic songs and Boy Scouts presented flags. Small flags were given to tach one who participated in this contest.

Carrying out our Pan-American Theme during the Social Hour, several Junior members dressed in typical peasant blouses with Bolero skirts, served coffee and cookies. Bingo, the old corn game, was played using miniature maps of Venezuela as tallys.

FOLLOW A SMALL BOY AROUND FOR A DAY if you can keep on his trail and you'll agree that a boy's life is a good life — especially if you're just at that perfect age when you're not too small to have all of the advantages of freedom, and still not big enough for too much work. You'll be out of bed at the first smell of bacon frying. A whistle for ol' Jack and out to the barns to watch the milking and maybe help a little if you're big enough. Down the road with the cows to the cow pasture — get along ol' Bossie, hurry up now, no dawdling. Swing on the fence a couple times for good measure, lock it up tight and take a good look around — there's a whole day ahead and not a minute to waste. You decide its time for the mail and head back up the road.

FOLLOW THE BOY ALL DAY, and you'll agree that a boy's life is the best life on earth — for a BOY! No one else has the energy and constitution required to live it!

MODERN FARMING

Weed Control
RECOMMENDATIONS FOR 1949

CHEMICAL Weed Control became big business with American farmers in 1948, when 19,000,000 acres were sprayed, much of it in the Midwest. In 1947 the most dramatic story on weed control came from corn — thousands of acres of corn in the Ohio Valley, given up for lost because wet weather had prevented cultivation and let weeds run wild, were saved by applications of 2, 4-D. In 1948 the big story came from the winter wheat region in Kansas, Nebraska and Oklahoma. A large acreage of wheat went into the winter in poor condition — the ground was dry, little seed germinated before January 1, the grain was thin and weeds thick. Widespread spraying obtained good weed control, over average yields and crops very easy to combine.

A much bigger story, though not so-sensational, was that of the many educators, manufacturers, county agents, dealers and leading farmers who cooperated in testing what to spray, how and when to do it. The findings of all these were pretty well summarized in the reports of the North Central Weed Control Conference held at Springfield in December. Some of these findings and recommendations for 1949 are illustrated below. A summary of the findings and a packet of additional information on weed control may be had without cost by addressing a card to the office of this newspaper.

Top photo shows untreated corn, small and yellow due to cocklebur and crabgrass competition, yield 29.2 bushels. Bottom photo, portion of same field sprayed with 2, 4-D, yield 64 bushels.

Spraying controls broad leafed weeds in grain crops without much difficulty —. mustard, lamb's quarter, pig weed, wild buckwheat, etc. A boom sprayer is much better than hand spraying because it gets more even distribution of the 2, 4-D. Some broadleafed perennials like Canada thistle and field bindweed can be controlled fairly effectively by repeated treatments of 2, 4-D. The main thing is to get the weeds at the right stage and carefully follow the manufacturers directions. The barley in half the center photo was treated, the other half was not. Thistles and mustard are old enemies of small grain crops and the fight against them was the biggest part of weed control in Northern states like Wisconsin and Minnesota. In these states work on oats and wheat made great progress in 1948 and in Minnesota an outstanding job was done on the flax crop. Photo at the right shows a 2, 4-D application on that old enemy the thistle. Best control of perennials is obtained by treating during the active growing stage, generally near the bud stage.

In the Corn Belt states control of weeds in corn naturally received most attention. Because grassy weeds are less prevalent in these states than farther north, it was often possible to get good control with little or no cultivation. The field at the left was sprayed, excepting for the row in the foreground, mostly to kill smartweed. Standing corn should be sprayed anytime you see that you are going to have a weed control problem, so whenever weeds get a start like that shown in the center photo, get out the spraying equipment. When spraying to reduce cultivation, the time of spraying should be determined by the weed growth; the ideal time is following emergence of the majority of the weeds but before weeds have damaged corn. The above photo shows a poor spraying job because the spray strikes the top of the corn — the nozzles should be down between the rows just high enough so that the spray will cover the weeds.

Cook's Corner

By SUSAN LOWE

Four O'clock Hospitality

There's something about mid-afternoon that calls for a bit of hospitality in the form of a cup of tea or coffee along with a bite to eat.

Perhaps you and your neighbor from across the way, share this daily cup of coffee at your kitchen table just as I have done hundreds of times. Or four o'clock may be tea-time at your club, your church, or your community center.

Of course, there are teas and teas . . . just as there are kaffee klatsches of every description. Certain communities make a very special event of this tea-time hour. In some states, for instance, it has become customary for the Governor's wife to hold Open House for farm and rural women on certain afternoons throughout the year. This Open House is really an informal reception with prominent women presiding over the tea table while young girls pass dainty ribbon sandwiches, ice tea cakes and candies to the guests. New friends are made and old friendships renewed during this tea-time hour.

But whether it's an occasion of state or merely a four-o'clock snack with your neighbor, amber topped coffee cake — ruby-studded muffins — nut-covered rolls — open-faced sandwiches — diamond-dusted cookies — and flaky doughnut puffs come into their own along with a pot of tea and an urn of coffee.

As shadows lengthen in late afternoon, it's the hospitality that counts and makes the simplest food become something extra special!

QUICK BRAZIL NUT BUTTERSCOTCH ROLLS

2 cups sifted flour
3 tsp. baking powder
¾ tsp. salt
¼ cup fat
About ¾ cup milk
1/3 cup butter
¾ cup firmly packed brown sugar
2/3 cup sliced Brazil nuts

Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Cut in shortening with two knives or a pastry blender until the mixture resembles coarse corn meal. Stirring with a fork, add enough milk to make a stiff dough (mixture should be slightly firmer than for biscuits). Turn out on a board; knead lightly for about ½ minute. Roll dough into rectangle 12x8x¼ inches. Cream fat well; add sugar gradually and cream until light and fluffy. Spread the rectangle with about 3 tblsp. of the creamed mixture. Roll lengthwise as tightly as possible. Cut into ½ inch slices. Divide the creamed mixture into 24 2-inch muffin pans; press 2 or 3 Brazil nut slices in top of creamed mixture. Place pin wheels cut side down, in muffin pan. Bake in a moderately hot oven (400 F.) about 20 minutes. To remove from pan, invert pan so that brown sugar mixture will adhere to rolls. Yield: 24 rolls.

The Mailman's Lament

Johnny the Mailman is on the prod,
A flopping his ears and pawing the sod.
Cause old Uncle Sammy has so decreed
That the Rural Routers in the Land of the Free
Must paint up their boxes and cut down their weeds.

Now Johnny wants his folks to know
It's not going to be such terrible blow
To paint a box or maybe the post
Cause a man can see where it's needed most
And if the box is shiny and the post "it aint"
Just use your judgement where to put the paint.

If you use your eyes as you travel around.
Where the birds and bees and wasps abound
And note the mail box without a lid
You can bet a cookie, it's where they hid
That brood of young 'uns that jump with glee
On the arm of Johnny, just to see
If he likes the wasp or the bumblebee

All Johnny asks, that you all be fair.
And put that box in the best repair
So he can point with pride and glee
To the big brass hat who comes to see
That Old Johnny boy is still on the job
And not just another careless slob
Who don't give a hoot how his route might look,
But just like it says it should in the book.

The book it says that the box should be
All white and shiny, on a post from a tree
About forty eight inches above the ground
With a lid and signal good and sound
So the winds that blow won't scatter the mail
Or knock down the signal, and John will fail
To stop at the box and pick up the mail.

Now Johnny hasn't got so long to go
Till he can say goodbye to the snow
And the heat and the sleet and the ice and so
Just give him a boost and shine up his route
And he'll pass it on to some young sprout.
Who now doesn't know what it's all about,
But will shout with joy when he will see
How friendly and nice ones friends can be
When you give them service for many a mile
And give that service with a great big smile.

SCHOOL NOTES

Two weeks ago we ran a report on the attendance in the local school. While we are anxious that all attendance reports be accurate, we are doubly anxious this year since the percentage of total enrollment with perfect attendance is unusually high. At the end of the 5th grading period, April 8, there were still 30 with perfect attendance for the 147 days of school. As was previously mentioned a half day's absence is not considered in this report.

In our report last week for the end of 117 days of school we erred in the listing of one. Doris Donot reminded us that she had missed one day of school. We are sorry for this error; however the record is still good and today her name appears in the second group. Also, last week we omitted one name. Donald Warstler's name did not appear since his card was not in at that time. His name is in the first group today. The total of 42 at that time, however, was correct. That means that 12 have dropped from perfect attendance to one or more days absence in the last 6 weeks. Flu and measels!

While we were going through the cards for the above information we jotted down those missing more than 10 days of school. This list is not being published. There were 25, however, that missed a total of 454 days. Much flu and measels! We hope!

RURAL YOUTH HOLD SENIOR NIGHT AT SPENCERVILLE GYM

The Rural Youth "Senior Night" was held in the assembly room of the Courthouse on Tuesday evening, April 13. There were approximately 150 in attendance. Spencerville High School won the Rural Youth skating tickets to the Rural Youth skating party which will be held April 19 by having the largest percentage of seniors in attendance at the meeting.

Dr. Lawrence Hess of the Indiana University Extension Service spoke on "After Graduation, What." He emphasized the importance of seniors using a planned procedure in selecting their life's work. Dr. Hess said it was important that seniors know what their interests are, their abilities, limitations, and physical capacities. They should set a goal for the future and try to stay by that plan. Everyone is not suited for college training and should go to college only when that further education helps them to obtain their vocational selecion. Vocational guidance is most important in selecting the job for each individual.

The Minutemen Quartet of Auburn gave several selections. This was followed by recreation under the direction of Fred Rhoads, Amos Snyder, and Arnold and Edward Kramer of the Allen County Rural Youth Club. The evening closed with refreshments.

Rules of Temperance

Lesson for April 24, 1949

THERE IS REALLY something funny about it. Consider a First Church congregation singing:

"Jesus, I my cross have taken,
All to leave and follow thee;
Destitute, despised, forsaken,
Thou from hence my All shalt be."

Oh, come, come, ladies and gentlemen! Your cross? Where is it? "All to leave"—? You are going right back to your homes for an extra-good Sunday dinner. "Destitute"—? (Some congregations, believe it or not, actually sing "naked, poor," instead of "destitute.") Not a one of you ever has been on relief; you probably have more money in the bank than most of the people who didn't come to church.

Dr. Foreman

Some People Cannot be Christians

IT MAY BE FUNNY to compare what the congregation is singing about themselves with what they really are. But it is sad, too, because that hymn illustrates how foggy-minded some Christians are about their own "cross."

They can sing blithely about it, and even complain (in song) about their own condition as something for the Salvation Army to look into, when they don't mean a word of it.

The fact is, Jesus did demand just the thing the hymn describes. He said, in so many words, "Whosoever doth not bear his cross and come after me cannot be my disciple."

What Did Jesus Mean?

THERE ARE TWO ways of misunderstanding Jesus here. One wrong line is taken by those who think Jesus did not mean a word he said. The other wrong line is taken by a very few people, a very few indeed, who take Jesus absolutely literally. They believe that no one can be a true, 100 per cent Christian, unless and until he gives up all his property, all his family, and lives alone and wild, a hermit in the wilderness. The facts show that both these interpretations are false. The world has never been really made better, either by selfish, comfort-loving, worldly Christians, or by the wild and woolly hermits who are clean "out of this world."

"Love Thyself Last"

THE WISEST, the most devoted Christians, have known better what Jesus meant. Jesus' own parable of the "rich fool" gives us the hint. He tells of a man who had everything he wanted . . . but when he came to die, discovered he had nothing. In that little story Jesus shows us a man who put himself before all other persons; who put himself before God; and who put things before character. He lived for his body, he lived for his comforts, he lived for himself.

The neighbors, maybe, called him smart because he was rich; but God called him a fool, and what God calls a man, that he is.

Taking the cross means living as Jesus lived, not as that fool lived.

Christians and Liquor Don't Mix

CONSIDER JUST ONE illustration of what Jesus means. Should a Christian drink alcoholic liquors? If you are not a Christian, you can try to answer this from non-Christian reasons; but that is not the question. Shall a Christian drink? Just think about this in the light of what Jesus said. The disciple of Christ will deny himself; does the drinker deny himself? The disciple of Christ will put Christ first always; but what does the drinker put first? Jesus called a man a fool who lived for his bodily pleasure, lived for himself; what would he call the man who thinks he can "take it or leave it" but who is actually tied to his bottles?

It is true, a selfish man may perhaps (for selfish reasons, such as saving money) deny himself liquor, tobacco, or even tea and coffee, and still be no Christian.

But a man who really denies himself, who loves himself last, will find that other self-denials follow as a matter of course. A man who lets his appetite dictate to him, especially his appetite for alcohol, is a man who is letting real self starve.

WILL PATROL HIGHWAYS IN UNMARKED CARS

State Police troopers will patrol Hoosier highways in unmarked cars in a move against the "intentional violator" of state traffic regulations.

Arthur M. Thurston, department superintendent disclosed today that several patrol cars without the usual identifying gold stripes on the sides, siren and radio aeral will be operated in each of the 10 State Police districts in addition to the marked cars. The "plain" vehicles will display department insignia only on the right side. However, troopers will wear the regulation uniform, he said.

"Our purpose is to eliminate the intentional violator who comprises the small per cent of drivers responsible for a majority of traffic collisions," Supt. Thurston asserted.

Rural highway fatalities increased five percent during January and February, over a corresponding period a year ago. At the same time, urban traffic deaths dropped six per cent. A total of 101 rural and 46 urban deaths were reported in the first two months this year.

The State Polict official said "the department intends to use every legitimate means to keep the unsafe, negligent driver off Indiana roads." The plain patrol car is legal he said, and is used in other states and cities over the nation.

SAFE DRIVING IS SERIOUS BUSINESS

Stay well over in the right-hand lane at all times, except when passing. "Hugging" the centre-line can develop into a deadly habit. Edging over on curves will save you no time . . . and it may cost you a lifetime. You're right – Keep to the right.

Calling all outdoorsmen

By JIM MITCHELL

A lot of sportsmen this time of year clean their guns thoroughly and put them in storage where the firearms will stay untill another game season rolls around next fall.

That's okay. But for the outdoorsmen who never get enough gunning during the regular season, the off-season months offer many grand gunning sports. For instance, there is trap and skeet shooting, both fine sports that will sharpen your ability to hit feathered or furred game with a shotgun. We believe most gunners shoot skeet or trap merely for sport itself, not to improve their gunning skill on game. But for whatever reason, it is grand sport.

And if you do not have acces to a skeet or trap range, a hand trap will serve almost as well. We have a little suggestion, too, with hand traps that we picked up from Henry P. Davis, veteran employee of the Remington Arms Co. Henry says that the way to get real enjoyment from shooting hand traps is to get into the same type of cover you hunt and throw the targets in a manner that they will duplicate shots you get at birds.

Frankly, we'd never thought of idea before and almost always we've done our hand trap shooting out in an open field. This spring, however, we are going into the woods, places where vegetation is dense, and to a lake bank for hand trap sport. And we're going to throw the clay targets in paths that normally would have a quail or pheasant or mallard flying on them.

Unquestionably this method of using a hand trap will add greatly to the sport in making it more like hunting itself. Too, the practice shooting in cover should pay dividends next fall when we try hitting those fast flying upland game birds that frequently are a problem to outmaneuver.

For sportsmen who don't care for skeet, trap or hand trap shooting there is always crow shooting. We've been an eager crow gunner for two decades and, for the most part, shooting these black devils is almost as much fun as gunning for ducks or upland birds.

The crow is smart and tricky, and a hunter must use all his gunningness in outwitting this bird. That's what gives the sport an A-1 rating. The fact that killing crows is a conservation step, too, adds luster to the game. And for every crow that falls to a gunner there probably will be a game bird or animal added to the wildlife population.

So if you want, go ahead and put your gun in storage. But, remember, there is much off season gunning that is tops in enjoyment.

Farm

By EVERETT MITCHELL

Farm Commentator, heard Monday through Saturday, 6:15-6:45 a. m. on WMAQ, Chicago, 670 on your dial.

THE time when oats are seeded is the best season to fertilize hay and rotation pasture crops. The application of phosphate at seeding time will provide plant food for not only the oats but for the hay or pasture crop as well.

However, the value of using phosphate as a top dressing should not be underestimated. Under certain conditions top dressing phosphate is desirable. For example, in wet years and on well-limed or neutral soils good response often can be obtained from phosphate applied as top-dressing on red clover when none was applied at the time of seeding.

Again, when alfalfa is to be grown in the same field for several years, the crop will respond well to top-dressed phosphate. The application of 300 pounds of 0-20-0 per acre will often correct the condition of "short" alfalfa. In many cases, such application of phosphate on "short" alfalfa fields has increased yields as much as three times. It also causes an increase in the phosphorous content of hay by about 50 per cent, thereby making it better feed for livestock.

In the case of permanent pasture, the best time to apply phosphate is when the pasture is reseeded. The old sod should be plowed or disced, and the phosphate applied before the field is reseeded.

For pastures which are largely grass, nitrogen is recommended as an excellent fertilizer. For the dairy men who want that "early bite," an early spring application is of great value. Applying 30 to 40 pounds of nitrogen per acre in the early spring will usually provide pasture a week to ten days earlier than might otherwise be expected.

HERE 'N THERE IN SPORTS

By LEWIS H. WALTER

Although the big league teams will have been going at each other for a couple of days before this goes to press, we give our word that the following predictions were made before they started. Anyway, what difference would a couple of games make over a grind of 154.

To work ourselves into the harder job of picking the finish, we could warm up to the job by throwing out several easy ones, that probably have more than a 50-50 chance of coming true. —Old Connie Mack and his young A's will lead the American league pack from the start until about May 25.—The American League all stars will pack their bags for a trip to Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, July 12th, and then proceed to continue their mastery over the Senior loop, with a good sound trouncing.—After all the barb he has had to take for the past year, Bob Feller will be the winningest Cleveland pitcher and the only 20 game winner on the team and among the few in the league who will do same.—Barring any acts of God the season will come to a close on October 2.

Now into the part for which we will probably get our ears pinned down more than once, and be made to digest words – with or without cream and sugar. Anyway with the finish thats coming up below, you can't say we are guilty of picking up our ideas from the fellows who get to see more than one or two games all season. But that isn't the reason. If you aren't different, you won't be noticed.

American League

1st—Boston—It doesn't seem possible they could get off to as bad as start as last year, and that they won't receive at least as good as pitchng – as the not-so-good as last year. Remember they had to be beaten in a play-off at that.

2nd—Philadelphia — Connie's "just one more," may not be to far away. One of the best infields in either league, and an all around scrappy team with good pitching and a sprinkling of power hitters should keep this team a contender all year.

3rd—New York—Heel or no heel – Still a team with a lot of power, and the makings of their best mound staff since the Gomez, Ruffing, Pearson, Russo combine.

4th—Cleveland—Just no room anywhere higher for them. A general let down after last year. Aging infield, youngest 31.

5th—Detroit— A team with just one change over last – age – all players are one year older. In spite of Rolfe, an aging, slow team with the exception of a couple of youngsters, may have the Sox on their back most of the season. Their worst season in many.

6th—Chicago—At least a manager with a will to win for his team. A $5,000 chicken wire home run fence may help the opposition more than it will the Sox. Still they play more games there than any other team. Randy Gumpert and several youngsters should help them out of last year's cellar home.

7th—St. Louis—Only change over last year is rookie pitcher, Ned Garver. Incidentally, Ned is a Ney, O., lad who has played on Ft. Wayne semi pro team. Along with Dilling er and Zarrilla, only bright spots on team.

8th —Washington —Should be able to take this one without too much trouble.

National League

1st—Brooklyn—Compare with A's in Junior loop. A good, old 'brain', and a good young, fast team.

2nd—Pittsburg—Could be dark horse surprize of both leagues. A general 2 year building progam has helped a lot. Fair pitching, although aging, some power hitting. Kiner, and a good leader, B. Myers. Could make a lot of trouble for the best of them. Crosby may be able to give Hope the raspberries, come October 2.

3rd—Boston—Now I'm getting stumped. Inner club grumbling, true or false won't help. Two good pitchers, however, and two question mark broken legs from last year-Stanky and Heath. This looks about right.

4th—St. Louis—Same as Detroit, age creeping up. Several youngsters however. Could be overtaken by any or all of next lower three.

5th—Philadelphia— May have to eat this one. Hated to squeeze Cards ahead of them. Swaps with Cubs should have helped them.

6th—Chicago— Swaps with Phils maye have helped them. Should improve from last year.

7th—New York—A lot of power and a good manager. Didn't like to put them this low. Could threaten all the way to bottom of first division if they get pitching.

8th—Cincinnati— See Washington. No place left. Blackwell a big ?.

While in the precasting mood here is a couple of horses for the Ky. Derby coming up in a couple of weeks, just in case somebody asks you, so you won't be caught with your saddle down. A good 'longshot' looks like Sportspage. But if you're putting any greensuff on it, Olymphia has been looking mighty good in pre Derby races, and will probably go as the favorite.

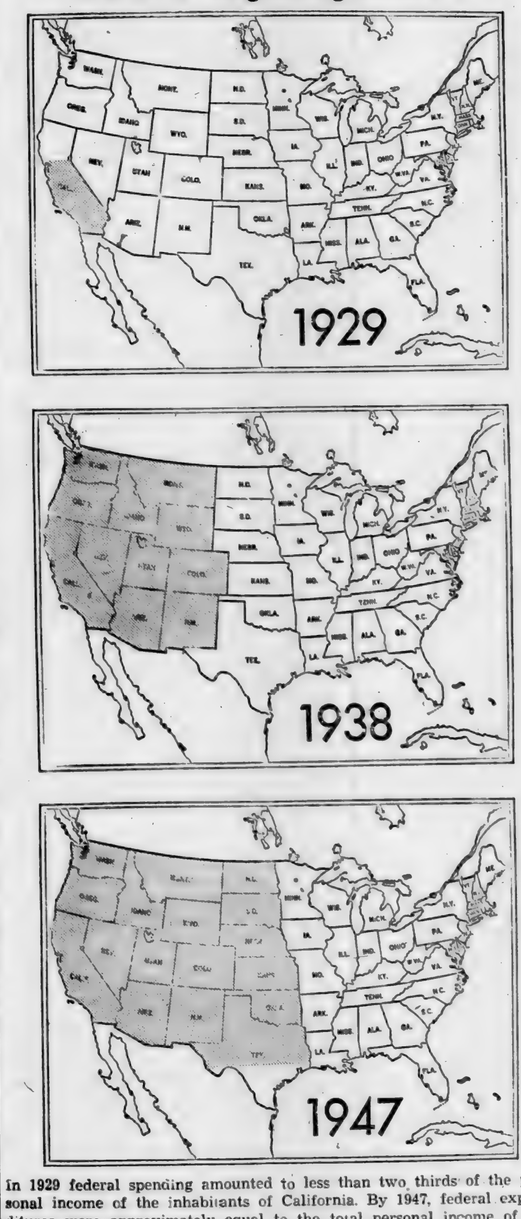
FAMILY PARTNERSHIP IN NEW GRAIN TERMINAL

Lined up for the camera at the new 500,000-bushel grain terminal they designed, built, own and operate are the eight members of the family comprising the partnership now serving thousands of farmers in Ohio, Indiana and Michigan. They are (left to right) Harold Anderson; his wife, Margaret; their five sons, John, Tom, Bob, Don and Dick, and their daughter, Carol. All eight are actively engaged in various phases of the operation of the Anderson Truck-Terminal, Maumee, O., where a new system of testing, truck lifts, underground bins and other elevator departures permit faster handling of grain directly from the farm.

The Ever-Lengthening Shadow



In 1929 federal spending amounted to less than two thirds of the personal income of the inhabitants of California. By 1947, federal expenditures were approximately equal to the total personal income of all the inhabitants of California, Washington, Oregon, Nevada, Idaho, Utah, Arizona, Montana, Wyoming, Colorado, New Mexico, North and South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma and about four fifths of Texas.

Federal expenditures amounted to $121 per family in 1929, $250 in 1938, and about $984 in 1948.

Remember that these figures represent the spending of the federal government only. When state and local government spending is added, the total amounts to some 30 percent of our national income. In other words, the American people devote nearly one third of their working time and effort to supporting their various governments.

Help for the Boss

Once in awhile, a new chapter is written in the history of labor union activities. Most labor-management difficulties are very old problems that have existed ever since man first hired out to another; however, a lot of them belong to new situations, and sometimes we have thought they were new because we had not solved them before. But we have paid increasing attention to hours, wages, and working conditions. A new science of industrial relations has grown up, with nearly every company giving time and effort to improve things for the worker.

One-sided Progress?

In this the unions have helped, for unions in fact exist for the main purpose of looking out for their own. Now, if we have reached the place where union members can see things they can do in turn for their employers, have we not reached an important milestone in industrial relations?

Just recently Mr. Walter Cenerazzo, president of the American Watch Workers Union, led members of his union in a project designed to help the Waltham Watch Company. This company, one of three major American watchmakers, had closed its Waltham, Mass., plant December 31 because it could no longer meet interest payments on a debt of some 5 million dollars. In closing, the 96-year-old company had to discharge 2,300 workers.

What Workers Did

Mr. Cenerazzo, having an unusual grasp of the many problems that labor has to face these days, determined to do something. "If a company is worth working for and drawing a livelihood from, it's worth putting your money into to furnish the working capital to make it a success," he told union members in a mass meeting. Then Mr. Cenerazzo and Waltham employees undertook to see what they could do about it.

Right away, 820 union members pledged themselves to subscribe $318,000 in equity financing. More than $40,000 was put up in cash. One employee with 45 years service pledged $5,000. A stock-buying plan for employees was set up, permitting purchases of stock on a time-payment basis. "We expect to raise more than $1,250,000 by this method, or about $500 for each employee," said Mr. Cenerazzo.

Common Problems

This is the story of a company up against trouble. It is also a story of employee integrity, courage, and determination. I hope these workers succeed in saving their company. In this story, the theme of labor-management relations has indeed taken a new twist. The workers of Waltham have understood the desperate need of industry for capital. "Twice the working capital is needed now as in 1940, because of increased costs," Mr. Cenerazzo told workers.

This milestone in industrial relations proves that labor unions can see that industry's problems are their problems also. You may call it just good sense—seeing the other fellow's difficulty and helping him out of it. Another name for it is the Golden Rule.

Cinnamon Coffee Cake

Those who like cinnamon toast will enjoy this quick coffee cake with spicy cinnamon mixture spread generously between layers and over the top.

Easy does it when you make a quick coffee cake for luncheon or tea.

It needs only mixing and spreading the batter in the pan, with no rising or kneading. For this cinnamon-filled coffee cake, first spread half the batter in the pan. Sprinkle half the crumbly spicy cinnamon-sugar and shortening mixture over it. Then cover the sugary filling with the remainder of the batter and bake. The flavorful cinnamon filling also serves as topping, so there's no icing to make.

Coffee cakes made with enriched flour step up the food value of any meal, for they are thrifty sources of B-vitamins, iron, and food energy.

Time this coffee cake to be ready at the same time as the rest of the meal, for it is best when served warm.

The quick coffee cake base can be adapted to other fillings and toppings. Try a crusty orange mixture. Combine one tablespoon melted butter or margarine, three tablespoons sugar, and two tablespoons grated orange rind; then add one-half cup chopped nuts and mix well.

CINNAMON COFFEE CAKE

Filling and Topping Mixture

¼ cup sugar
3 teaspoons cinnamon
2 tablespoons enriched flour
2 tablespoons melted shortening

Batter

2 cups sifted enriched flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
¼ cup shortening
¾ cup sugar
1 egg
¾ cup milk

Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Cream together shortening and sugar until light and fluffy. Add egg. Mix well. Add flour mixture to creamed mixture alternately with milk. Spread half the batter in greased 7 by 11-inch pan. Sprinkle half the filling and topping mixture over the batter. Cover with remaining batter and sprinkle with rest of topping. Bake in moderate oven (375 degrees F.) 30 minutes. Makes one coffee cake.

New Utility Model Designed For Farm Work and Pleasure

The advent of the new lower-priced Kaiser Traveler marks the first time that an automobile has been created expressly to meet the trasportation and light hauling needs of rural America.

To all appearances a conventional four-door sedan, the new type car was designed to give rural and suburban residents maxium usage day and night, Sundays and holidays—as a family car and as a light cargo unit.

With seats in place, the Traveler is a full sized six passenger sedan; with the rear seat cushions folded, there is a maxium of 130 cubic feed of cartage capacity for a variety of farm loads normally handled by "pickup" trucks or trailers.

For many farm operators, ownership of one of the new utility models virtually eliminates the need for a specialized light cargo vehicle.

The Traveler delivers for $2,088, plus transportation to Keller's Garage, local K-F dealer and local taxes.

With a long 123½-inch wheelbase, the new model is substantially below the delivery price of any full-size station wagon now on the market, and is also well under the lowest price of standard K-F sedans.

The adaptability of the Traveler is achieved through two major innovations in functional design:

1. A collapsible seat arrangement which permits loading of the rear passenger cushions for conversions to cargo hauling in 10 seconds.

2. Special rear body costruction embodying 2 easily operated hinged panels which open the entire back of the car from floor to roof, the lower panel becoming a sturdy endgate.

Maximum loading capacity with the rear passenger cusnion folded and tailgate open is 130 cubic feet. Capacity is increased to 140 cubic feet with the seat cushion removed entirely, a simple operation requiring only the removal of two bolts. With the rear seat in conventional position so that the car can carry six passengers, there still remains useable load space much greater than that of the largest trunks of standard sedans.

An important feature of the interior is the use of tough, leather-like vinyl-upholstery, washable and and easier to keep clean than any other automotive trim material.

Heavy duty front and rear springs and heavy duty shock absorbers are standard. The Traveler has the same high-compression, 100-horsepower engine that powers the Kaiser Special, and it embodies the other road proven mechanical features of the conventional K-F sedan models.

Mrs. Arlie Dwyer was hostess for the April meeting at the home of Mrs. Allie Spitler.

President, Mrs. Lola Moore, read an interesting letter she had received from the family in Holland, which the club is helping. The mother of this family requested clothing be sent as it is most needed.

The president appointed the following nursery committee, Mrs. Lynn Fisher, Mrs. Victor Kelly, Mrs. Roy Chaney, Jr., Mrs. James Jordan, Mrs. Darwin Salisbuy and Mrs. Merl Furnish.

Mrs. James Jordan gave a short talk on safety and distributed pamphlets to each member.

Club Creed was given in unison by members and this was followed with Bible verse and a prayer by Mrs. Lola Moore.

Roll call response was a short poem, Mrs. Winifred Shook responded with her own original and highly entertaining poem about her recent accident.

Meeting was then turned over to Mrs. Averal Stone for a Stanley demonstration.

This was followed by refreshments which were decorated appropriately for Easter.

Darwin and Earthworms

Charles Robert Darwin (1809-1882), famous English naturalist, a short time before his death published the results of his many years of observations and experiments with earthworms. No other person has contributed so much to our knowledge of their habits, behavior and performance. His work is a classic of careful observations, painstaking experiments, and conservative deductions. His conclusions have been generally accepted, nearly every text and reference book containing some mention of his work.

Lions Club Host To Ladies, April 25

10 Members Also Attend Zone Meeting At Avilla

The members of the St. Joe Lions Club again treated their better halves to dinner on Monday, April 25. Ladies Night was held at the Legion home in St .Joe with the Legion Auxiliary serving the dinner.

Entertainment was furnished by Dr. Earl Frisbie of Butler. He showed moving pictures of a trip he took through national parks of our western states up to Canada. The film was made interesting because of Dr. Frisbie's remarks and also because the pictures were in color. It was a pleasure to see amateur movies taken with professional skill.

On Thursday of last week the following Lions attended a zone meeting at Avilla: Clifford Billows, Claude Laub, Everett Paschen, Bill Staman, Don Burley, Fred Stemen, Virgil Kimes, L.A. Schendel, Ted Haberkorn and Dale Wicoff.

The guest speaker was R. Nelson Snider, Principal of South Side High School, Ft. Wayne. His talk was on "The Anatomy of Humor" which pointed out that a joke is funny because it aims at a logical conclusion, but changes direction of its thought just before it reaches its goal. Mr. Snider stated that the best example of that changing direction for humor is the following:if a person extends a toy or something in his hand to a baby and then pulls it away just as the baby is about to get it, the baby laughs. It doesn't seem funny to a grown-up; but it is the basis of all humor.

The meeting was attended by Lions clubs from Auburn, Garrett, Waterloo, Hamilton, Avilla and St. Joe.

49 ENTRANTS IN FIRST COUNTY EGG SHOW

49 entries were made in the 1st DeKalb County Egg Show, held Saturday, April 16, in the assembly room of the Courthouse. The show was sponsored by the DeKalb Co. Poultry Improvement Association in co-operation with various business concerns in DeKalb County.

The grand sweepstakes were won by Mrs. Arthur Stephenso of Auburn Rt. 1. Her dozen eggs was judged grand sweepstakes of the show over all all other entries. They were brown eggs produced from a flock of New Hampshire Reds.

The exhibit was colorful in that it included decorations fitting with the Easter season. An educational exhibit on the distinction of various quality eggs was put on by the Napoleon Egg Auction for the general public.

NEW WEED KILLING SPRAY JOINS LIST

New material to be know as 2, 4, 5-T joins the family of weed killers that are now being used by DeKalb County farmers according to the coutny agricultural agent, C. R. Gross. Information has been received from Oliver Lee, weed specialist at Purdue University, that shows the new chemical has considerable promise for the killing of blackberry briars, thorn bushes, Osage orange sprouts, and general hardwood species not commonly killed by the well known weed killer, 2, 4 D.

The county agent emphatically points out that he new chemical will not replace 2, 4-D but will be of particular value in controlling woody plants that are not readily killed by 2, 4-D. The recommendations for the use of the new chemical, 2, 4, 5-T, is to spray at the rate of one quart of chemical in 20-25 gallons of water. Enough spray solution should be used to hit all vegetation and the best results will be obained when spray is applied after leaves appear on the bushes.

The county extension office has on hand a new bulletin entitled "Weeding With 2, 4-D that will be valuable for individuals using this chemical in their weed control pro-

PLAN TO RECLEAN CEDAR CREEK

A movement is underway for a recleaning job on Cedar Creek in DeKalb County, according to information released by the county extension office. A meeting of farmers and city folks affected by Cedar Creek was called by the newly formed DeKalb County Drainage Association in the assembly room of the Courthouse on Wednesday evening, April 20.

Farmers along the creek told of the drainage outlet and how it was hampering drainage on two-thirds of the farm area of DeKalb County. From the general discussion four or five feet of wash-in has accumulated over the past forty years since a recleaning job was done back in 1907. This has raised the water level and clogged many important drains leading into this outlet.

Farmers also testified that as laterals have been added to the creek, difficulties have increased because of the inadequacy of the creek to handle the necessary water. A meeting was scheduled for May 4 at the assembly room of the Courthouse to further discuss the recleaning. All farmers, and city folks as well, affected by the drain are urged to attend.

In the general discussion at the meeting, it was thought that the recleaning job would not be an expensive process because of the increased efficiency in machinery handling such jobs and the ease in which the material could be removed to original specifications.

Further information for the meeting will be forthcoming. Ralph Stomm, president of the DeKalb County Drainage Association, presided at the meeting.

Women Busy Sewing

Two billion yards of fabrics went over store counters last year for home sewing. Girls and women sew for themselves for four reasons: (1) As a hedge against ready-to-wear quality. (2) They don't like to "see themselves coming" want individuality. (3) They live in communities where clothing choice is limited. (4) They find home sewing artistic and creative. Sewing classes the country over are crowded to capacity. In addition to classes held in hundreds of stores, there are 1,000 sewing centers run by sewing machine companies. It is estimated that a million women, from teen-agers to grandmothers, took sewing-class lessons in 1949.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

International Uniform Sunday School Lessons

By DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

SCRIPTURE: Mark 11:1-11, 15-19; Luke 19:29-48.
DEVOTIONAL READING: Matthew 11: 2-30.

Jesus Is King

Lesson for May 1, 1949

IT IS A SIN to tell the truth out of season. So declares a famous Protestant creed. It is not always good nor wise to tell everybody everything you know. Keeping your mouth shut may be one of the best things you ever do. Jesus himself knew how to keep a secret till time to tell it. He never uttered an untruth about himself, but for a long time he did not openly declare his conviction, in spite of being pestered to say Yes or No about it.

Dr. Foreman

The question was: Are you the Messiah? This was the same as asking, Are you the King? Jesus would not say Yes, because the mere word would be taken to mean "revolutionist" or traitor." But he would not say No, because he was a king; indeed of all men he had the best right to the title.

Royal Entrance

BUT WHEN the time came, Jesus did declare himself king in a spectacular way. We know the story as the "Triumphal Entry into Jerusalem," the story of Palm Sunday, now so fresh in our minds. Jesus lived in a nation of people who were familiar with the meaning of symbols, both in word and action.

When Jesus rode into the ancient capital where his forefathers reigned, astride a mule colt, the people knew, and he knew they would know, that this was not just somebody riding a mule on a Sunday morning. In the history of the Hebrews, mules were the steeds of kings.

King Solomon was crowned riding on a mule. There was a famous prophecy (Zech. 9:9) that when Jerusalen's great king should come, he would be riding on just such a royal steed. So when Jesus rode into Jerusalem, the people threw their palm branches and shouted their welcome, not to the teacher and prophet, but to the King.

Tears in Triumph

IT WAS NOT altogether a victorious occasion. Jesus knew too well how cheap and easy "demonstrations" can be. In his mind's eye he could see a cross standing outside Jerusalem, and in his inner ear he could hear this same dusty-throated mob, now shouting "Hosanna!", yelling instead "Crucify him!" Tears stood in Jesus' eyes. But they were not tears for himself; he never wasted energy in self-pity. They were tears for that blind city, tears for its coming destruction — the city that did not know the way to peace.

Master of the Temple

BOLDER THAN JESUS' triumphal entry was what he did inside the city. It was one thing to claim royal rights over the nation; but at the temple Jesus' claims reached far higher. It should be remembered that in the eyes of all Jews at that time the Temple was absolutely sacred. It represented the dwelling-place of the invisible God. Now the priests at the time were more profiteers and politicians than priests. They carried on what today we call a "racket" in the sale of animals for sacrifice and in changing the ordinary money of all countries into the local Jewish shekel (in which coin alone could temple offerings be paid).

The racket was notorious; every decent Jew hated the priestly profiteers. But no one had ever done anything about it, for that would mean assuming on authority over the temple that no man dared to assume.

But Jesus took it on himself. His direct and even violent action in smashing the racketeering ring was a mark of something more than ordinary self-confidence. He laid claim to being no less than the Master of God's Temple. He was acting in the name of God and with the authority of God.

Master of Man

WHEN THE CHRISTIAN church calls Jesus "Lord" and "King" today, we are making no claim for him which he did not make for himself. What we mean by these titles is that Jesus Christ, for us and for all men, is the authority above all others.

HINTS ON HEALTH by the INDIANA STATE MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

VITAL FOOD

GOOD health comes from good food; and good food comes only from rich soil. From that soil the plant which you later eat draws a complete supply of minerals so necessary for bodily health.

There are at least 14 minerals present in the body, and your food must keep the supply replenished at all times. Doctors offer the comforting bit of knowledge that most food grown on fertile American soil does contain an ample amount of minerals.

But there is no guarantee on that. Here in the mid-west Iodine may be lacking in sufficient quantity; foods in other parts of the country often lack sufficient calcium and iron.

Some minerals go into the building of the body; others activate the nerve and muscle cells. Iodine, for instance, is of vital importance to a proper functioning of the thyroid gland; lack of iodine in your diet may make you sluggish. Wise medical counsel some years back prevailed upon salt manufacturers to add iodine to their table salt, so that salt users are assured of at least a token supply of iodine if that mineral is lacking in their food and the soil from which it came.

Calcium goes to the making of strong bones and good teeth. Iron enters into the making of red blood cells; lack of it results in the pepless condition called anemia. Copper is indispensible in all living cells; potassium gives elasticity and excitability to muscles and nerves.

That is only a partial list of the 14 elements in your body. The important thing to remember is: eat an adequate daily diet of food grown on the best soil; that is insurance that your body's mineral needs will be taken care of.

Calling all outdoorsmen

By JIM MITCHELL

Most of us are thinking now about warm sunshiny weather and a trip to our favorite stream or lake, but before passing on to the fishing season we'd like to pass on the most recent figures released by the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Serivce on waterfowl populations.

It has been reported that the duck and goose population is up over last year, and now the federal bureau says this increase is about 12 per cent. That's a healthy gain and the outlook for a longer gunning season and larger bag limit next fall certainly is encouraging.

Of course the regulations next season will depend largely on the summertime inventory in the north country; however, the optimistic view is not out of place at this time.

Some other interesting facts garnered from the recent report showed that mallards make up almost one-third of the entire wintering grounds waterfowl populations in the United States, with the greenhead concentration the heaviest in the Mississippi flyway.

Second most numerous species is the pintail, making up approximately 15 per cent of the entire duck population. More pintails were found in the Pacific Coast flyway.

Other leading waterfowl species in order of numbers are the coot, snow goose, Canada goose, baldpate, blue goose, scaup, black duck, green-winged teal, canvasback and redhead.

A late check of migratory duck stamp sales for the last fiscal year indicates that it may hit the 2,000,000 mark. This is only slightly short of the all time high set in the 1947 fiscal year.

THE FIRST softball practice was held Monday evening at the school diamond with a fair turnout reporting for the first practice session The next practice session will be Sunday afternoon, weather permitting, and then regular practice nights will be Monday and Thursday evening at 5:30, until play starts.

Present plans call for the local team tb be entered in two leagues this year. An all American Legion squad will start play in the 4th District American Legion League, probably about the second week in May. A local team will also play in the Auburn Industrial league at Auburn, which will start play at the new diamond in Auburn, about the first week in June. Players who are not Legion members are elgible to play in this league. The Legion league games will probably be played at McMillen Park in Fort Wayne or at Garrett, with each team seeing action once a week. Bowling in the Intercity League at Hicksville has come to a close for another year. The Legionaires were second place winners in the second half of the schedule.

AREA fans were glad to learn this week that Jim Schooley, Auburn High School's big center, was selected as the second man on the Indiana all star squad which will meet the best of Kentucky's high cagers in the ninth annual benefit game for the blind on Friday, June 17, at Indianapolis. Ward "Piggy" Lambert, former Purdue U. basketball coach will pilot the Indiana squad.

LOOKING AHEAD

By GEORGE S. BENSON
President—Harding College
Searcy, Arkansas

Worker's Dilemma

Whether to ask for another raise in 1949 is a question now vexing our unions. Shall they go on through this year without asking for another raise? Some unions are saying it will be bad business for the nation's workers to insist on another round of increases. Others, recalling that raises have been obtained three years in a row, insist that labor keep it up and demand another raise.

How's the way to answer this $64 question, so that the American workman may have the $64—and much more? Because it makes sense that any sound gain made by American workers will be a gain for the entire nation, I favor whatever will have the greatest long range benefit for American workers.

Consider the Facts

People who have their facts straight know that any substantial rise in wages must be followed by a jump in prices. This is elementary fact-and-figure economics. If we could have another wage boost with the rise in prices it would bring—and the nation would keep on buying—that would be one thing. But there are strong indications that won't work again.

Pipelines of supply to consumers are beginning to fill up. The public is refusing to buy as it has for five years. Consumers are getting more price conscious. Many manufacturers are even now finding it hard to market what they produce. Some are already compelled either to decrease hours of operation or lay off workers.

Danger Signal

If a wage boost now would result in more unemployment and lower wages in the long run, would labor unions demand the increase? No, they would not. Yet that is exactly what would happen, if we should crowd the entire economy toward a depression. There are certain serious danger signals.

Here is a sample. On January 29 a Cleveland utility company awarded a contract for two generators to a Swiss firm. They cost $1,140,000 which was nearly $500,000 less than bids of three American firms. The Cleveland company had to accept the foreign bid, despite protests by American companies and by American workers.

The Safe Way

Now that Europe is beginning to get into the market, it will be seen that America has no monopoly on manufactured goods in the world markets. Competition there is just beginning, and it will get tough aplenty. Wage increases that push up prices, besides making more trouble just now in the home market, would make it hard for America to compete in foreign markets. Foreign production will also continue to invade our home markets.

Since living costs are already definitely going down, and since a wage increase would be very bad for the industries we work for, and would endanger our jobs, I'd say let it go by. If we can keep present wage levels, and let prices come down, that will mean a real raise for everybody. That way, not only union members, but everybody will have their standard of living raised a full notch.

FARMERS TO PAY GROSS INCOME TAX AT PRESENT RATE UNTIL JULY 1

Information has been received from Conn J. Sterling, director of the Income Tax Div. State of Indiana, that farmers will pay gross income tax on the present rate until July 1. Income received before July 1, even though the return is filed at the end of the year will be computed at the old rate. Farm income received after July 1, 1949, will be charged at the increased rate provided by the General Assembly at the last session.

Farmers, as well as others are required to ap on a quarterly basis if they have a tay of ten dollars or more due for a particular quarter. This would involve an income of $4,000 in a particular quarter at the ¼ of 1 percent rate that is in effect at the present time

Farmers are urged by the county extenson office to keep track of their income and date such income so that when tax paying time comes, even though they are filing only once a year, they will know which rate will apply to income received before and after July 1.

SEARCHES FOR TWIN DAIRY CALVES

The county extension office announced today that it is intersted in locating in the county, twin dairy calves for the dairy breeding research program to be conducted at Purdue University. The research program is to determine the correlation between environment and heredity for certain physical characteristics.

The identical twins must be heifer calves of dairy breeds but do not have to be purebred. The physical identification of identical twins are color pattern (almost identical) hair of whirl, nose print, body confirmation (especially the length and shap of head, shape of rump, top line, and legs).

The extension offie urges farmsrs who have such animals to report them to this office if they are interested in cooperating with this project. Twins can be used in the project for the next fifteen months.

Mr. Sterling's data was received by the extension office after re the change in rate and the liability of the farmer in filing this year's return.

TOWN and FARM

by EVERETT MITCHELL

Farm Commentator, heard Monday through Saturday, 6:15 A.M. a. m. on WMAQ, Chicago, 670 on your dial.

LAST week we touched on some of the hazards to public health caused by the common fly, and discussed the value of sanitation as a means of eliminating the pest. This week we'll take up a second method of dealing with him—insecticide.

Science has made available to us a powerful insecticide, DDT, that will still kill insects resting on a sprayed surface after days, weeks or even months.

However, there is evidence that flies may develop resistance to DDT. A strain of resistant flies was developed by the Orlando Laboratory of the Department of Agriculture's Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine by selective breeding of the flies through 14 generations. The selected strains had about twice the resistance to DDT as did the original flies.

To further test the resistance that flies might develop, two strains of flies were submitted to a standard treatment of DDT, 200 mg. of DDT per square foot of surface. One strain was laboratory bred and had never been exposed to DDT. The other was a "wild" strain procured from an area where DDT had been used for some time. Both strains were paralyzed by the exposure.

When all the flies were down, they were removed from the test chamber and placed in clean cages. The weaker laboratory flies were dead within 24 hours. Many of the "wild" strain recovered from their paralysis and were flying around at the conclusion of the experiment.

If you think the flies in your community are growing resistant to DDT, try another insecticide. A two per cent solution of chlordane, or some other new insecticide, may do the job where DDT is failing.

FARM BUREAU CLOCKS WILL NOT CHANGE

In full compliance with the state law, the Indiana Farm Bureau will operate through the summer months on official Central Standard Time, according to an announcement by President Hassil E. Schenck. There will be no changing of clocks in this organization.

As advocated many times in its testimony in the recent legislature, the Farm Bureau will inaugurate summer hours by advancing its work schedule one hour starting April 25. Schenck is openly critical of business organizations and other groups who are flouting Indiana's new time law on the flimsy excuse that it is not convenient.

"An objective look at the situation," Schenck points out, "leaves the impression that a few business leaders have unfortunately deliberately chosen to be law breakers."

"Rescuing" Wild Life Babies

Every summer thousands of young birds and animals apparently lost from their parents are illegally picked up by thoughtless, well meaning people who believe they are doing a kindness. Almost always, the Iowa state conservation commission points out, the mother is nearby, unable to protect her young from her greatest fear—man. If the young are left alone the mother and the youngsters soon get together. In cases where the mother is killed by accident, human care for the young is justifiable and humane.

VOL. LXIV (64 YEARS) (In the St. Joe Valley) ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA THURSDAY, MAY 5, 1949 NUMBER 18

Nat'l Home Demonstration Week, May 1-7

DeKalb County home economics clubs with the extension service are celebrating National Home Demonstration week, May 1-7. The Concord Home Economics Club is one of 17 clubs in our county, with a membership of 40 which is taking part in this event.

This club was organized in 1923 by our charter members and the late Hattie Widney Stone, who was the first president.

The Concord Home Economics club is a unit of the county agricultural and home economics extension service, working cooperative with the agricultural extension service of Purdue University and the U. S. Dept of Agriculture and under the leadership of the county Home Demonstration Agent, Mary Lenore Moore.

This Club has been very active and grown through the years, having as its aim the improving, enlarging and endearing the greatest institution in the world. "The Home," and also endeavoring to help others and to pass on to others that which has benefited them.

Health and nutrition have been the selection of the major project lessons for this year. They have had a lesson on the heart by a registered nurse, Louise Church, also a lesson on Indiana and one on sewing.

The first lesson from Purdue will be given in Auburn on May 10th on "Good Milk, Good Health." Included in the two lessons which will be given later on in the year from the state extension staff will be, "Sanitation in the Kitchen" and "The Imporance of a Nourishing Breakfast for School and Pre-School Children."

Welfare work this year includes sponsoring Red Cross Drive for Concord Township, adopting a needy European family and also of sending a "Care Package" to Europe.

The Club is sponsoring the local 4-H Club.

The Home Demonstration agent lesson that has been given in our club this year was on "Household Pests."

Many of the club members are planning to attend the home economis club camp to be held at Lake Webster on August 21-23. Both DeKalb and Allen county, club woment attend this meeting.

The Concord Township Club exhibit showing results of of project lessons can be seen in window of St. Joe Electric Shop.

LEO AUXILIARY NOTES

The American Legion Auxiliary, Leo Post 409, will again sponsor the sale of veteran-made poppies on Poppy Day, which will be observed here and throughout the nation on May 28th, the Saturday before Memorial Day. The purpose of Poppy Day is to keep bright the memory of those who gave their lives in defense of America. Wearing a poppy is an individual act of tribute to the war dead.

The crepe paper flower which will be offerd for sale are made by disabled veterans at the Marion Government Hospital. In almost all cases the making of the poppies is the only employment the veteran is able to do, and provides his only source of income. Being gainfully employed, helps give him a wholesome mental attitude which promotes recovery.

All money taken in from the sale of poppies is kept in the local unit and is used for child welfare and veteran's aid. The amount of money given in exchange for the poppy is entirely voluntary, the newsboy's pennies and the business man's dollar are equally acceptable. Aux. members are hoping to see a poppy over every remembering heart on Poppy Day.

A called meeting was held April 25th at te Leo Post 409. A central committee was appointed and preparations discussed for cooking and serving the Alumni Banquet, May 21st.

Mrs. Harold Kryder, Mrs. Roxe Warner, Mrs. Vernon Halter, Mrs. McNeice, and Mrs. Frieda Griswold plan to attend the 4th District Meeting, May 12th, at Monroeville.

Mrs. Griswold, Mrs. Vernon Halter, Erlena Bender, and Mrs. Arthur Levy, were appointed on a committee to be in charge of articles and booth for coming dedication services

Thank You

Johnny the Mailman, is on the prod no more
He's replaced that sod just where it was before
He has pinned back his ears, "though just a little red"
For they don't set even on the sides of his head.

But Johnny is a happy man, as he goes about his work
For he can show that brass hat, his job he doesn't shirk
He sings and he whistles as he goes down the road
For from his old shoulders has been lifted a big load.

You may wonder why the mailman
Gets so hopped up over paint
Or a post that now stands straight up
Or that old box which now "aint."

He just likes to see things pretty
That he looks at every day.
And the service he can give you
Will be better in every way.

Now you folks who made John happy
Who revived his sagging zeal
Who didn't forget the thing he asked,
Nor neglected to finish the deal,
He wants to thank each one of you
And you will thank him o'er and o'er
For this is the last of his poems
This is all. They "haint" no more.

DEVOTIONAL READING: Mark 13:1-12.

Jesus And Critics

Lesson for May 8, 1949

DURING JESUS' last week, his enemies were firing at point-blank range. They were dead set to kill him; but they did not want to do that if they could ruin him some other way. What they tried to do was to make him out either a rascal or a fool, or both. Mark's story shows how Jesus took it.

Dr. Foreman

The first question they asked sounded perfectly fair. "Where did you get your authority?" As we saw last week, Jesus had assumed simply tremendous authority. Wasn't it fair to ask him where he got it?

The trouble was that the men who asked the questions didn't want to know. They only wanted to heckle Jesus.

The world is full of just such license-hunting snoopers as these. They do not like it when a man succeeds. They particularly do not like it when a man succeeds without their help.

"Who is this fellow anyway? Where did he get his start? What family does he have, where is his diploma?" Jesus never answered this question, because he knew why they asked it. (Mark 11:27-33.)

Taxes

IN JESUS TIME you could not vote either for more taxes, or less. You paid what the Roman soldier at your door said to pay, and you were thankful not to be poked in the ribs with his sword while you were fishing up the money. But no one dared to complain. The Romans had some deep dank dungeons for people who complained about high taxes. So the next question Jesus' enemies asked him was about taxes, or tribute, which means the same thing. They thought they had Jesus on a spot where whatever he said would put him in the wrong. Suppose he said: "Yes, pay taxes by all means." Then they would snarl: "Boot-licker of the Romans! Traitor to your country!" But if Jesus said, "No, don't pay taxes," then they would howl: "Treason! Police! Arrest this man who defies the Emperor!" Jesus' answer was a masterpiece, because he not only did not dodge the hot question, he did not leave the questioners a leg to stand on. (Mark 12:17).

Hairsplitters by Trade

THE CRITICS of Jesus were hair-splitters by trade. Yet none of them had ever been able to answer another tricky question with which they now expected to floor Jesus.

"Which is the greatest commandment of all?" The question had been going the rounds for generations. The greatest minds in Jewery had wrestled with it. But it was a foolish question after all.

Which is the most important brick in a wall? What position on a volley-ball team is the most important? What is the most important link in a chain? An answer to these questions would seem about as easy as answering that one about the greatest commandment. Jesus knew they were trying to show him up as a bungler, as a very poor and amateurish hairsplitter indeed. But instead, he did what no one expected him to do: he answered their question, and answered it so well that it is one of the cornerstones of our religion today.

How to Take Criticism

THE READER should consult Mark for the whole story. It bristles with practical thoughts, one of the most practical being how to take criticism. All of us can take it from our friends and families: we know they mean it for our own good. But criticism that is unfair from people who want only to show us up for fools or to get us into hot water—that is hard to take. Jesus should be our example.

He did not let other people's criticisms interfere with his work. He never avoided criticism. He did not "twist the lion's tail, he did not deliberately provoke criticism. But he would not claim exemption from what every one has to stand, being looked over and rated by the people who knew him.

He never broke his heart over what people said of him. He did not go around crying to himself.

HINTS ON HEALTH by the INDIANA STATE MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

HOUSECLEANING MADE EASY

YOUR family physician, who often treats the sprains and bruises of spring housecleaners, has a word of advice for you this Spring. But first, a word of sympathy. When the man of the house comes home and says: "What makes you so tired, honey, all you've been doing is a little housework," don't fly off the handle. Few indeed are the men who can appreciate the immense amount of energy it takes to run a household and keep it clean. Your doctor's advice is, the woman who does housework should keep an hour, or at least a half hour daily, set aside for rest and relaxation. She should plan her work, dividing the heavy and exhausting work into parts to be done on different days.

Of course, around the house, there is standing and bending and climbing and walking to be done every day. And it's all exhausting. Tests show that just standing takes twelve per cent more energy than lying down; bending over takes fifty-five per cent more energy than lying down, while climbing stairs takes fifteen times as much energy as walking.

The wise homemaker will see that she has a certain amount of fresh air in the house while she's doing her tasks, and there should be plenty of light in the room where you're working to avoid eye strain. Clothing can rob you of needed energy. Watch out for shoulder straps that annoy, tight girdles, run-over heels, clothing that hampers the movement of your body. And, of course, warm Spring days are a hazard, too, for you fatigue more easily at your work. And one last word; you might try hanging up a motto in some easily seen place. This is the motto: "Mom, is there anything I can do for you?"

Farm Outlook Fally Good

Farmers can expect current good times to continue for the immediate future, say government officials, who make this prediction with their fingers crossed. On the optimistic side, demand for farm product is expected to stay strong, due to income tax reduction and continued heavy exports under ERP. For the first five months of 1948, cash receipts to farmers are likely to total slightly more than for the same period last year. On the gloomy side, farm exports may drop 15 to 20 per cent below the 1947 record of $3,900,000,000 if foreign crops turn out well. Cash receipts may go down later in the year.

By JIM MITCHELL

For almost three decades we've been roaming the country with rod and gun, sampling the fishing there. It has been a wonderful 30 years for which we are deeply thankful. We are sorry for one thing, however. We failed to record most of these trips on film.

That has all been changed in recent months and now we have pictures of our most recent treks after fish and game. And re-living the hunting, fishing and camping experiences through pictures is a sport second only to actual participation in these wonderful outdoor hobbies.

Since beng bitten by the camera bug, we did a little checking and found many sportsmen have discovered that it's fun taking pictures. Having a camera along is al most important as a rod or gun. In fact, we know several sportsmen who now are hunting with a camera alone, leaving their guns and other equipment at homt.

That's okay with us, but we still like to do both - - fish or hunt and shoot pictures on the side. So it was interesting to note the recent announcement of a new pocket size camera does an amazing job of taking pictures that can be enlarged without losing the detail.

Lugging a big camera along on a stream or into the field after game frequently creates a weigh problem This new "Petal" camera solves that for it is only about the size of a fifty-cent piece and can be carried easily in a pocket, on a watch chain or fastened in coat button hole.

Marketed by Mycro Camera Co., Inc., of New York City, this new camera take six pictures from a role that sells for a dollar. The film price includes the developing and making prints for the owner.

And you can bet the old fly rod against a box of flies that we'll veniently tucked into a shirt pocket have one of those new cameras con this spring and summer when we're after trout and bass.

THESE TRICKS TAKE BASS

Farm

Farm Commentator, heard Monday through Saturday, 6:15-6:45 a. m. on WMAQ, Chicago, 670 on your dial.

DAIRYMEN should not necessarily give grass too much credit for butterfat increases when they turn their cows out to pasture in the spring.

Experts say the extra spurt in production is due mainly to the stimulation that pasture produces in the cow's system, indicating that butterfat increases may be made at the expense of loss of weight to the cow. If this continues, production will eventually drop to low, inefficient levels.

Pasture is an ideal dairy feed, but a cow is limited in the amount she may consume. The answer to the problem is to supplement the pasture with a grain ration, the amount depending upon the cow's capacity for production A rule-of-thumb method for figuring grain needs is to feed two pounds of a good grain mixture for each gallon of milk produced.

As long as pasture continues to be excellent, the grain mixture may be low in protein—12 to 14 per cent. Feed should be high in digestibility, fairly bulky, and be made up of fresh palatable ingredients. As pastures get poorer, it is advisable to increase the protein to 16 per cent. During July and August it should be increased to 18 or 20 per cent.

LOOKING AHEAD

BY GEORGE S. BENSON
President—Harding College
Searcy, Arkansas

Paralysis

On March 14, at the direction of one man, our nation's coal production was choked off. More than 400,000 coal miners were asked to leave their jobs for two weeks to be followed by 67,000 railway employees whose jobs depended upon transporting coal.

The cause for this paralysis to a large section of our economy was not any grievance about working conditions, pay, pensions, or vacations. It appears, however, to result from personal dislike of one man for another. In response to the President's appointment of Dr. James Boyd as director of the U.S. Bureau of Mines, John L. Lewis ordered his United Mine Workers on a two-weeks layoff.

Excessive Power?

Within his field, John L. Lewis possesses the nearest approach to dictatorial powers of anyone to appear on the American scene. He has defied Presidents and Congresses, crippled production in the face of economic crises, and flouted the war effort by strikes in wartime. By directly controlling the output of a basic industry, he holds power to strangle our entire economy with a prolonged strike.

With this "spite" strike Lewis has encroached upon two basic fundamentals of our democratic progress: (1) The right of government to make appointments free of pressure, and (2) Freedom to work.

Warning Sign

This action presents a real danger signal to the American public. It shows what can happen when irresponsible leadership of a great body of influence—American labor—goes on a rampage. The implications are alarming. If any one individual were powerful enough to dictate governmental appointments with threats of strikes, a new era of demagogues would indeed be at hand. Such power would be potentially disastrous.

The weapon of indiscriminate strikes is one which labor leaders alone control. Neither government nor management possesses such a power. The rank and file of labor, too, because of their organization, are subject to the orders of those leaders. Many labor leaders recognize this situation and act in a far-sighted manner. However, the selfish actions of any one leader casts unfavorable reflections on the whole movement.

National Responsibility

No more loyal group of American citizens exists than the miners themselves. It is sad irony these people should suffer the brunt of the strike. According to the Associated Press, they will lose about $68 million in wages during the two week layoff. This means $68 million in food, clothing, and other essentials must be forfeited to the whims of one leader who was elected by workers to safeguard their interests.

This points up sharply the need for adequate labor legislation. Without violating the rights of labor, we must draw clearly the line where those rights end and national responsibility begins. The average worker has everything to gain in such legislation. Labor must be accorded complete protection from irresponsibility—found within its own leadership, or elsewhere.

Yankee Meat Square

Lagging spring appetites will perk up at the sight of Yankee meat square with creamed vegetables, buttered asparagus, and spiced crabapples.

Add another tempting casserole dish to your spring menus by serving this Yankee meat square. It combines cooked cubed meat, enriched bread cubes, eggs, and meat broth or milk in a nourishing main course. This is not a fluffy mixture, but has more the consistency of bread pudding.

Yankee meat square makes a simple company dish, for the mixture may be pressed into a nine-inch ring mold. After baking, unmold and fill center with creamed vegetables. Buttered asparagus may be the green vegetable on the menu, with a needed spicy accent supplied by pickled crabapples.

Cubes of meat scattered through the square give "bite" and meat flavor to it, while the enriched bread supplements the food value with B-vitamins, iron, and food energy.

The bread cubes used in making this dish may be made from day old bread, but they should not be dry and hard. The meat square or ring is easy to unmold if pans are lined with waxed paper.

YANKEE MEAT SQUARE

4 cups enriched bread cubes
2 cups cooked meat, cubed
3 eggs
2 cups meat broth or milk, or liquid from canned vegetables
1½ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper

Mix bread cubes and meat. Beat eggs, add broth or milk, salt and pepper. Pour over bread mixture. Mix well. Pour into greased eight-inch square pan. (Lining the bottom of pan or ring mold with waxed paper prevents sticking.) Press firmly into pan. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 45 minutes. Unmold, cut into squares, and serve with creamed vegetables or tomato sauce. Makes six servings.

Meet a has-been!

Meet Mr. Mercury!
The old Romans thought he was the messenger of the gods. With those winged feet he got around fast, doing all sorts of useful little jobs on the way. This Roman messenger is out of date now. For speed, you can't beat electricity. It's on hand 1/10,000,000th of a second after you flip a switch

You can't beat electricity for usefulness, either. It's like an extra pair of hands for the homemaker—always ready and willing to help clean and sew and cook, do the laundry, make life easy and healthy and comfortable. And you can't beat electricity for cost! Just think, one penny's worth of electricity will run your radio for a full evening—or swish the dirt from two tubs of wash—or tell you the time for a week. In this era of sky-high costs, what other item in your family budget does so much—for so little?

Childrens' Pictures To Be Published Free In The News

"The best investment is in children," says Wm. J. Cameron. "You had bet er take a good look at them as they pass you on the stree', for they are he ones who are going to make a new world for you, and you can catch some g limmer of the dawn in their fresh young faces."

That is a bit of philosophy in which the publishers of this newspaper firmly be eve. And because we think our readers should "catch some glimmer of the dawn," we intend to help them do it. That is, of course, with the coopera ion of the mothers and father sof the children of this and surrounding communities.

Nationally Known Studio To Take Pictures

The only way we can give all our readers a good look at these future "world builders" is by publishing pictures of them in a feature series titled "Citizens of Tomorrow."

To assure the la'est and best reproduction picture - - - they must all be of a uniform size and quality - we have made arrangemen s with the Waltz Studios nationally known children's phoographers, to take these special pictures for us.

Expert children's pho'ographers for the studios, wi h all the necessary equipment for for 'his specia'ized work, will be here Friday, May 20. The special studio will be set up at the Legion Home and will be open from 10 a. m. to 6 p. m.

No Charge To Parents

There is no charge to the parents! There are absolute'y no strings to this invita'ion. There is no age limit. It is bonafide in every sense of the word. Parents do not have to be subscribers, nor even readers of this newspaper to take advantage of this feature nei her are they obligated to purchase pic'ures after they are taken. Those who want some additional prints may ob'ain a limited number by arragement wi h the studio representative when they select the pose they went printed in the paper. It is entirely up to them!

The More Pictures The Be'ter

The News simply wants pictures of a'l the youngsters and the more the better. So mothers and fathers of the community in which this pa'er circulates should remember the day and dates, Friday, May 20 at the Legion Home and not fail to bring their children to the photographer.

You will be mighty glad, afterwards, if you did, and very, very sorry if you fail to allow your children to participate in this event. The kiddies will have much fun and both Mother and Dad- - and the youngsters, too - - - will be very proud to see their pictures in print later. Many will c'ip them out and preserve them until Junior grows up.

SCRIPTURE: Mark 13; 14:3-9. DEVOTIONAL READING: 1 Thessalonians 5:1-11.

Judgment Day

Lesson for May 15, 1949

FORTY DIFFERENT Christian denominations sponsor this column, although it goes without saying that not all of the millions of Christians in those denominations would agree point for point with everything that is said here. Now if the reader could interview one leading Bible expert from each of these 40 denominations, and ask each one the same question: "In your personal opinion, exactly what is the meaning of Mark 13?" you might not get 40 different answers, but you certainly would get more than one.

Dr. Foreman

There is no chapter in the Bible that has been the subject of more arguments than this one, ond no arguments have ever been more useless than these.

Leaving extreme views aside, let us try to discover some meanings which all 40 denominations would find in this chapter, some truths on which all reasonable Christians can agree.

A Certain Fact

IN JESUS' view one thing is certain: God's judgment on this world and on all persons in it. Christian churches have different ideas about what happens after death. We have different ideas about how the judgment is to be carried out, or where it will be held, or when. But that every man will have to give account of himself before God is something Christians believe.

Your true unbeliever is not the person who goes around saying there is no God. A more subtle and dangerous form of unbelief is in the person who takes the Christian creed upon his lips but lives as if the creed were a lie.

He repeats the Apostles' Creed: "From thence he shall come to judge the quick and the dead." If those words are sincerely spoken, the believer will honestly try to please God obove all others. But the unbeliever, whatever his words may say, shows that he does not believe by the fact that he tries to please, first of all, either himself or his family or his neighbors, and not God above all.

An Uncertain Time

IT IS ONLY children who think that if something doesn't happen Now, it will never happen. Now and never are not the only times on God's clock. When will the judgment be? The disciples wanted to know, but Jesus did not tell them. He did not claim to know, himself, when it would be (Mark 13:32.) What he did say was, Watch! There is a sense in which God's judgments are going on all the time. The end of your world will come in your own lifetime, whoever you are; for there is not much difference whether the world folds up and leaves you or whether you fold up and leave the world.

Death is the end of the world for every one who dies. Further, whenever a person suffers by and because of his own wrong-doing, here in this life and on this earth, God is judging him by the eternal moral laws which are the very warp and filling of the fabric of life.

There is also a sense in which God judges societies and nations. We have recently seen how terrible a judgment Germany drew down on its head. The nation that takes the sword shall perish by the sword. The nation that sets out to enslave others by force will come under the same death-sentence that cut down Assyria and Rome and Japan and Germany. But not all God's judgments are on this earth. "God does not settle all his accounts in October." There is a final accounting, and no man, in this life or any other, can escape that solemn meeting with God.

The Only Judge

TWO THINGS are sure. One is that the only true judge of any man is God. The man himself is partial, his friends are partial, his enemies are prejudiced against him. Further, no one knows all the facts but God. Only God knows what a man's motives are; only God can trace to their final end oll the consequenses that flow from a man's act.

LOOKING AHEAD

By GEORGE S. BENSON

President—Harding College Searcy, Arkansas

Why Name Calling?

The calling of names is a propaganda technique based on delusion and trickery. It has been common in politics for a long time, and has done its part to give politics a bad reputation among the people in general.

Americans are accustomed to a certain amount of this in election campaigns. But surely we have not come to the place where we expect it in the halls of Congress. In legislative sessions, when serious national problems are being discussed, it is a bit disturbing to hear so much name-calling. Any American has the right to disagree with another and to speak out his mind. But it is not necessary always to discredit those who disagree with us.

Freedom Is Fragile

The worst thing that has happened in America in the last twenty years has been the tendency to divide our people into class groups. Our country has long been known as the "melting pot," where immigrant lads and backwoods boys can become bankers and industrialists. High born or low born, rich or poor, in America it never really has mattered. The important thing in America is that a man may plar and live out his own dream.

Some folks apparently have forgotten that these freedoms of ours are fragile and perishable. Unless we attend to the keeping of each of them, it is possible to lose them all. The building of class consciousness is one of the very worst things we can do to our American life. It could be the entering wedge of all kinds of "isms," any one of which in time might well put us in chains.

Unwholesome Effect

The term "big business" is used as name-calling by unthinking persons and by those who have isms up their sleeves. Name-calling of business, big or little or any size, can have nothing but an unwholesome effect upon the American scene. A U.S. Senator was quoted in the press recently as saying: "It appears that big business would rather risk a continued inflation of prices than balance the budget through increased taxes."

You see, all the people of the nation are paying about a third of their total income in taxes. Must anyone who believes that taxes should not be raised be placed on the receiving end of a name calling campaign? One Senator on the Senate Labor Committee keeps branding as "fascist" certain of those who oppose increased taxation.

Public Opinion

Does this mean the Senators cannot make out a reasonable case for increased taxes? Does it mean that they can defend the case for higher taxes only by hanging ugly tags on those who oppose tax increases?

If we must try to turn labor against management—if we must turn the public in general against employers who are providing millions of jobs at the highest wages ever earned—then I am afraid we have reached a level that signals the end of our American way and our high standard of living.

Calling all outdoorsmen

By JIM MITCHELL

We'd like nothing better than to discard the old "soap box" and write only about the sunny side of the outdoors—the beautiful days ahead on a trout stream or the relaxing moments on a bass lake.

Still a recent announcement about forest fires brings up a point that needs stressing. We all can enjoy the outdoors to the fullest; yet we must be good woodsmen to avoid the costly fires that annually reap such a great toll of wildlife.

"The most hazardous forest fires season since 1933 is more than a remote possibility for this year," says J. A. Mitchell, vettran fire research expert for the U. S. Forest Service.

The forecast is for the Great Lake region where Mitchell is headquartered. It is believed that critical fires in this region are following an eight or nine year cycle and charts bear out this opinion. Critical fires in Michigan were in 1925, 1933 and 1941. This is the year at the top of the cyc'e.

Whether or not a similar cycle effects other parts of the United States is not known. Actually, it makes little difference, for almost every can be considered critical. And whether the losses are only a few acres or a million, wildlife suffers when its habitat goes up in smoke.

The most serious danger periods for fires are in the spring and in the fall. Before vegetation turns green in the spring, it burns easily; when it is brown and dry in the fall, fires start quickly.

Forest fires most often are the result of carelessness, with a high percentage of them started by man. But with a little thought and cooperation they can be avoided.

So, Brother Sportsmen, let's all try hard this year to save the wooded habitat of the game by being sure that the camp fires are out, that matches are cold before tossed to the ground, that cigarettes are out before being flipped away. That's not too much to ask of all sportsmen and it will prevent most forest fires.

SO IT'S COME TO THIS !

HERE 'N THERE IN SPORTS

By LEWIS H. WALTER

The Berea Implement team of Butler won their first game in the Northeastern Indiana Baseball League, Sunday. They beat the Corunna Merchants 10 to 8, in a long drawn out game at the Corunna diamond, Sunday. It was their first win in two games.

The Corunna boys got of to an early start, combining three walks and a two base hit off lefty Maurie Houlton, Butler's starter, for two runs in the very first inning. They added two more in the 5th, from a cluster of infield errors and a long fly to center. Lefty Meredith Poer, Garrett High basketball player, started on the mound for Corrunna and was fairly effective the 6 innings he worked, allowing just 6 hits and 2 runs.

Butler got their first two runs of the game in the 6th on three solid hits. Corunna added two more in their half of the 6th to make it 6 to 2.

Wattier took over on the hill for Corunna and then the Butler boys broke the game wide open in the next two innngs. They added two in the 7th and then batted all the way around in the 8th. Nickles opened that big inning by striking out, but reached first when the catcher let the ball get by him. Walter was forced at second base by Wilson. Gaff singled to right scoring Nickles and Wilson. Campbell and Hose then walked filling the sacks. Roger Laub rammed a ground smash towards left that the third baseman couldn't hold, scoring Gaff and Campbell, and when the left fielder fumbled the ball, Hose came home for the fifth run of the inning and Laub raced to second. At this point the Corunna infield lapsed into a deep coma. Without calling time out, the whole infield huddled around the mound for a conference with the pitcher. Laub broke for third and with the pitcher chasing him the last 30 feet, made it safely with a headlong dive. Beeks was safe on the third baseman's second error of the inning and Laub scored to make it 10 to 6.

Elmer Gaff had taken over the mound chores for the Berea men in the 6th, and his assortment of slow curves and sliders kept the Corrunna batsmen pretty well under control. They did add a single run in the 8 h and then picked up their last run in the 9th when DeWitt Carunna left fielder drove the longest hit of the game, a double to right field, scoring Drerup who had singled ahead of him.

In other N. E. I. games, Ashley drubbed Waterloo 15 to 8, St. Michaels defeated P. Lake 8 to 0 and Hamilton won over Garrett, 13 to 3.

FARMERS WHO DID NOT GROW WHEAT DURING LAST THREE YEARS MUST REQUEST ALLOTMENT

At Warsaw, Indiana last Wednesday, a meeting was held which was attended by representatives of eleven counties and the workings of the new AA program was explained in detail.

It is fairly certain that wheat allotments will be established for each farm that has grown wheat during any one of the years 1947, 1948, and 1949.

If any farmer in DeKalb County intends to sow wheat during one of these years he should request a wheat allotment. The request should be made in writing to the DeKalb County AAA Committee not later than May 20, 1949.

THE Zollner Poston's softball team will be at the new diamond in Auburn at 4 p. m., May 27th to conduct a school. They will put on an inter squad game after the school. All players and fans are invited to attend.

THE Y.M.C.A. League at Auburn voted to re-elect all soft ball officers for another year, at a meeting held held last Friday night. The league will again be comprised of 8 teams and play will start around June 1.

. . . . . .

THE St. Joe Legion team is continuing practice on Monday and Thursday evenings, preparing for participation in two leagues, both of which will start around June 1st.

. . . . . .

PLANS for the summer High School Softball league are complete for this year with the announcement that a fifth team, Monroeville, has been added to the league. Play will again be at Harlan's diamond and will be held on Wednesday nights, the same as last year.

FORMS FOR INDIANA VETERANS BONUS TO BE AVAILABLE SOON

The big question in the mind of every Indiana veteran of World War II "when and how can I apply for my bonus?" - was partially answered today when the Indiana Department of Veteran's Affairs, administrator of the bonus announced tentative plans for the receiving and processing of claims.

Clinton Green, director of the Department of Veterans' Affairs and Orville P. Bray, assistant director and Administrative Officer of the Bonus, in discussing the present plans stated there may be many minor changes before the astual machinery is put into operation.

However, they outlined the tentative rules governing the acceptance of applications and also stated all living veterans will be asked to answer about twenty simple questions in order to establish their claims for the bonus payment.

These questions are expected to be asked on the application:

Veteran's full name.
Service or serial number.
Present full address.
Name under which applicant served in the armed forces.
Sex, date of birth and place of birth.
Has veteran applied for or received a World War II bonus from any other state?
Branch of service.
Date of entry on active duty.
Date of separation or discharge.
Was veteran an enlisted man, an officer, or both?
Location of Veteran's draft board at time of induction or enlistment.
Was any part of active duty in Alaska?
Claim number and percent of disability as determined by the Veterans Administration.
Is vetrann still on active duty?
Was veteran resident of Indiana for six months or more immediately prior to entry into active duty?
Signature and notarization.

The exact nature of the questions and their order on the application form is now being determined and will be announced at a later date.

The questions in most veterans' minds concerning eligibility will be answered by the following main points brought out in the discussion:

(1) Application forms will be available throughout the state at points to be announced in the very near future. Qualified personnel will be furnished at all these locations to assist every veteran in properly filing his application form.

All application forms will be executed in triplicate with the original and second copies being sent along with the necessary documents to the bonus division. The third copy is to be retained by the veteran as a personal record.

(2) Original documents will be required where proof is needed for any statements made on the application forms. This means the veteran must send his original discharge or separation papers with the application. A special envelope will be furnished for this with each application form in order to insure that the discharge papers will not be folded or bent. The original documents will be photostated by the bonus division and returned to the veteran.

All Indiana veterans were warned therefore to be sure and have their discharge papers in order since no claim will be considered without the necessary documents. Lost discharges can be replaced by making application to the branch of the service involved. Mutilated discharges can also be replaced the same way. Representatives of the various veterans' organization and county service officers will assist veterans in securing replacement for lost or mutilated discharges.

(3) According to the provisions of the law, all Indiana veterans of World war II who were separated or discharged under honorable conditions, who were on active duty with the armed services forces of the United States at any time during the period from December 7, 1941 to September 2, 1945, both inclusive who were on such duty at least ninety days, and who were residents of the state for at least six months immediately prior to his or her enlistment, induction or call to active duty, will be eligible for the bonus.

(4) Payment will be based on place of service, with $10 per month being allowed for each month of service outside the continental limits of the United States. The minimum bonus payable will be $30 and the maximum will be $600.

The law states the bonus division will issue an "order-to-pay" and send it to the veteran when his claim has been considered and the amount of his bonus determined. This "order-to-pay" will be the veterans' record to keep until such time as the fund contains enough money to satisfy all the bonus claims.

(5) Any veteran who is determined to be disabled to a degree more than 10 percent but less than 100%, as established by the Veterans Adminstration, will receive in addition to the other bonus monies to which he is eligible the sum of $100. Regardless of the length of service, any veteran eligible under the rules who is 100% disabled will be entitled to the maximum payment of $600.

The commission has yet to decide what effective date will be used for the determination of eligibility for the disability payment. An interpretation will be made and will be included in the general instructions with each bonus application.

(6) Next of kin of deceased veterans will use a special form to apply for the bonus who are eligible in the following oder, and none other; widow or widower (who has not remarried), children, mother, father and persons standing in loco parentis. Regardless of the length of service, $600 will be paid to the next of kin of a veteran who qualifies under the other provisions of the law and who died while on active duty during the compensable period and the death was serviced-connected. Next of kin of veterans who died after leaving the service or after the September 2, 1945 deadline, will receive the amount to which the veteran would normally be entitled if he were living.

These next of kin forms, which are now being prepared, will be supplied at the same time the regular veterans forms are being prepared, will be supplied at the same time the regular living forms are distributed and the eligible survivor will make application at the designated place in his or her community the same as living veterans.

These rules and regulations and interpretations of the law have been tentatively approved by the Veterans Affairs Commission members, named by Governor Henry F. Schricker, are Richard McKay, of Ft. Wayne, chairman; James Herod and Howard Watts of Indianapolis, and Vernor McMillan, of Terre Haute.

INDIANA ARTIFICIAL BREEDING ASSOCIATION GAINS IN SECOND YEAR

The Indiana Artificial Breeding Association at Carmel improved mightily in 1948, their second year of operation, as compared with 1947

Considered as a whole in 1948, of the 32,636 cows inseminated the average non-return percentage of service was never under 60.5. Of the 36,589 cows bred in the State of Indiana the Association bred 89.2% making Indiana one of the ten leading states in artificial insemination according to figures released by the Bureau of Dairy Industry, U. S. Department of Agriculture.

The Indiana Artificial Breeding Association services forty-nine affiliated organizations with semen from 100% proved sires. The DeKalb County Co-operative Breeding Association is one of those who are furthering the objective of I. A.B.B. to increase the efficiency of the production of human food through the wide use of desirably proved dairy sires.

The semen from these desirably proved bulls is made available to every dairyman in the state of Indiana, either through a local cooperative breeding association or directly from the Indiana Artificial Breeding Association at Carmel.

CAN YOU TOP THIS?

Mrs. Edith Akey has informed the News Office that with the graduation of Kenneth Akey at Spencerville on Tuesday, a period of 29 continuous years of having children in school has been completed, thus "topping" the record of the Lochner family in that particular department. However, due to the deaths of two of the children, the number of years in the grades was cut to 67 and the years in high school to 28.

Can your family's school record top the Akeys' or the Lochners'?

Youths Escape Injury At Crossing

Junior Houser of Butler and Richard Nusbaum of near Spencerville, narrowly escaped injury late Thursday night when a slow moving New York Central freight train plowed into the rear of their automobile at the Auburn Junction

The accident occured about 10 p.m. The freight was Toledo bound from Fort Wayne.

Houser said the train struck the rear of his new Ford just before it cleared the crossing. He said he did not see the train. The young man said that Nusbaum saw the train when the car was about half way cross the tracks and yelled, "Step on it!"

Houser said he thought his companion meant the brakes and when he applied them the car stopped with the rear end over the rails.

Damage to the rear of the car was estimated at over $200. The car was still in running condition and was driven home by the youth.

Camera & Birdie Await St. Joe Kiddies At Legion Home

Your Child's Picture May Be Published In This Newspaper Without Charge

Friday May 20 is the big day for the picture taking of your youngsters! The News is having pictures taken of all children who are brought by their parents or other guardian to the Legion Home between 10 a.m and 6 p.m. absolutely free of charge. The Woltz Studios, of Des Moines, Iowa, nationally known children's photographers, will be in charge of the photography. The News wants a picture of your child to print in its forthcoming feature "Citizens of Tomorrow," a series of photographic studies of local children. The more we get the better the feature will be, so the cooperation of mothers and fathers is urged.

It often seems to parents that children are little one minute and are grown up the next, so fast does a child's growing stage pass. Here is a splendid opportunity to catch a likeness of your child or children at this present stage for the pleasure you will get out of it in future years and for the pleasure you will enjoy in seeing it in print. You will want to clip it from this your home town newspaper, and preserve it for the youngsters when he or she grows up.

There is absolutely no charge or obligation for taking the pictures. Parents don't even have to be a subscriber to the News, nor even a reader. You do not have to purchase pictures either, though you may obtain a limited number of additional prints by arranging direct with the Studio if you want them. That is entirely up to you! There is no age limit.

Calling all outdoorsmen

By JIM MITCHELL

Outdoorsmen generally are an ingenious lot. We can't recall at the moment any world shattering inventions by fishermen or hunters but you always can count on sportsmen to come up with devices that add flavor to outdoor sports.

During the recent sport shows, always a good place to uncover new gadgets, we ran across several items that, we predict, will meet with the approval of many sportsmen.

For instance, Rudolf Hagen, a veteran gunsmith living at 5211 S. Monitor Street in Chicago, has developed a process whereby an amateur can "engrave" his guns with fancy scrolls or the figures of up land or big game animals and birds that compare favorably with the work of skilled craf smen.

Mr. Hagen calls his process "Gun Tatoo" and the kit includes all the ingredients essential in turning any model. We know that the process is foolproof and adapted for amateurs for we have successfully "engaved" two shot guns.

There's a new type duffle bag on the market that eliminates the old bugaboo of most similar bags where the item you want almost always is in the bottom and everything else must be removed to get to it. This duffle bag, a product of the E-Z-Pax Company, 509 North Fairfax Avenue, Los Angeles, consists of four pieces - - a lid and three zippered sections with each having its own bottom. The zippers run horizontally around each section, and through these openings you can get into any part of the bag without having the old trouble. You can use one or two or three sections depending upon the amount of space needed.

And if this isn't enough, the company has designed the bag with straps so that it can be carried on your back as a packsck.

Frank Steel, 176 West Adams Street, Chicago, the nation's No. 1 campaigner for the use of a thermometer in locating where game fish most likely will be hiding, has combined a thermometer and facts on water temperatures fish prefer into a little plastic book. You just dunk the book over the side of your boat, leave it a couple of minutes and pull it back for a temperature reading. Then you flip through the pages to the chart devoted to the species of fish you're after and find how deep you should fish.

Mr. Steel has proved that certain species of fish prefer certain water temperatures and he's written several books on his theories. Most of the information in these books is condensed into "Steel's Fish Finder," the plastic book-thermometer combination.

Seeing these new gadgets has our mind working overtime trying to come up with something new. We'd like to get on the sportsmens bandwagon of inventors. And trying to think of a new idea is almost as much fun as fishing.

LOOKING AHEAD

A Task for Truman

President Truman has before him one of the greatest opportunities that any president has had during the first half of our century. Oddly enough, this chance of the century comes to the President through the foresight and statesmanship of the 80th Congress that last year absorbed so much punishment, politically, from Mr. Truman. It was the 80th Congress that set up the Hoover Commission on government reorganization.

Nobody's Fault

Our only living ex-president gladly accepted the job of guiding the "task force" of experts through some 19 months of detailed investigation. Mr. Hoover has played well the role of public servant in past crises. This time he accepted the task as chairman of the Commission, believing it to be his last opportunity for important public service. At this writing, 18 "task force" reports have been sent to Congress. Only the final summary report remains to be made.

The work of the Commission is so important that it must be placed above all politics. Like Mr. Hoover says, it's nobody's fault that our government has got itself all tied up in knots, with inefficiency the general rule. Government "just growed" that way, Topsy-like. It is definitely not a political, not a party, question.

Support Needed

Every one of us will be to blame, though, if we fail to get squarely behind both President Truman and the Congress and stay there pushing until this job of reorganization is done.

The tendency, naturally, is to let it go. Yet, right now, when the nation is faced with such tremendous expenditures of public money at home and abroad, it is downright foolish not to practice economy. Estimates show that recommendations of the Hoover Commission would mean a yearly saving to taxpayers of more than 3 billion dollars. I feel confident the savings could be larger than that. If real efficiency and economy is to become the rule of the federal government, the people will have to support it.

Way to Survival

Time is running short. Our sprawling bureaucracy will not of itself change its habits. Instead, if left alone to grow, expand, and mushroom as it will, our financial burdens will never cease. The latest report of the Hoover Commission deals with government agencies that are engaged in business enterprise. It catalogs more than 100 concerns of substantial size that are owned or controlled by the government. Large sums could be saved, according to the Commission, by cutting this number by almost one-third.

It is evident that unless we do put our government house in order, there is no way for this republic to survive. As burdens of supporting huge and wasteful government grow in magnitude, we endanger the whole financial structure of the nation. Moreover, with continued growth of big government, we can arrive at state socialism some day without ever having voted for it. It's hard to believe, but already one of every six adult Americans receives regular checks from Uncle Sam!

HERE 'N THERE IN SPORTS

By LEWIS H. WALTER

BIG TIME race drivers sat a little tight and silent and perhaps a little nervously last Sunday at the big 2½ brick oval at Indianapolis. The reason for silence was skinny, 30 year-old Johnny Parsons, another of the California dirt track speedsters, who had just heavy footed a little red Kurtis-Kraft Special at a breath taking speed of 132.9 miles per hour over the 10 mile qualifying course. Mr. Parsons was so nervous and shaky after his ride that he could hardly thank the small crowd for the ovation he received as he climbed from the car.

His elapsed time for the 10 miles was just eight one hundredths of a second longer than Duke Nalon's Saturday speed jaunt which earned him the pole position for the 500.

By his own admission later over the speedway microphone, the same Duke Nalon was made a little nervous too, watching the veteran dirt track diver but newcomer to the big race burn up the track. Reasons for the shaky feeling was perhaps the sizable $1500 chunk of pocket cash going to the fastest qualifier over all the 5 qualifying days. Mr. Parson will however get $500 as the fastest qualifier for the day.

PUBLIC OPINION around the the big oval, however, was that if you had any hope of coming in first after that Memorial Day grind, the two big combos of Mauri Rose and Bill Holland in the Blue Crown cars and Duke Nalon and Rex Mays in the long, powerful Novi's were the ones to beat.

PLANS are continuing for the softball school put on by the Zollner Pistons at the new diamond in Auburn on Friday, May 27. All players are invited to attend. The session will get underway at 4 p. m. with the pros giving instructions on the finer points of the game, and then winding up the show with an intra-squad game.

Practice by the Legion softball squad is continuing every Monday and Thursday evening at the St. Joe diamond. Anyone wishing to try out for the team is invited out for practice on those evenings.

Strawberry Parfait Cake

It looks like a shortcake—It's really a cake, with a strawberry meringue for the filling and topping, and a final garnish of bright berries.

Strawberry parfait cake is a variation on the shortcake theme, and an elegant springtime dessert. Instead of biscuit or scone base, there's fluffy cake, and strawberries are folded into a frothy meringue for a topping that is beautifully pink and luscious tasting.

The parfait "frosting" makes the most of strawberry flavor, so that a little more than a cup of berries will make a strawberry cake serving eight to ten people generously.

No need to hunt for a four-leaf clover to expect good luck with this cake. Follow accurately this basic, tested recipe for a two-egg cake, using best ingredients, correct utensils, and temperature given. Bake the cake in two greased eight-inch layer pans, dividing batter evenly between the pans. For layer cakes, it is often well worth the time to cut a sheet of plain paper to fit the bottom of pans so that the cake will come out perfectly.

This cake requires only standard ingredients almost always on hand. Use enriched flour to make it for family service because of its extra B-vitamins and iron. The cake is one you'll want to serve throughout the year, with a variety of fillings and toppings.

STRAWBERRY PARFAIT CAKE

Batter

2 cups sifted enriched flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup shortening
1 cup sugar
2 eggs, beaten
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
⅔ cup milk

Sift together flour, baking powder, and salt. Cream together shortening and sugar until light and fluffy. Add eggs, beating well until creamy. Add vanilla extract. Add about one-third flour mixture. Mix. Add one-half of milk, mixing well. Add one-third flour mixture. Mix. Add remaining one-half of milk, mixing well. Add remaining one-third flour mixture, mixing until light and creamy. Pour batter into two lined eight-inch cake pans. Bake in moderate oven (375 degrees F.) about 25 to 30 minutes.

Makes two eight-inch layers.

Strawberry Parfait Topping

2 egg whites
¼ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon cream of tartar
½ cup sugar
1 cup strawberries

Mash strawberries, or put them through a coarse sieve. Beat egg whites until frothy. Add salt and cream of tartar. Beat until stiff. Add sugar and strawberries gradually. Continue beating until meringue holds its shape when beater is drawn through it. Pile between layers and on top of cake, leaving sides bare. Garnish top with whole berries.

The Lord's Supper

Lesson for May 22, 1949

LET US CLEAR UP some very common misunderstandings of what the Christian religion is. Some (both enemies and friends) think it consists in turning one's back on the world, living in a sort of happy wonderland where the evil of the world is altogether shut out and forgotten. Another notion is that Christianity presents an angry God (or one who can very easily be made angry) laying down the law to mankind. Another is that Christianity is a purely individual affair. And still another is that Christian religion consists of the teachings of Jesus and that is all it is. Every one of these misunderstandings vanishes in the light that shines around the Lord's Supper.

Dr. Foreman

Betrayal

PEOPLE SOMETIMES think that religion shuts men's eyes to the ugly realities of life. Some religions try to do so; but not the religion of Christ. He knew the kind of world this is; he never let his disciples forget it.

On that last night, dark forces were abroad. Jesus' enemies were closing in on him. One of his own circle would betray him. Yet it was in that sort of atmosphere, heavy with betrayal and hatred, that Jesus began this sacrament of faith, hope and love.

The true Christian does not live in a fool's paradise, he does not imagine that everything is lovely in the nicest possible words. The sacrament which is the heart of his worship is itself a reminder of the ugliness of the world which man's sin creates.

Blessing

"AND HE BLESSED the bread . . ." If Christianity consisted mainly of condemning wickedness and denouncing sinners, then at the center of our worship we would have some symbol of dread and awe, like fire and brimstone, a consuming flame.

But no—at the heart of our worship is a thing as simple, plain and friendly as a loaf of bread, bread on which the blessing of God has been asked. Blessing, not cursing; invitation, not threatening, is at the heart of our religion.

Whenever you see some one whose chief idea of being a "good Christian" is going around proclaiming the meanness of the world, cawing at everybody and everything.

Breaking

"AND BROKE IT, and gave . . ." Artists have tried in a single picture to express the meaning of Christianity. Some of the pictures are beautiful, but many of them miss an important truth. What shall it be? A picture of a shipwrecked woman clinging to a rock? Of a saint praying in a long solitary vigil? These leave out something vital. For Christianity is a fellowship. No Christian is complete by himself.

At the heart of our religion is a Communion. Few if any Protestant churches allow any one even a minister, to give the Holy Communion to himself, by himself.

The true Christian never finds himself, his true self, alone; only in fellowship. A Christian belongs with other Christians as much as one coal in a bed of coals belongs with all the rest.

JESUS TEACHINGS are so important, so full of wisdom and of living power, that often some one will say that Jesus was a teacher and only a teacher, and that following his teachings is all that Christianity is. Jesus did not think of it in this way.

True, his teaching is of the utmost importance; but that was not and is not all. As Middleton Murry said years ago, Jesus was the only teacher who has died for his teaching. But he did more than that: he died for those he taught.

The cup at the Holy Communion reminds every one who partakes of it that Christ was not only a teacher, he was a sacrifice.

SALLY HAS A LITTLE LAMB, too, and it's a Hampshire! Sally Lou Chapman, 5, is shown holding Hampshire lamb, which her father hopes to show at the Michigan State Fair. Father is Delmont Chapman, president of the Michigan Pure Bred Sheep Breeders Association, and well known farmer of Michigan.

STILL GOING STRONG is Albert Stephen, Brown County, Ohio farmer who is eighty years young. Stephen does general farming and says that though he has raised many a good corn crop, his 1948 corn topped them all.

HERE'S WHY

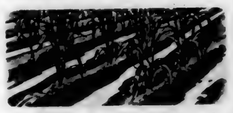
Livestock need Trace Mineralized Salt

Trace minerals influence the whole enzyme, hormone, and vitamin activities of the body — the basic life functions.

But because of heavy cropping of land, erosion, and the greater results we expect from our livestock, few animals are getting enough.

The safe, easy, effective economical way, to feed essential cobalt, iron, copper, manganese, and iodine is in Morton's Trace Mineralized Salt. It is like a low-cost insurance policy covering all livestock.

In 1906 the average dairy herd improvement cow gave 215 pounds of butterfat a year. Today she produces 344 pounds.



Erosion has dumped millions of tons of fertile topsoil into our rivers, lakes, and oceans . . . robbed us of precious minerals.

Heavy cropping of land has consistently taken more minerals out of our soils. There is not enough to supply plant life adequately.

The best way to feed trace minerals is Morton's Trace Mineralized Salt, fed free choice. Each animal takes what it needs.

Morton's Free Choice Salt is the Logical Carrier for Trace Minerals

Cobalt . . Iron . . Copper . . Manganese . . Iodine

There is an interdependence between salt and trace minerals. They work better as a group than as individual elements. More-over, fed Free Choice, there is a regular, constant intake — never too much or too little.

MODERN FARMING

BUILDING FARM PROFITS from the Ground up

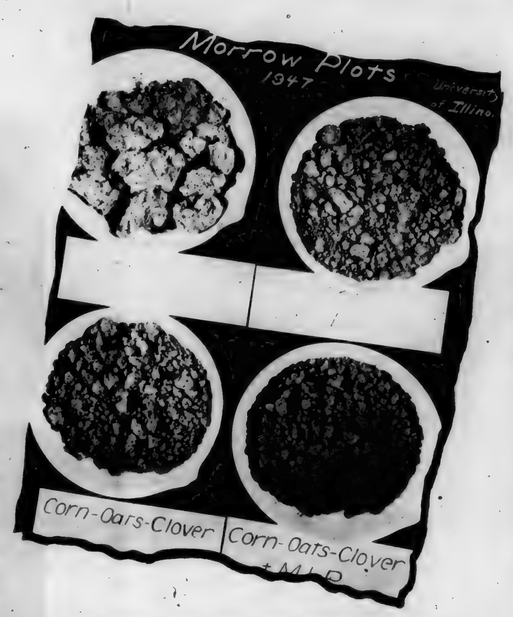
Most farming profits start from the ground up. If the ground is poor, chances are that profits will be poor, too. One way to improve the "ground" and the yield of crops growing on it is by proper use of commercial fertilizers.

To make the most of fertilizer . . . to get the greatest return per dollar invested . . . the structure and tilth of the soil must be put in shape through correct soil management.

Tap-rooted legumes like alfalfa and sweet clover are probably the best tilth builders for soils of the midwest. In Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Michigan and Ohio, alfalfa is doing a double job of good work for farmers on nearly 5 million acres. It's producing high quality hay and pasture for livestock, and it's putting the soil in shape physically to make bigger crops of corn and small grains.

Alfalfa and sweet clover open up the soil and make it mellow so that more water soaks into the ground and less runs off with the top soil. By opening the soil, they also provide more soil air for roots of the plants that follow. The deep-probing roots of alfalfa and sweet clover push below the plow layer and build a deeper top soil, too. In addition to all this, properly innoculated alfalfa and sweet clover capture nitrogen from the air and release it in the soil in a way that lets corn and other crops that follow, use it to make bigger yields.

The pictures below show some of the ways legumes can build better soil and bigger farm profits for you.



Soil samples taken from famed Morrow Plots, Urbana, Ill., show what happens to structure and tilth of soil on which corn has been grown continuously since 1888, as compared with soil that has been in a rotation of corn, oats and clover. Samples on the right show effect of adding manure, lime and phosphate.

Some legumes help the land more than others. Note the difference in root growth made in just one summer by sweet clover (right) as compared with red clover (left). Sweet clover roots are 20 inches long. When land is plowed in fall or spring, these roots add rich organic matter and build a deeper top-soil.

This lush alfalfa and brome grass in Clark County, Wisconsin yielded 4 tons per acre last summer when other hay and pasture dried up. Use of 0-10-20 fertilizer helped yield. Even more important, this fine stand added organic matter to the soil, improved tilth, and will boost yields of crops that follow.

Inoculated alfalfa and sweet clover can manufacture their own nitrogen, but they may need extra phosphate and potash for top yields and to make the most of their soil-building ability. Right half of this alfalfa field received 0-10-20 phosphate and potash fertilizer; the left half got none. Note the difference.

You can check up on the tilth and compaction of your own soil. Push a soil tube into the soil, pull it out filled with a core of soil and shave the excess to make a flat surface. Mix 2 teaspoonfuls of precipitated chalk in 2 ozs. of water. Place one drop per inch, the length of the tube. See if the chalk is visible.

The chalk-water soaks into the soil of good tilth and is hardly seen. On compacted soil in poor tilth, the chalk remains on top and shows up plainly. Compare the soils in your fields with samples from fence rows or other spots of known good tilth. If chalk stains show, use more tilth-building legumes and grasses.

Compacted, chalk "stained" soil in tube at left produced the plant with poor root system and small ear. Soil in the other tube shows few chalk stains, proving it is of good tilth, which accounts for the bigger ear and sturdier roots on corn plant at right. Both from same seed and grown under identical conditions.

SOME tractor tires get by best on this job . . . or that job . . . some pull best in soft ground, some show up better on hard ground. But, there's one tractor tire that gives you top performance on every job the year around. That's the Firestone Champion Low Pressure Ground Grip.

The Firestone Champion Low Pressure Ground Grip is the top traction tire under all conditions because its high curved bars take a clean, full-traction power bite clear across the tread from shoulder to shoulder and in the center.

If you'd like a 1949 version of an 1849 favorite, try serving your baked beans SPICED. Add 1½ tsp. ginger, 1½ tsp. cinnamon, and 2 tsp. dry mustard to standard bean mixture before baking.

Gold Rush of '49

"ONCE upon a time, when I was just a lad, gold was discovered in California, so I took my saddle horse and started out to find gold." How many times I heard my grandfather tell about his trek to the gold fields of the west. It was a story of men dizzy with excitement and anticipation flocking west in search of fortune, but it was more than that for it was a thrilling tale of pack horses and mules, of fording streams and ferrying wagons, of men keeping watch by day and by night for prowling Indians, of wagons loaded with tools and provisions and a little sheet iron stoves strapped on one wagon.

How I wish that I could have seen the bread the men in Grandpa's party baked, for they baked all the bread they ate during the four long months they were enroute. They baked beans too and sometimes they made corn bread and Indian corn pudding. But oh, how they longed for the good food their wives and mothers used to make back home. Boston brown bread, corned beef and cabbage, old-fashioned soft ginger cookies, gingerbread, doughnuts, and those big pyramid cakes!

One hundred years have passed, but today many of the foods of the Gold Rush days continue to be favorites in '49 of another century. True, we no longer have to make our own yeast in order to produce home baked bread, nor are the baked beans of today baked for 24 hours as they were in grandmother's day. This is the age of streamlining — and we women are quick to profit from it. But even so, our food tastes just as good today as it did back in the Gold Rush days of '49!

OLD-FASHIONED SOFT GINGER COOKIES

- 4½ cups sifted flour
- 1 tsp. baking powder
- 1 tsp. soda
- 1 tsp. salt
- 2 tsp. ginger
- ¾ cup shortening
- 1 cup sugar
- 1 egg, unbeaten
- ½ cup sour milk, or buttermilk
- 1 cup molasses

Sift flour once, measure; add baking powder, soda, salt, and ginger, and sift together twice. Cream shortening; add sugar gradually; beat until light. Add egg, beat well. Add dry ingredients alternately with combined milk and molasses, mixing well. Chill thoroughly. Roll out dough about ½-inch thick on lightly floured board. Cut with round, 2½-inch cooky cutter. Bake on greased baking sheet in hot oven. Do not stack or store until cold.

HOME-BAKED BREAD is in as great demand today as it was when the men baked their own loaves during the days of the Gold Rush.

Corned beef hash takes on a NEW LOOK when pressed into loaf form, baked, then served with chili sauce and a garnish of onion rings. For an effective platter, surround with peas!

A New Way to Make Better Bread-Quicker, Easier!

Perfected for Use With Robin Hood Flour

ROBIN HOOD

White Bread

Recipe by Rita Martin

2 tbsp. salt
¼ cup sugar
4 cups lukewarm liquid (if milk is used, scald and cool to lukewarm)
12-12½ cups sifted ROBIN HOOD ENRICHED FLOUR
2 cakes comp. yeast or 2 packages dry granular yeast
3 tbsp. lukewarm water
¼ cup shortening, melted, cooled

ADD—sugar and salt to liquid; let yeast stand 5 min. in lukewarm water.

BEAT—2 cups flour into liquid mixture using rotary beater; add yeast mixture and beat again.

ADD—4 cups flour, beat until smooth; then mix in shortening. Stir in remaining flour, *mix thoroughly; turn onto lightly floured board, cover and let rest about 10 min.

KNEAD—until smooth and satiny (about 5 minutes).

ROUND UP—dough, place in a large greased bowl. Cover with damp cloth, set in warm place (85° F.) and let rise until double (about 1¼-2 hrs.)

PUNCH DOWN—and let rise again until nearly double. (May omit this 2nd rising to save time.)

CUT—dough in 4 equal parts, round up, cover and let rest about 10 min. on lightly floured board.

*SHAPE—into loaves and place in well greased bread pans. (See easy illustrated method below).

COVER—lightly and set in a warm place, allowing dough to rise until sides reach top of pan and corners are filled (about 1½ hours). Dough should feel light to the touch.

BAKE—in moderately hot oven, 375° F., about 50 minutes.

YIELD—4 Loaves.

*Use new Robin Hood "Rolled Dough" Method for shaping perfect loaves of better bread

STEP 1. With rolling pin, roll dough out to uniform thickness, stretching by hand to form rectangle approximately 9" x 12". Make certain to break down all gas bubbles in the outer edge of the dough.

STEP 2. From upper edge, roll dough toward you, jelly roll fashion, sealing dough with heel of hand after each roll of dough. (About four turns will bring you to last seal). Be sure to seal final seam on bottom of loaf.

STEP 3. Seal ends of the loaf by using the side of the hand to get thin sealed strip.

STEP 4. Fold sealed ends of loaf under, using fingers, as shown above. Avoid tearing dough.

STEP 5. Place shaped loaf, with seam side down, in well greased bread pan.

STEP 6. Proceed in usual way for raising and baking . . . for a perfect loaf every time!

9 out of 10 women say new Robin Hood "Rolled Dough" method gives finest bread they ever baked

● Now! Home bread baking easier than ever before—with never-fail results!

9 out of 10 women who have tried and tested this new, amazingly simple Robin Hood "Rolled Dough" Method in their own kitchens say just that. Women who bake bread several times a week—women who had never baked bread before—all agree that this new Robin Hood "Rolled Dough" Method is easy, gives a perfect loaf every time.

With this new method you get a loaf of bread that's bigger—looks better—tastes better than any other home-baked bread. No large holes in the center of the loaf—the texture is tender and even, the loaves uniformly high and well rounded.

The Robin Hood "Rolled Dough" Method was originated, developed and perfected by Rita Martin, famous home economist, for use with Robin Hood Flour. You cannot get the same perfect results with any other flour. Only Robin Hood Flour and the Robin Hood "Rolled Dough" Method together can produce such large, uniform loaves. That's because Robin Hood is different—it's milled from the finest selected wheats by an exclusive milling process to make your baking easy and successful.

Use the recipe for Robin Hood White Bread on this page—follow the easy step-by-step Robin Hood "Rolled Dough" Method—and we guarantee you will make the finest loaf of bread you have ever baked.

As we look at these photos and realize the back-breaking work performed with only the most rudimentary equipment, we are thankful again for all the help that American mechanical inventions have given us in our farm work here. PASTEURIZATION OF MILK IS BEST ATTACK ON MILK BORNE DISEASES, PURDUE SAYS

The first line of attack on milk born diseases is pasteurization of milk butter, cream, or cheese. That fact was just one of the important ideas evpressed by Lois Oberhelman, extension nutrition specialist at Purdue U. and Dr. F. A. Hall, Purdue veterinarian, at a home economics extension club leader's training meeting on "Safe Milk." The meeting, held May 10 at the Auburn Courthouse assembly room, was attended by 35 local leaders of DeKalb County, said Mary Lenore Moore, home demonstration agent. The request for more information on milk borne disease was made last fall at the annual program planning meetings for home economics extension clubs. It shows the interest of both rural and urban home makers in understanding the dangers of poor milk and how to take care of milk and dairy products to protect the family's health.

Dr. Hall explained the relationship between brucellosis in cattle and hogs and undulant fever in man. The seriousness of the problem is emphasized when it was brought out that there is no cure for animals who have contracted the disease. Eradication of the disease among farm animals is the most effective solution, stated Dr. Hall .

Meanwhile, homemakers were asked to do their part in the fight against brucellosis and other milk-borne diseases. The afternoon program consisted of a demonstration and talk by Miss Oberhelman on how to use a home pasteurizer and the effect of the pasteurization process. Proper care and sterilization of dairy equipment was also demonstrated by Miss Oberhelman. She recommended using a cleaning brush rather than a wash cloth, detergent and plenty of boiling water. She showed how, with good care, the milking machine need only take a few minutes a day and milk stone will not have a chance to form.

DeKalb County is one of the 24 Indiana counties which is holding leader training meetings on "Safe Milk."

Poppy Day Workers Make Final Plans

"A memorial poppy over every remembering heart" will be the goal of the American Legion Auxiliary's Poppy Day workers when they go out on the streets with their veteran made poppies here next Saturday.

At a meeting of Poppy Day volunteers at the American Legion Home last night, plans were made to bring an opportunity to wear a poppy in honor of the dead of the two world wars to everyone in St. Joe, Spencerville and Newville neighborhoods.

The purpose of Poppy Day is to keep bright the memory of those who gave their lives in defense of America. Wearing a poppy is an individual act of tribute to the war dead and shows that the wearer remembers and is grateful for their service.

In exchange for the poppies, the Auxiliary work in behalf of disabled veterans and needy children of veterans.

The idea of wearing the poppy as a memorial flower for the World War Dead, sprang up as naturally as the little wild flower itself in the fields of France and Belgium. The poppy was the one touch of nature's beatuy which survived the devastation of the battle front and the only flower which grew around the graves.

It was a post who first gave expression to the idea. Soon himself to lie beneath the poppies. Colonel John McCrae wrote the well known poem, "In Flander's Fields."

In Flanders' fields the poppie blow
Between the crosses, row on row.
That mark our place; and in the sky
The larks still bravely singing fly,
Scarce heard midst the guns below.
We are the dead.
Short days ago we lived, felt dawn,
saw sunset glow,
Loved and were loved and now we lie
In Flanders' fields.

The poppies made by the disbled veterans and distributed by the American Legion Auxiliary are made of crepe paper with stems, and are exact replicas of the wild poppies which grew, "between the crosses, row on row" in the battle cemeteries of France and Belgium.

Even before the end of World War 1, poppies were worn in honor of the dead. As the soldiers returnd from France, the custom sprang up in widely separated parts of the United States. Poppy Day was first sponsored by the American Legion in 1920, and was that year adopted at the Legion's National Memorial Flower.

Nof more than 25 million crepe paper flowers are made annually by disabled veterans and worn through out the nation, to pay tribute to the dead of both wars.

Is Bigness Bad?

Many critics of our American system use big business as a special target for their attacks. According to their charges, big business throttles competition, creates monopolies, maltreats labor, and kills small enterprises. Their attitude toward big business represents more than a natural dislike for bigness in business. It also shows their shrewdness in using the propaganda weapon to destroy our system.

If they should succeed in getting public opinion on their side, it soon would be reflected in legislation which could well destroy this segment of our economy, and eventually turn our entire economy into state socialism.

"Grown Up" Business

Big business is nothing but small business grown up. They grew up because the public allowed them to do so. No business can become big business without public approval. Public approval cannot be bought. It is earned through the hard-work process of competing against scores of other companies and giving John Q. Public a better washing machine, dress, or automobile for his money. As demand for a product grows, facilities must be increased to meet that demand. A business grows as the public, with its buying, dictates.

Good Dividends

As business grows, it becomes more efficient and makes possible real savings to the public. Our $1,500 mass produced automobile would cost $50,000 if built with the tools of 1900. Mass purchasing, production and distribution result in economies impossible to small business. Larger investment provides also the necessary extensive research demanded by keen competition.

This huge investment pays dividends to workers, too. Labor-saving tools multiply the productive capacity of the worker and ease the load from his back. This greater production allows him higher pay and shorter hours and puts him in a class far above workmen of any other nation.

Bad for Whom?

Small business has fared well in this progress story. You see, big business has created thousands of enterprises that owe their existence to its production. Without the huge output provided by the automotive industry, the average city would be without its many accessory stores, radiator shops, repair shops, filling stations, parking lots, and garages. Far from being exterminated, small business continues to develop.

Big business has made a striking contribution to our nation's prosperity and progress. As long as it is operated by human beings, there will be occasions for justifiable criticism. However, minor criticisms must not be allowed to destroy the true importance of big business to a growing nation. It is essential to a continued dynamic economy. The public, having created big business, will further prosper by its continuance.

HINTS ON HEALTH

BEWARE OF BURSITIS

A PAINFUL joint anywhere in the body doesn't always mean rheumatism; sometimes a physician will diagnose the condition as bursitis. Between all our joints are flat sacks of fluid which act as lubricants when the joints move. The bursa, or sacks, are filled with a sticky liquid. On occasion these bursa become inflamed, and the walls tend to stick together. Under those conditions, when you move the joint, you feel pain. Sometimes this condition arises from a heavy blow or shock to a joint. The shoulder joint seems particularly susceptible to this type of injury. In such inflammation the pain seems to be just under the large muscle that lies atop the shoulder joint.

An attack of bursitis may pass away, or it may become chronic. Prompt treatment by your doctor, however, may get rid of this unpleasant symptom before it becomes chronic!

Coal miners, who often strike their elbows against the hard rock walls of the tunnels in which they work, are apt to develop a bursitis of the elbow; the medical profession calls that type of inflammation, "miner's elbow." And tailors, who usually sit cross-legged in their work, often have "tailor's bursitis" in their knee joints. There is even a bursitis of the ankle from wearing ill-fitting shoes.

If treated as soon as symptoms appear, a bursitis usually is completely cured. But if treatment is delayed, the joint may be partly or wholly crippled. See your family doctor for his advice and treatment for bursitis.

Prayer in Pain

Lesson for May 29, 1949

THE SHADOW over Gethsemane is deep. We can scarcely see the tortured figure under the moonlit olive trees. If Jesus' closest friends, in that hour, were strangers to his soul, we cannot dare to penetrate all the secrets of that fateful hour. Yet while we cannot know all, we can know enough; enough to support us in our own time of darkness and of pain.

Dr. Foreman

Mark uses very strong language to describe the state of Jesus' mind in Gethsemane. The two Greek words he uses, translated in the King James version "sore amazed" and "very heavy," are translated by the Revised Standard Version "greatly distressed and troubled;" by Goodspeed, "distress and dread;" by Moffatt, "appalled and agitated." As our hymn says,

"We know not how, we cannot tell
What pains He had to bear."

Still, we do know of some of the burdens which weighed so terribly on Jesus' mind and heart that night.

Power of Darkness

ONE THING that must have troubled our Lord was lack of sympathy. Peter, James and John were comfortably asleep, evidently without the slightest notion of what he was suffering. But there was worse than lack of sympathy, somewhere in the dark city one of Jesus' supposed friends, the man called Judas, was even then slinking through the alleys with murder in his heart.

Jesus well knew what was in store for him. He knew the Sanhedrin would call him a blasphemer, he knew what the Romans would do with him, once they got their hands on him. Worse than this must have been the tragic sense of failure.

"I would, but ye would not," he had said in tears to this very city; a city full of enemies who should have been his friends, of unbelievers who should have believed, a city he loved, but which had nothing for him but thorns and a cross.

All this was on Jesus' heart that night—and as many Christians believe, far more. One of the most profound Christian thinkers has suggested that the heaviest, most painful shadow on Jesus' white soul was the sense of guilt, not his own but for the sins of the world.

Blood and the Angel

SO JESUS PRAYED. Even in the cool spring night his forehead was covered with sweat, falling to the rocky ground like drippling blood. Never rose prayer from a more tortured heart. And what came of it? In one sense, the prayer was not answered. The cup did not pass from him, he must drink it to the last bitter dregs. The prayer did not remove the pain. Yet in a deeper sense, the prayer of Christ was fully answered. "Not as I will, but as Thou wilt," he breathed. The prayer that sets one's own will in line with the will of God, whatever His will may be, is the prayer that always finds answer. At the end, there was not release, but power. "An angel came and strengthened him."

What Prayer Can Do

JESUS "LEARNED obedience by the things which he suffered." (Heb. 5:8.) We can share his lesson. The hour of pain is not the hour to begin praying; those who have not learned prayer before, will scarcely know how to pray in a time of agony. Yet the time of pain is not the time to give up praying. When the dark hour comes, Jesus did not throw aside his faith, he prayed more intensely than ever before. Prayer does not explain pain, much less explain it away.

Prayer does not always get rid of pain, even though in many cases the prayer of faith works cures where doctors fail. What true prayer does always is to set the one who prays in tune with the will of God even when that will is not as our own.

Prayer does not bring us all the answers to the riddles of existence. It does bring power to bear what God sends us. For God's answer to those he loves is not always escape, but it is always endurance.

Calling all outdoorsmen

By JIM MITCHELL

Seventeen million shooters! Yes, believe it or not, that is the estimated number who use firearms for sport annually in the United States. And the authority for the statement is the Remington Arms Company which recently completed a detailed survey which includes interviews with 4,562 persons in 157 cities, towns and rural areas.

It also was interesting to learn more about these 17,000,000 shooters. For instance, it is apparent that gunning is a "start early" sport for more than 60 per cent of those interviewed started shooting before they were 20 years of age. At least another 20 per cent took up shooting when in their twenties.

The small own and rural areas showed the highest percentage of shooters. That's only natural, however, for in small town and rural areas a kid can start hunting by just walking a short ways from home. This youngster also has more free time to learn the sport and to develop his gunning ability.

Actually the survey disclosed that 29 per cent of those interviewed in the urban areas were shooters, with 46 per cent of those living in small towns interested in gunning as a sport. Fifty per cent of the farm persons contacted used firearm for sport.

Big business! Sure gunning is big business in two ways. First, it is big business in dollars for the buying of arms and ammunition, plus expense in getting to and from hunting grounds and lodging while there and other expenditures add up to many millions

Also gunning is big business in recreation. When you add the number of fishermen to the gunning field, you really have an amazing total. And it is necessary that all of us who gun or fish, practice sound conservation policies if we're to continue to enjoy America's outdoors.

HERE 'N THERE IN SPORTS

By LEWIS H. WALTER

FINAL arrangements for the opening of the Y.M.C.A. Softball League at Auburn, were made at a meeting of all the team managers at the Y in Auburn, last Friday. The schedule for the 9 teams which will participate this year, is being made and will be released in a few days.

PLAY will start the first week in June, in fact the first night of play along with the grand opening and dedication of the new field by the city will be on Tuesday evening, May 31st. Play in that league will continue every Tuesday and Thursday.

SEVERAL changes have been made over last year in the league: The first and perhaps the greatest by far is the new diamond. The new field is located about 3 blocks east and 2 blocks south of the old, Arcor Field diamond, and is just across the street from the Ball Aluminum Foundry. The field has just recently been laid out, and backstop and new poles and lights installed. 36 lights have been placed, 2 more than neccessary for a class A diamond. The light center of each reflector is 58 feet above the ground. Some permanent bleachers have been installed and more bleachers will be added as funds become available.

CHANGES also have been made in the league - - and here are the most important ones: Umpires from the Umpires Association from Fort Wayne are to be given a trial for handling all the games and if the added expense can be met, they will remain as permanent fixtures for the remaining of the year. A "no smoking" regulation will be rigidly enforced against all players and team personel while in the playing area or on the benches. Smoking will be permitted only behind the stands. A rule to cut down the length of long, one sided games was also added - - when any team is behind by 12 or more runs by the end of the 5th inning the game is automatically ended. The new Wilson Top Notch ball was also adopted. It was not decided at this time whether a single or double elimination play-off would be held at the completion of the schedule.

THE 4th District American Legion League will use the diamond on Friday evening.

• • • • • •

REMEMBER the softball school, led by the Zollner Pistons will be held at Auburn this Friday evening. All are invited to attend.

Mauri Rose, veteran driver from South Bend, Ind., who will be seeking his third consecutive victory in the annual 500-mile race at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway on May 30, poses with the Borg-Warner victory trophy and Lou Moore of North Ridge, Calif., owner and designer of the Blue Crown Spark Plug Special which Rose will drive.

Although the exact starting array will not be determined until the time trials are concluded next Saturday at 6 p. m., it will be Mauri Rose and Bill Holland against the field when the fastest 33 cars entered in the annual 500-mile race at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway roar across the starting line next Monday morning at 10 o'clock (central standard time).

Rose, the South Bend (Ind.) veteran, has won the International Classic for two straight years in one of Lou Moore's Blue Crown Spark Plug Specials. Holland, whose home is at Reading, Pa., has finished second on each occasion and a big portion of the 175,000 spectators at the race will be on hand to see if this "monopoly" can be broken.

Rose set the existing record for the race when he averaged 119.814 miles an hour last year, but early qualification trials indicate the 1949 event will be the fastest in history.

Heading the list of outstanding challengers are Duke Nalon of Sherman Oaks, Cal., and Rex Mays of Glendale, Calif., in the powerful Novi Mobil Specials. Nalon won the pole position with a near-record qualification speed of 133.939 miles an hour in contrast to the mark of 127.759 turned in by Rose. Mays averaged 129.553 and Johnny Parsons of Van Nuys, Calif., almost surpassed Nalon's performance with an average of 132.9 miles an hour.

Every car in the starting field is capable of averaging better than 120 miles an hour for the full 500 miles unless mechanical trouble results in the loss of too much time in the pit.

Although all grandstand seats for the race have been sold, 10,000 bleacher seats will be available at the track on a first-come-first-served basis when the gates are thrown open at 4 a. m. (central standard time) on the morning of the race. General admission tickets good for the many vantage spots in the infield also will be available at the gates.

The race will be broadcast by more than 500 stations forming the Mutual network and the entire event will be televised on a local basis, covering the area within 60 miles of the Hoosier capital, by WFBM-TV in Indianapolis.

"BAR 20 RIDES AGAIN"

Town & Farm

by EVERETT MITCHELL

Farm Commentator, heard Monday through Saturday, 6:15-6:45 a. m. on WMAQ, Chicago, 670 on your dial.

NEW things are always pleasant acquisitions around the farm and home, but they can be the cause of as many accidents as the old. It's a wise farmer or farm housewife who studies well the operation of a new machine before putting it into use.

It's not the newness of a machine that causes accidents, but the fact that we don't learn to operate it correctly. That applies equally well to a new tractor, kitchen stove, or even a new toy for the children.

Examining new equipment and making sure that all members of the family are familiar with its correct operation is sensible, not only from the standpoint of safety, but also from the standpoint of getting the most good out of the machinery. A tractor, for example, will do much more satisfactory work if it is driven properly.

Folks sometimes tend to put too much faith in the newness of a machine. Just because it has been recently purchased is no reason it can be trusted any more than an old machine. Nuts can rattle loose, defective parts may show up, and even new parts can break under improper usage.

Even a new man can be a hazard to himself and others. Farmers who spend a little time helping new hands to understand a machine and its operation, before field work begins, reap a dividend in safety and increased production.

He looks in a volcano and sees... JOBS

OUT at the power plant where your electricity comes from, a fireman peers through his protective shield into a furnace peep hole at a roaring volcano of flame.

He sees, in this way, if coal and air are combining in the most efficient way.

But he sees a great deal more. He sees this swirling inferno as a crucible where jobs and opportunity and well-being for thousands of people are being born.

He sees work for the miners who mine the coal—for a power plant furnace like this burns as much coal every hour as eight or a dozen men can mine by modern methods in an entire day.

He sees work for the people who haul the coal to our plants. Last year the electricity delivered by your Company required that 1,016,665 tons of coal be burned, enough to fill 16,944 railroad cars. Throughout the American Gas and Electric System—Indiana & Michigan Electric Company is one of seven companies that form this system—6,805,772 tons of coal were mined and transported and burned in 1948 to put electric power at the fingertips of more than a million users.

How many clerks and bookkeepers and stenographers this activity keeps busy throughout industry we would not even venture to guess. Nor would it be easy to say how many hundreds of jobs have been directly created by the $305,000,000 construction program in which American Gas and Electric System companies are now engaged.

But no one needs a special viewing glass, or special technical talent, to see that your Electric Company makes a lot of jobs. Indiana & Michigan employs 2,080 people itself. Its activities create employment for many more.

And whether you're a doctor or a mechanic or a business man, you'll find that in one way or another, electricity makes your job easier, more profitable, or more secure.

Lesson from Britain

Hard times and doing without—that's still the order of life in Britain. "Austerity" is the official name for it. True, a little sacrificing is not harmful to anyone. But as a political system or way of life, British "austerity" is going to continue looking a bit drab (as a cloak for socialism), when you compare it with the private management and freedom of enterprise we know in America. Britain, in effect, is telling America what not to do.

Fact of Life

But at the moment, the British experience is helping underscore an economic fact that needs more underscoring here in America. That fact is this: increases in wages mean higher prices. Economists in our country have known for a long time that this is true, yet the popular view of it insists that the boss can go on indefinitely granting increases, year after year, without ever raising prices at all. The British know better.

It seems that Sir Stafford Cripps, who is in charge of money matters in England, is right now urging British workers (even they who own industry and run the government) to work harder without higher wages. If the Britishers do this, the reasoning goes, there will be more to export to America. Then, Britain will have more dollars with which to buy the things her people need. Shrewd enough!

Another Round?

You see, the British are driving to get into as much of the American market as possible. Sir Stafford recognizes that if British workers should demand increases in wages, prices of British goods would make it impossible to compete successfully on the American market. In other words, the British (even the labor government) know that increases in wages do mean higher prices.

Is Sir Stafford counting on prices going up in America? Well, at least he is laying plans to compete with American manufacturers—and another round of wage increases over here would do much to help him, according to his own formula. Yes, indeed. Another round of wage boosts would send up prices so high that Sir Stafford would have little trouble in getting rid of everything Britain sells, from pottery to Austin motor cars.

Forced Prices

Foreign trade is good for our nation, just like it is good for the British. It's a two way street. If we fail to get into the competition ourselves, then our goods will stop moving as fast as we know our production lines can move them.

This lesson Britain is teaching us works at home, too. The one thing we want to do is to keep production going, for we know that our people want jobs and have the capacity to consume. But if we are going to keep forcing prices upward, we may one day realize that depression is here just because we have done that very thing. We can have nothing but false prosperity that foretells depression, if we force prices too high.

Behold The Man!

Lesson for June 5, 1949

LAST JANUARY a man in Holland wrote to the high court of the new nation of Israel, petitioning for a review, now nearly 2,000 years afterwards, of the trial of Jesus by the court at Jerusalem in the year 30 A. D. That court may never review the case, and perhaps has no legal right to do so. But history has reviewed it, and reversed it. Jesus was tried by at least four tribunals on the early morning of the first Good Friday. But the verdict of history is that the courts were guilty, one and all, while the prisoner was innocent.

Dr. Foreman

Sentence first, Verdict afterwards

BESIDES the informal hearing before the ex-high priest Annias, there was the formal trial before the High Priest Caiaphas. He presided over the Sanhedrin, the supreme court of the Jews at that time. It was a learned tribunal, venerated all over the Jewish world. As the lawyers might say, its writ ran everywhere; its decisions were quoted as precedent in Alexandria, Babylon, Spain. You might have expected it to be dignified, honorable. But not on that night, with that victim.

You might as well expect a pack of wolves, starved in midwinter, to be dignified and honorable with a sheep in their circle. These men, and their intimate friends, had been described by the Prisoner, not long before, in words that stuck in their brains like arrowheads. "Whited sepulchres . . . full of all uncleanness . . . ye say, and do not . . . yet devour widows' houses . . . blind guides . . . offspring of vipers. . ."

If there had been any hope that they might change, Jesus would not have used such words. So they had made up their minds: He must die. Now was their hour, while the city slept. Leader of the pack was this Caiaphas. As the farce of a trial went on and the high priest by grace of Rome faced Jesus, High Priest by the grace of God, what did he see in Jesus' eyes?

That Fox

IF CAIPHAS was a wolf, Herod was a fox. It was Jesus' nickname for him. On that April morning this fox had the surprise of his lifetime. Before he could collect his wits, he was facing the very man whom his private police force had been vainly trying to arrest—Jesus of Nazareth. Two kings faced each other in Herod's hall that morning. The one wearing a robe and crown, seated on some kind of throne, was one of the most un-kingly men who ever bore the royal title. The other, in plainest citizens' clothes, and no crown, no throne to be seen, was the one real king who has lived among men.

"Suffered Under Pontius Pilate"

PONTIUS PILATE, procurator of Judea, deputy plenipotentiary of his Imperial Majesty, sat on his judgment seat and looked at Jesus. Six times he had looked at him; six times he had made certain that this young prisoner was an innocent man, and six times he had said so, even in the face of the mob.

The noises in the street confused him. He could not hear, down through the centuries, the voices of millions of men, women and children, rising up week after week and repeating the words, almost like a curse: "—and in Jesus Christ, His only Son, our Lord, who . . . suffered under Pontius Pilate." The voices in the street drowned the voices of the centuries.

But if, as Pontius Pilate turned Jesus over to the will of those who hated him, he had dared to look into Jesus' eyes, and what would he have seen?

To this very day, and to the end of time, in all places and among all men, this Christ whom the world holds in chains is yet the Judge of every man. Men may say of Jesus what they wish, and he will be silent still. But in his eyes in the verdict. A man is judged by his own judgement of Jesus Christ. And you, too. Facing you, he looks straight through you. What do you see in Jesus' eyes?

Calling all outdoorsmen

By JIM MITCHELL

Most of us where conservation programs are involved fail to look at the other fellows problems and content ourselves with trying to solve the "close to home" affairs that affect our daily outdoor hobbies. Still for the best results, all of us would be better off if we looked at conservation on national, basis.

And it was this thought in mind that two recent news releases which passed over our desk left a deep impression. The first one was headed. "Mexico Making Progress in Conservation." That is extremely good, for too many years wildlife in the country south of the border was taken for granted and little done to protect it.

The other releases went in the oppositite direction and its head read, "Expanding Civilization Threatens Alaska's Wildlife."

The sudden influx of population, the tremendous improvements in transportation facilities and the presence of thousands of troops, who have much leisure time and good hunting equipment, have all had a serious effect on Alaska's wildlife.

It is predicted that white sheep and barren ground caribou may soon be extinct in Alaska. The Alaskan moose also is waging a losing battle against civilization.

What's the solution Officials in the know say say that a larger wild life law enforcement staff is needed in Alaska and that additional research and expanded predatory animal control is a must.

Possibly most of us never will get to Alaska hunting, but it still should be a must on our conservation program to back whatever moves are essential in keeping Alaska's wildlife for future generations to enjoy.

The Mevican situation is good news. We realize that conservation still has a long ways to go before it reaches a place of great value in Mexico, but recent visitors to the country reports that more and more conservation-minded people are taking the " bull by the horns" and demanding that measures be invoked to protect the wildlife.

Saving the wildlife in one place partially will offset losing it in another; yet the ultimate goal is to protect it everywhere. So all of us in the United States had better roll up our sleeves and go to work—not only in solving the conservatin problems at home but also by helping the guy in the next state or next country get on a sound conservation basis.

HERE 'N THERE IN SPORTS

By LEWIS H. WALTER

IT WAS a great day for the races the one beside the human. Not one of us had forgotten to bring along his ticket. - a necessary requirement for all sporting events. Garford did forget to bring a pencil along but we hardly thought it worth while to return from Noblesville, where he discovered he was missing it.

We did get to the track a little early, if you call 7 o'clock for a 11 o'clock race early.. The four hours did give us a little time to look around the infield where the early birds who had the good parking positions along the fence were logging a little "sack time," or busy filling the early morning air with the tantalizing aroma of bacon and eggs, cooked over a camp stove.

The smart ones were setting up scaffolds and platfors on their cars and trucks to gain a better view, and some, with an eye for business were even willing to let you share their vantage point, for $7 a throw.

We moved into the pagoda for our seats before starting time to watch the Purdue band give a good 30-minute show. Just before they lined up the cars for the start, and just after playing the National Anthem, the band played taps. One lady setting behind us apparently was so thrilled at being at the races that she forgot it was also the day we remember our war dead. "Taps, that's an awful thing to play just before the race, well, maybe their playing it in honor of Ted Horn, (veteran race driver who was killed on the eastern dirt tracks last year)."

THE race finally got under way and our favorite, Duke Nalon took over the early lead just as expected. Mr. Nalon had lapped about three quarters of the field by his 23rd lap, and was just about to lap Mauri Rose, who was then running 7th. Someone made the remark that they should be running neck and neck, next time around; they weren't. Rose came around but Duke 'showed up missin'. The heavy footed driver from Sherman Oaks, Cal., had hit an oil slick on the far north curve and plowed into the retaining. Mr. Nalon was last seen getting out of the car and crawling into an ambulance shortly after his Novi Special burst into flames. The Lou Moore, (Holland-Rose) pit crew caught on too, and by the next lap they were flashing the NALON OUT sign to their drivers, along with big grins and wave of the hands. We still had faith in the other low slung Novi car, piloted by big Rex Mays who had been running just a few seconds behind his teammate. Mr. Mays was just as unconcerned as though out for a Sun. drive. Even after Lee Wallard had edged his big black racer ahead of him on the 50th lap, it still looked as though Mr. Mays was out to drive a smart race. And then again we looked down at the Holland-Rose pit crew, turning handsprings and giving the double hand clasp to their drivers as they flashed the MAYS OUT sign to their drivers. One almost got the impression that the Rose-Holland team weren't even going to bother driving out the other 400 miles. From then on it was just a matter of who, owner Lou Moore wanted to win the race.

BOTH Holland and Rose seemed to be plenty peeved later in the race when they were called in for pit stops that didn't seem necessary. Rose slammed his glove down on the brick and tried to drive out of the pit, but owner Moore started to look the car over and that stopped that, he was almost 2 minutes in the pits. Holland was leading veteran stunt driver, Joie Chitwood by only a few seconds when his pit crew tried to call him in to change tire. But Mr. Holland, who thought he was gypped out of the '47 race by such antics, wasn't buying any of that. He didn't stop until he had built up a sizeable lead, and after the pit crew had given up trying to bring him in.

LATER in the afternoon we chitchatted with Miss Linda Darnell. Well, anyway I think she winked at us or it may have been the 14,000 others who were looking over our shoulders. In fact Miss Darnell had the perculiar habit of winking and rolling her eyes everytime she looked at someone. Later we saw her put on her long eyelashes and parts of her Sunday face, only to lose it on winner Holland as she presented the trophy accompanied by the big smacker, as camera men ground away. Oh yes when we pulled from the track 4 hours later, some one told us we should left our car outside and walked in. They sure picked a nice time to tell us - - Nothing like a day at the races.

HINTS ON HEALTH

by the INDIANA STATE MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

THE BALDNESS RACKET

EVERY year thousands of American men peer in the mirror and discover they are getting bald. Usually they decide to do something about it. They begin frantic massages with "tonics," dose themselves with hormones or vitamins, give their scalps ultra-violet ray treatments. After a while, usually they give up, because their hair still keeps coming out.

Your physician will tell you that he knows nothing to be done about baldness. When a man's hair starts coming out, only in very rare cases can anything be done about it. Meanwhile, the manufacturers of scalp preparations and scalp "specialists," as they call themselves, make a fortune off the ignorance of the public.

Newspapers and magazines often contain advertisements of people whose hair has been restored. These before and after pictures may be those of persons whose hair has fallen out after prolonged illness, severe nervous shocks, or skin diseases, and the hair has grown back more because of nature than because of any treatment.

Hair tonics, an age-old lure for balding men, do no more than groom the hair; sulfa drug preparations on the scalp may cause severe irritation; hormones rubbed on the scalp are absorbed into the blood and, in large enough amounts, may cause serious trouble; vitamins injected into the scalp can have disastrous results, too. The dandruff theory of baldness has never been proved. In some cases, continued massage can produce a fine growth of new fuzz, but it never becomes real hair.

The only chance to cure baldness comes if it is caused by a skin disease. Then your physician can treat that condition and restore the lost hair if the scalp has not been permanently damaged by the infection.

Farm

by EVERETT MITCHELL

Farm Commentator, heard Monday through Saturday, 6:15-6:45 a. m. on WMAQ, Chicago, 670 on your dial.

ASK anyone for what the month of June is famous and he probably will say June brides. But each year the month of June is becoming increasingly important to agriculture as Dairy Month—the month set aside when all members of the dairy industry make a combined effort to increase the quality of, and demand for, all dairy products throughout the country.

This year, more than ever, Dairy Month finds dairy farmers in a battle for their markets—perhaps the greatest battle the united dairy industry ever has faced. Competition is keen in the marketing of every dairy product. Working together as one unit, we find farmers, county agents, colleges of agriculture and processors with one thought in mind—quality dairy products. Most farmers realize that the foundation stones for keeping our markets—and for building a better, more prosperous dairy industry for everyone—is the efficient production of quality milk and cream . . . excellent processing . . . and proper care to insure delivery of wholesome dairy foods to consumer tables.

So this month of June finds old bossy in the limelight, for after all . . . no bossy—no dairy industry. Special emphasis will be placed on good breeding, good feeding and good management. But let's not forget the American dairy cow is a conserver of the basis of all life—the soil.

No greater tribute was ever paid to the dairy cow than the statement made to me by a dairy farmer in a Denver milk shed. He turned to me and said, referring to one of his herd, "She's the greatest giver of all. For every ounce of grain, roughage and water she receives, she returns something—in one form or other—to benefit mankind."

Yes, June is Dairy Month, and I salute all the members of the dairy industry who will help make it a success, for good, nutritious dairy foods will help keep America healthy and strong.

KATHYN EMRICK OF LEO HIGH WILL ATTEND GIRLS STATE FROM LEO LEGION AUXILIARY

"Full significance of being an American, protected and secure, in a great country, surged through me upon hearing that I had been chosen to attend Hoosier Girls State," Kathryn Emrick, stated today after accepting the invitation extended to her by the American Legion Auxiliary at Leo. Girls State is being sponsored for the 8th year by the American Legion Auxiliary, as a part of their Americanism program.

For the third consecutive year, hundreds of girls from over the state will journey to Bloomington, Indiana's University Campus where classes will be conducted for them by qualified volunteer Auxiliary Women.

Kathryn Emrick, is a junior in Leo High School and is looking forward to this eight day study of Indiana Government, with much enthusiasm, for there she will learn by actual participation, just how our City, County and State Officers are elected, what duties the offices carry with them, and how to make and enforce laws governing our entire Hoosier State.

"I am so very pleased," Kathryn Emrick said, "because in order to be given this honor, my school had to give me a recommendation as to scholarship, leadership, good moral character, responsibility, personality, and a willingness to cooperate." According to information received here from Mrs. William E. Brown, Bloomington, Indiana, who is Indiana's Directors for Girls State, Kathryn will be associated with 465 other girls of like qualifiecations, who will all be enrolled for the purpose of learning how to become a good citizen and a leader in community and state affairs

Also, Mrs. Brown adds, "Highlighting the program at Bloomington will be the colorful inaugural ceremonies on Sunday, July 3rd, when Governor Henry F. Schricker will give the oath of office to all the elected officials."

"I hope all my friends will come to Bloomington on this day to witness this impressive rite, which is scheduled for 2:00 p. m. in Indiana University's beautiful auditorium," Kathryn said.

Kathryn will leave via car for Girls State on June 29th and will return, July 7th.

more power... more opportunities... in this man-made source of electricity that runs on steam

we're building a new Niagara

THERE'S a great new source of electric power in the making. Or call it a source of new comforts, new conveniences, new jobs.

Either way, it's greater than Niagara (up to now the greatest single source of water-developed power in all the world) . . . and its benefits are for you.

This mightier, steam-powered Niagara is made up of the new plants being added to the American Gas and Electric System, of which this—your electric company—is a part. To create this new power, $305,000,000 will have been spent between 1947 and 1951.

By the end of that period, the plants of the American Gas and Electric System will be generating 3,754,000 horsepower—more than twice as much as the original Niagara Falls is generating now. The System will have doubled its capacity to serve you in ten short years.

In fact, much of this extra power is at work right now. Already it has attracted new businesses to the communities we serve. Industry has found new ways to use this power to make better products faster and cheaper. Electric lights and machines are replacing kerosene lamps and hand labor in farm and rural areas. Streets are better lighted, safer. Employment possibilities are greater. Living is more comfortable . . . because there is more electricity for all.

In size, the new Niagara dwarfs the old. In the torrent of opportunities it brings, it is dwarfing the old one, too.

I cannot say, and I will not say
That he is dead, - - he is just away.
With a cherry smile and a wave of the hand.
He has wandered into an unknown land,
And left us dreaming how very fair
It needs must be, since he lingers there.
And you- - O you, who the wildest yearn
For the old -time step and the glad return,
Think of him faring on, as dear
In the love of There as the love of Here;
Think of him still as the same, I say
He is not dead - - he is just away.

How's Britain Now?

Current news reports suggest that the British are still having a tough time, though things seem a little better with them lately. Actually, it is high time for signs of recovery. How much better off England would be right now—how much sooner she would have come out of the kinks if she had kept safe her traditional freedoms—that no one knows. But if the English mind and spirit come out of these dangerous experiences unscathed, it will surely be a miracle.

(There are those who will give more credit for improvements to the Marshall Plan and to the generosity of the American taxpayer than they will to Britain's labor government.) The sad thing about it is that the Englishman is still the worse off, having given up much of his heritage of freedom and liberty.

Mess of Pottage

The swap has netted a poor mess of pottage indeed. England's experience is the lesson of the century for America. There was the dentist, for example, who took his own life because he found it impossible to operate his office as the government ordered. His suicide note cited too many forms to be filled out for the government and declared he could not do his work and the red-tape too.

What about small business? Take filling stations (petrol there). From a London newspaper: "After two years of deliberations, a committee of 13 men has reported to the government on the technical considerations which should govern the number, capacity, and distribution of petrol stations." Imagine! That is the result, when people hand over their individual initiative to government.

How to Make Tea

Under the heading "First Warm the Teapot," an item in a British newspaper advises that the food ministry is sending out an expert who will visit restaurants in Tottenham and educate the restaurant staffs on the subject of how to make tea! As if by now, the English people have not learned to make tea.

Some of these seem a bit ridiculous. They are. Like the report of demands for "free" wigs having risen under socialized medicine to more than 200 a week—at a cost of more than $4,000,000 yearly. It is reported also that "Application Order No. 2" will entitle hairless men and women to the nationalized wig cleaning and dressing service, once every two months. From cradle to grave, indeed!

Liberty in Flight

In Froxfield, England, K. J. Kilford was building a house. He wanted a round hall window in his new home. But the "area planning committee" said no; the window must be rectangular. "A round window would be out of place in a rural area," the panel declared. Commented Kilford: "There is no individual liberty today." That happened in England.

The whole British story of snarling bureaucracy may remind readers of wartime experiences in America. It indicates, too, that government control clashes with individual freedom. Shall we in America be able to keep our freedom?

Why Jesus Died

Lesson for June 12, 1949

THE FACTS of Jesus' death were simple. They are told in the four Gospels without dramatics and without tears. Yet the drama is there, stark and terrible; and only the hard of heart can read it without tears.

There is a deeper question than what happened. Why did it happen? The first Christians were forced to think about the crucifixion. They all knew it was no legend. It was so. But they were hunted, as we are, with the question, Why? Here was a person whose teaching was truth, whose touch was health, whose life was love. You would have thought the world would welcome such a man, and give him the highest honors in its power. But instead, all it had for him were nails and thorns and a cross. Why? If God, who sees all things, knew that even his Son would come to no better end than a death of shame, why did God allow Jesus to be born, much less send him into the world, the world where the cross was waiting?

No Other End

THERE WAS, of course, "historical reasons" why Jesus was killed. If we used the words "murdered" or "lynched" it would be nearer the truth. Jesus' death, from one point of view, was both a tragedy and a crime, and the Gospel stories show this. Jesus died because Pilate was a spineless man.

Jesus died because the priests of Jerusalem saw that if this man won, they would lose, and they would commit murder rather than be defeated. Jesus died because the Pharisees had closed minds and would not listen to truth if they did not think of it first.

He died because Judas was a traitor, because his friends were cowards and even the best of them dared to show their faces only after he was dead. He died because the Jewish people had their minds set on one sort of Messiah, and when Jesus turned out to be quite another sort, they would have none of him. Being altogether the sort of person he was, in that kind of world, at that particular time and place, you could say, as Jesus himself did, that the Son of Man "had to" die. (Luke 24:26.) No other end was possible. There was no help for it . . . except to turn coward and hide; and if he had been capable of that, he would not have been the Christ we know at all.

The Plan of God

THEN was Jesus simply a victim of circumstances? Was he no better than a fly caught in fate's dark web? Far from it. The Christian church has always believed, even before these stories of the crucifixion were ever written, that the death of Christ was in the plan of God. In fact, it is at the heart of God's plan for mankind.

It is by the death of Christ that God reconciles man and brings men back to himself. The Christian church believes and teaches that Christ died for us, that is, for you and for me. We believe that this was not simply Jesus' own idea, something God had not thought of till Jesus suggested it.

We believe that this was the intention of God "from before the foundation of the world." The God who is over all, works through all things, even very evil things, to make his love known.

"That The World . . . Might Be Saved"

MEN had long thought of God as living in far-off heaven, seated on a throne, high and lifted up. A just and mighty God, one who cannot be touched with any human weakness, a holy and infinite Lord of the universe,—such a God men knew. But on earth there walks and suffers a race of men who are slaves of sin, slaves to evil. How can such a God help such men? Not by staying on his throne and hurling down more curses. Only by doing what men would never have guessed God would dare to do—come into this world, himself as a man, translating himself into the life of man; putting his shoulder under the human load, even bearing "our sins in his own body on the tree" (I Peter 2:24).

Release of the 1949 edition of the Official State Highway map, pictured above has been announced by the State Highway Commission.

A limited supply of the new maps will be received in the near future at the St. Joe News office where they will be distributed to the public. Copies will also be received soon at the various district and sub-district garages, at leading hotels throughout the state and at the department headquarters in the State House Annex, Indianapolis.

The map cover is an attractive depiction of the recently-completed approach and bridge over the Missinewa River at State Road 13, south of Wabash and was reproduced from a kodachrome photograph by Don Collings, State Highway Public Relations director.

The 1949 edition shows railroads and streams in light blue, U. S. highways in red and state roads in black; route lines are narrower than in former years to provide greater legibility. State road 534, the Indianapolis belt highwey, has been changed to State Road 100.

More than 200 cities and towns are shown on the map, as well as State Police posts, airfields, all Federal properties, state parks, forests, games preserves and fish hatcheries. Other features are the handy mileage chart, instruction on what to do in case of an accident, and spot maps of state routes through principal cities.

EARLY VARIETIES OF CORN AND BEANS ARE AVAILABLE IF WEATHER FURTHER HAMPERS PLANTING

Heavy rains in DeKalb County during the latter part of May have delayed corn and soybean planting, acordincg to County Agent C. R. Gross. If further delay should happen by unfavorable weather, farmers will be interested in securing earlier varieties of corn and soybeans.

Early varieties of corn recommended until the 10th of June are the 200 series of Indiana hybrids and other comparable commercial varieties. The new Hawkeye soybeans and Earlyana beans still have time to mature; however, farmers accustomed to using Lincoln or later varieties may wish to use an earlier variety if planting should be delayed after the first week in June. The early variety of beans is especially recommended where wheat occurs in the rotation following soybeans.

Names of farmer growers of certified seeds of these varieties are available at the county extension office in Auburn.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Dickerson and family and their guests from Fort Wayne spent Sunday afternoon at Hamilton Lake.

Calling all outdoorsmen

By JIM MITCHELL

An outdoor magazine with a national circulation recently completed a survey designed to show the preference of fisherman and we though you might be interested in comparing your methods against the national average.

For instance, the fishermen polled in the survey reported they favored plugs over spoon for bait casting by a rather large percentage. In fact, plugs were used 69 per cent of the time as against 31 per cent for spoons and spinners.

Mid-depth casting lures, plugs and spoons that travel two to five feet beneath the surface, proved the most popular, and the survey showthese mid-depth lures were used 47 per cent of the time and deep-running plugs and spoons 20 per cent.

It is apparent, too, that more and more fishermen are turning to lighter weights in bait casting lures. The five-eighths ounce lures still are tops and the survey showed this weight is used 61 per cent of the time. A few of the boys found three-fourths ounce baits suitable for seven per cent of their fishing time.

It was rather interesting to note, too, the preferences of fishermen polled regarding what they most liked their artificial lures to imitate. A total of 64 per cent favored lures that appeared as minnows; 15 per cent liked frog imitations.

The crayfish came in for 10 per cent, the mouse five per cent and all others a total of six per cent.

That's the national picture on preferences in bait casting lures. How does your fishing stack up against it? Actually, it makes little difference, for all of us who fish streams and lakes have definite preferences in size, weight and imitations of our lures. And those are the lures we will continue to fish with.

HERE 'N THERE IN SPORTS

By LEWIS H. WALTER

THE Legion softball team accomplished two feats that they hadn't been able to do in two previous years in the Y. M. C. A. league at Auburn, in their first game at the new city park diamond, last Thursday evening. They threw off the opening game losing jinx that had gone for two years and then proceeded to hand the Auburn Clutch a 7 to 5 loss for their first win over them since they entered the league.

The Clutch go off to an early start and had taken a 1 to 0 lead in the 1st, when Shuff committed a three base error on Buttermore's drive to right, alowing him to score with the first run of the game. In the top of the fourth the Clutch stretched their lead to 3 to 0 when Akey walked two, who both scored when Wattier singled over second.

The Legion whittled down the lead in their half of the fourth, when Yeiser drove a sharp double scoring Hoover and Akey.

However, the fifth was the inning when the boys caved the roof in on Clutch pitcher, Paul Daub, to salt the game away. Sheefel got on an infield erroor to start the inning. Walter hit a perfect double play ball to short but both runners were safe when he threw the ball passed second. Tatlock drove a sharp liner to left center, scoring Sheffel and Hoover walked filling the bases. Shuff made up for his first inning boot by ramming a hard ground smash over second for two bases, scoring Walter and Tatlock and when Sanxter's throw to third hit Hoover in the back and bounced away, he scored and Shuff took third. Pugsley then drove a long fly down the left field line, Shuff scoring after the catch for the fifth run of the inning. That was all the scoring for the locals, but it was enough. Akey set the Clutch down in the sixth, but did give the Legion fans a scare in the last inning, when the Clutch scored two. Akey then settled down to get his 6th and 7th strikeouts to end the game.

LINEUP:

CLUTCH— Wood, ss; Wattier, rf; Buttermore, 3b; Engle, c; Pence, lf; Malle, 1b; Barnes, 2b; Sanxter, cf; Daub, p.

HINTS ON HEALTH by the INDIANA STATE MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

INSOMNIA

GOOD sleep is one of the great essentials for good health. Those unfortunate people who suffer from insomnia, who never get a good night's sleep, are nervous, jumpy and irritable through the day because of that lack. Here are some suggestions on correcting that condition.

First, make sure that your bedroom is properly ventilated, that it is as dark and quiet as you can make it, and that the sheets, pillows and blankets suit you.

Then make sure that you follow the rules of sleep hygiene. If you have trouble sleeping at night, avoid naps during the day. Avoid emotional scenes, or exciting games, or even too much conversation before bedtime; try to take a short, leisurely walk just before retiring. Don't eat heavily or drink fluids excessively before going to bed; however, if you suffer from hunger pains or irritation of the stomach, some warm milk at that time may actually help sleep. A warm bath is often equally helpful. Coffee, tea, and cola drinks should be avoided after four in the afternoon as a further precaution.

Those people who have difficulty sleeping because of dreams of terror should know that such dreams are signs of anxiety related to emotional disturbances. A physician specializing in psychiatry can often be most helpful in these cases.

"A-a-ah, your father's mustache!" seems to be what the kitten on the right, with haymaker poised, is telling his feline sparring mate. Ruth Conway, Huntington Park, Calif., photographer, who made this appealing Speed Graphic shot, suffered several scratches separating the ferocious pair afterward.

Would you lift 100 bushels for a penny?

an electric elevator will!

A LOW-COST portable electric elevator is one of the best investments a farmer can make. It does back-breaking lifting chores for pennies a day and does them in lots less time.

Even a small, simple, homemade elevator can move 400 and more bushels an hour, at a cost of 1 cent per hundred bushels handled, and often for a good deal less.

Get the most from your electric power! Portable electric elevators handle ear and shelled corn, small grains, crates, even baled hay. Let our farm engineers help you select the elevator that best suits your needs.

WISDOM OF AGE

MANY people, as they grow older, undergo a change in their dispositions. As the tempo of the body slows down gradually, once happy and jolly people may find themselves becoming melancholy. Among women, this melancholia tends to develop at the "change of life." Physicians wonder if men, too, don't have something like change of life at middle age. Both men and women seem to develop similar symptoms during that period.

Such symptoms as anxiety, apprehension and indecision at that time may lead to nervous breakdown. New and confusing problems appear for the first time to people leaving middle age behind them. Chances of success in life become fewer, financial reverses and disappointments hit hard. There may be family worries, too, and the increasing number of family and friends taken by death add to the upset. Women seem apt to suffer most from such experiences.

These women need to remember that advances in medicine and science make it possible for them to be attractive, despite advancing age. If only they put in the time and study required to solve the problem. Particularly at this time of life one must be careful not to blame herself for things done or undone. This self-reproach is one of the most harmful trends apt to develop during this period. One should try, as the years go by, to develop a sane philosophy in making adjustments toward these problems.

If necessary, the help of your physician might be enlisted.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

International Uniform Sunday School Lessons

BY DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

SCRIPTURE: Mark 16:1-8; John 21:1-17; I Corinthinan 15:12-19.
DEVOTIONAL READING: Luke 24:21-32.

Conquest of Death

Lesson for June 19, 1949

DOCTORS TALK about conquering death, but they never do. All they can manage is to put it off a little. In all the long sad story of mankind there is only one absolute conquest of death. It happened on the first Easter morning, and it was a turning point in the history of the world. The few lines about the Resurrection, in our New Testament, would not cover the front page of this newspaper. We do not know all we want to know. But those few lines tell us enough to set us singing, they are a solid foundation for a soaring faith.

Dr. Foreman

The Mighty Act of God

WE shall be disappointed if we expect the Gospels to "explain" the Resurrection. If there is anything the stories show clearly, it is that the first persons who knew of the Resurrection were confused and shaken by it. The disciples had not expected anything like this, and they may not fully have understood what was going on.

What they were sure of, what they could not deny, was first of all that Christ rose from the dead, and also that it was God who raised him from the dead, God had beaten the one unbeatable power — death. Death, the universal conqueror, turned out for once to be the conquered.

It is only those who can believe in an all-powerful God who can fully believe in the Resurrection.

It Is The Lord

WHAT MANNER of person was Jesus, after that first Easter morning? There were some differences hard to describe, and in fact not described, only hinted at. You notice that at times it was not easy to recognize him at first. Paul refers to Christ's "glorious body" and surely there must be a glory in a person who has actually proved too strong for death to hold—a glory such as even Christ, before Calvary, had not shown. And yet—and yet, it was the same Jesus they had always known.

No Ghost

BY NIGHT, in many a "seance," mediums profess to get in touch with the spirits of the dead. If you could believe the spiritists, Shakespeare and Queen Victoria and innumerable other famous people, have come back and talked from beyond the grave. But the thing that makes the Christian church more than doubtful about such performances, is that somehow the dead-and-come-back genius is never a genius any more. Neither Shakespeare nor any other famous person has said anything worth saying through a "medium." And even these feeble ghosts cannot endure the daylight. They have to come at night.

How different were the comings of Jesus! There was nothing weird or uncanny about him. Around the supper table, or on an afternoon walk, or out on the lake shore under the morning sun . . . never the poor mumbling ghost of a seance, never any stupid trifles from his lips, but words of truths and comfort which the church cherishes as among the best from our Lord's mind. Jesus' resurrection is not the story of the survival of a ghost, still less the mere return of a revived and walking corpse.

It is the story of a Divine Person who conquered death, and who came back from that conquest in power and majesty, yet with all the tenderness, love and brilliance he had ever shown.

Our Hope in Him

PAUL (in I Cor. 15) makes it clear that our hope of life-beyond-death grows right out of Christ's resurrection. The enemies of Christ would have given their right eyes to stop the mouths of the men who told that story, and to prove it a lie.

But they could never do it. You cannot well stop people from believing what they have seen with their own eyes. So our hope of eternal life is not just a hope.

As Paul says, if that were all, we should be miserable men.

Calling all outdoorsmen

By JIM MITCHELL

At one time or another most of us who enjoy fishing have run across a situation where a guide or native has remarked: "You should have been here yesterday; the fish were hittin' like mad!" Then, too, there is the century-old story of "tomorrow" being the day to get a limit--if the fisherman can't be around to give the lake or stream a try.

Frankly, this yesterday-tomorrow routine always makes us angry; we just don't like it. And we've been trying to get to the bottom of the reasoning that makes the natives make such statements.

First, you almost always hear this kind of chatter on lakes or streams with an outstanding reputaion for fishing. And the natives usually aren't willing to admit that fishing, at times is bad for periods of several days.

Then, on the other hand, you'll find places where the natives think that their talk about yesterday-tomorrow fishing will encourage sportsmen to return, hoping next time to "hit it right" with the gamesters.

Recently a group of 20 fishermen (this writer included) spent a week end on famous bass fishing lake. The lake has had a reputation for over 50 years as one of the best largemouth bass water in the U. S. The natives and guides are proud of their lake, and some of them give out with the old yesterday-tomorrow talk whenever bad fishing happens.

And we hit this lake on a "bad day" and the fishing was even below par for many lakes of less reputation. But we did'nt mind the poor fishing. Fortunately we had a guide who was practical. The wind was from the east (when the wind's from the east the fish bite the least), the water temperature was 58 degrees and a cold rain fell most of the time.

Under such elements no lake could produce well, regardless of its fishing reputation.

At the end of the first day our guide remarked: "Boys, it's really rough fishing out there today; you've gotta really work for a few strikes."

We liked his comment; we appreciated his honest remark. And, above all, we were glad he did'nt give out with the yesterday-tomorrow stuff. By being honest, we're going back again and we hope to get the same guide and better weather for fishing.

Too, we hope that on other trips this summer we're equally fortunate in getting guides who don't deal out faulty information on the fishing. That way it is fun-even if the fish don't cooperate.

Farm Facts

by EVERETT MITCHELL

Farm Commentator, heard Monday through Saturday, 6:15-6:45 a. m. on WMAQ, Chicago, 670 on your dial.

IN August a good many dairymen will be crying—not over spilled milk—but over their dried-up pastures . . . and the old bogey of a dip in midsummer milk production. This expected August shortage can be prevented by seeding pasture in Sudan grass today, as thousands of Mid-Western farmers already know.

Dairymen who have used Sudan grass as supplementary pasture have found that it almost always increases milk flow over that of pasture previously used, and that it keeps the milk production line up. The use of Sudan grass is especially recommended this year because so many farmers lost a good stand of alfalfa or clover in last summer's drought or through winter killing.

Sudan grass is easy to grow, seeding costs are reasonable and no extra farm equipment is needed for the job. The seed bed is prepared like that for corn in early spring-plowed land. Use the wheat side of the grain drill, and drill the seed at a rate of 25 to 30 pounds an acre, setting the drill on the wheat scale at two and a half to three pecks per acre.

Sudan grass is a sorghum — a warm weather crop, and should be planted after the latter part of May. The crop should be ready for grazing in five or six weeks, but not before it reaches a height of 14 inches. The application of 200 to 300 pounds of 0-20-10 or 0-20-20 fertilizer at seeding time will hasten growth and increase quality of the crop. An acre of Sudan grass will carry one or more cows per acre, and the carrying capacity can be increased if alternated with other pasture.

It's a good bet you can bury that August milk flow slump in a field of Sudan grass.

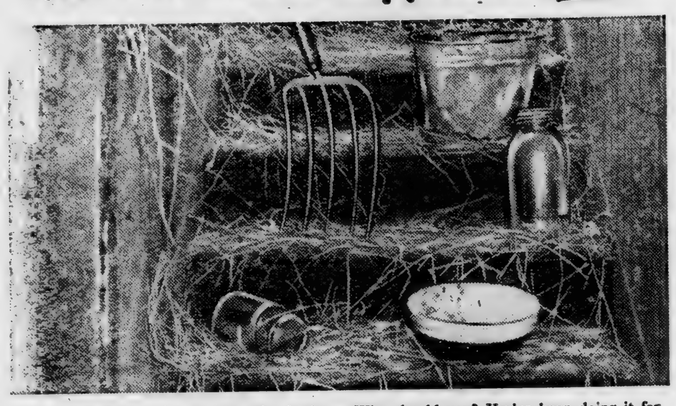
Accidents never happen to you!



You never think twice about leaving buckets, and other odds and ends on the steps.

Why should you? You've been doing it for years and accidents never happen to you!

Or do they?

Falls like this killed hundreds, and injured thousands of farm residents in 1948. It's such a simple thing to keep stairways uncluttered.

Check your home and farm buildings for accident hazards like this. The life you save may be your own!

Keep your hands, feet and fingers away from moving machinery. If something goes wrong, turn off the machine before you investigate. Remember, the safe way is the fastest way in the long run.

Plant Corn Thicker to Increase Per Acre Yields and Reduce Crop Production Costs

CHICAGO—If you want to get top possible corn yields this year, suit your rate of corn planting to the fertility potential of your soil, says the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee.

Where the land is fertile and has a good moisture-holding capacity, you can average 14,000 stalks to the acre. The ears will be smaller with such a planting rate, but the overall yield will be much higher.

The higher yield from more stalks per acre means a greater turnover of your soil's fertility. Higher yields will lower your production costs and increase your profits.

University of Minnesota agronomists found that ½-pound ears give the most corn per acre. They averaged ears of this size when they planted corn at the rate of 4 stalks to the hill in rows 40 by 40 inches. When corn was planted 2 stalks to the hill in 40 by 40-inch rows, ears were much larger, but overall yield much smaller. Corn planted too thin does not give enough ears to make full use of the soil's supply of plant food and moisture.

Illinois and Indiana research men found, too, that the highest yields came from corn ears that didn't go over a half pound apiece.

The committee suggests these steps for maintaining the soil's crop producing ability:

1—Return all crop residues and manure to the soil.

2—Supplement with commercial plant food the fertility sold off the farm via marketed grain, livestock and dairy products.

3—Use tilage measures that keep topsoil and moisture at home. That includes contour cultivation.

SOIL BUILDER . . . Deep-probing sweet clover tap-roots (left) pry down below plow sole of tight soils and open them to air and water. Roots and tops add organic matter and make a thicker, richer layer of topsoil for bigger crop yields. Red clover (right) always stays "upstairs." With thicker topsoil, more plant nutrients and water are available to crops. To do top job, tap-rooted legumes need plenty of phosphate and potash fertilizer.

The busy round of activities in DeKalb County 4-H circles during the past year has earned for them one of the annual silver awards made by Prairie Farmer-WLS. The county's 4-H clubs will be honored on the WLS "Dinnerbell" broadcast at noon (1:00 p. m. DST) on June 23, from Purdue University, West Lafayette, Ind., where the 4-H Roundup will be in progress. The award will be presented that afternoon in the Hall of Music, before an estimated crowd of 4,000 visiting 4 H boys and girls.

Twenty - five Indian counties qualfy for the bronze award this year, thirteen for the silver, and seven for the gold. The awards are made in cooperation with Purdue University's state 4-H club office. The total number of counties honored- - forty-five is a more than than fourfold increase over the first awards, in 1944, which numbered only elven.

Jack C. Ralston associate in 4-H Club Work at Purdue, who will speak on the WLS "Dinnerbell" program, says the steady growth of award winners "is an indication that the prgram is accomplishing one of the main purposes for which it was instituted, and that is o encourage increased 4-H enrollment and a better program of 4-H activities in the various counties."

Various programs throughout the day on June 23 will also include contralto, and Captain Subby and the Buccaneers, instrumental -vocal group, stars of the WLS National Barn Dance.

INFORMATION GIVEN FOR LATE PLANTED CROPS

A series of mimeographed circulars on late planting of corn and soybeans, sorghums, buckwheat, hay, cash or pasture crops for delayed seeding are available from the department of agronomy, Purdue University.

Although no answer can definitely be given as to how late soybeans and corn can be planted due to varities, rainfall and other factors, last planting dates for corn hybrids and soybeans of the different maturity groups in different parts of the state - with reasonable hope of safe maturity - are given in circular AY No. 56.

Maturity dates for 14 varieties of early and midseason sorghums are given in the agronomy circular No. AY 15. Sorghums are warm season plants and should nor be planted until soon after corn planting and usually require abour 110 days for the midseason varieties and the varieties 105 days on the average

The supplementary hay and pasture crops circular includes a planting table with dates from March 1 through July 15, and is found in the agronomy circular includes a planting table w'h dates from March 1 through July 15, and is found in the agronomy circular No.

Bride's Biscuits

Following a tested recipe using enriched flour will help the bride make biscuits like these—golden topped, tender and flaky, served piping hot with butter or margarine and honey.

Four square biscuits provide breakfast or tea-time conversation, yet they are even easier to make than the usual round variety.

In following this basic biscuit recipe with sweet milk, cut shortening into the dry ingredients well until the mixture looks like coarse crumbs. Use two knives, a pastry blender, a pastry fork, or fingertips. Then add almost all the milk at once, saving out two or three tablespoons until you see if you need it. Different flours may need a different amount of milk to make a dough of good consistency. Stir vigorously until flour is moistened.

Biscuits are different from most other quickbreads in that they have to be kneaded slightly. This makes them high, light, and flaky. Warning: knead with a light touch, and only 30 seconds.

After rolling out dough, dip sharp knife in flour. Cut into squares by pressing knife or spatula straight down. Avoid "dragging" the knife through the dough. This pulls the biscuits out of shape and makes them lean to one side during baking. Bake on ungreased baking sheet.

Serve biscuits hot, with honey and tea, the traditional accessories. Hot biscuits are one of the most economical ways to add not only appetite appeal, but needed B-vitamins and iron to the menu.

BISCUITS

2 cups sifted enriched flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
2 to 4 tablespoons shortening
⅓ to ¾ cup milk

Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Cut or rub in shortening until mixture is crumbly. Add milk to make a soft dough. Turn out on lightly floured board and knead gently 30 seconds. Roll out one-half inch thick. Cut with floured biscuit cutter or sharp knife. Bake on ungreased baking sheet in hot oven (450 degrees F.) 10 to 12 minutes.
Makes about 12 biscuits.

RODEO TO BE HELD AT COLUMBIA CITY

A big Rodeo will be given at the Columbia City Saddle grouds on June 17, 18, and 19, with two performances daily, rain or shine.

Forty cowboys and cowgirls recruited from the west will give a thrilling exhibition of trick riding, bronco busting, bull dogging roping and other thrills of pioneer days.

Fourteen wicked Brahma bulls, fifty head of horses, long horned Texas steers and wilid horses from the western plains will put on a thrilling two hour show.

The company putting on the Rodeo at Columbia City goes direct to Chicago for a five weeks' engagement as a featured atraction at the Railroad Fair which is to be presented again this year.

One of the features of th show will be a bug jump put on by Wild Bill Lee of Texas, who drives an auto up a ranmp at great speed and leaps about 120 feet and lands on top of several old automobiles. This death defying spectacle is similar to that which cost the life of Lucky Teeters at the Indiana State Fair three years ago.

Afternoon shows will start at 2:30 and evening performances at 8. Children under twelve will be admitted free and adults for 1$, including tax.

CORN RESEALING PROGRAM ANNOUNCED

A corn resealing program under which producers can not later than October 31, 1949, (1) extend their loans on 1948-crop corn to mature July 31, 1950, and (2) put purchase agreement corn under loan to mature July 31, 1950, areas where both purchase agreements and loans are available was announced today by the Producton and Marketing Administration, U. S. Deparment of Agriculture.

Farmers who extend their loans or put the purchase agreement corn under loan will be entitled to a storage payment of 10 cents a bushel if the corn is delivered to the Commodity Credit Corporation at maturity of the loans.

The program is designed to slow down the excessive movement of corn off the farms that would result from heavy deliveries of loan and purchase agreemant corn to th purchase agreement corn to the

Under the original program, loans on 1948 crop corn become due on September 1, 1949 Today's announcement gives farmers the option of paying off loans at that time, delivering the corn to CCC, or, not later than October 31, 1949, extending the loans to mature July 31, 1950.

The original program also provides for purchase agreement under which the CCC agrees to buy during the 30-day period immediately following the maturity date of the 1948 loans, any quantity of corn up to the maximum covered by the agreement at applicable loan delivery rates. Today's announcement gives producers in areas and no loans are available, the sales or rention period is the same as that in the original program.

He Lives On

Lesson for June 26, 1949

WHAT IS JESUS, after all? A name in a book? A picture on the walls of churches? More than that! A historical character? Founder of a great religion? More than that! He is the one and only Person who can be everywhere. He would be important if he had only lived; he is far more so because he lives on. But where does he live, and how?

Dr. Foreman

Christians would often feel lonely and discouraged, if it were not for one thing. They know Jesus prays for them. In long-ago times the High Priest of Israel used to pass beyond his people's sight into the silent Holy of Holies, and when he did, the people knew that in that sacred place he was bearing on his heart the whole people, the people whom he served. So the writer to the Hebrews, in the New Testament, pictures Jesus as the perfect High Priest, who has passed beyond our sight, beyond the beautiful blue veil of heaven, into the very presence of God, where he lives, now to intercede for his people who are ever on his heart.

Jesus lives on today in the life of prayer which we believe is still his. No matter what comes to the Christian, he can remember that One is praying for him who is stronger than all the world of evil.

"Greater is he that is for us than he that is against us," said John the Apostle.

In His Book

LUKE tells us that Jesus had to show some of his friends his own picture in the Old Testament. His portrait is not very plain there, but in the New Testament it is very plain indeed. The Bible leads up to Christ, he is its crowning figure. The Bible is, so to speak, a frame for his picture. Many a person, in remote regions of the world, has become Christian just by reading about Christ in some stray copy of the New Testament. The reader begins by reading about Jesus—then the pages come alive, and he meets Jesus, face to face. Jesus lives on, wherever the Bible goes.

In His People

CHURCHES may argue among themselves about what Jesus meant by this or that. But there cannot be any argument about one thing. When Jesus left his friends behind, he gave them orders to go tell the world about him. "Make disciples of all nations . . . Ye shall be my witnesses." A shut-mouthed Christian isn't much of a Christian. A shut-mouthed church is a poor sort of church. (Is it really a church at all?) We do not believe that Jesus expected his followers all to become preachers.

Indeed, we should remember that all the first Christians were laymen. But they got results. One hundred twenty people grew to be three thousand, five thousand, in a few weeks.

What is the reason that 120 Christians today don't win 3,000 converts? One reason is that you would probably find those 120 Christians complaining that their church is "vacant," they don't have a pastor. The early Christians might have thought that very funny. How can a church be vacant with 120 people in it? Christ lives in his church.

Into All the World

CHRISTIANITY is the only religion that can stand transplanting into any climate. There is no other religion that can number its people from the Arctic to the equator, and from east to west around the world. But this is not an accident. It would not have happened by itself. Jesus himself in Galilee walked wherever he went, and in all his grown-up life he did not walk farther from his birthplace than you could drive in an afternoon.

But he walks on every shore. Where ship and camel and plane carry the missionary, there goes Christ; where the airways carry his message, there is he. Wherever Christians go, Christ goes in them and with them.

He lives everywhere today where Christians live, he walks on Christians' feet. Beside the four Gospels in print, there is the Gospel According to You. Does Jesus live in and through you?

Calling all outdoorsmen

By JIM MITCHELL

I know of no better way to start an argument than to ask several fisherman to guess the weight of a certain fish. The man who catches the fish almost always is inclined to overestimate the weight; the onlooker frequently will guess short. So, naturally it is wise to always have a scale handy in your tackle box.

But for those fishermen who never seem to carry such accesories as a scale, I offer Harold Willis' formula for figuring the weight of a fish. Mr. Willis, a resident of Morehead, N. C. says measure the fish's girth at the thickest part and then square this measurement. Your total, multiplied by the length of the fish and then divided by 800 should be near the exact weight.

For instance, the fish measures 20 inches at the thickest part. This squared gives you 400. The fish is 25 inches long. so 25 x 400 is 10,000 and divided by 800 resuls in 12.5 or the fitsh weight 12½ pounds.

If it doesn't work, don' blame me. Just send your complaints to Mr. Willis.

And here's another tip I'd like to pass along. Pete McGillen, of Petersborough Canada, says you can find your way in the wilderness by using a hunting knife and watch -if you've forgotten to take a compass along.

First, stand your knife in a vertical position with the point of the blade resting on your thumbnail or some other shiny surface. If you watch close you will be able to see a faint shadow, no matter how dull or cloudy the day. The point of the shadow at the knife blade will be the direction of the sun. Then if you will just point the hour hand in the same direction as the shadow point and half way between the hour hand and 12 o'clock will be due south.

HINTS ON HEALTH

by the INDIANA STATE MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

SPOTTED FEVER

SPOTTED fever, a not-too-common disease, results from the bite of the common wood tick. A typical case might start with a mother finding a wood tick embedded in the hair of a child's scalp. She would remove the tick, and nothing out of the ordinary would occur for an incubation period of about ten days. Then the child would begin a fever, and in about two more days a rash would appear on the skin. The fever might reach 103 or 104 degrees.

The patient always appears to be suffering from a general systemic poisoning. There is weakness and a desire to remain quiet. Usually the patient is irritable and nervous to an extreme from the poisons in the body.

In the past the disease has sometimes run a fatal course.

Nowadays your doctor is finding the new antibiotic drugs very effective. The temperature disappears in two or three days when this new type of drug is given, and the rash will disappear by the third or fourth day. Administration of the drug may continue for from 5 to 9 days before the infection entirely disappears. The patient usually begins a return to normalcy within 48 hours after the drug is administered.

Previously physicians treated this strange disease with para-aminobenzoic acid. However it took often a minimum of ten days to break the fever and to get anything like normalcy in the patient.

The antibiotics, as newcomers in the field of medical treatment, are proving themselves true miracle drugs.

ALTHOUGH all of the northern Indiana basketball fans who journeyed to the state capital Friday evening for the annual Ky.-Indiana all star basket ball game, were pleased with the final outcome, many were sadly dissapointed at the offensive work of Auburn's big Jom Schooley. The state boys put on a whirlwind finish to win 66 to 61 breaking up a torrid dog-fight between the two cream of the crop teams. Schooley was blocked ed time after time by the big Ky. zone defense men and only got one really good shot away all evening. He totaled only one point from the free throw stripe. However it was his work under the boards that kept the Hoosier boys in the game. With such hot shots as Madison's Dee Monroe, Bloomington's Bob Dawson and Frankfort's Toeppe in the game the Hoosiers did not resort to the use of the pivot man style of play. However, time afer time the above mentioned smaller threesome would wait at the outer edge of the free throw circle, ready to start their fast breaking for their own basket as soon as Schooley could battle the ball away from the Ky. boys under their own basket.

Jim played almost the entire 40 minutes of the game, removed only once after his fourth personal foul, but quickly replaced again to help control the boards.

By EVERETT MITCHELL

Farm Commentator, heard Monday through Saturday, 6:15-6:45 a. m. on WMAQ, Chicago, 670 on your dial.

AFTER our recent talk about how to beat the midsummer slump in milk production, let's take a look at the other side of the question and some of the problems facing dairymen in this early summer season of flush production.

Normally this time of the year sees milk production double that of the fall months, which means a heavy load of work on both the farmer-producer and the dairy plant and its equipment. That brings up the number one problem of sanitation in the handling of milk and milk products from the dairy barn to the city processing plant.

The dairyman must give extra attention to keeping utensils and cans clean and sterile, remembering too that milk must be cooled as quickly as possible and kept cold until it is delivered to the plant. Another point to remember is that other dairy products, such as cheese and butter, often are stored during this flush period for use when production is down. Unless these products are of the best quality when they leave the farm, they will not stand up in storage and will not be able to meet market demands.

Quality production begins on the farm, as every dairyman well knows, but in the stress of working at top speed, the chance of slighting quality for quantity becomes greater. The manner in which the individual dairy farmer meets the problems of this busy season will determine the quality of product to be offered to the public. Until next time, best of luck in a busy and successful season

TELLS OF MICHIGAN FRUIT PROSPECTS

Of interest to DeKalb County people is the report made Friday by Roscoe Walter of Spencerville on this season's fruit and berry crops in southwestern Michigan Mr. and Mrs. Walter made the trip through the district Thursday. Mr. Walter said it rained the entire day and the information gained was mainly from processors and packers and not from growers. Most processors and packers expressed concern over the strawberry crop that has been cut heavily by rains. The berries have rotted because of the rainfall. The peak of the harvest is past although the demands remain heavy.

Raspberries and dewberries promise a good crop, as well as sweet cherries. Montmorency or sour cherries present a different picture, with estimates ranging from 35 to 65 percent of a normal crop. The apple crop and pears and plums show good promise, Mr. Walter said.

NOTICE TO GROSS INCOME TAXPAYERS

The World War II Bonus Tax enacted by the 1949 Legislature, provides for additional rates of tax, making composite total rates as indicated blow, which are to be applied to gross income received by all taxpayers on and after July 1, 1949, regardless of the fact that such income was salary or wages earned or derived from sales or onctracts made prior to such date. All provisions for administration of the Gross Income Tax apply to the Bonus Tax.

All taxpayers are hereby notified that for the purpose of properly reporting income on Annual returns their income received during 1949 must be segregated on their records in order to distinguish between the total income received from Jan. 1, 1949 to July 1, 1949 and the total income received from July 1, 1949 to Jan. 1, 1950. This will be necessary because income received in the first six monthis is taxable only at the regular gross income tax rates of 1% or ½ of 1% or ¼ of 1%, while income received during the last six month will be subject to the combined gross income and bonus tax.

On income received from July 1, 1949 to Jan. 1, 1950 the rates are as follows: 1¼% on income normally taxable at 1%; ⅝ of 1% on income normally taxable at ½ of 1% and ½ of 1% on income normally taxable at ¼ of 1%.

The basis for computing the additional tax rates will be the same as at present, that is; as indicated by the line on the returns which reads "taxable gross income." This will permit exemptions to apply the same in computing Bonus Tax and Gross Income Tax.

For the purpose of achieving uniformity in Forms 12A and related forms, and Witholding Forms, the Departmen suggests that employeyrs segregate on these forms employees' earnings in such a manner as to enable employers to properly report their income at the different tax rates. This will be a convenience, not only to employees in making their own gross income tax returns conform to the amounts shown on the information returns (12A), but will also aid employers in witholding proper amounts of tax at the different rates allocable to each six months period in the year in the instances where witholding is required.

Segregation of income on a six months basis will not be necessary after Jan. 1, 1950.

SURE, SWIFT, SAFE KILL of field corn borer WITH PESTROY 25% DDT CONCENTRATE WITH RESIN BASE

The corn borer works from the inside. Once you can see him he has already done the damage! Spray in time.

YOU'LL get a bigger yield if you spray corn with Pestroy-25% DDT. Authorities say it is 100% safe to use DDT on corn if it is going to be husked and if the plant itself is not used for silage.

Reports show that Pestroy-25% DDT has actually saved whole crops of corn—in many cases it has boosted the crop 10% to 33⅓%. The idea is to get the corn borer before the borer gets the corn.

Pestroy-25% DDT is an approved Xylene formulation of DDT. It stays in solution—doesn't clog the spray nozzles—sprays on easy. It's the big-value, sure-result spray you need if you grow field corn. For FREE information, write direct to Agricultural Chemicals Division, 1266-P Midland Building, Cleveland, Ohio.

MODERN FARMING

Lush, belly-deep grass-legume pasture is one of the best dairy feeds of all. But too many dairy herds have to get by on barren pastures like this one. Improved pastures pay off in bigger milk checks and lower feed costs. Improve them by liming, fertilizing, fencing and re-seeding with approved seed mixtures.

Good Feeding Pays off

IN BIGGER MILK CHECKS

THINK of a cow as a bank account. If you continue to withdraw your money without putting any back in, sooner or later your bank account "dries up". So does a dairy cow. If you don't give her the right kind of feed to sustain milk production, the "well soon runs dry". Milk production stops! So do your milk checks.

With milk lower in price than a year ago, it's important for the dairy farmer to produce more milk per month in order to get the same sized milk check. It's equally important to increase efficiency . . . pull down production costs, so that you can have more profit left after paying the bills.

You can keep milk production high . . . cost of production low, by doing a better job of feeding your herd. Right now, during the lush pasture months of June and on into early July, good pasture can help provide much of the cow's feed needs for heavy production. But unless you have outstanding, "belly-deep" pasture, your cows will still need some grain ration for that extra boost in milk production that makes the difference between profit and loss.

The pictures below show some of the steps in a good summer feeding program that will help you to get bigger checks at lower production costs.

$340 PROFIT OVER FEED COST from one cow alone, as shown by D.H.I.A. records, is typical of Ed's "Brae Meads Guernsey Farm" herd. The 10 head averaged 410 lbs. butterfat last year. Feeding the Wayne Way (15% protein ration made with his own grains and Wayne 32% Dairy Feed) he got more butterfat, more milk and realized more profit with fewer cows than the year before!

85% EGG PRODUCTION ALL FALL AND WINTER from her 106 hens proves Rosalie is right in her feeding plan. She gets 100 two-week-old sexed pullets and 100 straight-run chicks into her brooder house by March 1. Roosters are eaten as fryers; pullets thrive on the Wayne Program, producing 1st eggs early in August. Birds are culled and housed before September 1 for early fall egg production.

How Ed and Rosalie Farmer CUT PRODUCTION COSTS: INCREASED NET PROFITS . . . THE WAYNE WAY

Ed and Rosalie Farmer do a "big" job of farming on their "little farm" of some 170 acres near Rockford, Ohio. They feel, however, that perhaps the days of high farm prices are about over. So they're wisely using the tools of sound planning, management and feeding to cut production costs, increase efficiency and step-up their net profits.

USES FARM RECORDS

Firm believer in farm records, Ed knows his costs and net income figures down to the penny. He aims for high net income by hitting high markets and getting maximum production per animal unit. 50 to 60 pigs saved each year from his 6 to 7 sows, as well as the butterfat and egg production records shown above, are strong proof that his business-like methods (which includes the Wayne Way of feeding) pay off substantially.

TIMES MARKETING

Ed times his spring and fall farrowings so his pigs hit 220 to 230 lbs. in 6 months for the profitable early September and early March markets. Rosalie has plenty of good-sized eggs to sell during early fall high egg prices, too.

Ed and Rosalie sum it up this way: "We bought this farm in 1947 when land prices were high, and rent 56 acres. We decided if we were going to get it paid for we'd better make every hen, pig and cow a money-maker. We do just that by good management, low operating costs and balanced feeding. We get fast, low-cost production by following the Wayne Feeding Program just as recommended. It pays off in the net profit column, for we have comfortable living and are getting our farm paid for."

FREE INFORMATION AVAILABLE

Wayne Feeds are proud of the part they play in the success of farmers, large and small, all over the country. Backed by "IQ" (Ingredient Quality) triple-tests for nutritive value, they can help you, too, cut production costs and increase net profits. See the friendly Wayne Feed Dealer near you now for complete information—or write

ONE OF AMERICA'S OLDEST AND LARGEST MANUFACTURERS OF FEED . . . EXCLUSIVELY

GROWING THEIR OWN REPLACEMENT HEIFERS is slow but sure, the Farmers find. Here Johnny strokes a day-old heifer calf getting colostrum milk from its mother. In a couple of days, it goes on nipple-pail feeding, until 4 weeks old, and from then on, Wayne Calf Pellets, shelled corn and oats will be substituted for milk. That means up to 1,000 lbs. more milk to sell!

Don't spare the hay if pastures "peter out"! Feed hay in the barn at milking time, or in racks out on pasture. Many pastures in the mid-west dry up so badly in July and August that milk production falls fast unless extra roughage is supplied.

Now is the time to put up an extra supply of grass silage. Its higher protein and vitamin A content make it an excellent pasture supplement in summer, as well as a valuable addition to the winter dairy ration. This temporary silo is being filled with wilted grass on the Emerson Grebel farm near Beaver Dam, Wisconsin.

Don't let the summer work rush interrupt your record-keeping on milk production. Accurate production records pay off by giving you a clearer picture of which cows are profit-makers . . . which are not paying for their keep. Cull low producers so that you can give better rations and better care to the profit-makers.

Sell more milk by raising replacement calves on a good commercial calf starter. With calf starter, you can eliminate all milk feeding after four-to six weeks of age. The extra milk you save more than pays for the calf feed and leaves a big net profit. Raised this way, calves are fully as big and healthy as calves raised on milk.

HOG RAISERS! A sensational new way to feed milk products!

Use KRAYLETS —80% milk products* in revolutionary dry kernel form!

Your hogs can now have valuable milk products without any muss, fuss or slop feeding. Simply add Kraylets to regular rations. It's 80% milk products in handy dry kernel form. No messy liquids or pastes to handle—just these sanitary dry kernels you can hold in the palm of your hand!

You know how milk products help keep pigs in vigorous health—making fast, thrifty gains. Highly concentrated Kraylets is the most economical way to feed milk products ever developed! You only need ¼ lb. per hog daily—mixed or ground in with other feed, or hand fed.

Kraylets helps put weight on hogs economically!

Kraylets contains one of the highest quality proteins available for animal feeding—milk protein! Efficient milk protein helps balance vegetable proteins in grains—puts them to work for maximum nourishment. That's why Kraylets helps hogs make fast, thrifty gains—why Kraylets helps put on more pounds of pork for every pound of feed!

At every stage of development, Kraylets helps boost hog profits—in giving young pigs a fast start—in helping you get hogs to market earlier at less cost!

*Kraylets contains 80% concentrated milk products!

The milk products in Kraylets are 65% dried cheese whey, 9% cheese rinds, and 6% dried skim milk. The rest of the formula consists of 14% soybean oil meal, 4% alfalfa meal (dehydrated), 1% dried brewers yeast, and 1% edible beef tallow.

Picnic Fanfare

FOOD and frolic ride hand in hand with the arrival of the picnic season. Picnics are fun for everyone regardless of whether it's a family reunion in the park, a children's party at the zoo, a bike-hike for the younger crowd or a church picnic at the lake. You're never too old nor too young for a picnic!

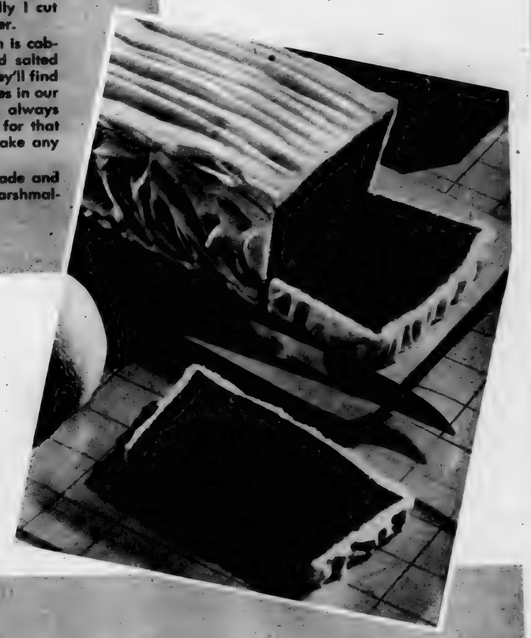
I think you mothers will all agree that it's the one time in the year when we women have as much fun eating as cooking . . . or should I say as much fun cooking as eating?

When it comes to picnic-fare we always want to take something with an out-of-the-ordinary touch and plan something by way of a surprise. For my part, I go in for meat-loaf, (ham-loaf carries our top family-rating), large bags of potato chips for the kiddies and huge bowls of potato salad for the grown-ups, along with several varieties of sandwiches. Beet juice in the salad dressing gives an unusual touch to potato salad.

It wouldn't be a picnic at our place without graham nut bread. As for sandwiches, I've found that double-deckers make a picnic. I make mine by spreading a slice of whole-wheat bread with peanut-butter mixed with crumbled crisply fried bacon. Then I top this with buttered white bread, and spread strawberry jam over this and top it with another slice of buttered whole-wheat. Finally I cut it into thirds and wrap it in wax paper.

Another standby in my picnic lunch is cabbage salad to which I add blanched salted peanuts. The young-fry know that they'll find brownies or some other favorite cookies in our picnic basket and the menfolk seem always to count on a special cake. Though for that matter, a fresh-air appetite would make any cake seem special!

Of course, I take gallons of lemonade and just for good measure, tuck in some marshmallows. Aren't picnics fun?



PIECRUST CIRCLES AND JAM or marmalade furnish the easy "makings" for this picnic surprise.

*Use new Robin Hood "Rolled Dough" Method for shaping perfect loaves of better bread

STEP 1. With rolling pin, roll dough out to uniform thickness, stretching by hand to form rectangle approximately 9" x 12". Make certain to break down all gas bubbles in the outer edge of the dough.

STEP 2. From upper edge, roll dough toward you, jelly roll fashion, sealing dough with heel of hand after each roll of dough. (About four turns will bring you to last seal). Be sure to seal final seam on bottom of loaf.

STEP 3. Seal ends of the loaf by using the side of the hand to get thin sealed strip.

STEP 4. Fold sealed ends of loaf under, using fingers, as shown above. Avoid tearing dough.

STEP 5. Place shaped loaf, with seam side down, in well greased bread pan.

STEP 6. Proceed in usual way for raising and baking . . . for a perfect loaf every time!

9 out of 10 women say new Robin Hood "Rolled Dough" method gives finest bread they ever baked

● Now! Home bread baking easier than ever before—with never-fail results!

9 out of 10 women who have tried and tested this new, amazingly simple Robin Hood "Rolled Dough" Method in their own kitchens say just that. Women who bake bread several times a week—women who had never baked bread before—all agree that this new Robin Hood "Rolled Dough" Method is easy, gives a perfect loaf every time.

With this new method you get a loaf of bread that's bigger—looks better—tastes better than any other home-baked bread. No large holes in the center of the loaf—the texture is tender and even, the loaves uniformly high and well rounded.

The Robin Hood "Rolled Dough" Method was originated, developed and perfected by Rita Martin, famous home economist, for use with Robin Hood Flour. You cannot get the same perfect results with any other flour. Only Robin Hood Flour and the Robin Hood "Rolled Dough" Method together can produce such large, uniform loaves. That's because Robin Hood is different—it's milled from the finest selected wheats by an exclusive milling process to make your baking easy and successful.

Use the recipe for Robin Hood White Bread on this page—follow the easy step-by-step Robin Hood "Rolled Dough" Method—and we guarantee you will make the finest loaf of bread you have ever baked.

THE HARVESTORS FOR Dependability

On the trail of progress MM blazed in designing and building modern machinery for farmers everywhere, Minneapolis-Moline steadfastly chose as its guideposts quality and dependability. Typical of the MM products built on quality and dependable performance are MM Harvestors, the original lightweight, big-capacity combines introduced by Minneapolis-Moline as early as 1934 . . . these MM Harvestors still feature the original single-unit construction design that did so much to reduce weight and increase durability and ease of handling.

Now with Uni-Matic Power for hydraulic control of cutting height, with Powerflow Drive on the Self-Propelled model, and with many other labor-saving, grain-saving, time-saving improvements, these MM Harvestors—the long-famous 69, the G4, that is the modern version of the original Harvestor, and the very latest Self-Propelled—are still leading the parade of progress. In heavy crops, in down grain, in light stands, and in practically every kind of crop, MM Harvestors continue to prove that they can do a superior job of getting, threshing, separating, and cleaning all the crop . . . speedily and at low cost.

MM Harvestors are now widely acclaimed for these outstanding MM features: efficient, big-capacity, straight-through threshing and cleaning mechanism that gently and thoroughly threshes and cleans all the grain or beans without cracking them . . . the sturdily built rasp bar cylinder and the electrically welded concave and grate built for maximum strength and maximum efficiency . . . MM design and quality construction of grain pan with its fishback channels built to keep the grain from bunching in front and sides when the Harvestor is operating on rolling land . . . MM straw racks and cleaning shoes built to do a thoroughly efficient job even on rolling fields.

Harvestors have heavy-duty, structural steel single-unit frames for extra strength and durability needed under tough conditions. MM Harvestors are balanced and light in weight, yet extra sturdy for quick, easy handling, and light in draft for substantial savings in power and fuel.

These are just some of the reasons modern MM 69, 12-foot G4, and 14-foot Self-Propelled Harvestors are dependable and actually built to do the work under the most rugged conditions.

Results?—Yep, Frieda took an unscheduled dive into the cool depths of Marble Lake. The facts that Mrs. Guilford is a fairly good swimmer, and that the lake was populated well enough at the time, took all of the danger from the situation. A safe return trip to her boat was made, leaving nothing but the humorus angle of the affair to be remembered.

LIONS CLUB AIDS IN FIGHT AGAINST CANCER

St. Joe Lions, cooperating in the Indiana Lion Cancer Control fund will aid in loosing a million electron volts in the battle against cancer at the Indiana University Medical Center.

A million volt X-ray, seventh in the world to be installed for medical purposes, is a featured part of the equipment being installed at the Medical Center as the gift of the Indiana Lions Cancer Control Fund. Placing of this equipment in the new addition, now nearing completion, will place the facilities of the x-ray department among the top three or four such centers in the United States.

The tube-transformer head of the unit weight 1,500 pounds but is operated easily by electrical pushbutton controls. The transformr itself has 238 miles of insulated wire. The machine and the specially-designed room in which it will operate contain many special features for safeguarding the patient and the operator.

Advent of supervoltage x-ray has ushered in a new era in the treatment of deep-seated malignancy, according to leading physicians in the field, who find that high-voltage make x-rays more penetrating, less likely to burn intervening tissues, and more deadly in their effect on cancerous mass.

Lions Clubs recently presented a check for $25,000 to President Herman B. Wells a a part of their pledge of $50,000 to support cancer research and treatment at the Medical Center.

Songs for All Hearts

Lesson for July 3, 1949

THE greatest hymn-book in the world is to be our study for three months. Not the oldest; that honor belongs to the Vedic Hymns of ancient India. Not the largest; the hymnal of your own church may easily be twice as large. But the greatest hymn-book in the world is the book of Psalms. This collection of religious poems was used as the hymn-book of the temple which was built when the Jewish exiles returned to Babylon. It was the hymn-book of Herod's temple, and we know our Lord used and loved it. It is indeed the song-book of the Bible. It was the only hymnal which the first Christians used, for some time. Indeed the book of Psalms is probably the only hymn-book honored and used by three separate religions—Judaism, Mohammedanism and Christianity.

Dr. Foreman

How It Grew

LIKE all hymnals, this book of Psalms grew by degrees. It was not written all at one time or by one person. David wrote some of the Psalms, how many we do not know. The "titles" of the Psalms were added by later Hebrew editors, are no part of the original Psalms, and are often inaccurate.

It is very likely that as much as a thousand years went by between the first of the Psalms to be written, and the last. Every modern hymnal that is any good is in part a collection of the best of the old hymnals.

So our book of Psalms, as it finally took shape, came from older collections. A glance through it in the American standard version will show that in its present form it is made up of five smaller books, ending with Psalms 41, 72, 89, 106 and 150. Each book ends with a doxology and book V ends with a magnificent series of them. Sometimes the editors left in duplicates. Reading Psalm 14 side by side with Psalm 53 will show that these two are exactly the same, only using different names for God. At least one of the Psalms is made up of "clippings" from earlier Psalms: thus Psalm 108 is made up from Psalm 57:7-11 and Psalm 60:5-12. The Psalms were cherished and preserved generation after generation because of their heart-appeal. Our Psalm book has gone through centuries of sifting; many were dropped out and forgotten, but the best were saved and sung; and what we have is the cream of the best of the singers of Israel.

Mirror of Man

JOHN CALVIN called the Psalms the "mirror of the soul." All the varied moods of man—hope, despair, triumph, envy, doubt, aspiration, loneliness, hatred, fear, irritation, patriotism, joy, bitterness, weariness, amazement, anguish, rapture—almost every emotion that can be felt toward God or man breathes somewhere or other in these Psalms.

Since not one of the authors of the Psalms was a Christian, of course, we should not be surprised to find, here and there, expressions (for example) of hatred which are out of harmony with the spirit and teaching of Jesus. The wonder is that there is so little of that kind of thing.

For every Psalm in which the poet says something cruel or hateful (e. g. Psalm 137:9 or 109:6:14), there are scores that breathe a spirit of gentleness and grace. For every note of despair (Psalm 88 is the only completely gloomy one in the whole collection), there are many hallelujahs of hope and gladness.

Message of God

IF the Psalms are so human, how can they be also God's Word? Yet they are also, truly, a message of God. For they not only cast a divine light on the state of man's heart, but they show what the life of man is when God becomes real. For God was real to each poet who contributed to this great book. In latter weeks this summer we shall be looking at the Psalms from various special angles. This week it will be helpful to sit quietly with the three typical Psalms, 1, 67 and 100, and as you ponder over each one in turn, ask yourself: What does this show me about God? What does this show about life when it turns to God?

THE St. Joe High softball team which has showed a vast improvement in their last several practice games, continue play in the summer high school league at Harlan Wednesday evening, taking on the Leo team in the only high school affair of the evening. A preliminary game will precede the Leo-St. Joe tilt.

OFFICIALS of the G. E. Voltmen baseball club announced last week that tickets are on sale for the exibition game between the Voltmen and the Chicago White Sox on Monday evening July 11, at Dwenger Park in Ft. Wayne. The Sox management have stated that all their players will be in uniform for the game which fall on the same day as the annual, American-National-League All Star fracas, held this year at Ebbets Field in Brooklyn. The statement by Chisox officials that all players would be present for the game was made early in the season with little thought that their little, 23-year-old second sacker was going to be in the running for the second base job when the junior loop all-stars take the field that Monday. Selection of the team members is being made from popular vote of the fans, and Cass Michaels who is enjoying his best season since coming up to the big show, is currently leading in popular votes at the present time. The second base job has just about turned in to a fan feud between Chicago and Cleveland fans. Supporters of the world champs are determined the job go to their Joe Gordon. Whenever Gordon slips behind in the popular vote, Cleveland fans pile on the votes, and when Michaels votes start to lag, Chicago newspapers and radio broadcasts urge votes for Cass. Michaels with a 6,000 vote lead at this time, and with Chicago holding more people than Cleveland, it looks as though Michaels won't be with the pale hose when they visit Fort Wayne.

THE St. Joe Legion team lost their second game in the Y league at Auburn Thursday evening by the Auburn Moose by an 8 to 3 score.

Both teams were about even in the hit column, Moose getting 4 off of Akey while the locals could pick up but three off of Stage, Moose hurler. Five infield boots and one outfield error early in the game set up most of the Moose runs. Akey lashed out a long home run as the first batter up in the first inning.

WET SPOTS IN FIELDS SHOW DRAINAGE NEEDS

Uneven stands of oats and areas of sickly yellow corn observed after recent rain point out sharply the fields which need drainage.

About half of the farms in Indiana have benefitted from some drainage improvements but much work is still needed, Gerald Karstens, Purdue University agricultural engineer, says. Farmers who (tural engineer, say. Farmers with adequate drainage report increased yields a longer growing period, less risk from drough and a less hazardous time at harvest. The severe winter killing due to heaving can be overcome to some extent by proper drainage and a good drainage system can be considered an even more permanent improvement than buildings.

Farmers who consider building a drainage system will want to consider first if the soils are the type to benefit from a drainage system and how much drainage will be required. Further questions are:--Can the yield be materially increased and does the fertility of the soil warrant the expense?

A survey and estimate of cost based on the kind of drainage whether it is to be of tile, open ditches or a combinations of both should be made. Drainage engineers, such as personnel of the Soil Conservation Service, county surveyors, and consulting engineers, are qualified to make such estimates.

It is diffoult to estimate the length of time required for a drainage system to pay for itself. In recent years some drainage improvements have paid with incrased yields in two to three years. However, Karstens says that a conservative estimate is that the average increase should pay for the system in somewhat less than 50 years, depending upon the price of farm products and yields.

By JIM MITCHELL

If the success of a fishing season can be measured by the number of participants, 1949 unquestionably will be the most successful fishing year ever. Every stream and lake I have visited, with the exception of a few of off-the-way bodies of water in Canada, literally has been crowded with anglers. But not once have I have heard a complaint from the fisherman about the crowd.

On the opening day of the trout season in a state I normally visit each summer, I counted 112 fly fisherman in a stretch of water no longer than a quarter of a mile. In previous years this particualr stretch of stream had been an excellent trout poducer and it was not uncommon on opening day to see a dozen or so fishermen--but this year there were 112.

I opened their bass season in another state on a lake of of some two miles in length and a half a mile or so across. I didn't count all the boats and shore fishermen, but I'll wager there were at least four times as many fishing as last season on the initial day of the season.

On the trout stream and bass lake, the fishermen were taking fish--not as large as normally but fish that would look mighty good sizzling in the old frying pan.

I don't believe however, that it is anything to worry about. First, the fellow who goes fishing, finds the stream or lake crowded and doesn't like it can hang up his rod and quit the sport. He can take up golf or horseshoe pitching.

But the fellow who truly loves the sport of fishing will accept the crowded conditions as a challenge, a challenge to try to outwit the finny gamesters that are having more than twice the number of artificial lures or live bait tossed their way. A fisherman will have far more to brag about with one nice fish taken under these adverse conditions than a boat load of lunkers hauled from a virgin lake filled with fish.

Actually, it boils down to the sport of fishing vs fishing for meat. And, unquestionably, fishing for meat is a thing of the past, but fishng for sport is becoming more tempting all the time. For a change, the odds are stacked in favor of the fish and that's good, I think.

"What did you think of the big fight last night?"

"Fight? Say if me and the missus put on a show like that, the kids would have booed us."

Seize the Chance!

The barmaid was a flirt and when the corporal went out to buy a paper she pursed her lips invitingly and leaned over the bar toward the shy young private. Putting her face against his, she whispered:

"Now's your chance, darling."

The private looked around the empty room. "So it is," he remarked, and promptly drank the corporal's beer.

No Competition

The stage celebrity had spent an enjoyable and profitable summer playing leading roles at the various summer theaters. In most of the theaters, students of the stage, sparked more with enthusiasm than talent, supported the star. The actor, being asked how he liked the experience in relation to a Broadway production, answered:

"At a summer theater I never have to worry about somebody stealing a scene from me."

Fresh Food!

The high point of the kiddies' party had arrived. The hostess tripped triumphantly into the tensely anticipative room bearing a heaping platter of gelatin dessert. As she placed it on the table, it quivered and shook. Most of the youngsters shouted with delight. But one, a pudgy tow-headed boy, started to leave the table.

"None of that stuff for me," he announced firmly. "It ain't dead yet."

Killing Two Birds

A tired mother was walking her wailing infant back and forth at one o'clock in the morning when the bedroom door opened. Hubby appeared on the scene carrying his shoes.

"Oh, gee," she thought, "maybe he can quiet her."

Instead, he said:

"Here, put these shoes on. While you're walking, you might as well break 'em in for me."

Tours + Farms

by EVERETT MITCHELL

Farm Commentator, heard Monday through Saturday, 6:15-6:45 a. m. on WMAQ, Chicago, 670 on your dial.

DAIRY Month has drawn to a close and the bombardment of printed words and talk about our quality dairy products has died down. A good deal of the credit for the industry's production record has gone where it was due—to the producer, to the processors and of course, to good old Bossy herself.

However, there's one very important person on almost every farm in the country who's been pretty well neglected in the Dairy Month publicity—the farm wife. She is the real milk sanitation expert and a mighty important person when it comes to maintaining high quality in dairy products.

A Wisconsin milk inspectors' report found that dairymen with long and consistent records for top quality products give a great share of the credit to the Missus. I know a dairy farmer who has not had a can of milk rejected in 23 years, and another with a like record going back 11 years. Both of these gents gallantly pin the laurels on their wives, especially for the tedious but essential job of keeping the milk house and milking utensils clean and spotless.

Furthermore, this job of sanitation isn't the only place where Mrs. Farm Wife shines. She's the gal who is largely responsible for getting the man of the house interested in many new, labor-saving machines which lighten the work load in the milk house and tend to bring greater profits. Well, maybe the Missus does have a new hat in mind at the end of the season, but let's not pass up the big part she plays in the farm business partnership. I tip my hat to the farm Missus!

HINTS ON HEALTH by the INDIANA STATE MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

CHILDBIRTH RECOVERY

EARLY rising after childbirth offers a double benefit. The mother feels better, there is less chance for complications, and convalescence is more rapid. It also relieves the hospital shortage of beds and nurses.

Primitive mothers became active soon after childbirth due to necessity. Modern civilization, with its greater complexities, induced an acceptance of the belief that women needed long rest and care in bed. It was feared early movement after childbirth would bring dire complications, and a more or less conventional period of eight days in bed became customary.

Today the patient is encouraged to move about freely and go home several days earlier than formerly. The accepted time the patient can move about varies from six hours to four or five days after delivery. In some hospitals the mother is encouraged to dangle her feet over the side of the bed several times a day, beginning 12 hours after delivery. Usually, after 24 hours she can walk about her room, and after 48 hours she can walk down the hall. Early use of the muscles increases circulation throughout the body, which hastens healing and return of normal functions. Early ambulation does not mean, however, early resumption of household duties requiring strenuous exercise. The mother is the best judge of her strength, and she should not become overly tired.

The area of irrigated lands in the state of Idaho exceeds 2,225,000 acres.

FREED PHEASANTS WILL MAKE HAPPY HUNTING

With alomst 4,000 adult pheasants on the loose in Indiana it looks like happy hunting days are ahead for Indiana sportsmen when the legal season arrives.

This good news has been released by Hovey Pritchett, supervisor of game farms and preserves for the Indiana Department of Conservation.

Two thousand one hundred and sixty pheasants were released in April in thirty northern counties and this figure added to 1,800 released in twenty-five additional counties in varous parts of Indiana brings the total to the figures mentioned.

The birds, all adults -were released by Conservation officers and attaches of the Jasper-Pulaski game farm and preserve, assisted by Mr. Pritchett.

Seventy -two pheasants were allotted to each county in which the distribution took place.

Counties in which the recent liberation took place are Montgomery Fountain, Vermillion, Parke, Vigo, Clay, Putnam, Hendricks, Clinton, Tipton, Hamilton, Boone, Marion, Johnson, Shelby, Rush Hancock, Grant, Blackford, Jay, Randolph, Wayne, Henry, Delaware and Madison.

Henry P. Cottingham, director of the division of fish and game, announced that the distribution of various types of birds together with eggs will continue just as rapidly as conditions seem feasible.

Mr. Cottingham recently placed in effect a program which fostered further expansion of the department's activities by means of which all conservation organizations in the state will benefit greatly and activities along the line of conservation will be distirbuted to all Indiana organizations registered with the department.

FARM REAL ESTATE PRICES WEAKENING

Looking around the corner, farm real estate prices were seen in the first slight slip downward. For the last four months of the year ending March 1, 1949, real estate prices declined one per cent.

Purdue University agriculture economists in the May issue of Economic and Marketing Information said "It appears that we are near the crest in farm land prices. No sharp break is expected but values likely will recede slowly and somewhat irregularly from current high levels."

Indiana farm real estate prices for the year ending March 1, 1949, were up about two per cent. The Index was 172 on March 1, 1948 and 176 on March 1, 1949.

Existing methods for prevention of losses of grain from insects and rats are in use on farms to the extent of only 5 per cent of the farm storage capacity.

Texas leads all states in many items. It has a much larger production of petroleum than any other state in the Union, its lands are productive of many kind sof farm crops, and in all parts of it are manufactured institutions of various kinds.

The state of Colorado boasts about 6 million acres of farm lands. It boasts of 35 minerals of which gold and silver lead; it is the chief beet sugar producing state and has over sixteen beet sugar refineries; on account of its fine summer climate its tourist trade is large; its largest city, Denver is the trade center for the Rocky Mountain states.

Pennies For Sick Children On Riley Tomb

In memory of a man who wrote of the fantasies and realities of childhood as have few other poets, youthful visitors to the tomb of James Whitcomb Riley in Indianapolis have started the custom of placing there small coins in hopes that sick children may be well again. Since the announcement of a state-wide movement to establish the Riley Research Fund for scientific investigation of children's diseases, it is estimated that 400 to 500 coins have been placed on the tomb. They will become a part of the research fund. The Riley Memorial Association, builders of Riley Hospital, are sponsors of the fund.

GIRLS WHO WANT TO BECOME NURSES MAY APPLY FOR LOAN SCHOLARSHIP FUNDS

Girls who want to become nurses and have delayed applying to schools because of lack of funds have until September to put in requests for some of the many loan or scholarship funds, according to Miss Edwina MacDougall, director of counseling and placement for the Indiana State Nurses' Association.

"Also girls entering their senior year in high school who have decided on nursing as a career may make application at the beginning of the fall term, particularly for the more competitive grants," she said.

Erucation funds for students and graduate nurses are available from a number of sources. Scholarships - financial grants which do not involve repayment - are awarded by the American Committee for Nursing Scholarship, the General Federation of Women's Clubs, the U. S. Veterans Administration (this is only for veterans of World War II). Local units of national and international organization - Rotary, Lions, Altrussa, Business and Professional Women, Zonta, Pilot, Women of the Moose, provide them. In Indiana the Tri Kappas, Psi Iota Zi and Sunshine clubs also give aid as do many of the posts of the American Legion, the junior chamber of commerce, women's auxiliary of county medical societies and alumnae associations of the schools.

Loan funds are provided by these organizations in many communities as well as by the PEO sisterhood and the Knights Templar.

The alumnae associations of many schools give both scholarshps and loans. In the Indiana University School of Nursing there are 200 state scholarships in semester fees, and also merit scholarships which pay fees. This school also has a Florence Nightingale loan available to girls who have completed six months of training. Methodist Hospital in Indianapolis has a White Cross Guild loan fund.

The Indiana State Medical Association provides $100 in each accredited school each semester although that fund is commited at the present time.

"Many organizations are just beginning to provide help for girls wanting to become nurses," Miss MacDougall said. "Girls who are interested can find out what form of help is available to them, either through the school they wish to attend or through the state nurses' association's Indianapolis headquarters."

REPRINTS READY OF TOMATO BULLETIN

"Simplifying Tomato Canning Factory Operations," a Purdue University Experiment Station bulletin suggesting ways to increase plant efficiencies is again available. Poular demand for this bulletin has resulted in a sceond printing.

The authors, L. J. Haverkamp and Jr. Lowell S. Hardin of the agricultural economics staff, studied more than 50 plants to obtain material to write the bulletin. Work methods were checked from the time raw tomatoes arrived at the canning factory to the shipping of cases to the warehouse.

The Purdue bulletin discusses transporting peeled tomatoes, supplying empty ones, processing, ware and plant layout. The authors suggest changes for each operation that would cut plant costs and increase efficiency.

Copies of the Experiment Station Bulletin 528 are obtainable at county agents' office or from the University.

Have you seen the dump in the last 2 weeks?

Your Town Board is dumbfounded. We admit we are whipped.

Twice this year it has been necessary to hire a bulldozer at $10.00 per hour to push the trash over the hill, which would all be unnecessary if each person using the dump would put the trash over the hill.

Tax dollaors are being wasted, and its your tax dollar.

Shall we close the dump?

Marching Songs

Lesson for July 10, 1949

WE did not win all the battles we fought with Japan. The day of a certain naval defeat near the Philippines, an American "baby" carrier, left to its fate, was doing its best to get away from the pursuing Japanese. All afternoon it dodged and twisted. Enemy destroyers and planes were hot on its trail, and it was a "sitting duck" in case they really got the range. No one on board expected to live. The only question in anybody's mind was: How soon will they get us? But late in the afternoon, for some reason never explained, the enemy gave up the chase, and the American ship slipped off into the protecting night. The next day, as the men gathered for a special service of thanksgiving, the chaplain read the 124th Psalm. It came as a new Psalm altogether to those men, even to those who had known it by heart:

Dr. Foreman

"If it had not been the Lord who was on our side, when men rose up against us, then they had swallowed us up quick, when their wrath was kindled against us; then the . . . proud waters had gone over our soul. Blessed be the Lord, who hath not given us as a prey to their teeth."

"Let Me Write A Nation's Songs"

THE POWER to thrill has not been lost by the Psalms, as the men on that carrier found out. The group numbered 120 through 134 in our Bibles are known as the "Pilgrim Marching Songs," and were originally used by the Hebrews as they went year by year up to their capital city of Jerusalem and to the Temple which was the center of their religion. Then as now, the Hebrews were a singing people. A nation that cannot sing, a nation without songs, is a dismal country indeed.

Difference among various countries is symbolized by their songs, or the lack of them. The Chinese, for instance, have no song that draws them all together in the same way that Englishmen are united in "God Save the King" or as Frenchmen once were by the "Marseillaise."

When it comes to pass, as once it did in the United States, that one part of the nation will sing one song (say, "John Brown's Body") while another part will not sing that song but another one (say, "Dixie,"), then civil war is at the gates. Only people who will sing together can be trusted to live together.

Singing Church

IN the long caravans, marching up the rocky hillside trails to Jerusalem, the ancient Hebrews put their faith into stirring words set to music. So it is always. All over the Christian world, wherever and whenever the singing is good, religion is warm and vigorous.

Where the heart is full, there will be song. Revivals of religion are revivals of singing. To this day a stranger in a strange city, looking for a church home, is most likely to settle down in the church where the singing is the best.

It is not an accident that the Moravian church is at the same time the church that makes more of Easter than some other churches, it is the church where at funerals the music is never sad but joyous, not mourning-songs but triumphant hymns of Christian faith.

Patriotism and Religion

READ these marching Psalms through—the reading time is only a few minutes—and see for yourself how the ancient Hebrew men of God united their praise of Him with love for their country. To this day, in our Christian hymnals, patriotism and religion are often combined. The English national anthem, "God Save the King," is a prayer; so is "America the Beautiful." National hymns have a rightful place in a book of public worship. For while patriotism, by itself, is a poor substitute for religion, still a man who will not love his country lacks something of being a good Christian, and on the other hand a man without faith in God makes a very poor citizen.

Town + Farm

by EVERETT MITCHELL

Farm Commentator, heard Monday through Saturday, 6:15-6:45 a. m. on WMAQ, Chicago, 670 on your dial.

HARD work in a hot, dusty field is tough enough on the farmer, but how about a kind thought for his tractor? Heat, dust and overwork take their toll in temper and fatigue from the man, and often gang up on a smoothly running machine, making it balky as a mule, or maybe putting it out of commission altogether.

The heavy work season in the summer is just when you need top performance from your tractor and other mechanical equipment, and the best way to keep it purring is by frequent and careful servicing. Give extra attention to the cooling and lubrication systems, air filters and the battery.

Probably more tractors land on the junk heap because of neglect of the air cleaner system than for any other reason. The oil bath cleaner should be kept filled with clean motor oil and the air cleaner should be checked after each day's use. All air intake connections should be tight and clean to keep dust out.

Although most of us associate that irritating problem of battery failure with cold weather, summer heat also can play havoc with the battery of a tractor. The combination of engine heat, the sun and heavy duty will drain the water off battery plates in a hurry and no water—no power. Check the battery often and add water whenever the level falls below the top of the separators. Be careful in filling a cold battery, because the water will expand when it gets heated.

Cooling systems can be flushed of dirt, grease and other deposits by the use of many flushing preparations. Run the engine for a while with the cleaning fluid in the radiator, but be sure to drain and flush with clean water [illegible]rds. Calling all outdoorsmen

I happened to hear an argument the other day between two well informed conservationists that struck a rather deep note in my own thinking.

First off one of the fellows said: "Give me a few fellows who are willing to contribute heavily to any worthy conservation program and forget the dollar-a-head guys."

The other man favored the masses including many, many contributors at a low fee.

Whose right? I'll side in with the fellow arguing for small fees and mast contributors.

Take Ducks Unlimited, for instance. This organization is supported soley by contributions and, for the most part, a few thousand men and women donate large amounts of money to the cause of northernbreeding areas.

Wouldn't it be better if you had several hundred thousand contributors to Ducks Unlimited at a dollar apiece. I think so, for every contributor regardless of the sum he donated would feel that he or she had a part in protecting and raising waterfowl. That same contributor would be less inclined to go out to a lake or marsh with the devil may-care attitude and kill more than a limit.

The old argument of the Masses vs A Few however, is typical of most sportsman's clubs. We know of many clubs boasting of memberships that range into the thousands, yet when there is work to be done only a few respond to the request. Sure, all the members pay their dues - - and that helps in worthy causes. But if they'd all back up their dues with personal labor on projects it would be so much better all-'round.

It is unfortunate, but the current outdoor look is anything but bright. Too many hunters and fishermen have the attitude, "to heck with let's get our share today!" And it is just such thinking that's making it extremely tough to encourage and promote sound conservation practices.

Money, naturally is important. But it's not nearly as important as having millons of sportsmen schooled in sound conservation work who are willing to forget a day of shooting or fishing now and then to help restore our outdoors to a better and more productive place for all sportsmen - - now and in the future.

So the next time you get a call from your sportsman's club, think twice before declining to help out. It you don't, it's like cutting off your nose to spite your face!

EMPLOYERS MUST REPORT ALL EARNINGS, WHETHER PAYMENT IS IN CASH OR OTHER MEDIUM

The local social security points out that while employers unsually report all cash payments to their employees, they do not always include the money value of other pay which is made in some medium other than cash. This has come to the attention of the office during the handling of claims for benefit payments in the 8 counties in this area.

Christian H. W. Luecke, manager of the Ft. Wayne social security office explained that the word "wages" as used in the Social Security Act include pay of various types. It includes cash, payments in kind such as meals, lodging, rent or goods, and of course, salaries, bonuses, back pay as well as pay by the hour, day or week.

Workers who receive part or all of lodging, rent, or goods of any sort, their pay in the form of meals or and have reason to believe their wage accounts are incorrect, should contact the Ft. Wayne social security office, located at Room 305, Federal Building. Ask for a postcard form which makes it easy to obtain a statement of wages credited to the employee's account.

All persons covered by Federal old-age and survivors insurance should keep in mind that benefit payments to them or their survivors are based on wages from jobs covered by the Social Security Act.

JOAN KRYDER, ROBERT MILLER WED AT LEO

Miss Joan Kryder, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Kryder, Cedarville, became the bride of Robert Lee Miller, son of Mrs. Guenna Miller, Leo, and Clifford L. Miller, Ft. Wayne in a candlelight ceremony read at 7 p. m., Saturday, in the Leo Methodist Church.

The Rev. Mr. Jack Stout of Peoria, Illinois, assisted by the Rev. Charles Clifton of Leo, officiated as the vows were exchangd in the double ring rite before the altar banked with palms, hampers of white gladiolus with fern and baby's breath, and the candelabras of white tapers.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white marquisette gown over white satin, ina basque bodice style, with the oval yoke outlined with a wide ruffle of chantilly lace that also trimmed the full skirt in a caught up apron effect in the front and extended around the long train. Long sleeves tapered to points over the wrists and satin covered buttons extended down the back of the waist. Her three quarters length veil of illusion edged in chantilly lace was held in place by a head piece of seed pearls and crystal beads formed into orange blossoms. She carried a cascade bouquet of white roses with removable corsage that she wore to complete her going away costume of polka dotted white silk crepe with matching accessories.

Miss Joyce Kryder was her sister's maid of honor, Lynda Lou Thompson attended as flower girl and Wayne Neuhouser served as best man. Dean Boudner, small cousin of the groom, carried the rings on a white, heart-shaped cushinon.

A reception was held following the ceremony at the home of the brides parents in Cedarville.

The newlyweds will be at home in Leo after a two week's trip through the south.

LADINO DOUBLES RANGE CAPACITY

Ladino clover pastures are more than doubling the number of pullets ranged per acre, according to reports of Hoosier poultrymen.

While the average pasture will furnish range for 300 to 500 pullets per acre Alexander Gordeuk, extension poultryman at Purdue U. cites the farm of Lee Foster and son, Paul, where approximately 1300 pullets are ranged per acre on ladino clover pasture. A month after the pullets were put out to range, the Purdue man visited the farm. He observed that the excellent condition of the clover would undoubtedly provide top quality range up to the time the pullets are placed in the laying house.

The Fosters have 3200 pullets on two and one-half acres and plant one acre each year to be ranged the following year, thereby using a rotation plan. The clover is seeded at the rate of one pound of ladino per acre with oats as a nurse crop.

The ladino pasture is preferred over all other pasture mixtures by raisers as they have found it produces a large amount of succulent growth on a small area, provides pasture far into the summer, and withstands dry periods quite well.

Gordeuk points out that ladino clover is higher than almost any other pasture grass in protein content and in addition, the birds like it - - all of which saves considerable feed.

Is Your Appetite Fatigued? Try Jellied Wine Bouillon

Jellied Bouillon is a chef's treat for heat-weary appetites. Dressed up with avocado and smoothly flavored with California wine, it is a most refreshing way to begin a summer luncheon or dinner. You won't need to go to a fine restaurant for it, either. Prepare it easily at home by following this simple recipe:

JELLIED AVOCADO BOUILLON
(Serves 6)

2 tablespoons plain, unflavored gelatin
½ cup cold water
2 (10½ oz.) cans condensed bouillon
½ cup California Sherry Wine
2 tablespoons lemon juice
Salt and pepper to taste
1 medium sized avocado
Lemon wedges

Soften gelatin in cold water for 5 minutes; dissolve over hot water. Mix bouillon, Sherry, lemon juice, salt and pepper; add dissolved gelatin; chill until slightly thickened. Peel avocado and cut in very tiny dice; fold into gelatin mixture; chill until firm. At serving time, spoon into bouillon cups. Serve lemon wedges as an accompaniment.

Accidents never happen to you!

You lead a charmed life! Even when you take chances like this, nothing ever happens. You've pulled a balky corn stalk out of the ensilage cutter dozens of times without getting your fingers caught. Accidents never happen to you!

Or do they?

Is it always the other guy who gets hurt? This farmer thought so too, but he's in the hospital now with a crippled arm. Accidents like this injure thousands of farmers every year. Remember, the safe way is the fastest way in the long run.

Falls are caused by carelessness. Keep stairways clear and in good repair. Put up hand rails on all stairways. Check ladders, steps and floors for cracks and dry rot. It may save you a bad fall.

Bossis may be kind and gentle most of the time, but don't take chances. Approach all farm animals cautiously with a friendly word or pat. You may be kicked or gored to death unless you do.

FARM TOUR TO BE HELD JULY 27TH IN WHITLEY AND NOBLE COUNTIES

Final plans have been completed for the 1949 State Farm Management Tour to be held Wednesday July 27, in Whitley and Noble counties, in northeastern Indiana. "Management That Pays" will be the central theme of the tour which will begin at the Robert Pontizius farm, six miles northeast of Columbia City at 9:00 a.m. DST. This tour is sponsored by the State Farm Management Association, but according to F. H. Demaree, Lafayette, Sec of the Association any person interested in farming is welcome.

All three of the farms to be visited are practical, profitable, family size farms. The Pontizius farm is a 138-acre farm on which a good combination of dairy, hog and poultry enterprises as well as proper land use and high profit crops will be observed. In order to expand his business, Mr. Pontzius has built a new 500 hen laying house and has made a tramp shed in his barn to accomodate more dairy cows. The second farm to be visited is the Rosentrader brothers' 200-acre dairy-hog farm, located at the south edge of Churubusco. How 25 dairy cows and 400 head of hogs are used to consume the legume hay and corn raised and purchased by the Rosentraders each year will be discussed on the visit to their farm. Also sound cropping practices and a profitable rotation will be observed.

The third stop on the tour will be made at the Clair Swogger farm, two miles north of Kendallville in Noble county. Mr. Swogger's farm is operated as a one man unit with crops, hogs and a 1500-hen laying flock. He has converted sections of a dairy barn into laying houses. His pullets are raised in range shelters on ladino clover. Farmers who visit this farm will see how a big business can be built on an 80-acre farm.

Charles E. Snyder, editor of the Chicago Daily Drover's Journal, will deliver an address at the noon lunch and program to be held at the Kendallville fairgrounds.

A banquet and outlook session will be held prior to the tour at 7:00 p. m., DST, July 26 at Auburn in the Chamber of Commerce building. At this evening meeting, Dr. Earl Butz, Chief of the Agricultural Economics Department, Purdue U. will outline the economic outlook. The outlook for hogs, dairy and poultry, beef cattle, and feed will be given by other members of the Ag. Economic staff. R. H. Bauman, Farm Management Specialist, will then discuss how to adjust the farm business to the outlook. All persons interested in attending this banquet and outlook session and the tour are urged by Mr. Demaree to get banquet and noon lunch tickets from their local county agent. The county agent will also have information about overnight accomodations.

ENTERTAINMENT IN BOTH THE MODERN and old-time manner is expected to attract 3,000,000 visitors to the Chicago Railroad Fair this summer. Many new exhibits in the spectacular 50-acre exposition on the lakefront afford a great variety in entertainment and educational features to Fairgoers.

A glittering new ice show and a thrilling exhibition of water sports will vie for attention throughout the summer with such historic attractions as a San Francisco cable car and the rip-roaring frontier town of "Gold Gulch," where a "gambling den," an assay office, old-time bank, barber shop, printing office for the town's newspaper, a courthouse, jail and leather emporium will all be open for business as in the Gold Rush days.

New scenes have been added to the popular "Wheels a-Rolling" pageant, including a "Buffalo Bill" circus parade, led by the famous ringmaster astride his white horse, and a scene featuring the bridal coach which was built in London 111 years ago and brought to Nova Scotia on the same ship with the new governor general of Canada and was used to carry his bride and himself from the seaport to their new home 25 miles away.

NEW CARE THRIFT PACKAGE NOW AVAILABLLE

As the result of the recent introduction of a CARE "Thrift" package, 1949 CARE sales throughout Indiana are confidently expected to reach, if not to surpass, last year's total.

Residents of the state of Indiana have so far contributed 69,602 packages to the total of almost eight million relief packages distribute by CARE among the needy of sixteen overseas countries during the past three years.

CARE (Cooperative for American Remittances to Europe, Inc., began its operation as a non profit, government approved service in May, 1946. For the eight-month period of that year, Indiana's share was 7,175 packages of CARE's total of 990,000 for the same period. In 1947, CARE Sales throughout the Hoosier State jumped to 24,318 and reached an even higher peak with 30,747 packages in 1948. For the first four months of the current year, Indiana sales totalled 7,362 packages.

Most of these packages, either purchased by individual donors directly from CARE, or bought through agencies, were standard CARE food packages at the price of $10 each. In addition, many special British Greek, Italian and Kosher food packages as well as baby food, layette and texitile packages went to make up Indiana's total.

The "Thrift" package, at $5.50 was especially designed to permit Indiana residents to continue aiding their friends and relatives abroad through the medium ofCare. Orders for all these packages may be placed with any CARE outlet, or directly with CARE headquarters, 20 Broad Street, New York 5.

a new role for television

..CAPTURING A FLAME!

Think of television and you think of opera, ball games, comedy . . . of entertainment. Television would probably never strike you as a handy working tool for capturing a flame! Just the same, that's what television is in power plants today. The result is better electric service for you.

You see, the men in the power plant control room must know all about flame conditions in the huge boilers where the steam is made that turns the generators. But the control room is some distance from the furnace, so men at both points communicate through a public address system. . . .

At least that's how it was before our engineers got the idea that maybe television could do the job. Now cameras at furnace peep holes televise the flame, send its image directly to a viewing unit in the control room. Much time is saved—and split seconds count when you're "lighting off" burners to bring a boiler into service. Besides, with the new method, there is less chance than ever before of service interruptions that might inconvenience you.

Before long, television will be at work capturing flames in more power plants of the American Gas and Electric System, of which this—your power company—is a part. Meanwhile, our engineers continue their research into other new methods and devices. They are exploring every possible means of making your electric service better and better.

Six Escape Death At RR Crossing Tuesday

Six persons escaped death or serious injury Tuesday afternoon when the car they were riding in was hit by a freight train on the B. & O. crossing one mile east of St. Joe.

Mrs. Waneeta Brenniman, accompanied by her two daughters, Marilyn nd Boneeta, Mrs. George Dilley and her two daughters, Karen, age 4, and Martha, age 9, all of Ashley, Ind., was headed south as she came to the crossing. Both women looked for approaching trains and saw none As they crossed the track another car approached from the south and Mrs. Brenniman, thinking that there was too little room to pass, stopped on the crossing and attempted to back up. The motor died as a train came into view and attempts to start the car were futile.

According to the sheriff's office all the occupants got out of the car before the train hit except Karen and Martha, one of whom was thrown out of the car from the force of the impact. Neither suffered injury beyond cuts and bruises and a good shaking up. They were taken to Dr. Kreischer's office in Spencerville by Garford Smith.

The car, a 1949 Hudson sedan was a total loss, $2900. The engine of the train was also damaged and a replacement was soon dispatched to take its place.

PASSENGER SLIGHTLY INJURED IN CRASH NEAR SPENCERVILLE

Bennett Lay of Takoma Park, Md. was slightly injured early Sunday evening when the automobile in which he was riding was involved in a two-car collision that occurred at an intersection a mile and three quarters east of Spencerville.

Lay, who was released after treatment for head lacerations at the office of a Hicksville, O., physician, was riding in a car driven by Lewis Washler of R. 1, Spencerville. Operator of the other car, according to investigating officers, was Donald Pine of Harlan.

Pine was driving a 1939 Ford south on a country highway when his car collided with Washler's 1941 Chrysler, which was traveling west on a country road. Damage to the Chrysler was estimated at $200 with about $125 damage to the Ford.

FIRST OUTBREAK OF CHINCH BUGS REPORTED BY CONCORD TWP. FARMER

The county extension office reports that the first outbreak of chinch bugs has been reported to the offic by Glenn Cole, farmer in Concord Township. Hot dry weather are ideal condition for the development of chinch bugs. The county extension office warns farmers to be on the lookout for infestations moving into corn fields from small grain areas.

The standard control for outbreaks of chinch bugs is the creosote barrier between small grain fields, hay fields and the corn. A barrier of creosote, if placed soon enough, normally gives good control.

A new chemical, however, has been showing promise of controlling chinch bugs in experimental trials. It is known as chloridane, according to County Agent C. R. Gross. Experiments used up to 2 pounds of chloridane wettable powder per acre. A good control of chinch bugs has been obsereved in these experimental plots. Where small gallonage per acre is being used, it may be necessary to use the emulsion form to avoid clogging nozzles; but some damage can develop by using the emulsion spray on corn or vegetation.

Hymn to a Summer's Day

An Open Letter to the Telephone Co.

GENTLEMEN:

This letter is written with the hope that something can be done regarding the difference between the cost of maintaining a telephone in the home or place of business in St. Joe and the quality of service received not from the individuals of the telephone company, but rather from the obsolete equipment which St. Joe is "blessed" with.

Last week on three occasions the operator had to act as a transmitter of messages for the News Office due to the fact that one or both parties were unable to hear distinctly enough to carry on a conversation. It seems evident that the fault is in the old equipment now in use since the operator could hear the other party but the News Office could not.

The exchange rate for private line is now $3.75. In a small town such as St. Joe many toll calls are made, particularly by busines firms, which raise the monthly bill considerably. In the case of the News Office the monthly bill averages approximately $5.50 to $5.75 (including tax). For this amount we feel entitled to improved equipment to give better service.

We wish to emphasize that we are not criticizing the local operators. We feel that they do a fine job with what they have to work with. You can DO just so much WITH just so much.

Sincerely yours,
The St. Joe News

CONCORD JR. HOME EC. CIRCLE

July 11th meeting of the Jr. Home Ec. Club was held at the home of Marcia Sible. Katy Crow opened the meeting and Marcelle Storer led the singing, followed by reading the club Collect by Alta Hablawetz. Louise Church, one of our guests gave us a very interesting talk on rhumatic fever, also touching lightly on the subject of polio. Everyone greatly appreciated the information received.

The roll call of "Salad Hints" was answered by 10 members and 3 guests. Our next meeting will be held August 1, at the home of Billie Mason.

Marcia Sible gave us a very good lesson on salads which she prepared before the club and afterwards the club sampled it and found very tasty. This day being Katy Crow's birthday she was present d with a very lovely cake with candles on it along with many pretty hankies from the members. Marcia then served a fruit salad with the cake and 1 mon aide.

We then closed our meeting by reading the club creed. Hoping to see more new faces at our next meeting.

Why Church Music?

Lesson for July 17, 1949

WHY church music? Hymn books are expensive, learning new hymns is a bother, choirs are a lot of trouble. Most preachers need more time for their sermons; why not cut out the music and let them have fifteen minutes extra? No sir; it won't do. Say what you please, the average church-goer knows better than that. He may never have thought it out and he might not have heard of the word "hymnology," but Mr. Average Churchman likes music in the church, even if he never opens his mouth himself.

Dr. Foreman

SINGING in church was not invented yesterday. In the Psalms, as in our own hymnals, some of the poems were originally written and intended for use in public worship. The word "liturgy" simply means the order of manner of service, and all churches have liturgies whether they give them that name or not.

Our familiar "Holy, Holy, Holy," was written for use in an early morning service; "Bread of the world" was written as a Communion hymn; "Break Thou the Bread of Life" while often used at Communion was not so intended, as you can tell by reading it carefully; it was meant for use just before the reading of the Scripture.

"Day is Dying in the West" is best used in an out-door service, "Ivory Palaces" was written one Sunday afternoon in North Carolina for use in an evangelistic meeting that night. It might interest you to leaf through your own hymnal and see how many hymns were written purposely for church use.

Songs of the Temple

THREE liturgical Psalms are our lesson selection. Use your imagination when you read them. As you read Psalm 24, think of a great procession marching through the streets of Jerusalem on a holy day and approaching the tall temple shining on the city's highest hill. Singing as they climb, perhaps one part of the congregation sings the question: "Who shall ascend into the hill of the Lord? Who shall stand in his holy place?" Perhaps another group of voices takes up the answer: "He that hath clean hands, and a pure heart . . ." As the great gates swing open, the chant rises: "Lift up your heads, O ye gates!" for the King of Kings, the Lord of Lords, is marching.

The little kings (in Israel and over the world) have come and gone; only the Lord of Hosts is the King of Glory. Singing the glory of God brings it before the mind far better than reading about it in a book!

Then the 84th Psalm is taken from what they called the "Chief Musician's Collection," evidently a part of what we now would call the choir library. It is the song of a man who loves the church and loves the people whom he finds there. Psalm 95:1-7b is also obviously a song for public worship, and still is sung every morning in churches around the world.

The Best is Not Too Good

IF in ancient times when God's people were learning to sing, the noblest poems of inspired men were set to the best music available and used for the honor of God and the help of man, then surely Christians ought to do no less.

If you had a friend coming to see you, one whom you respect and wish to honor, you certainly would not set the table with all the chipped-up old kitchen china and you wouldn't put wilted flowers on the table and you certainly wouldn't keep the radio tuned to the tin-panniest trash you could find on the dial.

No, if you have anything for him you want it to be of the very best. Why not so with God? The house of God is no place for cheap, bad music, jingly meaningless rhymes instead of noble hymns and psalms, tiresome grind-organ tunes or jazzy swing stuff instead of music that has real power and beauty. If nonsense is bad in a sermon, it is worse in a prayer and worst of all in a hymn. If mere noise is bad in a sermon, it is worse in a prayer and unbearably bad in a hymn.

DEKALB COUNTY RESIDENTS WIN PRIZES IN WOOL SHOW

DeKalb county sheepmen ran away with the wool show at the 13th annual Fort Wayne district market lamb and wool show at the Fort Wayne Union stockyards Thursday by showing all but one of the winning fleeces.

It was a repeat for the DeKalb county farmers and 4-H club members who captured top positions in the wool show at Fort Wayne last year. While DeKalb entrants were winning the wool show, Allen county farmers and 4-H members captured all top places in the market lamb show.

A fleece entered by Sally Emrick of Rt. 2 Auburn, was named grand champion after taking first place in the quarter blood class. Her staple fine fleece won second in its class.

Joe Gerig, Jr., of southeast of Auburn took first place in the staple fine class; Mrs. A. J. Moore of near Butler, first in the three-eights blood; and K. W. Marks of near Auburn, first in the half blood class.

Following were other awards:

Staple fine fleece: Sally Emerick, Auburn, second; Joe Gerig, Sr. Auburn third; Ralph Carnahan, Auburn, fourth.

Three-eights blood: Oscar Lower, Auburn, second; Charles Salomon, Allen County, third; Rudy Ross, South Whitley, fourth.

Half blood: Jerry Emrick, Auburn, third; Joe Gerig, Sr., fourth.

A total of 34 pens and 45 fleeces were entered in the show. In the wool auction,, Ray Carnahan of Auburn gave 70 cents for the fine staple, the Indiana Farm Bureau Co-op gave 65 cents for the three-eights blood, Carnahan gave 65 cents for the half blood, and Weil's gave 58 cents for the quarter blood.

By EVERETT MITCHELL

Farm Commentator, heard Monday through Saturday, 6:15-6:45 a. m. on WMAQ, Chicago, 670 on your dial.

WE Americans pride ourselves on keeping ahead of the rest of the world and boast, rightfully, of the highest standard of living of any nation. But, according to a recent survey made in rural areas across this country, our farmers are far behind the times in regard to farm homes and buildings.

In the past few years, when farmers have been getting a good return on their investments, more and more of them have been putting dollars aside for building improvements and remodeling. If you are one of those who are planning to remodel, it will pay you to give plenty of time and thought to meeting the needs of your family—and those of your livestock—before tackling the job.

A person who remodels always thinks that he has drawn up the perfect plan to give him the most comfort and utility. However, take it from one of the many who has made mistakes, generally something is forgotten. Put everything down on paper before you drive the first nail.

Comfort and beauty are probably the primary considerations in the construction of a home. For other farm structures efficiency is the more important. However, we must remember that to be efficient, some buildings have to provide comfort—a new poultry house, for instance.

A short time ago I saw an excellent poultry house that had been constructed from simple plans obtained through a state extension service. It was built to provide laying hens with maximum comfort in both winter and summer, equipped to encourage feed consumption and boost egg production, and so arranged that the farmer's work could be done with a minimum of effort. In your planning consider a new poultry house and send for some of those excellent extension service bulletins to help you along.

4-H Safety Workers in All-Out Attempt to Reduce Accidents on Farms in 1949

MR. FARMER, has the 4-H Club member in your family checked your farm and home for accident and fire hazards lately? If not, you can expect him to do so any day now. 4-H'ers are making an all-out attempt to reduce the annual cost of accidents affecting farm folks—including motor vehicle, fire and property damage — which totals more than one billion dollars, or about $35.00 per person! They are also trying to cut down the number of accidental deaths, which kill 51 farm residents in the U. S. every day in the year.

Your 4-H'er doubtless will caution you to drive carefully on highways, and use proper signals when turning or stopping (top right). More than 7,300 rural people are killed annually in motor vehicle accidents. In fact, more fatal automobile accidents occur in rural areas than in any other location.

Falls rank second in farm accident causes. So watch your step when carrying a clothes basket, like the girl shown in right photo. Your 4-H safety worker probably will suggest you tack down throw rugs or put them on non-slip matting, and keep stairways unlittered.

Are your lightning rods properly grounded? The 4-H'ers shown at top left found the ground wires broken, and therefore worthless. Lightning, which is one of the greatest causes of farm fires, each year destroys 20 million dollars worth of farm property, kills 500 farm residents and injures 1,300 others.

National Farm Safety Week will be observed July 24-30. Rural boys and girls taking part in the National 4-H Farm Safety program want to make you, your family and neighbors safety minded so that accidents mentioned above won't happen.

For achievements in safety work, the 4-H boy or girl may receive a prized sterling silver medal of honor as county winner. General Motors also provides an educational trip to the National 4-H Club Congress, Chicago, next November, for the state winner, and $300.00 college scholarships for each of the eight national champions. By practicing safety from this time on, you'll not only help your 4-H'er in his safety work, but help save a life—which may be your own.

The National 4-H Farm Safety program is conducted under the direction of the Cooperative Extension Service.

Every so often something is developed for fishing or hunting that quickly meets with the public's fancy and, Bang, it's asuccess overnight

For instance, the Firelure Corp. not long ago developed Gantron for tying flies. Gantron is a substance that picks up ultra violet rays and then gives them off. Fabrics made of Gantron have a visability six or seven times greater than any other materials known. Flies, too, have visability - - to humans, at least, and probably to fish as well.

But regardless of merit, the fishing public took a fancy to Gantron-tied flies, and many of the sporting goods stores I do business with would hardly more than unpack a shipment of these special lures until they'd be gone.

Now the Firelure Corp. has added Fire Lacquer - - a Gantron liquid for painting plugs, spoons and other bait casting lures. It's not yet on the market and, when available, will be sold only to manufactures the same as Gantron F.

Two months ago I painted some sample lures with Gantron and went after largemouth bass in a southern lake. It's been proved that the Gantron lures work beetter early in the morning, late evening or on dull and cloudy days. Fortunately, for my first test, it rained and was cloudy during the two days of fishing - - and Gantron-painted plugs out-fished any of my regular and favorite plugs.

"This is wonderful," I thought to myself. Two weeks later, I tried the same lures in different water and under different conditions and the Gantron-painted lures failed to produce as well as the old standbys from the tackle box.

Now I'm ready for the annual trek into the wilderness of Canada after bass, muskellunge, northern pike, walleys and lake trout. The tackle box is well stocked with the old favorites and some newly painted Gantron lures. What the results will be in Gantron vs. Regulars is unpredictable. But at least it makes for good arguments -- and arguments make for better fishing.

GRAIN FOR STORAGE SHOULD HAVE LOW MOISTURE CONTENT

Several thousand bushels of grain in DeKalb County spoils each year because of too much moisture at combining time, according to County Agent, C. R. Gross. The moisture content of all small grains should be 14 percent or below at combining time for safe storage. Often times when wheat appears ready for combining it still contains as high as 17 to 18 per cent moisture. Grain spoils in very short time when piled up in storage bins during summer climatic conditions.

The small grain crop in DeKalb County appears to be pointing the way to another bumper harvest. With proper harvesting and storage many thousands of of dollars worth of grain may be saved and utilized if farmers will be sure of the moisture content when combining grain. Local elevators have moisture testing machines which in a few seconds can tell a farmer if his grain is ready for combining. The county agent urges farmers of the county to take advantage of this service offered by local elevators and seedsmen. With support prices being based on grain meeting storage standards it is more important than ever to be sure of the moisture content when placing the grain in storage.

MARKET NEWS RELEASE

At the close of last week, the dressed meat trading was fairly active. Light fresh pork cuts and lean cow beef were scarce and inquiries were somewhat heavier, possibly due to cooler weather. Veal and lamb trading carried the same trend. This condition created a firm to strong reaction in Monday's, June 11th, trading and according to reports made by Producers Marketing Ass'n in Ft. Wayne, most sales were steady to strong as compared to Friday, June 6th.

In the hog market light weight butchers sold from 21.50 to 21.75 with a few strictly choice type a little higher. Medium weight butchers brough 21.25 to 21.50 -- Butchers 19.25 to 20.25--Heavy butchers 17.00 to 19.00 Light weight roughs sold from 16.00 to 17.00 with heavier offerings down to 12.00. Most medium weight butchers and heavier sold at steady prices but with a rather week undertone since the dressed meat trade is demanding lighter cuts.

Calves were 50c higher on choice off rings at 26.50 while medium and good grades sold from 22.50 to 25.50 Lambs were steady with choice selling at 25.00. Medium and good grads brought from 19.00 to 24.00

The cattle market was steady with choice steers up to 26.00 and choice heifers 25.00. Good and choice cows brought 15.50 to 17.00. Medium 14.50 to 15.50 - - Canners & Cutters sold at 10.50 to 15.00. Most offerings fell in the upper canner and cutter class and medium.

Keep hogs moving in moderate supply. Any sudden outburst of heavy marketing will certainly hurt prices.

James Wilks Killed In Auto Mishap South Of Town

World War II Veteran And Father Of Two Children Killed In Freak Accident

James F. Wilks, 37, an employee of the Universal Tool and Die Co. at Spencerville and a resident of this place was killed instantly at about 1:10 a. m. Sunday morning on highway 1 a half mile south of St. Joe. State Toopers said that Wilks suffered a fractured skull when he was thrown from his car in a freak accident, after his machine had crashed into a mailbox, sheared off the left rear wheel and spun out of control.

State police said Wilks was drivng alone in a Model A Ford when it crashed into a mailbox on the wrong side of the highway, spun off of the road when the wheel was sheared off.. Wilks was apparently thrown from the car when it skidded back onto the highway. The machine then spun in the highway and backed up to strike Wilks' body. The rear bumper of the car struck him in the neck and back of the head.

A group of young people driving past the scene of the accident notified authorities. His body was found an estimated half hour after the crash.

Wilks, who is married and the father of two children was born near Cedarville. For the past five years he had lived in St. Joe.

The victim was a veteran of three years' service in the army. He was a member of the Auburn American Legion Post.

Surviving, besides the wife, the former Zelma Donley of this community, and the two children, are his mother, Mrs. Fada Gerig of Cedarville and two sisters.

Johnnie Lee Sennett, pastor of the Church of Christ here officiated at last rites which were held Tuesday afternoon at the Gerig Funeral Home in Auburn. Graveside rites with full military honros were presented at the Leo cemetery.

THREE SLIGHTLY INJURED IN CRASH NEAR SPENCERVILLE

Three young men were injured, none of them seriously, about 11:15 p. m. Thursday when the automobile in which they were riding smashed head-on into a tree on a rural highway a mile west of Spencerville.

The injured were Clyde Boger, 19, of Hicksville, O.; Matt Carwill, 18 of Rt. 2, Hicksville and George Mansfield, 20, of Rt. 1 Butler.

Boger, driver of the car suffered shock and minor cuts and bruises; Carwill was treated for scalp and facial lacerations and an injured right elbow; Mansfield sustained abrasions on his right arm, a nose injury and bruises and cuts on his forehead.

The three, riding in a 1941 Ford, told police they were attempting to overtake a group driving to a "belling" when the mishap occured.

Officers said the accident occurred at a T-road intersection. Boger failed to make the turn and the car hurtled a ditch to smash head-on into the tree. Boger said he was not familiar with road and that the dust on the highway left by cars ahead, obscured his vision. Police said he was traveling at a high rate of speed.

The automobile, owned by Boger's father, Clyde D. Boger was heavily damaged, estimated at over $600.

Right With God

Lesson for July 24, 1949

"GET RIGHT with God" is an expression which has been sometimes used by people. It is not a coarse or cheap idea. It is the most important thing you can do. Think what it means to be wrong with God! That means to be out of harmony with his will, going "across the grain of reality" as the old Greeks used to say. To be wrong with God means to be a rebel against reality, to have the power of the universe working against you, and so to be headed for sure destruction. Wrong with God, you cannot win. Right with God, you cannot lose. To be right with God means to be in line with the purpose that runs through all things; it means in the simple language of the Bible, to live as a child of God.

Dr. Foreman

Mule or Man?

THERE are two ways in which man can come into line, so to speak, with God. One is by being whipped into it, and the other is by a free act of will. The poet of the 32nd Psalm begs his readers not to be like mules or colts (Ps. 32:9). These animals can be broken and controlled by their masters. But they do not understand what is going on, and if left to themselves they would never serve.

They have to be caught, harnessed and driven. But God does not want to treat human beings like that. Getting right with God is not a business of getting into harness, being beaten into walking on the right road.

That is not God's way. He pleads with us through his inspired poet: Be not as mules—be men!

Facing Up to Yourself

THE short good Bible word for being wrong with God is Sin. The very first step toward being right with God is to see yourself as you are. No one ever went to a doctor till he at least suspected he was sick. No one ever went to school of his own accord who thought he knew everything. And no one will come to God who thinks he is as good as he needs to be. When life goes hard with us, when everything about our life seems twisted and rotten, we make all sorts of excuses for ourselves, we lay the blame on our parents or our friends of the social and economic system in which we live (doubtless all these have a share in creating our troubles), but we hate to look at ourselves in the mirror of truth.

This comes first: recognizing our own wrongness, not just weakness but wrongness. When we reach the point where we can say with the Psalmist, "Create in me a clean heart, O God, and renew a right spirit within me," then we are on the right road.

"Hide Thy Face"

THERE are two things we never hear about in the Bible. One is that God never forgave anyone who did not repent, and the other is that he refused to forgive any one who did repent. But repentance is not merely regretting that a wrong was done; still less regretting being caught. Repentance, the kind the Bible describes (as in these Psalms for example), means a complete change of attitude, it means coming over on God's side and seeing sin the way he sees it, seeing life the way he sees it.

God's forgiveness is not of the grudging, remembering, reminding kind. But condoning and forgiving are still a world apart. Condoning means saying in effect, It is all right, it makes no difference, you can go on sinning for all I care.

Some human "forgiveness" may be like that, but not God's. His forgiveness is based on real repentance, and the aim of it is to save the sinner from his sin.

Plenteous in Mercy

THE Psalmists saw clearly what kind of God we have. He is not like the holder of a mortgage waiting till the first time some payment is deferred gives him a chance to pounce down and evict his tenant. We are not criminals against whom God is a prosecuting attorney, trying to pile up evidence against us. "If thou shouldest mark iniquities, who shall stand?" We are children, lost and wandering children, rebellious and disobedient children, but still children; and God holds open the door of mercy.

LOCAL BREEDERS TO USE PROVED GUERNSEY

The DeKalb County Artificial Breeding Association, Inc. announced today that semen from Elmwood Farms Royal Favor, the recently purchased Registered Guernsey bull of the Indiana Artificial Breeding Association, is now available to all of their customers and every dairyman who has cows to breed with semen from sires proved great.

This fine Guernsey's record shows that he has exceptional ability to transmit milk and butterfat production. His daughters showed an increase of 1200 lbs. milk and 31 lbs. butterfat over their dams, giving Favor an American Index of 114-141lbs milk, 4. 48% tes and 511 butterfat on a 5 pair daughter-dam comparison -- another sire proved Great!

Favor's 14 daughters in milk show they are maintaining a good production level. As to size and form, all conform to good type and not a single udder is anything but unusually good.

Of all the proved sires of the Indiana Artificial Breeding Association that the DeKalb County Artificial Breeding Association, Inc. is using it is believed that Favor will raise the already fine average of the bulls in the stud, of which every sire is proved great.

The Indiana Artificial Breeding Association is supplying semen from high index proved sires to dairymen in Indiana, Illinois, Tennessee and also to the Southern Artificial Breeding Association at Asheville, North Caroina.

With semen from such desirably proved bulls being used by the DeKalb County Artificial Breeding Association, Inc., the Indiana Artificial Breeding Association's objective to increase the efficiency of the production of human food and disseminate inheritance proved great through the use of wide index proved dairy sires is being achieved.

PRODUCERS LIVESTOCK ASS'N. AT HICKSVILLE HANDLED 18,804 HEAD OF LIVESTOCK, FIRST 6 MONTHS OF YEAR

The Producers Livestock Cooperative Association of Hicksville handled 18,804 head of livestock for the farmers of this area in the first half of 1949, according to Manager Horace Meek.

This is an increase of 3, 717 over totals for the first 6 months of 1948, or nearly 25 percent. This is one of the largest gains made by any of the Producers 20 markets.

A gain of 3,848 head in the number of sheep and lambs sold accounted in large part for the overall gain, Mr. Meek pointed out. The 6,640 sheep handled by the local Producers is more than twice the volume of a year ago. Hog receipts this year were almost exactly the same as a year ago, while th volume of cattle and calves on the market showed some decline.

Mr. Meek said that all of the Producers 20 markets and their subsidiary, the Eastern Order Buying Company, handled 1,357,973 head of livestock in the first half of the currreent year, an increase just under 7 percent above 1948.

DEKALB COUNTY CHAIRMAN TELLS ABOUT WHEAT LOANS

Arthur Lautzenhiser, chairman of the DeKalb county AA committee Friday announced details of the loans being offered farmers by the government for the storing of wheat.

The government is offering to loan any farmer who will store his wheat on the farm $2.03 per bushel for No. 1, $2.02 for No. 2 or $2.00 for No. 3 wheat. Warehouse loans are no longer available. Those who obtained warehouse loans will realize 1 ss per bushel than those who store their own wheat on their farm.

Buildings to store grain, both wooden and steel, are available for purchase. Loans up to 85% of the cost of the building are available at 4% interest and five years to repay the loan.

The oats loan rate was announced at a PMA meeting in Indianapolis Thursday. The loan rate is 72 cents per bushel for farm stored oats. The loans will mature May 1 and draw no interest if delivery of the oats is made to the CCC. Ora Crooks, Brooks Trenary and Arthur Lautzenhiser attended the Indianapolis meeting and will be glad to give further information on any of the above subjects.

By JIM MITCHELL

DELANEY LAKE, ONTARIO—I know of no better way getting a first class argument started than by selecting a certain species of fish or a certain fishing method and saying it is superior to all others. But since I enjoy a healthy argument occasionally, here goes on both scores.

A few days ago my guide and I happened on to a comparatively small lake two portages away from camp here on Delaney Lake that proved to be a paradise for smallmouth bass. Too, the smallmouths apparently preferred small popping bugs and dry flies, presented with a fly rod, to other types of lures.

And, brother, the two together added up to sport seldom equalled—and never excelled, at least in our book.

The smallmouths in this lake were actually greedy in fighting over the artificial lures and they hit savagely morning, noon and night with apparently little difference as to the time of day they smacked a lure.

All you had to do was toss a floating fly or bug within a few feet of the rocky shore or near a fallen tree and let it rest motionless on the surface, chances are within a few seconds a fighting bronzeback would shoot up from the bottom, take the artificial in its mouth, clear the surface in one mighty jump and then head for the depths ready to do battle. And a battle it was before the fish, ranging from a pound up to over five pounds, were netted and then returned to the lake.

I know it is not logical to compare the fighting qualities of the various species fish for, actually, there is no common ground except fishermen's opinions—for such a comparison. However, I believe these smallmouths could win a tug-a-war with any finny battlers without needing a second breath.

Catching smallmouths or surface fly rod lures actually has been a second layer of frosting on my fishing cake in this country. I've taken limits almost daily of walleyes, northern pike and lake trout. But it definitely has been the bass fishing that has made this trip a memorable one to add to other interestng and fascinating experiences of fishing in 1949.

Certain parts of the country have had rather slim going with fish; other parts of North America have hit the jackpot in grand angling sport. And I have been in both the good and bad waters on several occasions. Overall it has been a good year so far and certainly it is encouraging to report that fishing apparently is holding its own most places even in face of the tremendous increase in pressure.

Maurice Shuff, Joy Beerbower Exchange Vows

The Chapel in the Garden at Angola was the scene of an early afternoon ceremony, at which time vows of marriage were taken by Miss Joy Josephine Beerbower, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Beerbower of Auburn and Maurice (Bud) Shuff of St. Joe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Shuff.

The Rev. Glen Letterbeck of Angola solemnized the single ring ceremony at 1 o'clock, Saturday, July 23.

The couple's only attendants were Judith Popoly of Auburn, serving as bridesmaide- while Junior Houser of Butler attended th groom as best man.

The new Mrs. Shuff attended Auburn High School and is now enrolled at the Wayne Beauty College at Fort Wayne.

Mr. Shuff attended St. Joe High School until 1943 when he enlisted in the U. S. Army, to serve in World War II. Bud is an employee of D. B. Ridgway.

The newlyweds at present have an apartment in the Glen Wineland home but will move within a short time into a house trailer on the L. J. Likes property here.

ANNOUNCE THAT NEW DAIRY SERVICE IS BEING MADE TO DEKALB COUNTY DAIRYMEN

The county extension office announced this week that a new dairy service has been made available to the dairymen of DeKalb County known as the Owner-Sampler Dairy Testing. The purpose of this service is to make available to DeKalb Co. farmers dairy testing for herds not interested in official records but who would like to initiate a culling program through testing cows in their herd. The new association was formed in May. Wiley Phillips of near Ashley was elected chairman and Richard Crow of St. Joe was elected secretary-treas.

Testing kits are dropped off at the farmer's house by an authorized cow tester, the farmer collects his own samples from each individual cow, weighs the milk from each individual cow on scales provided by the association, the cow tester picks up the kit the following morning, tests the samples of milk records them and mails the individual farmer a report. Fifteen interested in Dairy Herd Improvement Association testing have already initiated this service which is performed for $2.50 per month up to and including ten cows and 15c per cow over ten.

DeKalb County is probably the first county in the stae of Indiana to initiate a set up of this kind in connection with the Dairy Herd Improvement Association and Artificial Breeding Asspciation. The advantages the farmer gains through joinging such a testing prgoram mainly through gaining a knowledge of his own herd as to which cows are profitable to keep and which are culls. It also gives the dairy farmer an opportunity to check his average test with that of the milk company which buys his product.

There is no membership in the newly-formed association. Individuals desiring to join this testing program can do so by contacting the county extension office or the two local cow testers, Lloyd Rader of Waterloo and Lawrence Votrie of Richland townhip.

CAP CORN WITH "G. I." CANS

DeKalb, Ill., (Special)—Look again, it's not a new crop, but "G.I." cans between corn rows in a hybrid corn breeding plot. The cans are used to cover special strains of corn from the tropics of Central America, and keep them in the dark 12-hours a day. Corn in the tropics has 12 hours of light and 12 hours of darkness a day, but when grown in the Corn Belt, the 18-hour light day causes this corn to tassel late in the season and fail to mature. DeKalb hybrid corn breeders are conducting this unusual experiment with Central American corn in an effort to breed bigger yield, stronger roots and greater disease resistance into Corn Belt hybrids for farmers of the U.S.

INDIANA OIL BOOM GATHERS MOMENTUM

Indiana is fast becoming one of the largest oil producing states of the mid-continent area, according to a statement issued by Elmer Hoehn, Director of the Oil and Gas Division of the Indiana Department of Conservation.

In the departmental report for June 1949 there were 156 drilling permits issued. Wells drilled numbered 130, of which 59 were dry and 45 became producing wells.

The most promising well yet completed was brought in July 14, by the Gillian Drilling Company, an independent outfit in Section 20, Linton Township, Vigo County. Experts estimate that the well will produce from two to three thousand barrels daily.

Drilling operations have started on a newly discovered oil near Fontanet, an abandoned coal mining area, which geologist pronounce the largest oil structure yet found in Indiana It comprises approximately 10,000 acres. Petroleum Highlands, as is referred to officialy, is located cated about twelve miles northeast of Terre Haute and is belived to be the pool that fed the old Terre Haute Prox well which produced for forty years in the heart of the downtown district. The rich oil structure originally located by an aerial survey, has been radarized and seizmographed by three different companies recently and is now declared by petroleum engineers to be large enough to accomodate more than 1,000 oil wells.

International Uniform Sunday School Lessons

By DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

DEVOTIONAL READING: Isaiah 26:1-10.

God Can Be Trusted

Lesson for July 31, 1949

EVEN if you do nothing else with this lesson, it will be a good thing to learn by heart some of the Psalms of Trust which have been selected for your study this week. They are far too rich to be treated in one column.

Who Can Trust in God?

(PSALM 34:16-22.) Not every one has a right to trust in God. Those who do not believe in him, do not love him, work against him, try to break down and corrupt those who do believe in him — these need expect nothing at his hand. But there are three classes of persons who are encouraged to put their trust in God. One is the "contrite," the repentant, those who sincerely wish to be cut free from their sins—these can surely trust in God for forgiveness. One who cannot trust God for forgiveness has no right to trust him for anything else. Then the "righteous," as the Psalmist calls them, have a right to trust in God.

Dr. Foreman

If that word means only the perfectly and altogether good people, it would leave all of us out. But in the light of the Bible as a whole, the righteous are those whose dominant desire is to love and serve God.

Their service is imperfect, their love is far from perfect, and no man is without sin. But if you can say with Peter, "Lord, thou knowest that I love thee," then you have a right to trust in God. Also the broken-hearted can safely trust in him. Whoever else may break your heart, God will not. He is the great Mender of hearts. For the little sorrows there may be lesser comforters; but the real heartbreaks only God can cure.

Why Trust God?

PSALM 37 gives one answer: The opposite of trust is worry, and worry never did any good at all. Worry eats into the mind, casts no light, gives no strength, solves no problems, worry makes any trouble worse. Then the writer of Psalm 30 gives another reason for trust: he had tried it. If trust in God were simply a doctrine of theology or a theory of preachers, not many people would take it seriously.

Trust is really passed on by a kind of contagion from heart to heart. If there are not more people who know what trust means, it is because those who have known have kept it too much to themselves.

It would be a wonderful stimulus to most churches to have a little "cell" of people who would really agree to trust God every day.

When to Trust in God

ONe of Dicken's famous characters used to make a great point of being cheerful under the most un-cheerful circumstances. Anybody can be jolly when everything is lovely, he said. There's no credit in not worrying when there's nothing to worry about. Although the writers of the Bible, one and all, trusted in God, not one had an easy life. Read Psalm 46, for example; it gives a picture of a world much like ours of today, shaken to its foundations, torn by wars, a desolate, discouraged world. If it made sense to trust only under bright skies, religion would have perished long ago.

For What Shall We Trust God?

NO ONE PSALM puts the whole truth in one nutshell. If you read Psalm 91, for example, by itself, it would seem to prove that if you trust in God you will never die a violent death, nor an early one; but too many saints (and indeed our Lord himself) had died early and violent deaths, for us to take Psalm 91 in that way. Trusting in God does not mean he will give us long life. It means he will give us strength to match our days.

It does mean he will give us all we need. It does not mean we shall be shielded from troubles. It does mean he will save us from troubles greater than we can bear. It does not mean that in this life we shall be wholly free from burdens or from pain; It does mean we shall have strength in our souls (Ps. 138:3).

Which is the greater thing—to be a weakling wearied by a straw's weight, or to be one of God's athletes, able to bear the worst the world can pile on?

Indiana Farmers Are Using More Fertilizer To Boost Yields Per Acre and Replenish Soil

Money Invested in Fertilizer Pays Out in More Efficient Crop Production.

CHICAGO—Indiana farmers are using more fertilizer on growing their crops, according to the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee. Figures made available by the National Fertilizer Association show that approximately 810,241 tons of plant food were used on farms in the state last year, compared with 804,163 tons in the preceding year—a gain of 6,078 tons or about 1 per cent. It represented a 214 per cent increase over the prewar year of 1940.

The 1948 fertilizer consumption for the entire United States topped the previous record year of 1947 by about 6 per cent or 15,956,289 tons as against 15,039,376 tons.

The steadily increasing use of fertilizer in the past 10 years is attributed to these factors: 1—The desire of farmers to boost crop yields per acre and their readiness to apply practices that will accomplish this; 2—Realization by farmers that plant food reserves in the soil are declining; 3—Heavier demands for plant food by new high-yielding crop varieties; 4—Recognition that pasture is a cash crop and should be fertilized.

Agricultural economists point out that fertilizer is a "good buy" at present prices, according to the committee. These research men say that money invested in fertilizer will pay out in a short time. It will get more efficient crop production — more bushels or pounds of crops per acre at little or no additional labor cost.

Fertilizer is most effective when it is teamed with a rotation that protects the soil and builds its physical structure and tilth. Well-structured soil is a better storehouse for plant nutrients and moisture. Such soil produces higher crop yields at a lower cost per unit.

Fall Pasture Fertilization Spreads Farm Work Boosts Meat, Milk Output and Cuts Feed Costs

Well-Fertilized Pasture Gives Cheapest High Quality Feed for Livestock.

CHICAGO—Topdressing your pastures and grasslands this fall with phosphate and potash fertilizer will give your beef and dairy cattle extra grazing days next spring, cut down your feed bill, boost meat and milk output per acre and reduce production costs, declared the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee, in a statement made public here.

Fertilizer added in the fall helps deep-rooted alfalfa and sweet clover make a sturdier, denser growth, the statement says. The plants are better able to resist winter kill. They come through the winter months in better condition for vigorous early spring growth.

Earlier spring grazing means fewer days of barn feeding. It means a saving in the feed bill, for the palatable green pasture provides the cheapest high-protein feed your cattle can obtain.

The committee lists these advantages of fall fertilization of pastures, as recently cited by M. O. Pence, Purdue University extension agronomist:

1—Spreading fertilizer in the fall spreads the work, too. Farmers have more time for such work in fall than in spring.

2—Plant food added in the fall has a chance to get down into the soil where the roots are. Nutrients are then immediately available for the legume roots when spring growth starts.

3—It is easier to spread lime or fertilizer in the fall when the turf is solid than in the spring when the ground is soft and wet.

4—You don't have to work the fertilizer into the soil. Grass roots close to the surface take up the soluble plant food.

"Farmers planning fall pasture improvement work," says the committee, "can get advice from their county agents or state agronomists on the kind and amount of fertilizer to use."

Adding Plant Food Increases Winter Wheat Yields, Lowers Costs and Boosts Profits

CHICAGO — Adding fertilizer to fall seeded wheat this year will give you extra profits through more bushels of grain per acre at a lower cost per bushel. It will increase yields of alfalfa, sweet clover and grasses following fertilized wheat in the rotation, according to the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee.

Wheat yields of from 40 to 50 bushels per acre are being harvested regularly by many Midwestern farmers who use good soil management methods, add plenty of mixed fertilizer and grow the new, stiffer-strawed, heavier-yielding varieties of wheat.

Higher Yields per Acre Mean Bigger Profits from Wheat Crop.

These newer varieties have stronger, shorter, stiffer straws that hold heads up and won't break down and lodge. They can take all the plant food needed to fill out the heads and boost the per acre yields.

Typical of the new high yielding varieties is Vigo, a soft winter wheat developed by Dr. R. H. Caldwell of Purdue University. J. Herb Johnson of Fort Branch, Indiana, who won the 1947 wheat growing championship of Southwestern Indiana, with Vigo, averaged 46 bushels to the acre with this high-yielding variety.

Johnson used 400 pounds per acre of 3-12-12 in the fall of 1946. He topdressed the wheat in the early spring of 1947 with 100 pounds per acre of ammonium nitrate. Johnson's soil management program is a 3-year rotation centered around deep-rooted legumes. His usual rotation is corn, soybeans and wheat seeded to legumes. The organic matter added by plowed-under alfalfa, sweet clover and Ladino has built soil structure and given Johnson's soil mellowness, tilth and good drainage.

Dr. C. E. Evans, Ohio Agronomist, points out that the heavy use of plant food gives greater returns on wheat than on any of the common field crops.

WILL CRACK DOWN ON "BUZZ JOB" PILOTS IN NORTHERN INDIANA

A minority group of aircraft pilots engaging in buzzing at low altitudes, especially in northern Indiana resort areas, will be the target for broader enforcement of the state's reckless flying law, officials of the State Police announced today.

The department conferred on the problem of low flying after reckless aircrart operation resulted in the death of an Indiana pilot and his passenger at Lake James, near Angola, two weeks ago. The pilot was buzzing a row of cottages at a low altitude when the plane crashed in the lake.

C. F. Cornish, director of the Indiana Aeronautics Commission, and Arthur M. Thurston, State Police superintendent, both reported they have received numerous companies from vacationists concerning planes buzzing cottages, fishermen and boatmen at resorts.

"All state troopers have been instructed to arrest any pilot observed flying recklessly," Supt. Thurston asserted. Maximum penalty confronting violators in Indiana is $250 fine or six months imprisonment or both.

Colonel Cornish pointed out that positive identification of the aircraft must be obtained before enforcement agencies can prosecute reckless pilots. Every aircraft flown in the United States has some type of numerical indentification on the underneath side of the left wing, he explained. These numbers should be reported to State Police by persons witnessing low flying incidents.

State Police maintain a file of all aircraft based in Indiana, making possible identification of owners within a short time. Registration on out of state planes is on file in the Civil Aeronautics Administration division in Washington, D. C.

The aeronautics commission and State Police repeatedly have cautioned pilots against low flying, the primary cause of most fatal light aircraft accidents.

SPENCERVILLE'S Raiders edged out the St. Joe High softball team by a 11 to 10 score last Wednesday evening at Harlan. Spencerville started in early in the high scoring game and the St. Joe boys stuck close to their opponents but couldn't put the tieing run on in the last inning. After the Raiders had tallied three in the first, St. Joe came back to score two, and then tied it up in the next by scoring twice again after the raiders had added a single run in their half.

A three base hit by Paschen featured a 3 run, 4th inning for Spencerville as they took a 7-4 lead, but it didn't hold up very long. A double by D. Warstler and errors on ground balls hit by McMaken and Bob Richmond coupled with two infield outs tied the score at 7 all. Spencerville counted two runs in each the 5th and 6th and the Tigers could only get another scoring threat underway in the 6th when they plated 3.

DUE to other league tournament play at Harlan this week the Wed. evening game with Harlan on their diamond has been changed to Thurs. evening, and will be scheduled as the second game for that night. The final game in the school league will be played on Wednsday, August 3. St. Joe will play Leo in the final game that night.

THE St. Joe Legion softball team pounded out a 15 to 3 win over the DeKalb County Rural Youth team in a game that was called at the end of 5 innings in the third game of the evening, in the A.S.A. tournament in Butler, Monday evening. Due to the late start and length of the first game, the local boys were still playing at midnight. In those two previous game, both of the other two teams from the Auburn Y loop, were knocked out of the running.

The Butler Produce team, host of the tournament, knocked out the always tough Schaab Kids of Auburn by a 11 to 6 score after a bitter tussle, and the Powerful Diehl's Marathon of Garrett after a slow start went on to drub the Ball's Foundry of Auburn by a 12 to 1 score.

The locals started out with 4 runs in the first inning and kept right on adding runs in every inning but the last. Surface went all the way on the mound for St. Joe and turned in an admirable job, striking out 9, allowing just 2 hits and giving up 3 walks for 3 runs. Coll started the twirling chores for the Rural Youth and was aided by Snyder in the third and DeYung in the fifth.

In the second night of tournament play Tuesday, Zimmerman's of Garrett defeated Ashley by a 14 to 3 score in 5 innings. Spencerville gave the Butler Produce team a scare, scoring all four of their runs in the last inning, but their rally fell one run short and the Butler squad came out on the long end of a 5 to 4 score.

Thursday's semifinal games will match St. Joe against Diehls in the first game at 7:30 and Zimmerman's also of Garrett, against Butler in the nightcap. Finals between the two winners will be Friday night.

AT Auburn the rained out games early in the season have been rescheduled and they are as follows: Thursday, August 4, Warner vs St. Joe in 7:15 game; and Thursday, August 11 Wibles vs the local squad, also in the first game of the evening.

BODY COMPENSATION

EVERYONE has compensation . . . body compensation, that is. It is proof of the healing power of nature. In practically every disease or damage to the body, nature attempts to make repair. Many gestures of nature are effective, others are not.

When a kidney is removed, the other one enlarges and does the work of two. One lung is sufficient to sustain life. Large portions of the intestines may be removed and the parts left will carry on. The heart often increases in size when a defect in the valves requires more pumping power. We can see through one eye, and hear through one ear.

In the blind, the senses of touch and hearing, smell and taste, are developed far beyond those in the normal person. Cripples are often able to perform incredible acts of skill through improved muscular co-ordination in undamaged tissue and muscles.

The body is constantly on the defense. When a joint is sprained, the body tries to put a splint on it by making the joint stiff and sore and swollen. Poisons are discarded from the body through vomiting, diarrhea and by the breath. When the skin is cut, or pierced, the white blood cells promptly build up a wall of resistance between the attacking bacteria and the blood stream.

Some persons are immune to disease because the body manufactures antitoxins.

WATCH THE HEAT

TAKE it easy to avoid heat stroke, heat exhaustion, and heat cramps as summer temperatures climb. Avoid prolonged exposure to heat, indoors or out, particularly on humid days, watch the youngsters who are playing under the merciless rays of the sun, and keep the old folks at rest in the shade!

Eating less so that the circulatory system is not taxed, drinking plenty of fluids, and taking an increased amount of salt at meals, as well as salt tablets at other times, helps too.

Headache is a warning symptom of heat stroke, heat exhaustion or heat cramps. Nausea, lassitude, and cessation of sweating are early symptoms of heat stroke; dizziness, sense of exhaustion, and nausea are warnings of heat exhaustion, and excessive sweating and dizziness during or following heavy work are warnings of heat cramps.

In heat stroke, most serious of the three conditions, the temperature is high, the skin hot and dry, the face is flushed, and the person stricken is unconscious. In heat exhaustion, the temperature may be subnormal or only slightly elevated, and the skin is moist, sometimes cool and clammy. Heat cramps are severe, painful spasms of the muscles.

First aid for heat stroke is immediate cold water baths or spray and cold compresses. Bed rest is indicated for the other conditions. Water and salt or salt tablets are given for heat cramps.

Floor sanding, waxing and polishing. Guaranteed satisfaction. Estil Taylor, Phone St. Joe 44. 7tf

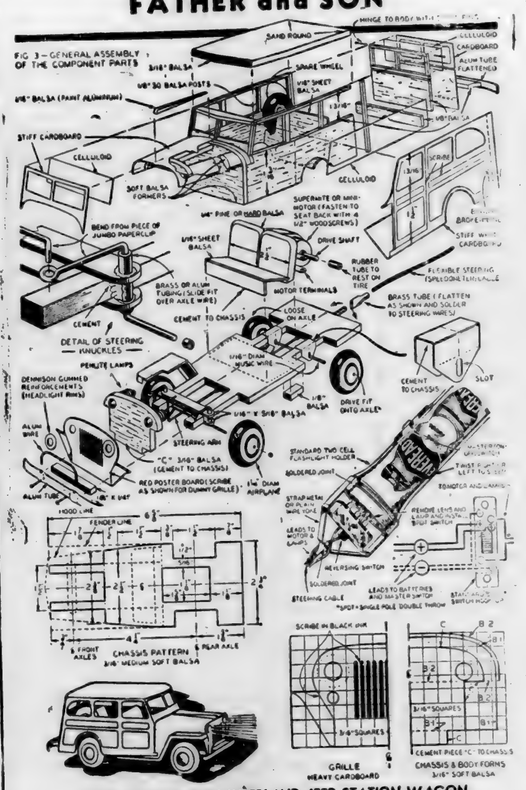
FATHER and SON



BUILD THIS WILLYS-OVERLAND JEEP STATION WAGON

Dear Dad:

Junior probably isn't old enough to drive the family car but with your help he (and you) can have loads of fun "driving" this 7½ inch electric motor driven model patterned after the popular Jeep Station Wagon. It is powered with two Eveready No. 950 flashlight batteries housed in a regular flashlight case. You can steer this car remotely — make it turn to the right or left or even back up! Here's how it works. An ordinary 4 to 7 foot long automobile speedometer cable runs from the rear of the chassis to the battery case. Thus, by twisting the case to the left or right you can turn the wheels in the desired direction. Varnish insulated wire running from the Eveready batteries to the small electric motor which drives the rear wheels. Your local radio repair shop stocks the special switch and wire necessary for the control while your hobby shop carries the balsa wood, wheels and electric motor.

You can build this car from these plans and instructions and you can obtain additional information from the August issue of MECHANIX ILLUSTRATED magazine.

The car is made in two sections, the chassis and the body. Using the dimensions shown on the plan, cut the chassis from the prescribed balsa, mount the axle units and then install motor.

Note the speedometer cable, obtained from any car parts store, is permanently attached to the rear of the car. By twisting the cable the front wheels are made to turn in the desired direction. The electric wires to feed the motor are taped to the outside of the speedometer cable.

After the wheels and steering mechanism are installed and the electric circuit tested, build up the body as indicated. Follow the plans carefully and you'll have a model that not only looks like the real Jeep Station Wagon but its just as rugged and easy to "drive".

Good luck,

Doug Rolfe

Pay this bill for me, will you?

Suppose a stranger asked you to pay his electric light bill every month . . .

Far-fetched idea? Not so—because you do help pay a lot of other people's electric bills every month!

Every time you buy cigarettes, matches, gasoline, a lipstick or a watch, or hundreds of other things, part of what you pay is a federal tax. And that same federal tax money helps pay those strangers' electric bills.

Here's why: the federal government is in the electric business in some parts of the country. It sells electric service to some people and to certain industries—below the real cost.

Who makes up the difference? You do—the government uses some of your taxes for that purpose.

We are against extending the amount of government-in-the-electric business in America. Because it threatens all self-supporting electric companies. And because it will lead to Socialization of one business, a long first step toward Socialization of all business.

Most Americans don't want that. . . . Do you?

NOTICE OF PROTEST MEETING

Following several hours of telephone calling and personal calls, an aroused public to the number of 130 met at the Lutheran Church Sunday evening in protest meeting to the opening of a tavern in St. Joe. Rev. Sennett was made chairman and later "Bill" Billow was selected treasurer to care for the funds. A liberal offering was made with assurance of ample financial help if found necessary.

It was decided to make a thorough canvas of St. Joe, its trading and school area. The object is to get as many signatures as possible to a protest to open a drinking place in St. Joe. The "drys" contend that a large majority of our people are opposed to the liquor traffic in any form and to any person who presumes to open any place where it would be sold.

During most of its existance the town has gotten along very well without a legalized place where alcholic beverages were sold and this protest is made to convince the liquor board of their opposition to granting Earl Coburn a license at a hearing to be held at Auburn, Aug. 17.

The business place on the south side of Main street owned by Chas. McIntosh is being greatly improved with a new front. Mr. McIntosh has been refused a license by the the county liquor board on two occasion, but he seems determined to have a tavern in that building. If the feelings of the populace mean anything he is doomed to disappointment.

This contest seems needless at this time but it is here, so let us conduct it in a sportsmanlike manner. Each side (wet and dry) are entitled to their honest convictions. Let friends not become enemies because of differences of opinion, and let us be game enough not to get so wrought up that boycotts are indulged in.

You people who are opposed to a tavern are invited to co-operate with this committee and let's make our protest so strong that this battle will not have to be fought over and over again.

STATEMENT OF POLICY CONCERNING POILOMYELITIS

The Indiana Polio Committee makes the following statement of policy concerning swimming pools and flies in connection with the spread of poliomyelitis. Similar statements have been made by the Boards of Health of adjacent states or by the U.S. Public Health Service and the Medical Advisory Committee of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

The information is here recorded to guide your thinking on this problem and to indicate that there is agreement at least among state and federal health officials on the handling of swimming pools and fly abatement.

Swimming Pools

1. Unsatisfactorily constructed or operated swimming pools should not be permitted to operated regardless of whether or not there is poliomylitis in the vicinity.

2. On the basis of available scientific information, the Indiana Polio Committee has no reason to expect that closure of properly equipped and operated swimming pools will have any effect on the occurrence of sporadic cases of poliomyelitis in communities.

3. In communities where a case of poliomyelitis has been associated with the use of given swimming pool, that pool and its recirculation equipment should be drained and thoroughly cleaned. (The State Board of Health should be contacted for specific cleansing procedures.) After these measures, the pool is ready for reopening.

4. In communities where there is an epidemic of poliomyelitis and public gatherings are being discouraged, swimming pools should be closed.

Fly Control

1. While the Indiana Polio Committee encourages fly control on a rational and continued basis, it is considered unwise for any public health agency to engage in emergency fly control activities during epidemics of poliomyelitis. The spectacular work of airplane and ground machines as has been carried out during emergencies gives an unjustified feeling of security and diverts attention from other possible sources of poliomyelitis spread.

2. As a result of experimental work, the following facts are known concerning fly transmission of poliomyelitis:

a. Poliomyelitis virus can be found for considerables periods of times in the stools of infected persons and in sewage containing such stools.

b. Poliomyelitis virus has been isolated from flies (blow flies and house flies) during epidemics.

The infection of experimental animals by the ingestion of materials containing poliomyelitis has been demonstrated on numerous occasions.

FINAL REPORT OF GIRLS 4-H CLUB WORK OF CONCORD TWP. FOR 1949

The Get-To-Gether 4-H Club included twenty girls all of them completing their projects which meets the requirements for Standard Club and gives them added honor and pleasure of 100% completion.

There were 18 baking projects, 1 canning project, 4 food preparation projects, 1 room improvement project and 11 clothing projects, making a total of 35 projects carried.

The highest number of projects carried by any one girl was five. Sue Walters carried a project in each division of work. All grades for all girls were A's and B's. Most of the girls are young members and it is advised that a beginner carry only one project while becoming adjusted to 4-H club work. Mrs. Hayworth, a graduate of Purdue U. judged the work.

Those present at every meeting were Andrea Carr, Ruth Fetter, Fletla Griggs, Lois Griggs and Sandra McCann.

Norma Tharp gave a demonstration on the making of seams at Auburn, July 19, and the following judging teams participated in judging contest; Baking—Ruth Fetters and Alice Trenary; Clothing—Andrea Carr and Ruth Trenary, three of the four winning honorable placings. Sue Walter planned to go to judge in canning but she had to can cherriees that day. Marlyn Washler had promised to go too but when her taxi arrived she was still sleeping but she hopes to waken in time to go to club camp in August.

Ruth and Opal Trenary were awarded trips to Purdue University, 4-H Club Round-Up. The following members are planning to attend 4-H Club camp at North Webster this month: Ruth Fetters, Gladys Ross , Marlyn Wahler and possibly two more who have nt definitely decided at this writing.

The club organized an all girl's soft ball team this season for club recreation to play among themselves only. The ball and bat were purchased at Vim's with money given the club by the Concord Township Home Economics Women's Club. The girls certainly appreciated their interest in recognition of their efforts to bring honor to their township by the quality of the club work about which you have just read. The girls 4-H Get-To-Gether Club wishes to publicly thank the parents, the Home Ec Club, Mr. Ridgway and all citizens who so loyally support their efforts to give to the community a worthwhie service.

"Service is the price we pay for the space we occupy."

The committee emphasizes the responsibility of the householder in fly control, said responsibility not being lessend by the commuinty measures citied above. Specifically the householder should:

1. Maintaine absolute cleanliness of garbage can and disposal areas.

2. Keep yards clean and free of refuse.

3. Destroy flies and other pests in the home.

4. Maintain scrupulous personal cleaniness.

5. Privies must be kept sanitary and fly proof.

SPENCERVILLE YOUTH ABOARD U.S, S. CATAMOUNT IN AMPHIBIOUS TRAINING OPERATION AT LITTLE CREEK, VIRGINIA

Victor Eugene Timmerman, M.M. F. N., son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Timmerman of Spencerville, is on active duty aboard U. S. S. Catamount which is taking part in the most extensive amphibious training operation of its kind ever staged by the U. S. Navy.

The training program, completed at midnight, July 30, was conducted at the U. S. Naval Amphibious Base, Little Crek, Va., and in nearby waters. It was designed to provide general indoctrination in the basic principals of amphibious warfare for 2,100 NROTC Midshipmen from 52 colleges, 5280 Marine Marine officers and men and 330 officers and men of the U. S. Air Force.

Timmerman's ship participated in the attack phase of the operation during which conditions of actual amphibious warfare were authentically simulated. A total of 22 ships, ranging from large attack transports through smaller craft of many types formed the Attack Group which operated off Little Creek and Camp Pendleton, Va., under the command of Rear Admiral L. A. Thackrey, USN. They carried a total complement of approximately 3400 officers and men.

The Little Creek, Va. naval exercises enabled the NROTC Midshipmen to receive their amphibious training from men with wide experience in actual amphibious warfare. Many of the officers and men of the attack force are veterans of amphibious assault operations during World War II.

Timmerman has been on active duty with the Navy since July 12, 1948.

BIBLE SPEAKS

International Uniform Sunday School Lessons

By DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

SCRIPTURE: Psalms 92; 103; 136:1-9, 25-26.
DEVOTIONAL READING: Psalms 116:1-8, 17-19.

Thank God for God!

Lesson for August 7, 1949

WHILE the little children are thanking God for birds and bees and oatmeal, let us grown people rise and offer some adult thanksgivings. Reading the Psalms of praise which are this week before us, we get the impression that these poets were grateful above all not for anything God had given but for God himself. Thank God for God! sings through every line.

Dr. Foreman

Suppose there were no God? He is the Creator of all; without him nothing else can be. The nature of time and space, of molecule and atom and electron, the mighty power that holds all together; the emergence of life, of mind, the possibility of thought, of values, whatever is and whatever can be, is because he wills it so. That there is energy in the atom, light in the sun, refreshment in the rain and power in the lightning—that these things can be and that anything can be, we thank God.

No Unrighteousness in Him

SUPPOSE God were not good? A vast and vicious devil, his immense mind brimming with intelligence and malice, could perhaps have contrived a universe more enormous than this corner of one which is known to us. A creative devil—what pangs he could have invented to torture his creatures!

It may be, indeed, that only on this earth is there rebellion against the Creator, and that elsewhere in God's dominions all is peace. But suppose it were true that all the evil in the world was ordained by some Creative Hatred?—all the goodness in the world only an illusion, a deception?

Suppose it were the intent of some devilish maker of man finally to destroy all his creatures, or worse still, to make every creature long bitterly for death but find none? Let us thank God for God, the God of mercy whose loving kindness endureth forever.

He Knoweth Our Frame

LET us thank God for his providence. He did not create and then forget us, nor give us so much freedom that we could destroy his majesty or bring to naught his mighty plan. Let us thank God for his infinite love and interest that spares and speeds us, his knowledge of our frame, his remembering even the hairs upon our heads. Let us thank God that being infinite he can have a care for the infinitesimal, and that not a sparrow falls to the ground without our heavenly Father. Let us thank God whose care for us is such that without his knowledge not the least of his creatures can fall asleep.

From death and disaster we and the nation and the world have been saved, time and again. Frail is the craft in which the human spirit is launched through this pathless universe; yet it holds, and will hold, because the universe is there by his almighty decree.

In spite of the chaos of men's unruly wills, in spite of we know not what rebellions in the spirit world, he sees to it that not one good is ever wholly lost.

Who Redeemeth Thy Life

LET US PRAISE God for his promise and for his faithfulness. That he has not left us to our sins nor given us up though long we scorned him; that his divine patience outlasts the hasty heart; that he spared not his own Son but freely gave him for our sakes; that none who come to him will be cast out; that the God who creates is the God who redeems, we praise him from a heart of love. As the Psalmist of old knew himself as one of the children of the Covenant, so may every man who takes God's promises and makes them his heart's own.

To take this God for my God—this is the beginning and the end of religion. To step out on his promises as on a bridge that stands secure above all the floods of eternity.

To trust his faithfulness though all the race of man were liars; to look down the vista of the years without fear, knowing that the God of our fathers will be the God of each succeeding race, that his mercy is everlasting to everlasting and that his kingdom ruleth over all—this is to know him, and this is life eternal. Thank God for God!

Organic Matter and Fertilizer Are Top Crop Building Team

CHICAGO—Organic matter gives farm soil the "get up and go" to produce bigger yields and higher quality crops, the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee points out.

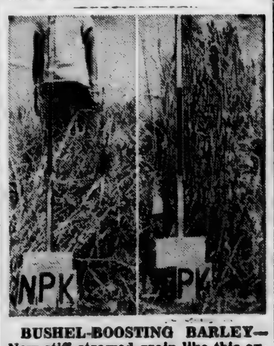
As organic matter rots, it releases elements needed for feeding crops. During the decomposition process, favorable conditions are produced for making available the plant nutrients contained in soil minerals, says a statement issued by the committee.

But organic matter alone cannot do the whole job of giving you big yields and high quality crops, the statement adds. It needs to be reinforced by commercial fertilizer.

Prof. Emil Truog, University of Wisconsin agronomist, recently declared: "To say—as does the organic school—that chemical fertilizer such as phosphate and potash should not be used—is pure bunkum. These fertilizers are needed to make up the inevitable lack of nutritive elements which organic matter alone cannot supply."

Prof. Truog says that in gardens and other small areas, you can maintain the fertility and organic matter supply by the use of composts and animal manures. But he emphasizes that such practices are not feasible for large farm acreages. It is impossible, he says, to prepare and apply the enormous amounts of compost that would be needed for the average farm.

On such big farm acreages, a good crop rotation will provide the needed organic matter. This can be supplied in the form of plowed-under deep-rooted legumes, crop residues, stubble, stalks and roots and barnyard manure. Prof. Truog says all that is necessary to make the system work is the proper use of lime and fertilizers containing phosphorus and potash and sometimes nitrogen. The key to the organic matter and nitrogen problem he adds, is high lime and mineral fertility. This assures a thick, luxuriant stand of superior deep-rooted legumes such as alfalfa and the clovers.



BUSHEL-BOOSTING BARLEY—New stiff-strawed grain like this experimental barley variety (right) can take heavier amounts of plant food without lodging. Its "ramrod" stiff straw will support all the weight of heavy, fully-developed, bushel-building heads. Straw of variety at left is too weak to hold up heads of well-fertilized barley crop. Straw broke down and barley lodged, resulting in much lower crop yield. Clinton, Beaton and Eaton oats are new varieties that "take" heavier amounts of plant food and yield more bushels per acre.

Deep-Rooted Legumes Keep Soil "at Home," Curb Erosion Losses

CHICAGO — Thick-growing legumes and grasses are good "policemen" for protecting your land from the soil-robbing attacks of erosion, according to the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee.

That's particularly true if your land has been overcropped with corn or other soil-depleting row crops. And the longer the legume-grass sod is kept in the rotation, the more topsoil is saved.

C. A. Van Doren, University of Illinois soil conservationist, reports that soil losses from corn averaged 14 tons a year in a 3-year rotation. He says that a 6-year rotation of corn, grain and 4 years of meadow would cut the loss to only 3 tons per acre. That means a saving of 11 tons of topsoil a year.

Well-fertilized legumes and grasses nail down the topsoil and keep it in place. They keep soil pores open. They add organic matter that improves drainage, tilth and soil structure. The topgrowth slows rain down to a walk. More water is held in the ground instead of washing away. Thus you save not only topsoil and moisture, but plant food and organic matter.

Good nutrition is essential in getting thick stands of legumes with strong root systems. Many soils need lime to grow good legume crops. A soil test will tell the land's need for lime. Remember, too, that legumes are heavy eaters of phosphate and potash. To give them a full dinner bucket, you need to add fertilizers carrying plenty of these nutrients.

Bigger Dairy Profits

Good hay and pasture are the key to cutting dairy production costs and boosting profits, the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee points out. Pasture is the cheapest source of high-protein feed. Keeping pasture and hay fields at high production levels depends on liming where needed, the use of mixed fertilizer and returning manure and crop residues to the soil.

Calling all outdoorsmen

By JIM MITCHELL

Occasionally there is a bright spot in the outdoor picture, and this time it is the outlook for an improved waterfowl gunning season this fall.

Recently officials of Ducks Unlimited reported as follows: "The waterfowl breeding season is progresing favorably in all parts of the range. June rains alleviated the drought threat over most of the southern prairies (in Canada) removing the danger of any wholesale loss of broods through drying up of sloughs and potholes."

The report continued with this comment: if the second half of the breeding season (this runs through August 15) continues as favorably as the first half, a successful season is assured.

The wintertime inventory made by the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service along the Gulf and in Mexico disclosed a 12 per cent overall gain in the waterfowl population. This added to the current report from the view of the coming season.

The low waterfowl populations of recent years have had one good effect on hunters however. There is nothing better than a few lean days in a duck blind to learn how great ducks and geese are in supplying grand gunning sport.

I believe many hunters have learned the lesson against wastefulness. Of course, there always will be that group of gunners who figure "let's go get 'em while the getting's good and the heck with the years ahead!" And it is this group that should draw the concentrated fire of all decent sportsmen who appreciate the waterfowling sport as a sport and not a meat supply.

Anyway, it's nice to learn that the weatherman has changed his routine a bit by giving the birds a break in the breeding grounds. Of late the weatherman has been rather unkindly towards the plight of the waterfowl and it is a welcome change.

NEXT OF KIN BONUS FORMS NOW AVAILABLE

Robert White of Auburn, chairman of the DeKalb county veterans' bonus committee, disclosed Friday that the next of kin of DeKalb Co. veterans who lost their lives either in service or sinc their discharge, may now make application for the bonus.

The chairman stated that a supply of form No. 2 for the use of next-of-kin only, was received last week, and that every American Legion Post in the county has a supply.

Mr. White cautioned all next-of-kin that many supporting documents are required in most cases and they should check as soon as possible to find out how much assistance they will need in executing their claims.

The line of eligibility according to the law for a next-of-kin application is the unremarried widow or widower, child or children, mother, father and persons standing in loco parentis, in that order and none other.

Next-of-kin of veterans who died on active duty and whose death was due to service will be awarded $600, regardless of the length of service. Next-of-kin of veterans who died after leaving the service or after Sept. 2, 1945, will receive only the amount the veteran would have been entitled to if he were living.

HINTS ON HEALTH

by the INDIANA STATE MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

TEETHING TIME

TEETHING time is a teasing time for mothers. Infants begin to get their teeth anywhere from six to eight months, but some get them earlier . . . some later. Many perfectly healthy babies do not get their first teeth until they are 10 or 12 months old.

Teeth are already formed in the jaw when a baby is born. Most babies get their teeth easily. Teething is a natural process and some discomfort usually accompanies the process, due to pressure of the teeth on the gums.

Some mothers worry much over baby's cutting teeth and blame illness of the child on teething. Although sometimes accused of causing them, teething is seldom responsible for diarrhea, constipation, coughs, fever or convulsions. The appetite and digestion, and disposition, of the baby may not be the best, however, when teeth are coming through the gums.

A rubber or celluloid teething ring, or a hard crust of bread, will give baby something to chew on and relieve sore gums. In instances where the infant is actually suffering, it may be necessary to lance the gums or rub the gums to help the teeth come through. The best thing to do to help baby have good teeth and easy teething is to give him proper diet through the early months.

HARLAN DAY, TO BE OBSERVED SATURDAY, AUGUST 6

Harlan Day will be held all day Saturday, August 6, at Harlan, with the big day of activities to get underway at 10:00 a. m. with a pet and tractor parade. A tractor pulling contest will also be held in the morning and will be followed throughout the day by band concerts, variety show, movies, bicycle races and contests with plenty of prizes. Attendance prizes of $10 each will be given at 12 noon; 5 and 10:30 p. m.

Evening entertainment will start at 7:30 and will feature two softball games.

FINAL round of play for the High School softball league will be next Wednesday, August 10 at Harlan. A play off of the five teams will follow the ending of the regular schedule.

DIEHL'S Marathon of Garrett walked away as winers in the ASA tournament at Butler last week. They defeated Zimmermans of Garrett in the final game by a 7 to 2 score. The Butler Produce team, host to the tournament kicked away their chances to play in the finals by blowing a 7 to 3 lead in the last inning, lost to Zims in the semifinals by an 8 to 7 score. With the Produce boys leading by a 7 to 3 score starting the last of the seventh, their ace moundsman, Pepple was taken out for a relief pitcher to finish out the game. But things didn't work out that way. Zims broke out with 5 runs to sew up the game. In the other semi final game Diehl's overpowered St. Joe by a 10 to 1 score.

The Legion team will round out their schedule of Auburn, in Thursday games, this week and next. Both games are rained out tilts from earlier in the season. Thursday, August 4th it will be Warners of Auburn and then Thursday August 11, Wibles of Auburn.

Tobacco Leaves Touchy

Tobacco requires more care in harvesting than almost any other field crop. The tender, high-value leaves are easily broken or bruised, and this is one reason, according to Dr. D. M. Crooks of the U. S. department of agriculture, why the growers have been unable to use mechanical equipment for much of the work beyond field preparation of the soil, transplanting and cultivation. This is in striking contrast to conditions in the manufacturing of tobacco products where mechanization has been developed to an unusually high degree. Maryland and Burley tobaccos are harvested by cutting the entire stalk by hand. The same method is used in harvesting cigar filler tobacco grown mostly in Wisconsin and Pennsylvania. Flue-cured and bright leaf tobaccos are gathered by "priming" off the leaves from the bottom as they reach the right degree of maturity or, in other words, when in prime condition.

FIRST POLIO CASE IS REPORTED IN DEKALB COUNTY

The DeKalb county health commissioner, Dr. E. Rogers of Auburn, reported last week that 8-year-old Richard Mast of near Newville has poliomyelitis, the first reported case this year in DeKalb county.

Richard, the only child of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Mast, a farm couple residing a mile west of Newville on R. 1 Butler, was reported as in such an improved condition, that his release from the Ft. Wayne Methodist Hospital was made early this week.

The boy became ill on Friday, July 29 and a Spencerville physician was summoned. He complained of a stiffness in his legs and lower parts of his body. The physician, after a diognosis of polio, ordered the boy sent to the hospital.

The boy's paralysis was confin'ed to his legs and he responded rapidly to treatment.

SEEKING RETURN OF ELMER REED TO THIS COUNTY

Requisitions for an executive warrant was filed Wednesday by Prosecuting Attorney, James A. Angelone with Gov. Henry Schricker of Indiana seeking the return of Elmer LeRoy Reed to DeKalb county after his release from federal prison at Chillicothe, O.

Reed, a former Spencerille man, is wanted on charges of child neglect. He is scheduled to be released from the federal prison Aug. 14. A detainer, seeking Reed's release to DeKalb authorities, was filed Dec. 8, 1948, with prison officials at Chillicothe.

Mr. Angelone said if Reed waives extradition to DeKalb County, he will be returned to the county Aug. 14 by Sheriff Carpenter. Otherwise an extradition hearing will be held in Ohio, probably at Columbus.

ENTER YOUR PROTEST

Relatively speaking, in compartson with the nation, St. Joe is as insignificant as a pin point on a large sheet of paper, and if a tavern is permitted to operate in our midst, the nation is not going to the eternal bow wows. But, Mr. and Mrs. Neighbor this is our community and it is therefore of first importance to us and if we can by preventing a legalized drinking place in our midst make it easier for our young people to shun alcohol, our present effort is worth while. If you are of the opinion that from a moral standpoint St. Joe and surrounding territory will be better off without a tavern, then you are invited to sign the remonstrance and use your influence against the grantinge of a permit. The hearing on Mr. Coburn's petition will be held by the county liquor board in the court house at Auburn at 9 o'clock, August 17th, and we ask yod to be there, and by your presence, enter your protest against the granting of a beer and wine license.

Tempers are flaring and many things are being said that would better not be mentioned. Don't get hysteria and make an enemy of a friend. Each person has a perfect right to his or her own opinion.

Your dry committee has employed Winslow Van Horne, an Auburn lawyer and a former assistant attorney general of the state of Indiana to look after its interests and every honest effort will be made to discourage the granting of a license. We have refrained from indulging in reputation questioning personalities in these articles and hope they will not be necessary during the week to come. Both sides should "watch their step" and not make statements that cannot be substantiated.

It is our honest contention that we will be better off without a tavern and we believe that if you will give due consideration to the matter you will arrive at the same conclusion. think it over seriously and then follow your convictions.

At the regular August meeting of Tri Twp. Farm Bureau, the secretary was ordered to notify this committee that their organization consisting of 94 rural families in Concord, Newville and Spencer Townships has gone on record as opposing the issuing of a license for the sale of beer, wine or liquor in St. Joe.

HOOSIER STATE FLYWAY SEASON LENGTHENED

Improved conditions of waterfowl as revealed by winter inventory and the reasonably favorable situation on the bulk of nesting grounds have made it possible for the United States Fish and Wildlife service to allow an increase of ten days in the length of the season shooting of such game, according to J. A. Krug, Secretary of the Interior.

In the Mississippi flyway the waterfowl season is increased from 30 consechtive days, or two periods of 12 days each, to 40 consecutive days, or two periods of 16 days each. States of the Miss. flyway, which included Indiana, all elected to have continuous season which is from Nov. 4 until December 13 in the Hoosier state. Last year Indiana sportsmen hunted waterfowl from Oct. 29 until Nov. 27.

Indiana daily bag and possession limits have been listed as follows:

Ducks: 4 a day and 8 in possession.

Geese: In Mississippi flyway states bag and possession limit will be same as last year, 4.

Coots: The bag limits for coots has beenreduced from 15 to 10 birds a day with possession limit the same as daily bag limits.

Rails: in all flyways not mtre than 15 in the aggregate of rails other than sora and gallinules.

Sora: The bag limit for sora has been increased from 20 to 25 birds a day.

Woodcock: In the Mississippi flyway states the daily bag limit is 4 with a possession limit of 8.

It's the Talk of the Town

The excitement currently aroused by the possibility of a tavern in St Joe has been given publicity by several other newspapers in this territory. An outsider reading one or all of the articles might be led to believe that all of St. Joe is fighting against a tavern. Such is not the case.

There is a good proportion of the population of this town ("of this town" means within the city limits of St. Joe and DOES NOT include outsiders who seem so vitally interested) who are not opposed to a tavern and some who are definitely for it. We can see no reason why there shouldn't be a tavern here AS LONG AS IT IS KEPT RESPECTABLE. The reason " we have gotten along without it before" doesn't hold water. It hasn't been too many years since there was a tavern here which was run properly and there weren't any more who staggered home at night then than there are now.

Some oppose a tavern because they are morally against drinking. We can see nothing wrong with having a bottle of beer. Many get the same enjoyment from it that others get from drinking coffee .... . and both are harmful when taken in large quantities. It's up to the individual to realize when enjoyment ceases and "drinking" begins.

Still others oppose it because . . . well, we don't know; but they've got beer in the icebox.

Generally speaking we feel that another addition to the business establishments in St Joe is a good thing. It would bring the trade that goes to other nearby towns here, and there would be one less empty building standing around doing nothing.

There, we have voiced an opinion.

We know you've got one too. Regardless of which "side" you're on let's have it. We'll publish anything you want to say on the matter as long as there is a signature on your letter.

. . . And let's still be friends.

DIFFERENCE BETWEEN THE "ISMS"

(In terms of a man with two cows)

Socialism—If you have two cows, you give one to your neighbor and keep one for yourself.

Fascism—If you have two cows you keep the cows and give the milk to the government, then the government sells you some milk.

Nazism—If you have two cows, the government shoots you and keeps the cows.

Communism—If you have two cows, you give them to the government and the government gives you some milk.

Capitalism—If you have two cows, you sell one and buy a bull.—(From the "Fifth Wheel" Truckers' Magazine)

—o—

If you think we make some typographical errors that are "lulus", here are a few gleaned from various newspapers by the December Medical Record:

"The physician felt the patient's purse and decided there was no hope." "Dr. S—,one of our most eligible bachelors is retiring hale and hearty at 65. He say all he wants is a little peach and quiet." "Dr. P—returned yesterday and will take up his cuties at the hospital." "Mrs. R— expects to have a garter removed by the Mayo brothers!" "The donation will be used to purchase new wenches for the hospital as the old ones are dilapidated." "Miss R—, attractive nurse, was injured while driving in the Cumberlands. The area where she was injured is spectacularly scenic!"

K-F Vagabond Hauls 'Playloads' As Well As Payloads

DESIGNED FOR BOTH "play" and payloads, the Kaiser Vagabond is being introduced as the eighth K-F model for 1949. The 112-h.p. automobile combines station wagon utility with styling features available only in luxurious sedans of conventional design. Upholstery is of washable vinyl plastic. With rear seat cushions folded, 130 cubic feet of cargo space is accessible through the two hinged rear panels. With panels closed and seat up, the Kaiser Vagabond becomes a deluxe 6-passenger sedan.

K-F INTRODUCES 2ND UTILITY MODEL, THE KAISER VAGABOND

The new market for "utility" sedans created early this year with the introduction of the Kaiser Traveler was broadened last week with the announcement of a second Kaiser-Frazer multi-purpose model. the "Vagabond."

In appearance and styling, the new six passenger automobile is identical to the conventional Kaiser DeLuxe four-door sedan, and is powered by the same 112 H. P. "Thunderhead" engine.

But the back seat of the Vagabond folds away in 10 seconds, and the rear of the car opens from floor to roof to provide access to more than 130 cubic feet of space for cargo. The cargo floor is 10 feet long and more than 32 square feet in area.

Now being shipped to dealers, the new model retails at $2,288 plus only state and local taxes, if any, and transportation from the factory The original Traveler, comparable to the conventional Kaiser Special sedan and equipped with the K-F 100 horsepower engine, delivers for $2,088.

As in the Traveler, the versatility of the Kaiser Vagabond is achieved through the functional design of two large hinged panels at the rear of the car.

The lower panel hinges downward to form a tailgate level with the cargo floor. The second panel, which includes the broad rear window, hinges from the roof and opens upward. When loaded to capacity, the car may be driven with both panels open.

Henry J. Kaiser, K-F chairman, who developed the idea for this original utility model, said that the Vagabond is being offered to meet the combination cargo -passenger requirements of car buyers who traditionally have operated a second vehicle.

But higher insurance rates, the extra taxes, maintainance costs and other premiums involved have imposed a heavy penalty on two-car ownership, he pointed out.

The Vagabond may be used as a conventional six-passenger sedan, for light hauling or delivery, or as a multi -functional car for sports minded motorists. For overnight camping or touring stops, the cargo floor of the Vagabond easily accomodates a conventionol twin bed or rubber air mattress.

A new note in fashionable interior styling is achieved in the Vagabond despite the use of washable vinyl plastic upholstery. The rugged material is pleated over air-foam rubber seat cushions and used in fashioning the custom-styled door panel upholstery. All vinyl or a combination of vinyl and fabric in harmonizing colors is available.

The new sedan is offered in six colorful oody finishes - -Caribbean coral metallic, saddle bronze metallic, glass green, garden green, polar gray and onyx. Interiors are executive green, oakwood brown, cardinal red and peppery red.

Heavy duty shock absorbers and springs are standard equipment on the 123½ inch wheelbase model. Overdrive and four or six-ply tires are available optionally.

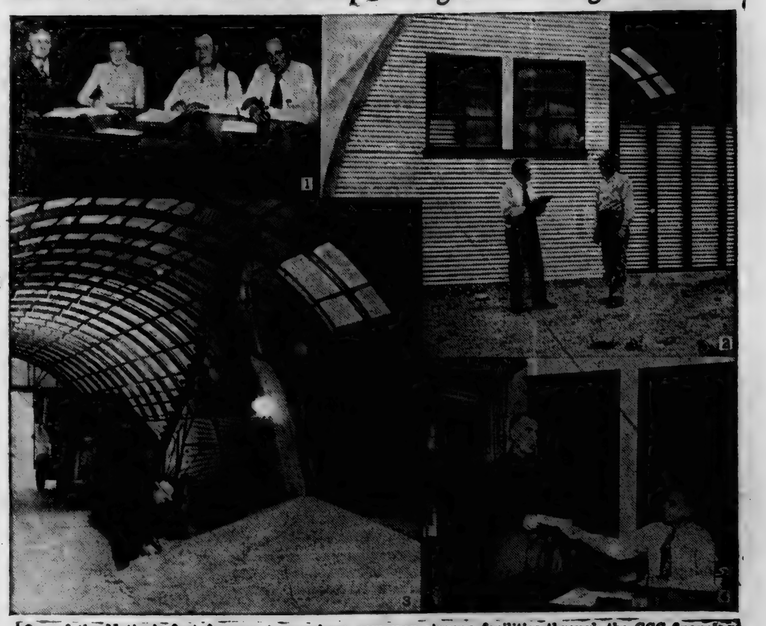
Here's How New CCC Crop Storage Loan Program Works



One of the Nation's first farmers to purchase new crop storage facilities through the CCC financing program is Irvin McKibben of Maddock, N. D. Steps by which he completed the transaction form a pattern of experiences which will be shared by thousands of wheat and corn growers this Summer and Fall as their own applications are processed. They are shown in the photo-story above.

1—After pricing the building he wanted, McKibben submitted application for the loan to his County Production Marketing Committee. Such loans may be for as much as 85 per cent of the desired structure's cost. Members of the Benson County PMA Committee which approved McKibben's application are three fellow farmers who meet once a week, and who are assisted by a full-time secretary. They are (left to right) K. B. Sandven of York; Margaret Scott, secretary, of Minnewaukan; Albert Thompson, chairman, Sheyenne, and I. J. Leier, vice chairman, Esmond.

2—His application approved, McKibben arranged with Agsco Steel Buildings, Inc., Quonset dealer at Grand Forks, to construct one of these multi-purpose farm buildings on his land. Upon its completion some 10 days later, the structure is inspected by PMA Committeeman Leier (at left, with McKibben). Leier certifies that it meets CCC requirements for crop storage.

3—The first truck load of McKibben's wheat crop is dumped into the newly-completed building, which can be used for other small grains and also will be useful to shelter machinery or livestock when cleared of grain. Had McKibben's requirement been for ear corn, he could have obtained a Quonset equipped to dry as well as store that crop.

4—A few days later, a check payable to the building supplier is handed McKibben by V. A. Hallberg (right) president of the Farmer's State Bank at Minnewaukan. The check represents proceeds of the bank's loan to McKibben, who is to repay in five years at 4% interest.

Town + Farm

by EVERETT MITCHELL

Farm Commentator, heard Monday through Saturday, 6:15-6:45 a. m. on WMAQ, Chicago, 670 on your dial.

TWO weeks vacation with pay! That's a luxury most of our farm friends can't afford — and it's too bad. More farmers should take an extended vacation away from their chores, because it would do them worlds of good, in more ways than one.

What set me to thinking about vacations for farmers was a talk with two farmers who took a day off to come to Chicago for soil conservation interviews. One of them hadn't had a real vacation in over 20 years of farming, and the other hadn't taken time off since before the war. I'm sure that if both these hard working gentlemen had accompanied me on my recent vacation to Alaska, they would have returned to their jobs not only rested, but with a far greater appreciation of the good earth here in the Middle West.

They would have seen how their Alaskan counterparts struggle against a reluctant soil to raise even small garden crops. America's last frontier, Alaska, is a land of many blessings, but the most important to the farmer is missing from most of the territory. That's the precious six inches of top soil, the source of our abundance and productivity.

My two farm friends would reaffirm their resolve to conserve the resources Mother Nature has placed at their command for real farm living and greater production records. A vacation trip away from our own fertile fields and forests would bring to every farmer a realization of how fortunate we midwesterners really are—and besides, it would be fun.

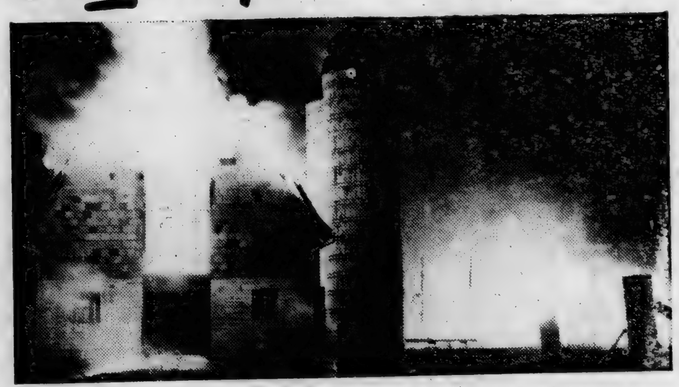
Accidents never happen to you!

Like most farmers, you probably take unnecessary chances with fire. You think nothing of smoking in the barn. But you don't worry. Accidents never happen to you!

Or do they?



The farmer who owned these buildings thought accidents couldn't happen to him, either. He had to learn about farm fires the hard way. Farm fires kill hundreds, injure thousands and cost millions of dollars every year. So don't take needless chances with fire.

Broken steps are plenty dangerous, so don't put off repairing them. Keep ladders, railings and floors in a safe condition at all times. Remember, falls cause more than a third of all fatal farm accidents.

Bossie may be kind and gentle most of the time, but don't take chances. Approach all farm animals cautiously with a friendly word or pat. You may be kicked or gored to death unless you do!

WHEAT ACREAGE ALLOTMENT IS CUT FOR NEXT YEAR

Wheat allotments for all DeKalb county wheat farmers were mailed Thuasday from the county AAA office in Auburn. Any farmer that exceeds his wheat allotment will not be elgible for price support on wheat sold. The total wheat alotment for DeKalb county is 25,617 acres.

The average acreage of wheat in DeKalb for the years 1945, 1946, 1947 and 1948 was 29,620 acres. The cut in acreage is necessary next year because the U. S. has reached the point where there is not a demand for all of the wheat the farmers can produce.

If wheat growers comply with their acreage allotments it may be unnecessary to use marketing quotas for future crops.

There are no restrictions on the amount of wheat or flour that may be shipped to the other countries. The C. C. C. supplies wheat to all areas outside the western hemisphere and the Philippines and will continue to do so.

Singing Holidays

Lesson for August 14, 1949

Dr. Foreman

IF A CITIZEN of the U.S.A observed all the holidays that are officially counted as legal, somewhere in his wide country, he would have 43 days off every year. Holidays are a national habit in all countries. Not content with what the law gives us, we take our personal vacations besides. But how many holidays do we sing about? (One might even dare to ask, how many are worth singing about?) In the United States, there are known to this writer no New Year songs, none for Decoration day or Labor day, none for Armistice day, none for the various birthdays celebrated hither and yon. (Who ever heard of a song to commemorate Thomas Jefferson?) We may not even sing on our personal vacations, we are too busy working up a suntan. On the other hand, we could hardly think of Independence day, Thanksgiving, Christmas and Easter without being reminded of the songs that go with them—The Star Spangled Banner or America the Beautiful for the Fourth of July, Now Thank We All Our God in November, and all the Christmas and Easter carols.

God and Country

IT looks as if some kinds of holidays produce songs and others don't. It appears to be a general rule: If the holiday is specially patriotic or religious, then people sing; otherwise they don't. God and country, in short, arouse emotion and enthusiasm which (for example) the memory even of a great man like Jefferson, or the planting of a tree, does not. This is generally true throughout the world. It was true in ancient Israel, for many of the Psalms are holiday hymns, festival songs. Some years ago a religious denomination issued a new hymn book. One minister roundly denounced the book because it had introduced a few patriotic hymns. "My Country, 'tis of Thee" has no place in public worship, he said.

If that man had been a closer student of the Psalms, he would not have made such a criticism. Most patriotic hymns are really prayers for one's native land; Psalms 105 and 106 are only two of a number of Psalms which are in the best sense of the word patriotic.

If the reader will look through the Psalms for himself, noting all the references to God and to Israel, remembering that Israel was the name of the poet's country, he will be convinced that in those times as in these, love for God and love for country are singable.

Hallelujah

OUR word "Hallelujah" is Hebrew, and comes from the Psalms. It means "Praise ye the Lord!" Incidentally, it is a religious word, and should not be used, as it so often is, irreverently or lightly. Psalms 111-118 in our Bible were sung as a group, and called the Hallel, or the Praise. The Hallel was sung regularly at the three great holiday festivals: Passover (near our Easter time), Pentecost (in early sumfmer, ancestor of our Whitsunday), and Tabernacles (in the fall).

When our Lord had his "Last Supper" he and his friends would sing these very Psalms. The "hymn" they sang before they went out was very probably the latter paft of this group, 116-118, always sung at the end of the Passover meal.

The note of praise in these Psalms is very strong. They are not in a minor key.

Parodies

A SAD FACT today is that the un-Christian world, which does not understand religion at all, has taken over our religious holidays but leaves the religion out. The result is a parody, something without rhyme or reason. Take a look, next winter, at Christmas greeting cards for sale. You will find scotty pups, all sorts of things, more easily than you will find true Christmas messages.

For people who are not Christians, Christmas is only Xmas, a time for exchanging useless presents, a time for shopkeepers to make money.

And as for Easter, there are cities where the big items are only the bunnies and the parade, neither of which has the slightest thing to do with the real Easter.

Fresh Rhubarb Pie

Folks won't need to guess what this pie's all about, for tart, rosy rhubarb gets a chance to show its virtues with individual pastry wedges baked atop the pie.

"Pieplant" is an old name for rhubarb, but a very appropriate one. Crisp rhubarb stalks, rosy or cherry-colored, make a spring pie that is pleasantly tart and sparkling.

'Tis a pity to hide such an inviting filling, so cut five or six triangles of pastry to arrange on top the pie, one for each serving. Cut the wedges with a pastry wheel to get the pretty scalloped effect, and place pastry over filling before baking.

Since this is a juicy pie, the favorite crimped edge is the one to use to hold in the juices. Make this by pressing dough together between thumb and finger of left hand and forefinger of right hand.

Pie is a favorite dessert, and a satisfying one. That's reason enough to make fresh rhubarb pie a luncheon or dinner pastry treat often this spring.

RHUBARB PIE

1½ cups sifted enriched flour
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup shortening
2 to 3 tablespoons cold water

Sift together flour and salt. Cut or rub in shortening. Add water gradually. Mix to a dry, crumbly dough. Toss out on lightly floured pastry cloth. Press dough together. Roll two-thirds of the dough to a circle one-eighth inch thick. Line nine-inch pie pan with pastry. Fill with rhubarb filling.

Roll out remaining pastry to circle one-eighth inch thick. Cut into five or six triangular wedges. Arrange evenly over rhubarb filling. Bake in hot oven (450 degrees F.) 10 minutes. Reduce heat to moderate (350 degrees F.) and continue baking 45 minutes.

Rhubarb Filling

1½ pounds fresh rhubarb
1¼ cups sugar
¼ cup enriched flour
¼ teaspoon salt

Cut cleaned rhubarb into half-inch lengths. Add sugar, flour and salt to rhubarb and mix well.

With the peak of the summer's heat playing havoc with fishing in general, it takes a lot of experimenting to land a decent stringer of bass or other fresh water battlers. And you can bet your bottom dollar that the boys who come in with the best catches are the ones who have some special tricks for outwitting finny gamesters during the hottest days of summer.

I've learned two things about hot weather fishing. First, you've got to know the water you are fishing like your own living room; and, second, it take a lot more arm power and work on most fishing jaunts to make a fair catch.

When fishing lakes this time of the year that I also fished early in the season, I go to the same spots that produced well on early trips--certain shore lines, brush piles or other cover and then move out into deeper water from these areas for heat-of-the-day fishing. Seldom do game fish in lakes move far from their choice hiding spots, but as the water warms they will seek cooler places - - and the closest places that are available. That's why I always fish the deep water that is adjacent to the spots that produced when the water was cooler early in the season.

Frequently eary in the morning or late evening you will find the gamesters feeding in the shallows for food most always is more abundant in this water. But you'd better try the deep holes when the sun is high overhead.

I've found, too, the artificial lures that produce early in the season often are a complete bust in hot weather. Why I don't kown, but in August I carry a tackle box loaded with new lures and if 10 or 15 minutes of fishing in a good spot fails to offer a fish I switch lures until the right one is found.

Almost ever body of water needs special tricks in hot weather. And if you're a wise fisherman you will check with the boys having the best luck and find out their mtehods. It may take a little spying to do it, but the rewards often are rich.

HERE 'N THERE IN SPORTS

By LEWIS H. WALTER

THE LEGION team played steady ball and backed up a beautiful 3 hit hurling job by Wayne Surface to knock off the Warner Gear team by a 9 to 1 score last Thursday evening at Auburn.

After the locals had gone out on an early game run spree that produced three runs in the very first inning, Surf went on with complete mastery over the Gearmen. Only in the third inning when they combined one of their three hits with an error, did they score.

THE first inning, 3 run splurge came about when Surface and Walter both were given walks by Shoudel. Warner hurler, Shuff and Haberkorn then singled for two runs and then scored the third time on an outfield fly, for more than enough to win the game. The other later inning tallies did help to fatten up the box score readings, however. Pugsley accounted for the 4th run single handed in the 4th with a home run poke to center. Shoudel had to get help from Diederich, former St. Joe tosser to get out of a wild 6th inning.

The feature clout of that five run inning was a mighty, centerfield four base smash by Shuff, a triple by Haberkorn and a pinch hit, fluke home run by Harry Sheefel, down the left field foul line.

Thursday will wind up scheduled league play at Auburn for the St. Joe team. The locals will take on the Wible Realtor's in the 7:15 game.

Entry blanks are being distributed and other plans are progressing for the second annual county softball tournament to be held at Garrett, starting August 18. Last year's tournament proved a big hit and this year's affair promises to be even better, with nearly all county teams planning to enter for a crack at the trophies. All games will be played at Garrett.

Farmer: Way I see it, my electric company is a place to go for advice on drying hay, grading crops, irrigation. Their rural representatives even concern themselves with better stock-breeding methods, with recreational activities for rural youngsters, with lots of other projects where electricity isn't directly involved at all . . .

Housewife: Well, when I think of my electric company, I think first of all of the home economist. She helps me use my appliances to best advantage. Then there are the cooking schools and demonstrations the company puts on from time to time. They're mighty helpful to homemakers who want to get the most for their electric dollar . . .

Industrialist: Power Engineers—they're the electric company to me. Always ready to assist me with production problems. And the electric company regularly promotes the advantages of this area to bring related industries economically together, to attract new industries that bring to the community new stability, new customers, new jobs.

Store Owner: Like the restaurant man and the theatre operator, I contact my electric company mostly through the specialists in their commercial department. I see my electric company as a source of help on profitable store lighting, air-conditioning . . .

So it goes. We all think of things in terms of the parts we know best. But there are usually other parts that can be just as useful to us—so it's well worth while to know about them all!

In your home or business, are you making the most of the many specialized services this company offers?

VOL. LXIV | 64 YEARS | (In the St. Joe Valley) | ST. JOE (DeKALB CO.), INDIANA | THURSDAY. AUGUST 18, 1948 | NUMBER 33

Mrs. Nina Kees Passses Away Last Thurs.

Final rites for Mrs. Nina Kees, 79, a resident nearly all her life of the St. Joe community, were conducted at 2 p. m. Sunday in the St. Joe Church of Christ.

Mrs. Kees, Widow of the late, Harry Kees, died at 3 p.m. Thursday in the home of her son, Leon, at St. Joe. She passed away following an illness of five months.

At Sunday's services, Rev. Johnnie Lee Sennett, pastor of the St. Joe Church of Christ officiated. Burial was made in Riverside cemetery at St. Joe.

Mrs. Kees was a native of Newville, but lived most of her life in the St. Joe community with the exception of nine years in Marion. She was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Filley. Her husband died in 1942.

Mrs. Kees was a charter member of the Church of Christ here and member of the Spencerville chapter of the Order of the Eastern Star.

Surviving besides the son are three grandchildren and a sister, Mrs. Belle Woodcox of near St. Joe.

Withdraws Application For Tavern License

After a near three-hour battle in the assembly room of the court house Earl Coburn of St. Joe withdrew his permit for a beer and wine license in St. Joe. The action came on the advice of his attorney, James D. Brickerhoff of Garrett at about 12:30 p. m. Wednesday.

The withdrawal came after a morning long, entertaining battle of legal words, when J. E. Bond, State representative of the Alcoholic Commission, realized that a legal ruling of the commission was being violated because Mr. Coburn did not own the fixtures in the proposed tavern site.

By withdrawing his application, not sending it on to Indianapolis where it probably would have been rejected because of the technically, Mr. Coburn reserves the right to reapply any time after October 15. if he so desires.

The proceedings were brought to an end when, after a brilliant attack on old questions of distance from the church, law enforcement and questions about the lease by Wilson Van Horne and former judge Endicott, Mr. Bond spotted the objection while thumbing through his manual.

Lighten the Load

The Transportation Association of America recently began sending out a newsletter in which they briefly discuss subjects related to the trucking and transportation industry The latest newsletter beins with the question "How long since you've written your Congressman?" It then points out the taxes we pay on transportation and urges the reader to write his congressman asking him to do everything possible to get the excise taxes on transportation repealed.

We would like to add to that request by saying "Let's repeal ALL excise taxes!"

The excise taxes were levied during the war to help in paying the cost of war. But the fighting is over; these taxes shouldn't be necessary. There are taxes on cosmetics, items of jewlery, fur coats, alarm clocks, transportation—taxes which should be removed NOW because the longer we wait, the harder it becomes to get repeal.

Recently the Administration announced that there would be no reduction or removal of excise taxes at this time. That's the signal for us to get busy and demand removal of some of the taxation which is fast approaching an unbearable load.

Write a letter or drop a card to Cong. Edward H. Kruse, Jr., 425 Old House Office Bldg., Washington, D. C. Tell him what you think about this and other subjects which you feel vital to your and the public interests.

"LITTLE STINKERS" MAKE THE HEADLINES

The ad which appeared in the classified section of last week's paper about the "little stinkers" rated mention in the Auburn papers and the Fort Wayne News-Sentinel. Garford Smith says he also heard it read over radio station WLW, Cincinnati.

Singing, Shining

Lesson for August 21, 1949

EVERY ATOM of the universe, said Calvin, sparkles with the glory of God. That is our thought for this week: In the created universe we can see the God who is more wonderful than all his works. The selected Psalms express four different aspects of God's creative power. Psalm 8 brings out the dignity and the glory of man, made to be master of the earth; Psalm 19: 1-6 listens to the majestic music of sun and stars; Psalm 65:9-13 sees nature as a farmer sees it, in terms of sun, rain and crops; Psalm 104, one of the noblest poems in existence, celebrates God's glory in all things great and small.

Dr. Foreman

Mystery

THESE inspired Psalmists saw a high truth: Nature is for man's use, in part, but has also a value, a beauty and a splendor all its own; and it is one of the ways by which we can know God. What is true of nature is true, far more, of the God who created all things. One of the thoughts suggested to their minds was the mystery of nature.

Even today, with all that science has discovered, there is mystery in the most elemental facts of existence. What is light? What is life? What is energy? Where did it come from and what is the destiny of it all?

A common grass blade performs miracles that chemistry has not yet initiated. The mystery of nature suggests the deeper mystery of nature's God.

Power

WE ARE beginning now to realize, even better than the Psalmists could, how much energy there is in nature. We have seen tragic evidence of the atom's power. Now we have also found that while energy cannot be destroyed, it cannot be created by us, though it constantly changes form.

As the water in a power station which has run through a turbine will not climb back up to turn the turbine again, so the whole universe (they tell us) is in the process of running down.

But how was the universe born, how was energy born, in the first place? How was the universe, so to speak, wound up? Science does not profess to know; but religious answers by faith: In the beginning, God . . .

Beauty

THE writer of Psalm 104 was well aware that some parts of nature are useless to man; but he rejoiced in them none the less. Few of his neighbors had any use for whales, for example, but he takes delight in the whale (he calls him Leviathan) just playing in the ocean. St. Augustine, in the same mood, says somewhere about things like wasps and spiders that if we could forget that they bite, we would be greatly awed by their beauty and the perfection of their mechanism. Indeed, St. Augustine, in one of his prayers, calls God "Pulchritudo," Beauty. Just as God is The Truth and The Good, so he is The Beautiful.

Law

THE writers of these nature-Psalms (especially 19 and 65) were impressed by another fact about nature: its regularity. You can count on the sunrise, you always know which order the seasons will follow. Even things like earthquakes and tornadoes, which seem pretty unpredictable, follow laws of their own. Science has now shown this to be true on a cosmic scale. The stuff of which the farthest stars are made is just the same (only a lot hotter!) as the stuff in the rocks under your feet at this minute.

The laws that govern the fall of a leaf or the shape of raindrop are the same laws that can be seen in the whirling of star-dust fifty million light years away.

The Creator of all is not erratic, eccentric or capricious. He is the God of Law, for from his infinite Mind come all the patterns, known to us or yet unknown, by which the vast fabric of the universe is woven. Mystery, Power, Beauty, Law: All nature, not only the stars, shine with all these—and as Addison says,

"Forever singing as they shine,
The hand that made us is divine."

Calling all outdoorsmen

By JIM MITCHELL

I have spent a good many days this summer fishing with "purists' who frown at the mere suggestion of fishing with live bait. And, too, I have had a lot of fun "dunking" live bait with the minnow-frog grasshopper clan trying to outwit finny gamesters.

Frankly (hold the brickbat, purists) I happen to belong to the school of fishermen who like variety- - both in fishing methods and species of fish. And I Can see no need for the heated arguments that often develop between the purists and the bait dunkers. It's every man to his own liking, with no questions asked as far as I'm concerned.

This subject, however has led to numerous discussions recently of zoning certain streams or lakes, with a part for the purists and a part ftr the bait fishermen. In some states certain streams, I believe, are closed to all types of fishing except fishing with artificial flies. I have never fished one of these spots.

But I do think the idea of zoning certain water has merit - - if for no other reason than to keep the purists and the bait fisher out of arguing distance at least while they are fishing.

In checking the recent winners of a national fishing contest with 17 classifications, 13 prize fish (ranging from bass to trout) were taken on artificial lures. while four winners caught their fish with live bait.. So I see no reason for the purists to get alarmed; they're taking more than their share of the glory and big fish.

Maybe all this arguing is what makes fishing such an interesting sport. If everyone liked the same species of fish, the same fishing method and used the same type of equipment it would create a serious problem. So don't worry about the current variety of styles and customs. It's all grand sport.

HERE 'N THERE IN SPORTS

By LEWIS H. WALTER

THE Legion softball team put a successful finish on the first half of the YMCA league at Auburn, Monday evening by whipping Wibles by 6 to 3 score. The locals tallied once in the first inning when Akey walked, stole second and when the catchers throw shot by the second baseman and rolled into deep center, Akey circled the bases for the first run.

The local boys salted the game away in the next inning, however, with four big runs. Hits by Walter. Surface, Akey and Yeiser, combined with an error and an infield out did the job.

Wibles put their only scoring drive underway in the third inning and piled up 3 runs. St. Joe added their final run in the 4th.

Surface went all the way for the locals and turned in another good mound performance, allowing six hits over the full seven innings. One of their blows was a long home run which featured their three run inning.

TO SPEED up the playing of the escond half of the league schedule, the league has been split with the top five teams playing a complete round and the lower four doing the same.

AFTER Monday evening's final, four teams were tied for fifth place with St. Joe among the four. By a flip of the coin DeMolay was awarded 5th spot with St. Joe in 6th. Afer a complete round of play the two teams from each bracket who has won the most games will be paired to determine the winner of the second half. The winner will then be matched against the Auburn Legion, who are first half winners. IN their first game of the abbreviated second half the locals lost a tight game to the Auburn Moose by a 5 to 4 score, Tuesday evening. The Moose took an early 3 to 0 lead but the locals bounced back and had gone into a 4 to 3 lead by the fifth. Their skimpy one run lead didn't hold up however. The Moose pushed across the tieing and winning runs in the 6th and the locals were held scoreless in the last inning.

Second half play will continue next week for the locals. They will take on the Ball Foundry, 8th place finishers in the first half, in the 7:15 game Tuesday, August 23.

PLAYOFFS have begun this week in the Vim High School league. The championships are being played off with a similar league in Ohio, with five teams from Hicksville, Antwerp and Payne, competing with Harlan, Leo, Monroeville, St. Joe, and Spencerville.

THURSDAY evening the St. Joe High School softball team will go to Hicksville to meet the Ronnies team of Hicksville in the school league playoffs. The Tigers will go afield against Ronnies who knocked of the Spencerville Raiders by a 10 to 8 score Tuesday evening. 7:15 will be game time.

ST. JOE LEGION will play the Butler Produce at 8:30 Friday evening at Garrett in county tourney play.

It's KRAYLETS 80% milk products* in economical, convenient dry kernel form!

Now, you can give your hogs milk products without any water or waste, mess or flies! Feed Kraylets—80% milk products in thrifty, easy-to-feed dry kernel form. Not a liquid, not a paste, but sanitary dry kernels! When you mix good-tasting Kraylets with other feed, your hogs will eat more. Kraylets helps to increase consumption of feed—pack on thrifty extra pounds. And dry Kraylets is tops for concentrated value. You only need ½ pound per hog daily.

Kraylets contains 80% concentrated milk products!

The milk products in Kraylets are 65% dried cheese whey, 9% cheese rinds, and 6½ dried skim milk. The rest of the formula consists of 14% soybean oil meal, 4% alfalfa meal (dehydrated), 1% beef tallow (edible), 1% dried brewers yeast.

Kraylets' efficient milk protein puts other feed to work for thrifty gains!

One of the highest quality, most efficient proteins of all is milk protein. That's why Kraylets—80% milk products—is so valuable in promoting fast, thrifty gains. Kraylets' milk proteins are casein with a growth-promoting value of 84%, and lactalbumen with an even higher growth-promoting value of 96% (by actual laboratory feeding test). These proteins put lower quality proteins (in grains) to work—make them provide more pounds of gain per pound of feed! Kraylets also provides milk minerals—calcium and phosphorus, so essential to good bone and body structure, and lactose (milk sugar), which promotes good health and minimizes the hazards of intestinal parasites.

MODERN FARMING

Hybrid Corn . . . HOW MUCH BETTER CAN IT GET???

HYBRID corn has come a long way since the turn of the Century, when plant scientists like Jones, Shull and East were just beginning to probe the mysteries of inbreeding, crossing and hybrid vigor. In fact, hybrid corn research hasn't stopped yet! Year by year, the corn breeders are uncovering more and more hidden facts about corn, with the result that better varieties are constantly being developed and introduced.

Today, hybrid corn is so far superior to the old open-pollinated strains of 15 years ago, that further improvement may seem less spectacular than when hybrid corn was new.

Some "Burbanks of the cornfields" feel that the next really big boost in corn yields will come with the introduction of multiple-eared hybrids . . . varieties with the ability to produce two, three, or even four good ears per stalk. Others think multiple ears may be a handicap. Second and third ears on a stalk, they say, are usually small, resulting in cracking and shelling with mechanical pickers. Also, the "extra" ears often mature slower so that they may be too high in moisture for safe cribbing when the rest of the corn is ready for harvest.

Then too, in dry years or on soil low in fertility, two or three nubbins per stalk may be produced by a multiple-eared variety as compared with one big ear per stalk produced by a single-eared hybrid. This year may give producers of multiple-eared strains a chance to substantiate their claims. Through this kind of corn breeding trial and error comes progress!

Pictured below are some of the ways corn breeders are working to produce ever-better, more profitable hybrid corn for you.

A corn yield of 224.2 bushels per acre produced in 1948 on the Carroll L. Brown farm, Mahaska county, Iowa, is believed to have set a world record in corn production. Brown's record yield was in an official county 10-acre yield contest held in connection with the official state contest sponsored by the Iowa Corn and Small Grain Growers Association.

BOTANICAL & GENETIC STUDIES SHOW WAY

To NEW and BETTER HYBRIDS

. . . Part of PIONEER Research for Better and BETTER Corn

In their research for better and better corn, our corn breeders study botanical and genetic relationships of inbreds, hybrids and open pollinated corn. They analyze the origin and history of corn belt corn. This information proves helpful in gaining a clearer insight into relationships and the combining ability of modern inbred strains. In studying inbreds critically, our corn breeders work not only with stalks, leaves, ears and other parts of the plant. They work with chromosomes of the reproductive cells as well. Their purpose is to determine which varieties are apt to cross well and produce greater hybrid vigor. They measure each variety for many characteristics and score it by points. They arrive at an index for each variety by adding its total points. They hope to tell by the index number of a variety if it will cross well with another variety. This plan will eliminate a lot of the old, hit and miss, trial and error methods of corn breeding.

Above, Dr. W. L. Brown, Pioneer cytologist, is shown taking young tassel branches from inside of inbred stalks. He uses them to study the chromosomes in male-reproductive cells.

Remember, better Pioneer hybrids are coming . . . many are here now. Ask your Pioneer salesman about them . . . and place your order now for next spring.

Make it the PIONEER Next Year

Pick the WINNER!

PFISTER HYBRIDS

WIN 8 OUT OF 10 TIMES IN 1101 COMPETITIVE YIELD CHECKS

Genuine Pfister Hybrids won 8 out of 10 times in 1101 competitive yield checks made in farmers' fields during 1948. They won 86.3% of the time to average 11.5 bushels more dry shelled corn per acre! Extra yield 8 out of 10 times is a mighty good winning average . . . one that means extra profit for you. For extra yield, extra profit, you "pick the winner" when you pick Genuine Pfister Hybrids. Your Genuine Pfister dealer will help you select the right hybrid for your locality and farming practice. Depend on him!

Will new multiple-eared hybrids like this boost corn yields in the future? Some plant breeders say "yes" . . . others say "no". Proof of performance will come only after years of testing in experimental plots and under actual farm conditions.

Strong standing ability (left) has always been important in corn. It was one reason why hybrids swept into favor almost over night. Now, with corn borers infesting most of the midwest, standing ability is even more important, because varieties that can stand up when gutted by borers generally will make good yields in spite of them.

One major, but seldom seen, benefit to corn growers that has come out of years of hybrid corn research is bigger, deeper-probing roots. Big roots are better feeders. They help the plant make the most of good or poor soil. Also, they anchor the plant firmly in spite of wind and rootworm attack, so breeders seek bigger-rooted hybrids.

This new dwarf corn may be the answer to combine harvesting. Stalks average only 40" high, but produce full-sized, uniform ears better than 11 inches long. This dwarf-type hybrid has the same number of leaves as on ordinary corn, but leaves are spaced only 2½" apart.

"Chow time" for hybrid corn detasselers at an Indiana seed production field. Many hybrid corn producers set up a regular "camp" for their big detasselling crews. Besides pay, the youngsters enjoy plenty of fresh air, sunshine, and the companionship of hundreds of others who gather once a year for detasselling operations.

In addition to breeding corn for higher yield, better standing ability, greater tolerance to insect and disease attack, etc., many corn breeders are trying to develop higher feeding value in the kernels. Through selection and crossing of certain inbreds, corn has been developed with a higher oil content and more protein.

Summer Romance

SUMMER suns and summer stars may spell romance for the rest of the world, but summertime seems anything but romantic to those of us who have to plan hot-weather meals. Yet, if we'll but tear a page from Nature's note-book and note the soft silvery greens with which Dame Nature surrounds herself, we'll find the keynote for cool, refreshing meals.

Bear in mind that there's something restful and refreshing about green leaves. In setting the table you must create an illusion of coolness, so tuck a few mint leaves into your tall tinkling glass of frosted beverage . . . mass beet greens into a bed for your platter of cold cuts and sliced cheese. Turn to feathery carrot tops as a garnish in place of parsley for that tray of devilled eggs . . . cluster grape leaves into your wooden salad bowl . . . scatter garden leaves about your table for a summertime centerpiece.

Because each of us is both artistic and creative in some way, we welcame the opportunity to indulge our dramatic instinct by setting the stage for each meal. And while we're about it, let's remember that variety plays an important part in the breakfast drama. Ice cold pineapple juice goes over big first thing in the morning. Serve orange slices for a change. Sliced bananas are equally good; whole strawberries served with a mound of powdered sugar are favorites, and stewed rhubarb is welcome throughout the hot months.

Added all together, your family will agree that the sum total equals summertime romance.

PEACH WAFFLE SHORTCAKE. For a summertime dessert special, cover waffles with sweetened peaches and whipped cream two stories high.

ALMOND TOMATO DOUBLE DECK SANDWICH

For a summertime sandwich that's different, yet filling

Combine ½ cup finely chopped almonds and ½ cup mayonnaise and stir to blend. Season cream cheese as desired with onion salt or minced onion, celery salt or chopped celery, Worcestershire sauce, Tobasco sauce and sufficient mayonnaise or cream to give spreading consistency. Spread slices of buttered bread with cheese mixture, top with second slices of buttered bread. Cover top slices with thick slice of peeled salted tomato. Spread tomato with almond-mayonnaise mixture. Place sandwiches under broiler, until almond topping is slightly brown. Serve immediately. Whole roasted almonds and sprigs of water cress are attractive garnishes. Makes sufficient spread for 5 to 6 full-sized sandwiches.

FOR THAT AFTERNOON PAUSE — serve this Prune Malted Milk, a drink with a delightful texture and interesting flavor.

PRUNE-MALTED MILK
(serves 6)

1½ cups cooked prunes
4 tblsp. sugar
½ cup grated semi-sweet chocolate
9 tblsp. malted milk powder
⅓ cup warm water
4 cups milk
1 tsp. vanilla
1 cup whipping cream

Cut prunes from pits and beat to a pulp. Add 2 tablespoons sugar and stir to blend; chill. Combine remaining 2 tablespoons sugar, chocolate, malted milk and water and stir until smooth. Add milk and flavoring and stir to blend; chill. Whip cream until thick but not stiff. Beat prunes into cream. CAREER GIRLS COME HOME. Pat Finch and Charlotte Neathery are two girls who turned their backs on assured, big-time, modelling careers to invade their own home town, Hoopeston, Illinois, and build a thriving business selling smart clothes to fashion-wise rural women. Their success proves that it isn't necessary for girls to trek to the cities in search of a career, when a little original thinking may find a way to combine a really interesting career with the fun of home-town living. Here the Misses Finch and Neathery are shown comparing their attractive merchandise with pictures in popular fashion magazine.

CHARLOTTE, glamorous "other-half" of the "Corner Dress Shop" team, explains to Mrs. L. Vince, Jr. of Hoopeston, a former schoolmate, the wonderfully simple washing instructions for the nylon blouse she is selling her.

BACK IN HER OWN HOME TOWN, PAT finds selling quite painless and a lot of fun. Here showing off some up-to-the-minute merchandise to teen-ager Betty Fawver and her mother, Mrs. Roscoe Fawver of Hoopeston, she enjoys privilege of knowing her customers as friends and explains how she picked up this particular frock on the last buying spree she and Charlotte took to the midwest markets.

Thieves Discover Business Recession Is Here

Two Butler Business Places Net Burglars Only $30

Burglars ransacked the offices of two Butler business establihments some time late Monday night or early Tuesday morning and escaped with about $30 in cash, Sherriff Carpenter reported

The businesses burglarized were the Dairy Bar on Broadway, where $30 in cash was taken from a cash register and from a coin box; and the Mondhank Coal company office.

Only 29 cents in pennies was stolent from the coal company.

The sheriff said both burglaries are believed to have been committed by the same thieves. He said the burglars apparently entered the coal company first, for some of the tools used in both breakins were left at the Dairy Bar.

The burglars apparently crawled under the doors leading to the weighing scales and then smashed a glass pane to gain entrance to the coal company office.

Entrance to the Dairy Bar was gained when thieves broke a rear window on the west side of the building. $10 was taken from a coin box, and $20 was taken from a locked cash register which was pried open.

Letters to the Editor

(This column is offered to give the reader a chance to have his say. Any and all contributions are welcome-poetry, prose or what have you. All letters should have a signature to insure publication.)

To The Editor of the Saint Joe News From an "OUTSIDER"

This last maneuver in the Battle for the Bottle seems to be finished with neither blood shed nor beer shed.

As your editorial was printed too late before the final skirmish to answer, may I now ask you a few questions?

You and those who identified themselves with the "wet" seem to think all those outside the town limits of Saint Joe are "outsiders" and should not be considered as having a voice in the affairs of the town.

Twice the owner of this building has applied for a liquor permit, does, he live in Saint Joe, or is he an "outsider". This time he was furnishing the building and financing the venture, an "outsider" doing all this for Saint Joe? Why is he so interested in having a saloon in Saint Joe? Is it because he is a philanthropical soul who has the love of mankind in his heart and a desire to promote the best interests of this town and community.

Ah, no brother, far from it, he desires to quench your thirst 'tis true but only because by so doing he can change the dimes from your pocket to his. If we people outside Saint Joe are "outsiders" how much more is he an "outsider"?

Now, it can be proved that he, the owner of this building was in the country, far, far from the town limits of Saint Joe with his petition asking "outsiders" to sign an application asking for a saloon in Saint Joe, further more the men he asked, residents of Concord Township, true, but not of Saint Joe town, therefore "outsiders" do most of their trading in Auburn.

These remonstrance signers, "outsiders" you call us, consider Saint Joe their community center, here our children go to school, here we attend various social functions, and do a portion of our trading.

There has been several disastrous fires in Saint Joe, the call for help went out over the telephone to these so called "outsiders", and they responded unselfishly for the good of their community; now likewise they responded when the call went out for help from Christian leaders and citizens with religious convictidn and civic pride, unselfishly, without profit, for the good of the community - can you say as much for the man who is determined to put a saloon in YOUR town?

You say this saloon in Saint Joe would be a "good thing", it would bring the trade that goes to other near-by towns here, by "trade" you can't mean those "outsiders" who already come into town to spend their money for food, furnishings and merchandise, so you must mean riff-raff and rowdies who come into town for "wine, women and song", who spend their money in the saloon, and who leave that place and none other, the richer for them having been in town.

Don't kid yourself brother, the trade a saloon would draw to Saint Joe would be saloon trade, and that trade never gets any farther than the saloon door!

Those remonstrance signers were nearly, if not all Christians who believe the Bible and read there-in that "Strong drink is raging, and whosoever is deceived thereby is not wise" that "Righteousness exalteth a nation but sin is a reproach to any people", that "God is not mocked, what so ever man soweth that shall he also reap."

I figure that an "empty building standing around doing nothing" is better than a full one doing everybody!

Gertrude Borthwick

P. S. Tut! Tut! Ted, how do you know peoples got "beer in their ice-box?" You'll get your "paddies" slapped!

Mr. Ted E. Haberkorn, Jr.,
St. Joe, Indiana

Dear Mr. Haberkorn:

I thoroughly enjoyed the ad which you had in the paper: "To whom it may concern—Please don't give my kids candy or ice cream cones. I appreciate your generosity, but the stinkers won't eat at home any more."

For years I have been saying the only way to bring up children properly is to shoot the grandparents and kill off all the neighbors.

I am enclosing a couple of reprints which may interest you. Also, some tags which I had made up a good many years ago and which you can have your wife sew on the children's garments.

Thank you for giving me this idea —calling them "little stinkers" is certainly cute and gets more attention than my idea seemed to get.

Here is some dope what you can do for them at home. I am not from Indiana but I married a girl from South Bend, Indiana.

Yours for better health and better living through better dentistry and a better understanding of nutrition.

Sincerely
Fred D. Miller, D. D. S.
Altoona, Pa.

Ed. note - Dr. Miller enclosed pamphlets titled "Dentition and Nutrition" and "Recent Conclusions in Malnutrition", a booklet titled "Joan" which gives a history of one of his patients and a strip of cloth labels reading "Please do not feed. This child is on a special diet", for fastening on children's clothing.

Dear Mr. Haberkorn:

You asked for my opinion, so here it is kindly offered and signed. If you don't feel that you can afford to print it, I will understand perfectly.

Your editorial of August 11, 1949 had a few mistakes in it which I feel should be corrected. You speak of a tavern "run properly" in Saint Joe not "too many years since." You speak of people who do not live in Saint Joe as "outsiders." I wonder how many business places in Saint Joe would close their doors if the "outsiders" stayed out?

I don't recall of your presence in the vicinity of Saint Joe when this "properly run" tavern was being "run." However, I was an "outsider" at the time and I had seven children attending school "within the city limits." One of my boys had a very close school chum at that time and one tragic night, one of the

God's Map for Me

Lesson for August 28, 1949

HOW did the writers of the Bible think about the Bible? We can get part of the answer by looking at our Psalms for this week. These poets already possessed a part of our Bible: the Law, some historical books, perhaps some of the Prophets. It was an incomplete Bible they had—but they loved it.

They did not think of it or use it in some of the mistaken ways you may find some people thinking of the Bible today. They did not think it was enough to read a line or two before going to bed every night. They did not think that having a copy of it around would bring good luck, or scare off demons. They said nothing about the Bible's being great literature. They were not at all bothered by miracle stories in Scripture; they believed them, and took them as evidences of the mightly power of God (see Psalm 105). They did not look on the Bible as chiefly a dictionary of Don'ts. They did not think of it as a Sabbath book, but rather as an everyday one. It did not strike them as a book of mystery.

The Psalmists' Bible

IN reading Psalm 19:7-14, it is interesting to see how many different things the Psalmist says about the Word of God. He calls it by various names, but that is only because, being a poet, he likes to use several words for the same thing. As for Psalm 105, where else but in his Bible would the poet have learned that story of Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, Joseph and the deliverance from Egypt?

The reader of this Psalm will observe that the subject of most of the sentences is GOD. As the poet reviews his people's history, he shows that it is not simply the doings of the Israelites, but it is God who brings things to pass.

"Man proposes but God disposes" is a proverb which the writer of Psalm 105 would approve. Psalm 119 is known as an "alphabetic" or "acrostic" poem. It is divided into 22 sections, each one exactly eight verses long. There are 22 letters in the Hebrew alphabet, and in the Hebrew original of this Psalm each verse of the first section begins with the first letter of the Hebrew alphabet, Aleph; in the next section, Beth, and so on down to the last letter, Tau.

The Book of God

WHAT the writers of these Psalms said about the partly-done Bible of their times is of course even more true of the completed Bible which is our heritage as Christians. One thing they make clear is that this is first of all God's book. They knew as well as we do that different human minds had a part of it, but for all that it is always God whose message comes through what they wrote. The Bible, properly understood, reveals the mind of God and the will of God. The Bible reveals also the doings of God. His story is the weaving of God's eternal decrees on the looms of time. Again, these poets see that the Bible is for man and about man.

None of them thought of it as a guide to heaven, but rather as a road map or to guide us through the mazes of this world. Psalm 119 stresses this world, and no other, as the world on which God's light shines.

The commandments of God are so many lengths of barbed wire to fence us in, rather road-signs to guide us on life's open highway. The Bible presents the "How" of living. It is God's map for me.

The Bible in The Heart

THE SENTENCE: "Thy word have I hid in my heart" (Psalm 119:11) is the clue to the right use of the Bible. When a Hebrew writer says "heart" he means something more than mere emotion. The word means character, what a man really is. A young Korean was learning the Sermon on the Mount, but making slow work of it.

When a missionary asked him about it, the boy said, "I have to be slow. First I learn a verse, then I go out and live it. I can learn the words in a few minutes; but it takes longer than that to live it."

That is the right idea. One verse, translated into living, is worth more than a chapter that never gets deeper in than the edge of the brain.

"insiders" ran into, and killed this "outsider" boy . That is something that came out of the "properly run" tavern. The "fruits" of that tavern will long be remembered by me and all who loved that fine, clean innocent, and industrious high school boy.

Your comparison of beer to coffee is a poor one. The coffee drinker injures only himself; no one was ever arrested for drinking coffee.

The business men in Saint Joe who took a stand for the tavern, thereby sanctioning the "fruits" of the tavern, and who took delight in persecuting the minister who dared to take a stand for the principles he professed, will receive no more of my trade, and I feel that all those who profess to be followers of Christ will also have to refuse to be a party to their evil ways.

A newspaper can be a great power for good in its community. Instead of backing a tavern to fill one of the "empty buildings standing around doing nothing," why didn't the "News" and business men of the town try to fill the buildings with factories or other beneficial businesses? It is with sorrow that I find the Saint Joe News "weighed in the balance and found wanting."

I realize that since I am an "outsider", my subscription is worthless to you, nevertheless I hereby cancel my subscription. I see by the date on my paper, you have sent it to me two years free. I don't appreciate that, either. I like a notice when my time runs out; however, enclosed please find check for three dollars for past favors, and if I ever hear that the paper has washed its face and is cleaned up again, I might consider re-subscribing. You are young - perhaps you made a mistake and will profit by it in the future.

THE ST. JOE High school team was eliminated from playoffs of the two Vim School Leagues last Thursday by dropping a 7 to 2 contest to Ronnies of Hicksville, at the Hicksville diamond. The local boys played the leaders of the Ohio league to a standstill for six innings but then were overpowered in a big, 4 run last inning. St. Joe grabbed a 2 to 1 early lead and with Francis Dulle giving a good mound performance with the exception of several wild streaks, held the Hicksville boys until the 6th inning. Ronnies scored twice in that inning and then added 4 big runs in the last inning.

DEIHL'S MARATHON softball team of Garrett was awarded the title of city softball champs as the outcome of a freak last game playoff between that team and the Garrett Legion. Deihl's was named winners after the Legion walked of the field in the first inning after vigorously protesting a decision by the umpires. Softball association officials awarded the game to Deihl's by forfeit.

ST. JOE LEGION team lost all chances of getting a top place in the second half of league play in the Y league, Tuesday when mental and physical lapses in the field allowed the Ball's Foundry team to score 10 of their runs in the first two innings, to coast to an easy 11 to 4 victory. After a mighty 3 run show at the plate in the first inning it looked s if the locals were on their way to another league win. Ted Haberkorn, local first sacker had rammed out a long 3 run home run, to give the game a bright look. Ball's drove across four runs in their first inning on a cluster of errors, but the second inning was the downfall, When the dust had settled and the "booting" was over, 6 runs had crossed the plate for the Foundry. Ed Grimm held the locals in check the rest of the way allowing another St. Joe run in the 4th.

WEEDING out of weaker teams has continued in the county tournament over at Garrett and three of the stronger team are left for the semi-final and finals. Wednesday evening play will match the Auburn Legion against Diehl's of Garrett with the winner of the Butler Produce-DePew game taking on that winner in the finals. The Produce men from Butler were leading the DePew Cleaners of Garrett by a 1 to 0 score at the fifth inning of Tuesday evening's game.

Calling all outdoorsmen

By JIM MITCHELL

Everytime I run across a new set of figures on how much outdoorsmen spend I can't help but be amazed at the size of the business of fishing and hunting in dollars.

The newest figures available show that sportsmen who hunted and fished in 1948 spent $10,000,000 more than the combined expenditures for bowling, golf, skiing and motor boating. Statistics show that fishermen topped the list with $1,350,000,000; hunters dug down in their pockets to the tune of $750,000,000.

And $3.000,000 was spent in 1948 by sportsmen for tooters and squawkers for calling birds and animals into gun range.

The above figures are a lot of dollars; hunting and fishing is really big business.

Funny thing, too, you seldom hear a sportsman complaining about what it costs him to enjoy the sport. Most outdoorsmen feel that it is a buck well spent any time he can go fishing or hunting.

I haven't seen any figures lately on what each pheasant or quail or duck or fish costs when an outdoorsmen figures his overall expenses against the annual bag. But it's plenty high.

Once a few years ago I decided to keep a record of what I spent for a year and then divided the expenditure into the number of fish and game animals I killed or caught. It would have been a lot cheaper to buy fancy steaks at the butcher shop for three meals a day, I discovered. But the enjoyment you get from being outdoors with rod or gun can't be measured in dollars as can steaks at the corner grocery.

County Needs $21,500 For Remainder Of 1949

DeKalb County Council Asked To Approve Appropriations; Real Estate Reappraisment To Get Biggest Chunk

The DeKalb Couny council, scheduled to meet in regular session September 6, will be asked to allow additional appropriations of approximately $21,500 to meet expenses for the rest of the year for the county government and the welfare department.

County Auditor, Guy Myers reported Friday that he has called the council into session in the court house in Auburn at 9 a. m. Sept. 6. The county is seeking additional appropriations of $18,195. The welfare department is asking for $3,500.

Biggest single item on the additional appropriation list is $15,000 for reappraisal of real estate. This year's county budget contains an appropriation of $29,700 for reappraisal. Salaries of fieldmen and supervisors alone ,according to figures set by the State Board of Tax Commissioners, will take nearly $27,000. Expensive office equipment, supplies and additional office help in the county assessor's office will account for the additional expense.

The welfare department is seeking $2,000 to bolster their funds for dependent children in the custody of relatives. The department is also seeking $1,500 in added funds for assistance to crippled and sick children and adults committed to hospitals.

Other additional appropriations sought by the county are treasurer's office expense, $400; county agents office expense, $75; salary county school superintendent, $290; salary attendance officer, $130; commissioners' per diem, $300; county farm repairs, $1,500, and public advertising, $500.

Taxpayers may attend the council meeting and voice objections if they choose. The appropriations after action by the council will then be referred to the State Board of Tax Commissioners for final approval.

Fined $400 In Auburn City Court

Newville Bootlegger Receives Stiff Fine After Pleas Of Guilty On Two Liquor Law Violations

Betty Bassett, 29 year-old operator of Newville's illegal "blind pig" was fined a total of $400 and $20 in costs in Auburn city court after her second appearance and pleas of guilty on the same charges.

Mrs. Bassett escaped two 90-day sentences to the State Women's prison at Indianapolis when she entered a plea for mercy. The defendant also paid a $20 trucking bill incurred when officers raided her establishment and confiscated the furnishings.

Judge Harold Stump levied the fines of illegal possession and sale of intoxicating beverages. Prosecuting Attorney James A. Angelone appeared for the state.

She entered plea of guilty on both charges. At her first appearance in court last June 5th, when she was fined on similar charges, Mrs. Bassett promised the court she would not operate again. She began her illegal operation again, however, shortly after her day in court.

Police and excise officers were given the right at Wednesday's session to search without a court order, her residence, any time in the future.

FIDDLERS CONTEST AT BUCK LAKE RANCH SEPT 11

Fiddlers from throughout Indiana, Ohio, and Michigan, will converge on Buck Lake Ranch, 2 miles west of Angola, Ind., on Sunday Sept. 11, to name a champion who will represent the Tri - State area in the national contest.

The national champion will be picked on Friday, September 16 at the Kentucky State Fair at Frankfort, Ky.

Manager Harry K. Smythe has announced that the following rule will prevail during the fiddling shindig at Buck Lake Ranch:

There is no age limit and no entry fees will be necessary. Contestants need only to be eligible to compete. Each entrant will be asked to play an Irish jig, an old fashioned waltz, and a breakdown or hoedown. Each fiddler will be permitted to have one accompanist for rhythm, if desired.

Elimination trials will begin promptly at 11 a.m. and will continue until 5 finalists have been selected. The finals are scheduled to begin at 4 p. m., and will be held before an audience which gives promise of reaching the 7,000 mark.

Currently, Mr. Smythe is lining up three prominent judges to officiate during the qualifying and final trials. One arbiter already named is Shirley Wayne, who starred for many years in a comedy fiddling act with Olsen and Johnson's "Hellzapoppin'," and was also a featured performer for some time with the ABC network's "Hoosier Hop."

The winner of the Tri-State contest will be given an all-expenses paid trip to the national finals at the Kentucky State Fair.

First County Polio Victim

Joyce Stewart, 10 Of Garrett Suffered From Bulbar Poliomyelitis Most Virulent Type

The death of Joyce Gale Steward 10, of 311 East Houston street, Garrett, took place at St. Joseph's hospital in Fort Wayne last Thursday at 2:30 p.m. and she became DeKalb county's first polio fatality of the year.

Joyce was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Steward, her father being manager of the Garrett Kroger store. She became afflicted with a slight cold Friday, Aug 19, and complained of not feeling well. Her mother put Joyce to bed. The next morning a physician was summoned and he prescribed some medicine.

The child appeared to be improving by Tuesday although she complained of having difficulty breathing, although examination of her lungs revealed no congestion.

Thursday morning the child continued to complain of having difficulty breathing and her physician administered medicine to relieve congestion. He also left some pills to be taken later. While the mother was attemptng to give the girl the pills about noon, Joyce suddenly hemorrhaged from the mouth and nose and then had great difficulty breathing. After her doctor consulted with another physician, she was taken to the Lutheran hospital in Fort Wayne. At the first stoplight in Fort Wayne, the child suffered another hemorrhage and became unconscious. The ambulance raced on to the hospital, and the girl died several minutes after arrival.

Polio specialists there diagnosed the case as bulbar poliomyelitis, and told the parents that the child could not have been saved from this the most virulent type, had she been placed in an iron lung from the beginning of her illness.

OUT SIDERS

I don't want to be an angel and with the angels stand—not yet,
I'll stand with the "out siders" till all earthly suns are set.
I want to hear them sing again with voices sweet and clean
The good old songs (forever new) that Christians love to hear
I want to sing again with them the "Marching as to War,"
I want to feel their courage as I felt it once before;
And in the Final Judgement Day with "out siders" I may stand
I know that I will be —— right in the angels band-

Mr. T. E. Haberkorn, Jr.
Editor and Publisher ,St. Joe News
St. Joe, Indiana.

Dear Sir:

In regard to the editorial published in last weeks St. Joe News concerning the proposed tavern, we would like to say that although we are mere "outsiders", we feel that since we do a great deal of our trading with St. Joe businessmen, that we believe that the matter quite naturally concerns us, too.

We are very pleased with the result of Wednesday's hearing and feel that it shows the results of Christian effort.

It was very dissappointing to see you and other of the St. Joe businessmen appearing at the hearing of the tavern, apparently on the excuse that a tavern would attract trade to St. Joe. Such a reason seems to us to be a feeble and selfish one also a very debateable point.

Please find enclosed $.75 in payment for the paper for the past six months, and we would like to request that you stop sending the paper to us for we do not intend to renew our subscription again.

Sincerely,
Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Strong

Dear Ted:

I've been watching the "wet vs dry" argument with much interest but since reading some of the letters I feel I too have something to say.

I heard a woman say, during the controversy "I'll not sign a petition until I see some of these people work as hard for something for the young people!"

It seems to me that the energy expended to carry petitions, and the fee paid to the lawyer could have been used to start a recreation center for the young people. Wasn't there a technicality about the church being too close Chances are the tavern wouldn't have gone through, anyway!

What does St. Joe offer it's young people? There is a wealth of material that could be used - a fine gym, a tennis court that could be revised, a lot of available ground, yet there's no program of any kind! I sang in a choir in the church at South Bend and every Tuesday evening after choir practice we went into the basement and played ping pong and shuffle board Yet, nothing has been offered here. Is it wrong to use a church basement for a good, clean place for recreation

It seems to me the banners people are carrying are so small compared to the one they could be carrying. When a theft occurs people are so shocked, yet they do nothing . . offer nothing to help prevent them. I believe the Bible also says something about "As ye sow, so shall ye reap." and yet people are as amazed by the results of nothing sown and a poor reaping.

Let the people that laid awake nights worrying about the tavern coming in, lie awake nights thinking up plans for a teen canteen. Spencerville has a wonderful start and St. Joe could well afford to pat them on the back.

Now, I'm not saying "build a tavern!" Far from it! St. Joe has no need of one. I'm merely saying, "Now why not turn around and raise as big a "hub-bub" for something good?" Want to bet as to whether anyone will or not?

In reference to the boy that was killed outside St. Joe . . had St. Joe had anything to offer perhaps he would not have been on the road that night and thus have avoided that tragic misfortune. I doubt that the businessmen or the News will go bankrupt from the loss of one subscriber. And in all sympathy, offer you Ted, a cake of soap to wash off some of the mud that's been slung! I wonder if the community "weighed" might not be found "wanting?".

To quote from a letter, " I figure that an empty building standing around doing nothing is better than a full one doing everyone." Why not change it to - "I figure that an empty building standing around doing nothing is better when filled with happy, supervised kids!" How many people that gave up their evenings to carry petitions, would also give up an evening to chaperone a bunch of young people at a teen canteen? "Weighed and found wanting"?

I can hear someone on the back row saying, "Why doesn't she do somethng about it?" I can not work miracles and I wonder if thats what it wouldn't take? Wasn't there a Boosters Club and several other tries made, what happened to them?

I also wonder if some of the people that are fuming at being called "outsiders" wouldn't like to use the term for themselves if they were asked to donate time or money for a recreation center.

Why am I interested? For one reason, we have the making of a healthy, hearty, teen ager in our home and I hope there's something to offer her when she needs it as badly as the teen agers do now!

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

International Uniform Sunday School Lessons

By DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

SCRIPTURE: Psalms 49:1-9; 72; 82. DEVOTIONAL READING: Psalm 73: 1-8, 13-13.

What Is Justice?

Lesson for September 4, 1949

EVERYBODY is in favor of justice but not everybody knows what justice is. Justice is more fundamental than democracy. If we believe that democracy is the best form of government, it is only because we believe that justice can be better secured in this way than in any other.

Justice is as old as God

Since for at least 3,000 years historians, politicians, philosophers and theologians have been wrangling over the meaning of justice, you won't learn the last word about it merely by studying one Sunday school lesson. But this is the place to remind ourselves that justice as an ideal, and democracy as a means of reaching that ideal, were not born yesterday.

Dr. Foreman

Labor Day will recall the great services rendered to democracy by the organized workers of the world, for example, in the push they have given to free and universal education. But democracy is older than the labor movement, is older than July 4, 1776, is older than the Magna Charta, is older than the Roman empire, in which one of many mottoes was "Let justice be done even if the sky caves in!"

Justice and democracy go back to the ancient Hebrews, the people who wrote the Old Testament. It was written in their laws, preached by their prophets, sung in their Psalms. But of course they did not invent it. They proclaimed it; but justice is older than the human race. The whole Bible and not only the Old Testament teaches that justice is rooted in the nature of God himself. No unjust person can be called godly.

Songs of Justice

OUR Psalms for this week give us some valuable light on what justice is. Some people think that if everybody were rich, that would be justice. Psalm 49 shows how foolish that notion is. It says in almost so many words, "You can't take it with you."

Riches do not spell happiness. Making everybody rich might mean making many people miserable. Money by itself does not cure the ills of life, it may make them worse or even create new ones. Many a family in the "upper brackets" has troubles that would vanish if they had less money.

Psalms 72 and 82 give us more positive suggestions. Psalm 72 sees it as the king's main duty to judge the people with righteousness and justice. The king was the government, in those days; he was the executive and the legislative and the judicial branch of government all rolled into one. In modern terms, the business of government is something more than furnishing police to lock up and punish wrongs after they have been done.

The welfare of the people is the concern of government. When public officials take any other view of their job, they are off the beam. In a democracy, the government is the people, that is to say, ourselves.

If things are bad we are to blame for it; if they are going to be any better, we shall have to work for it. Every appeal to a king, in the Old Testament, when translated into terms of a democratic country, means an appeal to the people.

The Little People

JUSTICE always has to be concerned with the little people. It was true in the simple little world of the ancient Hebrews, it is just as true in our global complex world, that the strong will always exploit the weak if there is not a hand to stop them.

God is always for the "poor," the "children of the needy," and he is always against the "oppressor." In ancient Israel the oppressor was usually the big land-owner who treated his slaves with cruelty or underpaid his workers. Nowadays the oppressor is any exploiter, any man or group of men who will use power to squeeze out or crush down the little man.

But justice is positive, not negative, prevention and not cure only. Concern for social justice includes taking care of people laid low by an epidemic or made homeless by fires; but it goes far beyond this. It will mean working for conditions such that no one will be forced to live in unsanitary firetraps.

The 1949 waterfowl hunting regulations have been officially on the federal books now for a monh, so I though I'd ask a question. What do you think of the new gunning code

I've talked to hundred or so gunners since the session was made and at least 90 per cent of the boys seem thankful for the extra days of hunting. The other 10 per cent, as usual, are griping about not getting more shooting days and a larger bag limit.

Frankly, I think the federal boys were quite liberal in upping the length of the season. And I know longer gunning period even if the bag limit is the same as last year. In fact,, at public waterfowl meetings prior to setting the seasons, more persons voiced opinions in favor of of a longer season and the same bag limit. That probably somewhat influenced the regulations.

There are some rather interesting sidelights of the new regulations. For instance, most states have elected to have a continuous season rather than a split one. Of course, by selecting a split season the number of gunning days is cut.

Of the 17 states in the Atlantic flyway, only five have established split seasons. None of the 14 states in the Mississippi flyway went for the split deal. Four out of 10 states in the in the Central way found a split season the best, and three out of seven states selected a split season in the Pacific flyway.

If you happen to be loaded with folding money, it would be possible to gun for waterfowl over a period of approximately 6 months. You could open the season in Alaska in September (even September 1 in one Alaskan zone) and follow through Canada and the States to Puerto Rico where the waterfowl season remains open until Feb. 12.

But regardless of where you hunt or when lets be good sportsmen by taking only the shots that are within range and cut down the tremedous loss of cripples.

HERE 'N THERE IN SPORTS

By LEWIS H. WALTER

BUTLER'S Produce softball team successfully defended their county crown last Thursday. Many expected this last year's winner to win over the tough Auburn Legion, but few could have predicted anything like the 13 to 0 thumping the Auburn, ex-servicemen absorbed.

Skinny Knox, Produce hurler and Jim Carr, Legion chucker, both deliberate slow and medium speed ball pitchers, gave all indications in the first two inning that a real duel. was in the offing. The Produce ended all thought of that, however in the 3rd inning. Carr was shelled from the mound in that inning before he could get a man out and Butler had already plated 6 run when Dich James took over. The Producers continued to rattle off base hits and nicely placed bunts as the Auburn defense wilted. When the side was finally retired Butler had sent 16 men to the plate, and 12 had crossed it on 8 hits, three errors and a walk.

In the presentation ceremony which followed the game, Butler received the county championship trophy as well as individual gold miniature softballs for team members.

Butler's record for the season was given at 11 wins and 1 loss. Their lone loss came at the hands of Zimmerman's of Garrett in the ASA tourney at Butler.

. . . . . .

INTERESTING NOTE of the county tournament was the fact that St. Joe Legion was the only team to score against them in the tourney. All other victories were shut-outs. In fact the locals have been the only team to score against them since that lone loss to Zimmerman's on July 28.

. . . . . .

YANKEES MOVING WEST, at least it seemed so from witnessing the New York Yankees-White Sox twin bill at Chicago Sunday. Fans from all over the middle west and a few from Chicago were pulling for the Yankees, as they will continue to do through the finishing weeks of the pennant drive. Or maybe its just for this year. Remember last year how fans from all over this part of the country who had never been interested in the Cleveland ball club, turned to Indians overnight during the final grind of the pennant chase, particularly the ladies.

It was a bit surprising to see fans from as far away as McCook, Neb. pulling for New York. Even Chicago fans seem to like New York as their second best team. And the cheering during scoring drives for both teams was about even.

Whether or not Joe Dimaggio has done all this alone is hard to say, and if so is about the greatest tribute a singl individual could receive. This much can be said however, Dimaggio is definitely the idol of fans all over the country. Maybe because of his spectacular comeback, or just a gradual over the year appreciaition to a great player. Before the start of the first game, Joe and Henrich were standing side by side, throwing to teamates. When an official looking gentlemen came over to ask Joe to go over to the box seats to talk to a kid in a wheel chair; Joe and the gentleman started to walk over towards the stands, but Joe said something in a low voice and his companion immediately went back to ask Henrich if he would like to go along over to see the kid. Not many noticed this, Joe could have gone alone for it was plain to see that the fellow only was interested in Joe alone.

FOR THE Yanks in general as a team and their chances in the remainder of the flag chase our comment would have to be that they should be in on top at the finish despite a shaky mound staff. Mr. Casy Stengel has them fighting all the way and is in the game all the way himself.

I THINK it's an old story but maybe some in this area haven't heard it. Credit is given to the August 27th edition of "This Week in Chi-the title: "HORSE LAUGH"—And that brings us down to our finale, the story going the rounds about the horse that applied to Manager Leo Durocher for a tryout with the New York Giants at the Polo Grounds one afternoon. "Can you field"? Duroucher asked. "Give me a glove and see for yourself," responded the animal. Leo hit four liners to the horse in the outfield that the latter caught easily without moving a step.

"Fine," said Leo, "but can you hit?" The horse hit four successive pitches over the fence. "Stick around." the impressed manager told him. "May be able to use you in our important game tonight"

Came the evening and a scoreless tie that prevailed until the last of the ninth. Durocher ordered the horse to pinch hit. On the first pitch the horse smashed the ball over the fence. A hysterical Durocher turned from watching the flight of the ball to see no horse circling the bases. There he still stood at home plate.

"Run, darn you run," screamed Durocher.

"If I could run," came the answer, "I'd be racing at Saratoga!"

The office beauty was telling her girl friends about her adventures on the previous night. "This guy," she said, "took me up to his apartment and showed me a closet that contained at least ten perfectly divine mink coats. And what do you think. He GAVE me one of them."

"And what did you have to do?" inquired a skeptic in the crowd.

"Just shorten the sleeves," she replied.

Day and night, electricity plays a big part in baby's life. Dependable electric clocks keep him on schedule. Electric service prepares and refrigerates his food—heats water for his bath and endless laundry—helps wash and iron his clothes.

Electricity plays a big part in the family life as well. It's always ready to save steps for mother, and lend a willing hand with heavy chores. It provides comfort and convenience and even entertainment for the whole family.

But when it comes to cost, electricity's a very small item indeed. Your friends and neighbors in this company—under sound business management—are continually using their skill and experience to keep electricity the biggest bargain in your family budget.

Letters to the Editor

(This column is offered to give the reader a chance to have his say. Any and all contributions are welcome-poetry, prose or what have you. All letters should have a signature to insure publication.)

August 30, 1949

Mr. Ted E. Haberkorn, Jr.
Editor, Saint Joe News,
St. Joe, Indiana

Dear Mr. Haberkorn.

Since I am strictly an "outsider", I shall neither join forces with those naive souls who think that by "PROHIBITIONING" a tavern in Saint Joe, they are successfully preventing others (insiders and outsiders) from drinking a bottle of beer at Auburn, Butler, Hicksville, Fort Wayne, Woodburn, or yes - even Newville, nor shall I offer my efforts in behalf of those who feel that Saint Joe could well afford one more business establishment. I cannot resist stating most categorically, however, that the tavern, as operated by the late Roy Wade, was no blot on the community. I also venture the opinion that Saint Joe, and the surrounding area for that matter, would be better off with a few more men of his calibre.

My purpose in writing is to compliment you on your courage in taking a stand on what you must have known was an unpopular issue among some of your subscribers. Editors of all newspapers, whether they be dailies in a great metropolis or weeklies in a rural community, have a duty to discuss pending issues in a forthright and conscientious manner. By the same token the readers are endowed with "rights" in their views because few, if any, mortals can please everyone, and the few that do possess that gift, are "all things to all men."

Believing as I do that editors should be encouraged to speak out on all current issues (local, national and international - popular and unpopular) without fear of reprisal. I wish to extend to you a token of my support by renewing my subscription for two additional years. My check is enclosed.

As suggested above, this letter is not written with the purpose of becoming embroiled in the current controversy. Whether Saint Joe has one well-regulated tavern (in lieu of another vacant building) or five old-fashioned saloons is strictly none of my business. Similarly, I am not concerned by the fact that many law abiding citizens are compelled to drive upwards of twenty-five miles to buy a bottle of beer. Moreover, it is of little moment to me that some of those who presently drive to surrounding cities for beer partake of liquor while there and as a reusit have difficulty, let us say, in staying on the right side of the road. The question of whether Saint Joe is to have a tavern, by necessity, must be resolved by those who are concerned with these and other related facets of the overall problem. The fact that the applicant for the license may be, and undoubtedly is, motivated by a desire to make a legitimate profit would appear wholly irrelevant.

As one of your subscribers, I believe I have a right to encourage you personally, in your editorial efforts. Since I eagerly await each edition as though it were a letter from home, it is to my interest that the paper contain maximum of news about the community. Therefore, it behooves me to let you know my general reaction to your newspaper. Your former subscriber, Mrs. Strong, is probably correct about your age and she may be borne out in her prediction about your profiting in the future (for the sake of the "stinkers", I hope she is) but as to the question of whether you made a mistake, that, I submit, is a matter on which opinions of reasonable persons may well differ. Assuming arguendo that all taverns, regardless of their locations, are dens of inequity, it by no means follows that you, as an editor, erred in taking a stand on the tavern question. Keep up the good work!! Lincoln Steffans made it as did William Allen White. Judging from the local interest inspired by your tavern editorial, to say nothing of the national fame gained by the "stinker" item, the whole nation may learn to know Ted E. Haberkorn, Jr. (I should state that I heard the "stinker" item repeated on Ray Henle's Sunoco program over the nationwide hookup of NBC at 6:45 p. m., E. D. S. T.)

I would be remiss were I not to mention that your sports editor, Lewis H. Walter, has added much to the "News". I thought his coverage of the basketball tournaments was excellent. Red Smith of the "New York Herald Tribune" take heed!!

Sincerely yours,
(Name witheld upon request)

Ed. note - Ah-h-h-h-h-h.

Dear Sir,

Is anything wrong? I haven't had a paper for at least 3 weeks and I believe even four. Life in these United States is dull without the old home town news.

Sept. 5th

Mr. Ted Haberkorn

Dear Sir:

Seems like Outsiders and Insiders have stirred up a "Hornets Nest", and someone is liable to get stung. Who will it be?

August 25th one of the Outsiders had a letter published in the St. Joe News about the Tavern and the Fruits of the "properly run Tavern" causing the fatal accident of one of her neighbor's boys. I want to make it clear in the minds of every one concerned that the party involved in the accident was not or had not been in the St. Joe Tavern that day or night of the fatal accident.

Mrs. Outsider you should be sure you know the truth and nothing but the truth before you have such criticism published, for you might be called upon to prove such a statement.

Mrs Roy Wade

"Great Oaks from little Acorns grow!" How silly that! Long years ago
It sounded cute; but it's so old and worn out now it's green with mold!
But some folks never grow at all! Tho years pass by they remain small,
And love to pass off slimy "ribs" on small-fry, — like the "Stinker" Kids"!
Would we had more of these "Stinker" boys.—'twould be relief to hear their noise.
And not the slurs that are so rife and heard so much in daily life.
And when our "Earthly Suns are set," we'll go and see what Fate we get!
And we'll go "Marching as to War", while the "Little Stinkers" march before!
Now, I don't expect to take MY stand and play a Harp in the Angel's Band, -
I don't expect to greet some Saint and pretend I am what I ain't!
But if some certain ones can win and have a chance of SNEAKING in, I'll take my chance on slipping through! (And I'll sneak in the Stinkers too!)

—Phillip Smith—
Saint Joe

Dear Mr. Editor,

It seems there has been a tremendous amount of gossip, back biting, palavering, discussion and plain old argument during our recent local controversy regarding the application for a beer and wine license in St. Joe.

In all such proposed changes for a town many arguments both for and against can be advanced. After weighing and considering it is the privilege of each to form an opinion according to our American way of life. This right to form an opinion and express it surely cannot be questioned.

This writer is convinced that all of the people of this community who were active in the controversy, signed petitions etc, had only one thought in mind, regardless if they were for or against, and that was a better town, right or wrong as each of them might have been.

Now it appears some of the people involved are engaging in malicious gossip and boycotting because some persons were on the opposing side. This simply means they are being boycotted because they don't agree in their thinking with the persons doing the boycotting. Surely a person is not necessarily wrong should his thinking be different from another.

It definitely appears now is the time for the people of St. Joe and surrounding community to take stock of themselves, realize that altho they believe themselves to be right, it is possible for them to be wrong, and that no other human may be the judge of this. Perhaps before you attempt to judge another you should take a look at yourself.

Mr. Kaberkorn,

While reading my Sunday paper, the San Francisco Chronicle, of August the twenty eighth, nineteen forty nine, I found this item from my old home town.

I thought it would be of interest to you to learn that your article appeared in another paper so far away from home.

I certainly got a thrill out of it, as it is the first time I havs ever seen anything in print from St. Joe.

The contents of said article are amusing to say the least.

Altho I was born and reared in St. Joe it has been over thirty years since I was last there.

May I ask you to send me the yearly rates of the St. Joe News.

Sincerely,
F. I. Meese

Jesus and the Psalms

Lesson for September 11, 1949

SOME parts of the Old Testament Jesus never once mentioned. Others he quoted again and again. Could this be because some parts were more helpful to him than others? At any rate, the Psalms were one section of his Bible which he often quoted.

Worship

ONE Use Jesus made of the Psalms was in public worship. Whenever he went to the Temple he would join in singing or in listening to the great choirs singing these ancient hymns. Many of our own best-loved hymns, while not direct translations, are based on Psalms. For example. "Still, Still With Thee" is from Psalm 16; "God Is My Strong Salvation" from Psalm 27; "The King of Love" from Psalm 23; "O Worship the King" from Psalms 104.

Dr. Foreman

In private worship also we know Jesus used the Psalms. One of the Hebrew names for them was "The Book of Prayers," and Jesus, like many another who has loved these Psalms, found in them the natural expression of what was deepest in his heart when he turned toward his Father in heaven.

A striking proof of this comes from the story of Calvary. The cry, "My God, why hast thou forsaken me?" is a quotation from Psalm 22:1, and "Into thy hands I commend my spirit" is from Psalm 31:5.

Thus, two out of three prayers he uttered in his last moments were from the Psalms. So the reader today, pondering in a quiet moment these immortal poems, either from the printed book or better yet, as Jesus did, from the treasures of memory, may often find in them prayers which seem breathed from his own mind and to which he need only say, Amen.

Truth about God

JESUS also found in the Psalms a revelation of truth. It would be too much to say that Jesus derived his ideas of God from the Psalms. But certainly some of the great teachings about God which we hear from Jesus we can read already in the Psalms.

Jesus did not use the Psalms stupidly, of course. He would never have supposed that you could take just any sentence about God out of some Psalm or other, and quote it as the last word about God.

For instance, during his temptations the thought was suggested to him that he could jump off a high building and not be hurt; had not God promised just that in a Psalm? Now it is true that Psalm 91:9-12 does say that God will keep you from "dashing your foot against a stone" but Jesus knew that does not mean that God will guarantee to keep you out of trouble or harm no matter how foolish you are!

Christ in the Psalms

JESUS found in the Psalms also prophecies. There is a rather thin line between illustration and prophecy.

For instance, when the Jerusalem boys and girls were making such a noisy welcome for him, and the dignified priests were protesting, Jesus quoted Psalm 8:2 in defense of the children: "Out of the mouths of babes and sucklings thou hast perfected praise."

Did he mean that the Psalmist had predicted that very occasion, or did he mean that the Psalm expressed a truth always good?

At all events, we do know that Jesus often took a Psalm, or a part of one, as a prophetic picture of himself. He knew himself to be the true King of Mankind, "the Lord's Anointed," as his use of Psalm 110:1 plainly shows.

Yet he also knew that he must pass through suffering to his throne (Luke 24:26). When the leaders of his people rejected him he was not surprised, for he thought at once of Psalm 118:22-23. When he hung on the cross, and saw the soldiers gambling for his clothes, Psalm 22:16-18 would surely come into his mind.

And can we doubt that in his last agonies, one who knew the Psalms so well would not have remembered also the later lines from the same prophetic Psalm? It begins with the tragic question—Why? But it rises to a song of triumph—"When he cried unto him, he heard!"

Washington Outlook

by HARRY LANDO

Because Congress has talked so much and done so little, it is now virtually certain that a price support program which nobody entirely approves will become the law of the land. The Senate Agriculture Committee reported out the Anderson bill, with which none of its members is entirely satisfied.

Said one member, "the committee abdicated its responsibilities." He continued, "the Senate will probably abdicate leaving the Senate-House conference to come up with a finished bill."

The committee print of the bill bearing the name of Sen. Clinton P. Anderson (. N. M.) was reported out without change despite the fact that even Anderson is doubtful about some parts. With the aid of his price support subcommittee, he drew up the bill more as something to build from rather than something to swallow whole.

The bill provides 75-90 percent flexible supports on the basics and dairy products. Mandatory 60-90 on shorn wool, mohair, tung nuts, and Irish potatoes. Other commodities may be supported at the discretion of the Secretary of Agriculture from 0 to 90 percent. During the first year of of controls on basics, they would get 90 percent.

The bill sets up another assistant secretary of agriculture who would have the job of selling surpluses bought by the Government to support prices. Almost everybody opposed the authority given to this new assistant to buy commodities in surplus areas and dispose of them in surplus areas. It was charged that this would amount to Government price fixing and would be an unwarranted interference with farmers in shortage areas. This authority will probably be removed somewhere along the line.

Otherwise the bill is likely to slide through pretty much as is. The prevailing belief is that time is too short and the rush for adjournment too serious to permit very much debate. The Senate will likely be-content to allow the Senate House conference to decide many of the controversial features.

The almost certain result of this attitude will be a price support law next January 1 which nobody is in complete agreement. The House conferees may insist for a while on a year's continuation of 90 percent, but accurate information holds that most are willing to settle for the Anderson bill. The House conferee may seek more liberal supports on some crops, though.

Whatever happens, price support will again be in the political and legislative limelight next session. The administration is still set on the Brannan plan as a permanent solution. Those who oppose the Brannan plan are not entirely satisfied with the Anderson bill.

President Truman, himself gave the green light to the Anderson bill in a special White House conference with Congressional Democratic farm leaders This, ended speculation in Republican ranks as to whether the president would veto anything but the the Brannan plan or whether he would try to block any other bill. Nevertheless, he made it clear that he considers the Anderson bill a stopgap measure.

Sen. Guy M. Gillette (D., Iowa) chairman of the subcommittee on utilization of farm crops, on Sept. 13 will continue his investigation of substitutes for fats and oils used by bakers. Gillette holds some of the substitutes migh be harmful to humans and maintains that use of substitutes adds to fats and oils surplus problems.

Meanwhile, record exports and good domestic demand for fats and oils have caused inventory decline despite a record output. Stocks will rise this fall and winter once more when crushings of 1949 oilcorps and slaughtering of hogs reach a seasonal high.

In an effort to increase demand for various kinds of fruit presently in surplus supply, The Bureau of Agricultural Economics plans to survey baker's preferences, says BAE, "when it is found that fruits are popular and economical in certain forms, or when prepared in special ways, the way is open for larger quantities of the farmers' fruit to be used."

In the continuing fight against foot-and-mouth disease in Mexico, the Mexican-United States Commission has opened a new vaccine production laboratory at Palo Alto, a Mexico City surburb.

According to the office of Foreign Agricultural Relations, the 1949 breadgrain crop in Europe will be only slightly below 1948. Weather Mid-July to mid-August was favorable, on the whole, except in Russia. Coarse grain harvests may equal 1948, about 10 percent below prewar. European fruit outlook is generally good. U. S. prospects are for a wheat carryover July 1, 1950 of about the same as this year about 293 million bushels. Even with acreage allotments another U. S. wheat crop of a billion bushels is expected with "normal" weather.

THE LEGION softball team ended play in the Auburn YMCA Industrial League at Auburn, last week by whipping the Wible Realtors 10 to 7 in the 7:15 game last Thursday evening.

In a free hitting, cool weather slug-fest, in which local tosser Wayne Surface, was not up to his usual top form, the local boys had come from behind twice before they finally salted the game away in the 4th with 3 runs and then plated 2 more insurance runs in the 6th.

Wibles had on their hitting togs and clouted surface for 10 hits. The Legion also took along their batting eye, and pounded the offerings of DePew and Lehman for 13 safe blows. Big gun in the local attack was Haberkorn, Legion first sacker who blasted out two successive four baggers and a double to drive in 6 runs. Hoover also poled out a home run.

THOSE powerful, two-time mythical, state semi-pro football champs. the St. Joe A. C. Saints from Fort Wayne, can be seen in action this Saturday night at Auburn.. Opponent and probable victims of the Saints in this their first tune-up game of the season, will be the Coldwater, Mich., Cubs. 9 p. m., and Earl Carr Memorial Field will be the time and place setting for the charity game, with proceeds going to the Auburn Lion Club.. Two Auburn players, Sammy Brown and Bill Comb will be starting their third season in a Saint uniform, and 3 other boys, Bob Scott, Red Kail, and Don Derrow, are out too seek freshman berths on the club. Tickets are priced at 75 and 35 cents and are available at Russell's Confectionery in Auburn.

Calling all outdoorsmen

By JIM MITCHELL

Regardless of where or when you fish, most always there are "favorite" lures that are recommended as being the best for a particular stream or lake.

It was with this in mind that recently I made a study of a report on the lures that caught the most fish in an experimental lake of the Illinois Natural History Survey, a research organization that devotes some time to wildlife problems. The tabulations on lures covered five years in this experimental water and possibly reflects a trend in the productivity of artificials and live baits.

From a bait casting standpoint, the underwater types of plugs and spoons proved the best fish takers, with a battling average of .42 fish per man hour of fishing. Surface lures, on the same basis, took ..36 fish. These tests were made only on bass.

It was interesting to note, also, that the ratio of under size bass taken to legal fish was one legal to .23 undersize for the underwater lures and one legal to ..09 for the surface variety of artificials used in bait casting.

What live baits proved most effective? The minnow was the most widely used, but it had to play second fiddle in the average catch to the worm and crayfish. Anglers using worms managed to outwit 1.21 fish per man-hour of fishing; crayfish users took .81 fish per hour and minnow dunkers averaged only .25 fish per hour. Grasshoppers were last in the parade with .10 average per hour.

The tabulations above show that live bait still will outfish artificials in some waters. Whether this is true in all waters is debatable. Certainly when fish are taking artificial lures it frequently is easier to catch a number than on large bait. By the same token, live bait often produces the largest fish.

In the month ended August 15, the parity ratio slipped another point to 101 percent of the 1909-14 level. Prices received by farmers were down 4 points to 245 percent of the 1909-14 level, while prices paid, including interest and taxes, were down only 1 point to 243 percent of the 1910-14 level.

The parity ratio was the lowest since December, 1941, when it was also 101.

Most commodities were lower on August 15 than a month earlier, but important exceptions were dairy-products, oil-bearing crops and chickens and eggs. Most important price drops were in fruits, meat animals and cottons.

The National Association of Mutual Insurance Agents through its president, Hugh H. Murray, Jr., came out recently for the Thomas and Granger bills to separate the Farm Bureau and the Extension Services in States which by law require a connection.

Murray said that Farm Bureau insurance competes with private insurance companies. He said further that any connection between a farm organization and a government agency represents "coercion" and, in this case, eliminates a free market for insurance.

Senators and Congressman are becoming increasingly worried about surpluses. If time remains in this session there will be attempts to deal with the problem, within the frame work of price support legislation.

If, as seems more likely, the Anderson bill is rushed through the Senate and through conference, one of the things to look for next session is an effort to find ways to dispose of farm surpluses.

EVERY worker in every line of business needs a certain amount of equipment to do his job.

Equipment may mean a few simple hand tools. It may mean an elaborate factory. But one thing is pretty generally true:

The more equipment he has to work with—and the better this equipment is—the more secure is the worker's job, the better are the products he produces, the more everybody benefits all down the line.

In this company and its affiliates of the American Gas and Electric Company System there are thousands of workers—engineers, bookkeepers, clerks, meter readers, cashiers, linemen. . . . On the average, the investment in plant and productive equipment for each and every one of these employees is $50,000.

Included in this equipment of ours are some of the most modern and efficient generating and transmission facilities in all the world. Beyond that, the System is now engaged in a vast $357,000,000 program to provide even better equipment and more of it. No one need fear a power shortage in this area now or in the future.

Our investment in equipment brings benefits to our customers through ample power and good service at low rates. The motorist must then complete in no more than 50 additional words the following statement:

"All cars and trucks should be safety checked periodically because ....."

A jury of prominent persons in national safety circles will judge the winners. Only one entry per car or truck may be entered.

Other details of the contest are available at the Schwartz Auto Company.

"With the American Legion for America."

That simple statement tells the whole story of the American Legion Auxiliary, Mrs. Harold Kryder, Membership chairman of Leo 409 Unit of the Auxiliary, said as the Auxiliary opened its campaign for enrollment of 1950 members.

"The American Legion Auxiliary work side by side with the men of the Legion carrying out that part of the Legion activities which can best be done by women", explained Mrs. Kryder. "The Auxiliary gives especially effective help in serving disabled veterans, in aiding needy childen of veterans and in teaching the principles of Americanism. We work with the Legion in community projects, help them in their Post programs and share in their social activities.

"Membership in the Auxiliary thus gives us a broad field of common interest with the men of our families who belong to the American Legion. As Auxiliary members, we understand their problems and projects and are in a position to help them achieve their purposes. We are inviting all wives, mothers, sisters, and daughters of Legionaires to come into the Auxiliary at this time and join with us as we go forward 'With the American Legion for America.' "

Meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Flossie Rhoades who after a few words of greetings turned the meeting to the program committee, Mrs. Jessie Sommer and Mrs. Maude Beams, The devotionals were given by Mrs. Sommer which was centered around the Cross as found in John 19: 8-18 upon which she elaborated in a very pleasing way. Letters to the Editor

(This column is offered to give the reader a chance to have his say. Any and all contributions are welcome—poetry, prose or what have you. All letters should have a signature to insure publication.)

Dear Mr. Haberkorn:

The world is smaller now and by us a little bit cooler. Space is just an idea. The proof for that is that the article of yours from the "St. Joe News" — Don't give my children ice cream bars and candy — was printed here in my little village in the "Hannoversche Zeibring".

There is where I got your name and it sounds like German to me.

I got the idea to ask you if you could use articles from Germany. That is the reason for this letter. I am writing a ten minutes broadcast for the U. S. Radio. I am from Schlesien and I have been without work since Feb., 1949. I have to support my family on 24 marks a week. I would like to earn a little more money on the side so I can live a little better. It is hard to be poor. If you are interested in some articles from me please write and tell me what kinds of articles you would be interested in and send me a copy of your paper. The quickest way would be by air mail; otherwise it takes 3 or 4 weeks. After I receive your answer I will send you some articles to approve. It will be up to you to give me what you want to.

Maybe you will think my letter over. I am waiting for your answer and greet you.

Yours,
Wilhelm Strubing

Editor, Saint Joe News
St. Joe, Indiana

I enjoy letters to the editor, all very interesting. Then comes the one "Strictly an outsider" read to the end.

What, no name!
Coward!

O. E. Ginther

P. S. to "strictly an out sider". I have a good radio program, would like very much for you to help write it up.

Woe is me, calling names and asking for help at the same time. Could be a lot of us.

O. E. G.

P. S. to editor. May the "little stinkers" be thinkers.

O. E. G.

Dear Ted:

It is not my opinion that you are such a bad person because of your views expressed recently per editorial in regard to the liquor issue in St. Joe, although I'll frankly admit I do not hold the same views. Simply spoken, my philosphy is this— if there is a question of something being right or wrong, then it must be wrong either in all or a part of it and if the issue seems really important, I stay on the safe side and say it is wrong, if it isn't important, I do what I want to do. This issue everyone has taken interest in three times over, seemed important and I preferred to stay on what seemed to me the "safe side."

But getting back to you and your editorial. They say a rolling stone gathers no moss. The stone you started rolling when you lead out with your editorial and made it known that the pros and cons you knew would be forthcoming would be published for the public to read and think about is gathering plenty and Carol Pugsley's letter was the best you've gathered in yet, be 'cause she had something to work upon.

If I am correct in my belief that you had a more farsighted purpose than some think, then I predict that also in the interest of this community in which you have chosen to live and rear those two nice little "stinkers" we have been reading about, then you are going to take up the banner for the "Future Citizen of St. Joe, Indiana, U. S. A." Let's find out a few things about St. Joe and its community. I have to add community for I am an outsider too, you know. The big elm tree on the edge of our lawn marks the city limts and that puts us on the outside. But I teach a class of children in Sunday School in town and I think they're a swell bunch of youngsters, who need and would benefit from a community project such as Carol suggests. Don't you think there were a lot of people who, like me, took it for granted they were entitled to express their opinion, be it "for or against", by such such a token? Wouldn't you like to invite those outsiders to help carry this banner which I have predicted you will take up, along with a lot of us who believe you can be a leader for this good thing as a citizen and editor?

Religion and Habits

Lesson for September 18, 1949

IF RELIGION is not moral, it is a poor, flimsy, no-good religion. If morality is not religious, it soon cracks. Religion has to be moral and morality has to be religious, or else both of them lose their excuse for existence. This is not a new idea. It was in the Bible long ago. Our Psalms for this week are among those that bring out this truth: God is interested in how people live.

Dr. Foreman

He is interested in what they do seven days and seven nights a week; he is interested in their habits as much as their souls. Psalms 15 and 24 are so plain on this point that they need no explaining.

Churches and Liquor Don't Mix

THIS truth, that right religion and right behavior are twins, lights up all of life like a floodlight; but since this is our temperance lesson, let us focus it more or less on one spot.

It is a sore spot: the drink habit. Why does the church make such a fuss about people drinking? Catholic churches are opposed to liquor in excess, and most Protestant churches are opposed to liquor, period.

The movies have made the "binge," the hangover, almost respectable; but the church knows better. Why? Will the time ever come when the churches are not opposed to the liquor business? No, it will not; because the churches know what liquor does.

The minister is usually the man (along with the lawyer and doctor and the sheriff) who has to pick up the pieces when drink gets a man or a woman and breaks up a family. The minister gets behind the scenes, he knows that some funerals would not have been funerals if it had not been for drink.

The car that "went out of control," the disease that should not have been fatal, the family quarrel that grew to hatred and violence —he sees enough of these caused by alcohol, to have no illusions about the stuff.

A Psalm in Reverse

IF THERE is a single reader of these lines who imagines that religion is only a "matter of the soul" and has nothing to do with what people eat or drink, then let him try a little experiment with the 15th Psalm.

As it stands in the Bible, it is a description of the kind of man who can appear without shame before God—in short, of the religious-and-moral man.

Now beginning with verse 2, take the Psalm phrase by phrase, and see how false and ridiculous it is if you try to make the description fit the man with the drink habit. "The victim of drink walketh uprightly, and worketh righteousness—"! Quite the contrary, he seems to be doing his best to ruin his own happiness and that of others.

"The drunkard speaketh the truth in his heart"—! There is one truth he never speaks in his heart: I am a drunkard. The one thing the victim of alcohol never admits till it is too late (if ever) is the hold which alcohol has on him. "He that backbiteth not with his tongue, nor taketh up a reproach against his neighbor"—!

Contempt Is No Cure

WELL, read on for yourself. The slave to alcohol (and many a man is chained to it, who would feel insulted if you called him an alcoholic) certainly does not fit the description of the man whose life God approves.

But the Christian will by no means think his duty done merely by sitting in the scorner's seat, or being an abstainer himself, or even by helping those who have fallen into the pit. He will remember that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.

The liquor business has no conscience. It sometimes comes out with pious remarks about temperance—but it keeps right on advertising, it knows no law but profit.

The only whole-hearted workers for temperance will always be the people who make no money out of intemperance. And the most effective workers for temperance will be those who themselves, in all their habits, give examples in life of what they preach.

Washington Outlook

by HARRY LANDO

A little-know effort to find a market for U. S. farm surpluses has just broken up in what looks very much like failure. The U. S. next year will limit production of cotton, tobacco, wheat and corn among other crops. These will be cut down by Government direction, under price support programs. Others will be cut by the farmers, themselves, because of low prices.

While we cut prodution populations in many nations are starving or are close to starvation. The Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations decided to make another attempt to solve the problem of gettting our surplus fruit, grain and other crops to nations which need them.

After more than 5 weeks an international group of experts could come only with a repetition of a recommendation made by the International Federation of Agricultural Producers. Most major U. S. farmer organizations belong.

The experts have now left town and although their report is not due until the end of the month, I have learned that their major thought is a world flood fund, to be contributed to by participating nations. But since the surpluses are in the dollar areas, dollars would always flow back and would have to be replaced. Which would mean, in effect, that we would merely be giving away our food.

Farmers were once thought to be interested only in their own counties. Now farm organizations, the Grange, Farm Bureau, Farmers Union and others testify before Congressional committees on tariffs world trade, and other such matters. Groups of Iowa farmers go to Europe to study conditions there. The Ohio Farm Bureau conducts a "books for Euope" campaign.

The plain fact is that U. S. farm prosperity depends to a great extent on foreign trade. Fruit, vegetable, grain, livestock, dairy, tobacco, cotton and other farmers must export or see price- depressing surpluses here at home.

For this reason, most major farm organizations joined the current Congressional battle over Reciprocal Trade Treaties on the side of lower tarrif barriers. The 80th Congress watered down the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act, and the farm groups for the most part asked the current Congress to remove all restrictions.

Most controversial issue is the peril point clause in which the 80th Congress created an advisory board of exports to tell the president what levels which if tariffs are cut below, will endanger U. S. industry or agriculture.

Leading the fight for protective tariffs are Sen. Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio), Sen. Eugene D. Milliken (R., Colo.) and others who strangely, mostly come from farm states. They contend that many U. S. industries have been ruined by cheap imports. The farm group contend that we must import if foreign countries are to buy our surplus farm poducts.

Wheat is already being planted in some parts of the country, and yet many farmers do not know all the details of the Department of Agriculture acreage allotment program. I have received mail asking whether he must stay within his allotted acreage when seeding. Some farmers want to use wheat as a cover crop.

There are some designated counties in certain States where it is normal to use wheat as a cover crop where USDA will allow overplanting. In these counties farmer committees will make the decision on individual farms.

Over most of the nation, however, farmers will be required to stay within their wheat alotiments. If they need cover crops, it will have to be something other than wheat.

According to the Department of Agriculture, wheat prospects declined slightly, as did expectations for the corn crop. But we will still have history's 2nd largest corn crop, more than 3.5 billion bushels and a much-over average wheat crop of over 1.1 billion bushels.

Feed grain production, as a whole is expected to reach 129 million tons, 2nd only to last year's 137 million Commercial vegetable are generally favorable, and crops are expected to be good.

The economy seems to be recovering from threats of a redession and demand for food is expected to remain strong. But near record farm poduction will keep many farm turning downward. Hog prices are still expected to break through support levels very soon. Beef cattle prices likely will drop as a reaction to the pork surplus. But cattle feeders are expected to be in a better position during the coming year as the margin spreads between the cost of feeder cattle and fat cattle. Feeders took a beating early this year.

Fruit prices this summer dropped to the lowest levels since 1942. USDA says the drop is about over, but this is small comfort since production costs are so much higher than they were in 1942.

Sens. Milton Young (R., N. D.) and Guy Gillette (D., Iowa) have introduced a bill to make bakers label their products as to shortening contents. Many bakers have been using chemical substitutes for farm produced fats and oils. The substitutes have not been proven harmless to humans, and meanwhile there are surpluses of farm fats and oils.

Riley Hospital Treats Nearly One-Third of Indiana's Polio Victims As Indiana Carries Out The Riley Centennial Research Fund Campaign

WHY THE MISSOURI PACIFIC RAILROAD STRIKE?

Over twenty years ago, the Congress of the United States passed the Railway Labor Act. It was hailed by union leaders as a model for the settlement of labor disputes.

THE LEADERS of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, Order of Railway Conductors, and the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen on the Missouri Pacific Railroad have refused to avail themselves of the peaceful means provided by this Act for settling their disputes. They insist that they be the sole umpire of their own disputes over the meaning of contracts.

There is no Need for Strikes

With all of the available methods for the interpretation of contracts, there is no need for a strike or even a threat of a strike, but the leaders of these railroad unions have ignored the ordinary procedures established by law and insist upon imposing their own interpretations of their contracts by means of a strike.

The wheels have stopped rolling on the Missouri Pacific. They may stop rolling on other railroads at any time. Recently the Wabash Railroad was forced to discontinue operation for several days under similar circumstances.

What are These Strikes About?

These strikes and strike threats are not about wage rates or hours. They result from disputes over the meaning of existing contracts. They cover claims for a full day's pay for less than a day's work, or for payments for services performed by others who were fully paid for the work done.

President Truman's Board Condemns Strike

There is an established legal method for handling disputes involving existing written contracts—just as there is such a method of settling any contract dispute which you may have in your daily life.

The President of the United States appointed a Fact Finding Board to investigate and adjust the Missouri Pacific dispute. This Board reported, in part, as follows:

> "... It is with a deep sense of regret that we are obliged to report the failure of our mission. It seems inconceivable to us that a coercive strike should occur on one of the nation's major transportation systems, with all of the losses and hardships that would follow, in view of the fact that the Railway Labor Act provides an orderly, efficient and complete remedy for the fair and just settlement of the matters in dispute. Grievances of the character here under discussion are so numerous and of such frequent occurrence on all railroads that the general adoption of the policy pursued by the organizations in this case would soon result in the complete nullification of the Railway Labor Act. ..."

Obviously the railroads cannot be run efficiently or economically if the leaders of the unions ignore agreements or laws.

Provisions of the Law which are Disregarded

There are five ways under the Railway Labor Act to settle disputes over the meaning of contracts:

1—Decision by National Railroad Adjustment Board.
2—Decision by System Adjustment Board for the specific railroad.
3—Decision by arbitration.
4—Decision by neutral referee.
5—Decision by courts.

The Missouri Pacific Railroad has been and is entirely willing to have these disputes settled in accordance with the requirements of the Railway Labor Act. Regardless of this fact, the union leaders have shut down that railroad.

Innocent Bystanders Suffer Losses and Hardships

There are about 5,000 engineers, firemen, conductors and trainmen on the Missouri Pacific. They are known as "operating" employes, and are the most highly paid of all employes on the nation's railroads, but their strike action has resulted in the loss of work to 22,500 other employes of the Missouri Pacific. In addition, they have imposed great inconvenience and hardship upon the public and the communities served by that railroad.

The Railway Labor Act was designed to protect the public against just such interruptions of commerce.

If these men will not comply with the provisions of the law for the settlement of such disputes, then all thinking Americans must face the question, "What is the next step?"

SPORTSCOPE By JOE MAHONEY

Calling all outdoorsmen

By JIM MITCHELL

With the fishing season tapering off into fall and the hunting season about ready to pop around the next corner, I have a suggestion to pass along. Get out the old shotgun, throw a box of No. 6's into your hunting coat and go crow shooting. It's a swell sport.

Henry Bradshaw, nationally-known author and sportsman, once remorked that crow shooting was the nearest thing to waterfowl gunning he had ever experienced. And Who's going to kick about a sport resembling duck shooting.

Several times each summer I put the fishing gear away and go after crows. I've found it to be a sport almost second to none in good gunning. Crows are smart; outwitting them requires patience and little know-how on the part of the hunter. And after you've had a successful day of shooting, with anywhere from one to a dozen or more black marauders on the ground, you can pat yourself on the back for a job well done.

Some hunters build blinds. use decoys and make a setup that is similar to duck shooting. I've found it easier to drive along a country road stopping here and there when a crow is spotted for some shooting. But a crow call is almost a must, unless you are just plain lucky in getting them into shooting range.

Then if you happen to find a place where the crows are roosting, you are in for some fast and fancy shooting. You can keep your old scattergun hot for a few minutes before the crows decide it would be healthier to find another resting place for the night.

And don't overlook the important conservation angle in shooting crows. This bird annually is blamed for the loss of millions of game birds and animals through attacks on nests.

So there you have it - - fine sport and a definite aid to conservation. This dual purpose is hard to beat.

ST JOE TIGERS WIN SOFTBALL GAME FROM SPENCERVILLE—Hope Coach T. and boys won't get offended by use of bold headlines, thinking I am ribbing them for not winning all the time.

THE boys really did play a fine game last Thursday and deserved to win. I'll bet the Spencerville boys and fans will say the same thing. The final score was 6 to 5. The locals boys snuffed out a Spencerville rally in the last inning, The Raiders had scored one run and had the tieing run on base.. St. Joe dented the scoring column first in the first inning and held a 1 to 0 lead until the third when Spencerville shoved over 4 runs. The Raiders lead only lasted a few minutes however, as St. Joe put over three runs in the same inning to knot the score at 4 all. St. Joe plated their last two runs in the fifth to break the tie. Leonard for Spencerville. and Baughman for the Tigers did the pitching chores and did them well.

Tuesday's game between Leo and St. Joe was rained out. A game has been scheduled with Spencerville for Thursday evening after school. The game was supposed to be played Spencerville but may be moved to the diamond here. Other games have been scheduled by the high school, which include a game with Harlan on Sept 22 after school on the diamond here and a game with Leo under their new lights on Sept. 26.

. . . . . .

GUARD JOE BALABON who hails from Republic, Pa., is the sophomore most likely to win a starting assignment on Indiana University's football team this fall. Balabon and coach Clyde Smith both hail from the same town, but that's not the reason Joe will be in the lineup when the Hoosiers battle the Fighting Irish Sept. 24th in their curtain raiser for the season at South Bend. Walter Bartkiewicz was leading Balabon for the spot when spring drills ended, but a motorcycle accident will keep Mr. Bartkiewicz from practice for two more weeks. Jim Gomory promising quarterback also from Pa., went for a spin on the same bike that kayoed Bartkiewicz, and he too was thrown for a loss when an auto pulled into his path from a side sreet. Any wonder Coach Smith quickly banned the bikes until football is over?

Chicago and South Bend seem to be the biggest contributing city to the I. U. football team this year. Six of the Hoosiers are from Chicago and 5 from South Bend.

AUBURN High School appear to be off on another successful football season again this year. Many, including, Coach Zeke Young had feared that another championship team would be too much to expect in view of varsity graduates. Their crushing 26 to 0 defeat of Decatur last Friday has brightened the football outlook around Auburn considerably. Decatur was the one team that mastered that trick over the Red Devils last year. Some great backfield work by Barney Beers was the big factor in their crushing victory.

ON SATURDAY evening we got a glance at those much talked about St. Joe A. C. Saints, and from the brand of fooball displayed in their smashing 32 to 0 victory from a similar semi-pro outfit from Coldwater it may not be our last. I guess we must have gotten into the same way of thinking of so many others that as good a ball club as the Saints have collected couldn't be hidden so close to home. The Saint play most of their games at Fort Wayne on Sunday afternoon. Their warm up game with Coldwater was played at Auburn for charity, sponsored by the Auburn Lions Club. Bill McComb, former Auburn backfield turned in a brilliant job of broken field running and picked his way through the somewhat bulky Coldwater defense almost at will. . . . and such bone-crushing tackling and blocking as those boys get off . . . just about as good as if they were in there "doing and dicing" for their dear old alma mater

C. R. Gross Resigns County Agents Post Effective December 1

The DeKalb County agent, C. R. Gross will resign his position as county agent in DeKalb County, December 1 to accept a position on the Purdue University agricultural conomic staff. He has been county agent in DeKalb County since June 1, 1945. Previous to that time he graduated from the Leesburg High School and Purdue U.

His resignation was brought about by the failure of the county council to maintain the average salary being paid to county agents in Indiana.

During his county agent work in DeKalb County, Mr. Gross was instrumental in organizing various groups to promote agricultural education and activities. Such groups include the annual Dairy Day meetings which held outstanding dairy exhibits in the past three years, the Dairy Herd Improvement Association which grew to a membership of 59 with approximately 1,000 cows on test, the newly formed OwnerSampler Testing Program with 15 memebers who have 200 cows on test, the Artificial Breed-Association of 250 members and over 1,500 cows signed up, the poultry Improvement Association which conducted education poultry schools and exhibits, the Farm Management Association, the 4-H Club Council organized in 1946 which now directs a program of 900 4-H club memebers, the 4-H Livestock Auction which sells fat stock at auction for 4-H members, Certified Seed Growers, who sponsor demonstrations and provide seed sources for new varieties, Jerey Breeders, the Soil Conservation District organized in 1947, and the Agricultural Improvement Association organized in 1948.

Mr. Gross and family including a wife, Elizabeth and three children, Tommy, Judy, and Linda will move to West Lafayette when he assumes his duties.

LIGHT UP your farm buildings

It's 3 kinds of Insurance in 1!

LOOK around your farm buildings. See if there aren't many places where extra electric lights would add extra convenience . . . extra safety from fire, falls, or prowlers.

How about lights in yard or along your drive—to welcome welcome guests and keep out those who aren't? How about night lights where chickens and hogs are fed—to boost profits in "off" seasons?

Extra lights and wiring cost so little and save so much work and worry. Why not have one of our farm representatives help you use electric lighting to best advantage. Just call us up.

THE FIRST DAY OF SCHOOL ... September Now, it seemed like only yesterday that last day in the spring when you said goodbye to your friends, and sped off for a long summer of fun. You had a funny feeling the first day of the summer just as if you were going for the first time. The holiday sights and stores of the Golden Rule days are forgotten, but the schools and the kids and THE FIRST DAY are all still just about the same. There's the same smell of fresh paint in the air from the newly varnished desks, the same funny feeling in the kids — the same rush for a drink of water and milling around in the classrooms — but by the time it's noon recess and the lunch boxes are unpacked, the strangeness has worn off — the kids are themselves again — and school like really begins.

FACTORY ON FARM. When Gerald, Clyde and Donald Van Enkevort, Bark River, Michigan, returned from World War II service they planned to resume their farming duties, but now, instead, they find themselves devoting nearly all their time to manufacturing concrete blocks. They needed building blocks for an addition to the barn, and since blocks were scarce, they decided to make their own, using the sizable deposits of gravel and sand which were on their farm.

How milk protein can help you increase hog profits!

Feed KRAYLETS—80% milk products* with valuable, growth-promoting milk protein!

Proteins in feeds are not alike! One of the highest quality proteins you can buy is milk protein. It helps give lower quality (animal and vegetable) proteins a powerful boost. Now, you can feed this efficient protein easily and economically with Kraylets. It's Kraft's 80% milk products in dry kernel form.

Kraylets' rich milk protein puts lower quality proteins (in grains) to work. That's why thousands of Kraylets users report remarkable results—more pork for every pound of feed, important savings on grains, earlier market weight and fast, thrifty gains at every stage!

Kraylets is convenient, economical dry kernels! No water or waste! No fuss, freezing or flies!

You don't have to lug messy pastes or liquids when you give your hogs Kraylets. It's sanitary, handy dry kernels! And it's very economical to feed, too. A little goes a long way. You only need ¼ lb. per hog each day, hand-fed, mixed or ground with other rations. Kraylets gives regular feed a flavor and aroma that makes hogs eat more—helps pack on those thrifty extra pounds that pay!

*Kraylets contains 80% concentrated milk products

The milk products in Kraylets are 65% cheese whey solids, 9% cheese solids, and 6% dried skim milk. The rest of the formula consists of 14% soybean oil meal, 4% alfalfa meal (dehydrated), 1% dried brewers yeast, and 1% edible beef tallow.

A KRAFT PRODUCT

Start building the litter before it's born by feeding the sow farm grains balanced with a good commerical sow and pig supplement. The supplement will supply extra protein, minerals and vitamins farm grains lack which are needed by the sow to farrow in good shape, produce a large, husky litter, and provide plenty of milk.

MAKE YOUR FALL PIGS Pack on Pork

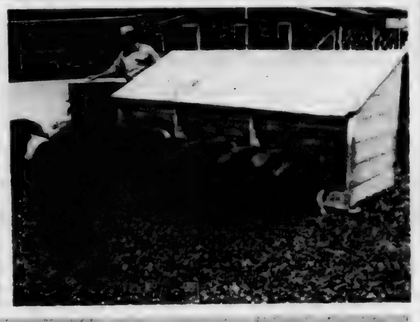
IN good times or bad, there's almost always good profit in pork production for the efficient hog raiser! During the past few years, hog prices were so good it was almost impossible for a hog producer not to make money with his pig crop. Lazy management methods . . . sloppy feeding . . . unwise marketing . . . didn't seem to make much of a difference, because hogs were a money crop . . . they paid off with a pretty good measure of profit no matter how inefficiently they were raised.

Now times are changing. Hog raisers who follow good practices will reap the profit, the rest may write off their hog raising efforts with red ink. So it pays now, as never before, to tighten up on your management methods, eliminate inefficiency, and follow every known good practice for raising profit porkers.

Thousands of farmers in the Midwest are preparing for their fall pig crops. All stand a good chance for profits at market time, provided they do the right kind of hog raising job. Pictured below are some of the ways you can insure profits with your fall pig crop.

No matter whether pigs farrow in spring or fall, the farrowing house must be clean and free of round worm eggs and germs to prevent costly pig death losses. Scrub house with boiling lye water, then spray with a good disinfectant.

If your fall pigs farrow in a central farrowing house, move them out to a clean pasture with the sow as soon as possible. With fall pigs, the weather is usually warm enough for pigs to be raised from birth on clean pasture. Early spring pigs may have to be kept in the farrowing house for weeks before weather permits moving to pasture.



Even before pigs are weaned, get them used to eating out of a self-feeder. After weaning, they will be so accustomed to grain and protein supplement, they'll hardly miss the sow's milk. Many top hog raisers use pelletized milk products along with farm grains.

If no pasture is available for your fall hogs, finishing them on a paved feeding floor pays off in faster gains and less feed waste. Hogs in a muddy feed lot are easy prey for round worms and disease, and they waste feed by tramping it in the mud.

Periodic weight checks like this will tell you which sows are producing the fastest gaining, most profitable litters. With this information, you can cull the unprofitable sows and save gilts and boars from litters produced by your best sows for herd replacements. An ordinary bathroom scale like this is all you need.

One important advantage of raising fall pigs is that you will have new corn on hand for finishing them for market. Also, shoats can "hog off" standing corn, or work over cornfields after harvest and make pork out of much corn that might otherwise be left in the field as waste.

Here's WHY Firestone CHAMPIONS GO THROUGH WHERE OTHERS HANG UP

LET'S talk facts . . . Here is a tire that has extra bar height, extra bar length, and a curved bar design that outcleans, outpulls and outlasts any other tire. NO OTHER TIRE has all these advantages.

The massive bars of the Firestone Champion take a bigger bite and a better hold — and THAT'S NOT ALL. Because they're curved for self-cleaning, these bars keep right on pulling long after ordinary tires clog and spin in their own tracks.

And here's another point — Every inch of tread-bar length does its share of the pulling because the low-pressure design of this tire puts ALL of the tread in FULL ground contact for a FULL TRACTION BITE. Because it's patented, the Firestone Champion gives you advantages which no other tire has. So . . . when it's time for a new tractor or for new tires, remember to use Firestone!

Preview of the School

By SUSAN LOWE

TIME was when September and school brought knotty arithmetic problems for Junior and equally knotty school lunch problems for Mom. But along with the trend toward bigger and better schools and progressive education has come a change from the old lunch bucket packed at home, to hot lunches that have been planned, prepared and served at school. Hungry boys and girls are learning what to eat and why they eat it — they also are establishing good eating habits early in life.

The school lunch has become a community affair. Federal funds are appropriated and matched by State sources. The lunch itself is sponsored by a school board or school official, with the sponsor assuming responsibility for operating the lunch program in the school. Because of government aid, the cost of the lunch to each child is but a few pennies per day . . . and in every instance where schools receive federal aid for this purpose, the lunch must be made available to all children regardless of their ability to pay.

In some counties a paid supervisor plans lunches for a number of schools. Menus are always set up well in advance and are carefully planned to provide proper nutrition. But nutritive value alone is not enough — foods must also prove a source of enjoyment and satisfaction to the children, if they are to be of assistance in establishing good eating habits.

The actual work of preparing the meal may be done by a paid cook, assisted by school mothers. Again it is carried out by the teacher with the help of students. In other schools, mothers do all the work and have fun doing it together. In many schools the entire lunch is provided . . . in others only one hot dish is served with the children bringing sandwiches from home. But in all schools, one thing is certain, today's children are getting a good start in life!

THE WAYNE WAY OF EGG PRODUCTION Pays 3 Important Ways!

1. EARLY EGGS

Quicker return on your poultry investment . . . more eggs to sell when prices are highest. One egg in the fall is usually worth more than 3 spring eggs!

2. STEADY LAYING

You make the best use of your feed and equipment when your birds lay straight through the fall, winter and spring. Steady production means steady income.

3. EXTRA EGGS

Make the most profit because they're over and above those eggs that cover your cost of operation. Profits go up - production cuts go down - with every extra egg.

85% PRODUCTION ALL FALL AND WINTER from her 106 hens . . . the Wayne Way—is enjoyed by Rosalie Farmer, Rockford, Ohio, who is typical of thousands of steady Wayne users all over the country. She gets 100 two-week-old sexed pullets and 100 straight-run chicks into her brooder house by March 1. Cockerels are eaten as fryers; pullets thrive the Wayne Way, producing their first eggs early in August. Birds are culled and housed before Sept. 1. Mrs. Farmer has plenty of good-sized eggs to sell during early fall high egg prices, as well as through the winter, spring and summer months.

ANIMAL PROTEIN FACTOR, containing the newly discovered Vitamin B_{12}, has for many years been in every bag of Wayne Egg and Breeder Mashes and Supplements. This is one of many reasons for Wayne's long record of "Ingredient Quality" performance. In line with recent developments, the amounts of APF have now been greatly increased in these feeds, providing an abundance for top egg production.

Fair Ended With Two Big Parades Saturday

The 1949 fair was the best of the series of exhibits held in Auburn. There was good weather during the week except that it was cool the first two days of the fair and the rain Saturday night cut down the receipts of the concessions.

Garrett Man Wins Car

Charles M. Warstler of Garrett received the biggest award in the Saturday evening drawing of over a dozen prizes. As hundreds stood around the court yard and tried to seek shelter from the steady downpour of rain, John L. Haverstock acting as master of ceremonies announced that the Garrett man's ticket which little Glenda Lee Fitch, of Corunna had selected, entitled him to the 1949 Plymouth given away by the Auburn Lions Club.

Waterloo First In Marching Bands

The Waterloo High School band carried off the sweepstakes honors in the grand finale parade of the fair Saturday afternoon.

Winners in the float contest were as follows: Tri Kappa of Auburn, First; Psi Iota Xi. of Garrett, Second and Spencer Twp. 4-H, third.

Leapin' Lena entered by the Kaiser-Frazer dealer of Waterloo took first prize of $10 in the comedy class.

Farmers Parade Held In Morning

The farmers of the county and the agriculture-connected business firms held their parade in the morning on the last day of the fair.

The Ashley High School band headed the mile long parade which got underway at 11 p. m.. The parade of the agricultural interests was held in the morning to permit livestock owners and machinery dealers to clear their exhibits from the ground. In past years the farmers' parade was a part of the Saturday morning "grande finale." This year the grand finale was held at 2 p. m.

Girl Has Top Calf At Fair

Judging of record livestock, poultry and domestic exhibits was completed late Thursday afternoon. The calf award, the biggest single prize at the fair was won by Eileen Moughler a Troy township girl who showed a Hereford calf.

In the 4-H swine division, which had a record number of entries this year, Max Wappes of Butler, showing his Duroc Jersey barrow walked off with the grand championship. His brother, Merlin won the reserve championship with his Chester White barrow.

In the 4-H lamb class, Joe Wagoner of Jackson Twp., took a clean sweep in that department, showing his prize winning Shropshire ewe lamb took the grand championship and his entry in the fat lamb class won the reserve title.

Champ Steer Brings 50c Pound

In the 4-H auction held Friday afternoon, Peckart's Grocery of Auburn purchased Miss Moughler's steer and paid 50 cents a pound, for a total purchase price of $600 for the 1.200 lb prize winner.. Culbertson Hardware of Auburn purchased Wappes' Duroc Barrow. paying 29c a oound. Wagoners winning lamb sold to the Albion Production Credit Corp. for 46 cents a pound.

Birthday And Farewell Party Given For Mrs. Lora Leighty

Birthdays are so-o-o-o much fun! Tuesday evening a near 100 friends and neighbors gathered at the Lutheran Church to help Lora Leighty celebrate. (a day early but the fun couldn't keep).

A bounteous carry-in dinner was provided by the kind ladies of the group, climaxed with a two-story cake aglow with (?) candles for the guest. At the conclusion of the luncheon she was also presented with a lovely white candlewick bedspread.

During the luncheon and program, tribute was paid Lora by Derwood Ridgway, and Rev. Baker, for her active participation in church and community projects. The guest responded with sincere and timely comments. The program also consisted of lovely solo by Miss Jean Perkins, group singing, and games led by Rev. and Mrs. Baker. The finale was a spelling contest in which the writer learned to spell "extempore." (Ex mean "out" and I was.)

The party was also a farewell for Mrs. Leighty who is moving to Auburn. I just looked up the meaning of "farewell" - - " a wish of happiness or welfare at parting or leaving." This seems to leave some confusion - - Mrs. Leighty can't be leaving since she will remain here in our memories.

May Face Another Federal Sentence

Ralph Morris Knox. 27-year-old Butler man who was convicted of the Spencerville Bank robbery in 1947, was again in trouble last week as he was indicted by a federal grand jury at Indianapolis late Friday on charges of impersonating a federal parole officer.

The Butler young man is accused of collecting $300 from a relative of a prisoner in the Terre Haute federal penitentiary on a promise that he would get the inmate's 15-year term cut to five years. Knox knew the prisoner while serving his sentence at the Terre Hatue prison.

According to Harvey G. Foster, special agent in charge of the Indiana FBI office, Knox, released on parole last June 13 from the prison, approached the prisoner's relative approached the prisoner's relative at Columbus, Ind., July 27. He introduced himself as a parole officer of the penitentiary. The relative gave Knox $300 to pay his expenses for a trip to Washington D. C., supposedly to accomplish the reduction in sentence. He was arrested in Fort Wayne by the FBI August 10 and identified the same day in a police lineup by his victim.

September Sorrow

"God Bless America"

No, we're not singing praises for this country which every American citizen should sing. We are singing praises for this country on behalf of the other nations of the world who are takin Uncle Sam to the bottom of his money barrel to keep them "solvent".

The money being spent for the so-called rebuilding of Europe is wasted for the most part because we are dealing with economic systems which are not built on the same foundation as ours—private enterprise. If the political beliefs of all countries, capitalistic, communistic, socialistic, democratic, and what have have you, cannot "get together" and function peacefully for the good of the people, how can we expect economic systems to survive when they are working on different principles. The other systems have failed, ours has not. But still we try to help keep the others functioning with financial aid. And no end is in sight.

The British people voted in a labor government which turned the country far to the right. Among other things the government took over operation of transportation facilities, put socialized medicine into effect, taxed the people heavily—and the net result is that it can't keep enough red ink on hand to maintain the books. We don't know for sure, but we would venture a guess that the red ink Britain uses comes from us on the Marshall Plan. On the other hand, the U. S. government isn't far behind in consumption of red ink lately; however, our ink is red because we are spending much of our money on the world, not just ourselves.

Yes, sir, the majority of the people living outside these United States should say "God Bless America". And we could show them why. Just lop off a billion or so (take two, they're small) from the next check to John Bull, take pictures all over the country to show how we live, show how much the various occupations earn, explain our system of private enterprise, translate the copy to French, Russian, Chinese, etc., load up our planes with the pamphlets and drop MILLIONS of 'em all over Europe and Asia.

Who says it wouldn't do any good?

Guess Who Foots the Bill

The Clarksville Tribune, published in the Indiana town which prides itself on being the oldest American town between the Ohio River and the Great Lakes, commented rather poignantly the other day on the sheer fatigue of the local, state and Federal tax burdens on the citizenry. It enumerated the long list of taxes and deductions and other weights upon the productive power of the individual or business. Then it made the plaint that too many folk on the public pay roll are "busy doing nothing."

The newspaper was in position to cite an immediate example. It seems a government employee, in a government car, had driven all the way from Chicago to Clarksville to find out how many new houses had been built there in the last two years. The mission took two days and 600 miles of mileage—to obtain information which a three-cent letter could have obtained from the Town Clerk.

Nor was that the end of it. A week later two women employees of the government, driving another government car, arrived in Clarksville seeking the same information. When advised the data had already been obtained by a Federal man they said, "Oh, yes, we know about him—but HE was from the Census Bureau and WE are with the Department of Labor."

Stop Signs Needed

Motorists driving in rural areas eventually become accustomed to meeting other cars at county road intersections so infrequently that they naturally neglect to heed the warning signs placed at the intersections for their benefit.

However the fault isn't all the motorists'. Some of the stop signs now standing in the surrounding community not only are rusted, unreadable and also often hidden from view by weeds, but they are also obselete. The Standard stop sign now nationally adopted is an eight-sided sign. The signs we refer to in this territory are four sided—the shape of the present "Slow" sign.

New signs of the red reflector type should be erected so that the red "danger" signal looms in view every time the motorist approaches the crossings which are considered most dangerous and in need of a warning sign.

The Psalms We Sing

Lesson for September 25, 1949

IT WOULD be a most unusual person who on his dying bed would turn to the 23rd chapter of I Chronicles and not to the 23rd Psalm. If the reader will think of his own favorite passage of Scripture, and then look them up in some edition which prints the Bible in a modern format, he will discover that his favorite passages are probably all poetry.

Dr. Foreman

Poetry's Power

WHY the appeal of poetry? For one thing, it is vivid. It is in colors, not severe black and white. It lives and breathes, at times it shouts, and it always sings.

It is true to say "The providential oversight of the Creator is continuous and unremitting;" but it is more effective to say, "The Lord is my shepherd." It would be true to say, "The evidences of creative and beneficent purpose can be seen throughout all the orders of nature;" but how much more vivid is the 148th Psalm, calling on hail and fire, sun and moon and stars of light, to praise the Lord!

Another secret of poetry's power is that it is the language of emotion. Professors and theologians may be saying the same things as the poet, and maybe even saying them more completely and accurately; but what they say is less easy to remember.

So these emotional Psalms will always appeal, even to the professor when off duty, because they make us feel religion and not merely think it.

Pictures of God

SO IT IS no wonder the Psalms have been loved and sung all over the world. We are perhaps the only religion that has made so much use of another religion's hymn book. Different though our faiths may be, Jews and Christians can sing from the Psalter with one voice and heart.

For centuries it was the hymnal of the Christian church. Indeed, up to recent years some large denominations would allow in public worship the singing of no other songs than the Psalms.

Many of our best hymns and popular gospel songs, as we have already seen, are based on Psalms. "Rock of Ages, cleft for me," "A Shelter in the Time of Storm," "Hiding in Thee," — they all go back to the Psalmist's picture of God as a Rock (Ps. 42:9). The Psalmist was not thinking of a little rock in a cornfield. He was thinking of some tall crag in the fierce hot landscape of his country.

A rock there is a landmark, it is a shelter against the blazing sun, people could live under its overhanging height.

So God is the landmark of life, he gives direction to our ways; he is the shelter on life's weary journey, he is our safe dwelling.

So with the many other pictures of God in the Psalms—he is light, he is shade, he is the guard on duty at night watching over the sleeping city (Ps. 121); he is a shepherd, he is water for the thirsting soul (Ps. 42.)

A Model Hymnal

IT IS true that few Christians today can use in worship all of the Psalms, without omission or changes. It is also true that practically all Christian churches find that the Psalms, by themselves, are inadequate to express all there is in Christian experience, faith and ideals.

The Christian hymn, entirely independent of the Psalms, has long since come into its own. And yet the Psalms remain the model hymnal. For in them beauty and truth are blended.

This should be the ideal of all Christian hymn and song books. Some of our modern "hymns" as well as some older ones, are bad because they are no better than jingles, —doggerel, not poetry, and often sung to tunes better suited to a juke box; and some are bad because they convey either nonsense or downright falsehood.

But the great hymns, and the best hymnals, are those which like the Psalms of old, combine profound truths about God and man, duty and destiny, with safety, stirring and singable music, aglow with the beauty and power of words.

Washington Outlook

by HARRY LANDO

The House, returning soon from its long vacation, will find that the Senate has more than caught up on farm legislation. True, the upper chamber has not yet cleared a price support bill and it has decided to allow the margarine tax repealer bill to go over to the next ssion.

On the other hand, the House Agriculture Committee will have to appoint conferees in a hurry to thresh out differences between House and Senate versions of Forest Service, Crop Insurance and on all bills. The Senate removed a part of the farm forestry provisions from the House passed bill; deleted a study of livestock insurance from the House Crop Insurance bill; and added safeguards against interference with existing phone companies to the House Rural Telephone meausre.

House conferees will likely try their best to get more farmer benefits back into these bills.

The E. C. A. Marshall Plan agency, has found much opposition in the ranks of Senate Republicans to its decision to allow benefitting nations to spend more of their Marshall Plan dollars outside the U. S.

The immediate decision is in regard to purchase in Canada by Great Britain of wheat. Our dollars would be used, while wheat is surplus here. Protesting were such Republican Senators as Wherry (Neb.), Hickenlooper (Iowa) and Young (N. D.)

Marshall Plan procedures have generally beeen along lines of requiring purchases in the U. S. when commodities are in surplus here. But shortages of dollars in most countries have put many economies in danger, with consequent risk that the nations we are trying to aid may fall in spite of our help. The recent "money" conferences brough a promise of liberalization of Marshall Plan rules to allow for more purchases outside this country, but no new direct U. S. aid.

Under the new formula, Marshall Plan nations might reduce purchases of some foods in the U. S. Theory is that in this way they will be able to build up their dwindling supplies of dollars. thus laying a firmer basis for their recovery and adding to their ability to buy the products of U. S. farms after the Marshall Plan is ended only a few years from now.

A good many Senators still feel, though, that since American dollars are being spent, wheat should not be bought in Canada while it is surplus here.

The Thomas bill to remove eggs and potatoes from the list of commodities getting mandatory suports had its first hearing last week in a subcommittee headed by Sen. Clinton P. Anderson (D., N. M.). The first day produced only discussions of background facts on eggs.

The hearings follow only a short time after the same subcommittee reported out the Anderson "Compromise" price support bill which strangely enough gave Irish potatoes mandatory supports and removed eggs from the list.

The Secretary of Agriculture, Charles F. Brannan, apparently feels that he can be in full control of the situation under the Aiken supports, which the present Congress is anxious to repeal. He feels he has the power to put on rigid marketing controls on potatoes, and he fully intends to do so. Eggs are not mandatory under Aiken's bill, so he could withdraw supports at his discretion.

Although Sen. Aiken last week predicted that his title II supports would become effective January 1, it still looks like the Anderson compromise will prevail, Aiken based his prediction on the rush for adjournment, but a new farm price support measure is on the administration must list. and few Republicans want the Aiken support to come in.

This would, of course, continue mandatory supports for potatoes while making egg supports subject to the judgement of the Secretary of Agriculture.

In any event, it is almost certain that Congress will take no separate action on eggs and potatoes this session, regardless of the hearings. An amendment to the Anderson bill, dropping potatoes, might be offered and even passed on the Senate floor. Then there would be the question of how this action would strike the House.

The big news of the week was the appointment of a subcommittee under Sen. Guy M. Gillette (D. Iowa) to study the reasons for the big differences between prices farmers get for food products and prices consumers pay for the same foods.

Representatives of the dairy industry will be quizzed first. Flour millers and others will follow. Sen. Gillette wants to know why he pays 95 cents a dozen for eggs in Washington, while Iowa farmers get 35 cents. Sen. Milton Young (R., N. D.) would also like to know why the price of bread hasn't dropped a penny, though wheat prices have slumpd more than a third.

Practically all major farm organizations asked in testimony before a Senate committee that the President be authorized to lend the United Nations money with which to build its Food and Agriculture Organization headquarters in Washington. One of FAO's main worries is about how to get purchasing power into the hands of have-not nations so they can buy U. S. surpluses.

According to the National Associated Businesmen, an off-shoot of the National Tax Equality Association, Sen. Walter F. George (D., Ga.,) has promised that a bill to remove tax exemptions now enjoyed by farm cooperatives would be prominently considered next session.

The anti-cooperative group claims Congressmen have written letters to constituents expressing opposition to co-op tax exemptions. If there were a showdown. though, the NAB couldn't produce more than a couple of dozen. Represented by high powered lobbiests, NAB hasn't made too much progress.

Farmers' cash receipts from marketings in August were down 18 percent from the same month last year, and September is expected to be just as bad.

According to the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, fewer people were employed on farms every month of this year than in the corresponding months of last year. Average hours worked by operators and hired farm labor is also on a downward trend. Labor supply during harvest season has been generally better this year.

HERE 'N THERE IN SPORTS

By LEWIS H. WALTER

MEMBERS of the St. Joe High School softball team and their coach, along with other schools from this locality were guests of the Hicksville High School Friday evening as the latter battled the Coldwater, Ohio football team in their opening game of the season, at Waterworks Park in Hicksville. The gridiron fracas produced one of the best high school football games we have seen in some time. Coldwater, defending Little Buckeye Champs of last year proved too strong for the Hicksville boys and won by a 20 to 6 score. Koch did most of the ball lugging for Hicksville and completed tosses for most of their forward passes that spearheaded their touchdown drive. The tricky Coldwater backfield elected to stay on the ground and picked yardage almost at will with their clever T, and sometimes shifted into a modified version. Only once in the later stages did the visitors take to the air, that a feeble southpaw attempt that didn't even come close. The local group as well as the rest of the schools enjoyed the game very much, with some of the boys seeing their first game. OVER at Auburn the Red Devils successfully opened their home season, but had a battle on their hands all the way to defeat the New Haven Bulldogs by a 20 to 13 score.

ABOUT the only changes that the average high school basketball fan will notice in rulings this year, is the fact that the rim of the hoop and the metal supports for same will enjoy a touch of decoration. In accordance with the new college and high school rule changes the rim and supports must be painted a bright orange in color.

THE High School softball team will take on Harlan's team Thursday after school on the diamond here; and Monday Sept. 26 the boys will go to Leo for a game under their new lights.

BOTH of the high school football teams, from this county will see action in home game this week. Garrett's Railroaders who lost their season opener to Warsaw last week will play host to the Decatur eleven this week. At Carr Field in Auburn the Red Devils will attempt to make it three in a row over N.E.I. Conference teams by entertaining Bluffton. Both games are set for Friday night. Also on Friday evening the Hicksville Aces will make another attempt to crash into the win column, when Jefferson of Delphos invade Hicksville territory.

Indiana University's football squad preparing for the opening of the 1949 season September 24 at Notre Dame, will jump from football's frying pan into the fire as far as top competition is concerned.

After what will probably be a rough trip to South Bend with the Fighting Irish. The Hoosiers will return home to get a whole week of rest before again packing their bags for a trip to Columbus and a game with the highly rated Buckeyes. Then back to Bloomington on Oct. 8 for a game with the famed Horned Frogs of Texas Christian, who with Lindy Berry in the backfield are being groomed as the scourge of the Southwest Conference.

Spencerville Bank Cashier Left Holding Empty Bag

Shortage Estimates Vary From $136.000 To Over $200,000

The Spencerville community suffered another in a series of jolts during the past few years when an examination of the books of the Farmers and Merchants State Bank showed a shortage of funds totalling more than one-fourth of the bank's deposits.

First to be arrested last week was Roy C. Chaney, Jr., Harlan and Ft. Wayne car dealer, who used a check kiting scheme whereby he deposited checks at the Spencerville bank drawn from the Grabill bank, without sufficient funds to cover the amounts.

On Friday afternoon Clyde G. Rectenwall was arrested at the home of relatives in Columbus, O., on charges of embezzling approximately $140,000 from the bank. He is being held. pending further investigation of the bank's accounts. When arrested Rectenwall had seventeen dollars and some odd cents on his person.

Examiners report that there doesn't seem to be any connection between the two shortages. However no announcement has been made as to the whereabouts of the $140,000 dollars. The irregularities in the account cover a period of only the past two years.

Meanwhile banking is being carried on as usual while the Auburn State Bank works on legal details to transfer the accounts to its control.

The final preparations for the week-long membership drive of the cert Association were completed at a "kickoff" dinner held at The Plantation in Auburn on Monday evening.

A. M. Bisel of Waterloo, is president of the association and John Smith of east of Auburn is General chairman of the campaign. Membership captains in this community are Mrs. C. R. Baumgartner of Spencerville and E. W. Kinsey of St. Joe.

In order to attend the popular concerts which were held for the first time last year in Auburn, a membership in the asociation is required. Only 1,000 memberships are open and the drive will end Oct. 1.

Memberships will be accepted every day this week by Mrs. Alice Peckhart of Auburn, secretary of the association at the Auburn Music Company.

The community concert associations, now organized in many American and Canadian cities and towns are designed to bring American concert stage talent to communities unable to otherwise afford the entertainment.

The artists who appear in the series of concerts this winter, which again will be staged at the Court theater in Auburn, will be determined by the number of subscriptions obtained during the drive.

"LETTERS FROM FIGHTING HOOSIERS" PUBLISHED AT I. U.

"Letters from Fighting Hoosiers", containing a letter by a Dekalb County veteran written during the war has just been published at Indiana University by the Indiana War History Commission.

The DeKalb County veteran is Norbert Wagner of Waterloo, who served in the European Theater.

The 406-page volume is a drastic account of World War II as seen on every front by Hoosiers who were there. The 131 letters which make up the volume were edited by Howard W. Peckham and Shirley A. Snyder of the Indiana Historical Bureau.

In preparing this volume, the Commission read more than 3,500 letters, many of them laboriously written in longhand during lulls in combat by soldiers, sailors and marines who were later killed in action.

Priced at publication cost of $5. the book is now on sale at the Indiana University office of the War History Commission. Nine other volumes are planned by the commission to tell the part Indiana played as a training ground, arsenal and agricultural center for the nation at war. The books also will relate the role of members of wartime civilian agencies and other citizens who contributed to the war effort on the home front.

Letters to the Editor

(This column is offered to give the reader a chance to have his say. Any and all contributions are welcome-poetry, prose or what have you. All letters should have a signature to insure publication.)

Mr. Haberkorn:

Your "that item" appeared in the Chicago Sun Times last week under a U. P. heading. It was also given one week after its publication over the NBC from WENR by Paul Harvey on his news at 10 p. m. This same news is sponsored in the East by Sunoco.

Like Mrs. Thorton, we too get only some of our papers and they reach us some times on Thursday a. m., but more often on the following Tuesday. Could it be the address isn't printed in 'bold' ink? This week's was so light I could scarcely decipher it.

Dear Mr. Haberkorn:

I was astonished to read the name Haberkorn in your little amusing newspaper article. I thought the name was only a straight German name and now it sounds across from America and I thought I would write some greetings to my strange namesake.

likewise, E. Haberkorn
(But Mrs. E. Haberkorn)

The letters received from Germany have been written in German (which we can't read). They were translated for us by Mrs. Louis Bleeks and we wish to thank her for her help. —Ed.

International Uniform Sunday School Lessons

By DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

SCRIPTURE: Isaiah 6. DEVOTIONAL READING: Hosea 14.

What is a Call of God?

Lesson for October 2, 1949

IF YOU knew exactly what God wanted you to do, would you do it? Of course you would. The trouble is: How does any one know what God's will is?

Dr. Foreman

For example, a young man is thinking about his life's work; what shall he choose? Most young men would do what they were sure God called them to do, but what is a call?

The story of Isaiah throws some light on this problem. (We are beginning this week a three month's study of the great prophets Isaiah and Jeremiah.) True, he lived some 2700 years ago, and half way to the other side of the world; but human nature has not changed in 2700 years.

From Man about Town
To Man of God

ISAIAH was a young man about town, in the small but wealthy city of Jerusalem, about 700 years before Christ. He was a personal friend of all the important people, a man of good education, with wide horizons of interest, of independent means, eloquent, polished, the sort of man who makes a good career diplomat.

He tells in some detail the story of how he came to be a prophet. The story is in Isaiah 6. Perhaps if we had been there with a camera and a wire recorder we might have been able to photograph the seraphim and take down their cries, just as Isaiah saw and heard them.

What we do know is that that experience changed Isaiah's life. Up to that time (on his own showing) he had been a "man of unclean lips;" from that time on he began to be a spokesman for the Lord. Let us try to say what the story of that life-changing vision, that call, means in terms of our own experience.

The Flame of God

FIRST there was the overwhelming sense of God's reality and power and holy majesty. No one can ever experience a call who does not take God seriously.

A God "afar off," a God who is only a problem, an idea, a hypothesis, never called any one. God alone can make himself real to man; and only a man with a real sense of a living God is going to hear his call.

Next came Isaiah's realization of his own unfitness and sin. A man who feels equal to a great task is probably not equal to it. "Them as knows nawthin' fears nawthin'," as the Irish say. A man who feels good enough to serve God, just as he is, is not good enough. A man without a sense of sin is too full of it.

Then comes the burning coal from the alter; Isaiah feels that his guilt is gone. No one can fully do God's will with an unforgiven heart. Isaiah was not sinless at one stroke, of course, yet it is possible to turn from all known sin; it is possible to devote one's loyalty to God; and this Isaiah did.

It was only then that he heard the call: Whom shall I send? In modern and less picturesque language, Isaiah was conscious of a need he had not felt before—that is, of God's need, of his people's need.

What those needs were will come out in later studies. The point is that young Isaiah, who hitherto had lived only for himself, now saw the need of the city and the people among whom he lived.

"Here Am I;
Send Me."

THEN comes the last stage—Isaiah's willing offer of himself. His great talent was the ability to use language. He could make words march and sing as few men of any race have done. But up to that time, it seems, his gift of eloquence had been used chiefly in telling dirty stories.

Now he has repented, and been forgiven, and he says to God: Use me. His voice, his knowledge, his eloquence, which he had been using against God (or at best, only for Isaiah) he was now to use for God and man.

So there is a call: A sense of God, near and commanding and holy; repentance; forgiveness; a sense of need; willingness to devote all one's gifts to fill that need.

Washington Outlook

by HARRY LANDO

If Congress fails to pass a farm price support measure this session, thus allowing the Aiken flexible supports to become law by default, the Department of Agriculture might try out the Brannan production payment idea on eggs.

The Aiken legislation gives broad general authority for price support payments direct to farmers, though the money to make these payments would have to come directly through specific Congressional action or from Section 32 funds. Section 32 funds are a portion of customs receipts from tariff duties levied on imports of foreign merchandise into the U. S.

Section 32 funds are used to expand the market for U. S. farm surpluses. Some of it has been used for such purposes as buying surplus foods for the school lunch program.

This reporter has learned that certain Department of Agriculture officials have been pressing Sec. of Agriculture Charles F. Brannan to use Section 32 money in order to make direct payments to farmers on eggs in order to keep the farmers' income up while the market price of eggs is allowed to drop. That is, if the Aiken law is allowed to become effective next January 1.

Some individuals within USDA have been wanting for years to try the subsidy method on egg price supports. There is even some evidence that Sen. George D. Aiken had eggs in mind when authorization for direct payments was written into his price support law.

Eggs are expected by USDA to be one of their most difficult support problems next year. Potatoes, which have been a headache, will be under strict production controls next year or, if farmers reject controls, the crop will not be supported. But with a big increase in hen numbers, egg production is expected to jump.

Sen. Elmer Thomas (D., Okla.) has a ball in the hopper aimed at taking eggs and potatoes off the mandatory suport lists. Hearings on this bill produced a USDA estimate that egg supports would cost between $100 million and $150 million next year if present 90 percent supports are continued for another year. The House has already passed a bill extending present support levels, but it is extremely unlikely that the Senate will follow suit.

The Senate this week will probably consider the Anderson compromise. This bill, introduced by Sen. Clinton P. Anderson (D., N. M) would provide for flexible supports ranging between 75 and 90 percent of parity. The terms of the bill make production payments on eggs and most other products impossible.

Only if the Aiken law becomes effective will egg subsidies be possible. This appears to be a dim prospect. The House has already passed a measure supplanting it. The Senate appears to be ready to pass the Anderson compromise. The hope of Aiken law supporters is that House and Senate will be unable to agree on a measure and that, therefore, nothing will pass this session. That would mean the advent on January 1 of the Aiken supports.

But the House, because of this prospect, is expected to accept the Anderson compromise. The Aiken supports have few backers in either party in the House, which would take most anything in preference.

But if adjournment comes before passage of a farm price support bill . . . an unlikely possibility . . there is a very good prospect that egg producers will receive direct payments from the Governmnt in substitution for present price support methods.

Sen. Guy Gillette (D., Iowa) and his subcommittee on Thursday and Friday of last week began their investigation into the spread between prices farmers get and prices consumers pay. They heard representatives of 3 large dairies and then adjourned until October 6, at which date General Mills' testimony will begin the quest for facts in the wheat-flour-bread price spreads.

The President of Beatrice Foods, National Dairy and Borden Company agreed that farmers and consumers alike were receiving fair treatment at the hands of the dairy industry. All testified that their companies earn less than 3 per cent on each dollar of sales.

The subcommittee, however, was more interested in return on capital investments, and 2 of the companies were earning about 10 cents per year for each dollar invested while the 3rd was earning 7 to 8 cents. Sen. Milton Young (R., N. D.), in particular contended that in view of such high profits the companies could either increase the price to farmers or cut retail prices.

The subcommittee was also interested in salaries. One of the dairy presidents testified that he was paid $150,000 per year; another gets $125,000.

All 3 presidents presented figures showing farmers' share of the consumer milk dollar to be much above pre-war.

The subcommittee, far from satisfied, is weighing an investigation out in the field.

Conditions were favorable for vegetables throughout most of the nation.

The Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nation has proposed the international clearing house for farm surpluses, as predicted in this column. Idea is to find a market for surplus to head off production cuts in surplus nations

Participating nations would pay into a $5 billion fund. Shortage nations would pay in their currency, while the exporting country would be paid in its currency. The fund and the exporting nations would share any losses equally. Hailed in some quarters as a solution for U. S. shortages, it appears to fall far short of that.

Since the shortages are outside the dollar areas, the dollars would be drained out of the fund, and would have to be re-subcribed. This would mean just a round-about way of subsidizing other countries to eat our surpluses. In other words, we would both grow the food and eventually pay the bill.

U. S. exports of processed vegetables fell to $25.6 million in 1948 from 1947's all-time high of $39.6 million.

Prices of farm land declined between the end of Februray and July through most of the country. Iowa and Minnesota land increased 1 percent; Illinois and Idaho stayed the same; Washington, Colorado and Oregon values dropped 1 percent; Texas fell 2 percent; North Dakota and Indiana, 3 percent; and Pennsylvania 4 percent.

Nationally, the drop in farmland prices averaged 2 percent; and national values were 1 percent below a year ago. This was the first time since 1939 that the value of farm land was below the year before. Value of warm land, nationally, is now about 3 percent below the peak of November, 1948, but still more than doubled the 1935-39 average.

THE St. Joe High Tigers won the second of their three game series with Spencerville's softball team since school has started,. Their last meeting for the year resulted in a 5 to 4 win for the local school, which took 8 innings to battle out. Spencerville chalked up a victory on their home diamond two weeks ago.

In Thursday's extra inning game, Eddie Tincher rammed a sharp hit through the center of the diamond, to allow Baughman to scamper all the way home from second, in the last of the 8th inning.

St. Joe got their first run in the 4th when Baughman crossed up the Raider left fielder and slashed a drive that hit just inside the foul line and rolled all the way for an easy 4 bagger. Baker drove a fly ball deep into left field in the very next inning for his circuit clout. Spencerville added two in the 6th and then tied it up with another pair of runs in the 7th. Hoover raced home with the tieing run in that inning when Cy Richmond threw wild to third for an attempted double play after snagging Gehrigs line smash.

The visiting Raiders had apparently gone ahead in the 8th inning. Dwyer clouted a long drive over Housers head in deep center and scored easily. When the ball was returned to second, however, Dwyer was called out for failing to touch second base..

Baker opened the 8th with a safe hit, but was forced at second by Baughman. Baughman took second and Cy Richmond reached first on a bad throw on an infield play to set the stage for Tincher's game winning blow.

LOCAL fans who will want to see at least one football game on the Indiana University campus this year, would be wise to select the Hoosier's intersectional battle with the colorful Horned Frogs of Texas Christian on Oct. 8.

Besides the forecast of a grand battle with TCU who have pulled out victories in the last remaining minutes of play in the last two years, plenty of good seats are assured for the contest. Because of the great distance, few TCU fans will come north for the game and a good supply of their tickets were returned for local sale.

The game also will be an Indiana High School Day observance with thousands of high scoool pupils including local students invited to attend the game and other campus activities at a special rate of only 75-cents.

THE Hoosiers put up a stubborn fight during the first half of their opener Saturday at South Bend against Notre Dame. In the second half, however, the Irish and their two platoon system began to take its toll and Notre Dame romped on to 49-6 victory.

HIGH SCHOOL football in this county will find both of the two schools in play again this Friday evening. Auburn's Red Devils who appear to be on their way to another brilliant season will move to Hartford City for their game, seeking their 4th straight. Their last victory was a 37 to 0 lashing of Bluffton. Garrett's team, however, seems to be having difficulty putting their first win on the record book. They lost their second in a row last week, a 13 to 7 game to Decatur. Little hope is held that the Garrett eleven will break into that win column this week either. Their opponents are one of the toughest in the NEI conference, the New Haven Bulldogs who will go to Garrett for the game.

TWO big 6 run innings by Leo were more than a plenty against the St. Joe High softball team Monday evening and the locals went down to a 14-7 defeat under the lights at the Leo diamond. It was their last game of the year.

Leo's first and second innings were both six runs long. Baughman relieved Goings on the mound and held Leo to just two more runs over the remainder of the distance. St. Joe also concentrated their run making in two innings, the second and third but could only plate 7.

SPENCERVILLE High lost a well played 6 to 3 game to Leo last Wednesday under the lights there

CALLING ALL OUTDOORSMEN

As author of an outdoor column it is interesting to note the varied number of inquiries tossed your way by sportsmen. For instance, hunting and game questions are twice as numerous as fishing inquiries.

At first this somewhat amazed me, but it probably can be explained by the fact than many gun enthusiasts hunt for years without fully understanding the technical side of firearms and ammunition. On the other hand, a fisherman in short order learns all there is to know about tackle.

I admit that I'm not an authority on guns and, like most others, I've hunted for more than a quarter of a century with rifles and shotguns. But in that span of years I have learned a lot about rods and reels and lures.

The other day an arms question was noted involving bullet penetration. A hunter wanted to know why his rifle, when fired point blank at a tree, would not send a slug entirely through it but only at 75 or 100 yards the slug easily went through the same tree.

Remington Arm Company's ballistic expert. Dr. C. S. Cummings. offers this explanation: When a bullet leaves the muzzle of a gun it tends to wobble or, as it is known technically, yaw. This is due to the sudden release of unbalanced forces which tend to get the bullet started in a slightly erratic path. Consequently, if the bullet strikes a target close to the muzzle. there is a good chance that it will not strike the target strictly normal or "dead on". This yawing or wobbling motion, however, is lost in flight. At long ranges the bullet will strike a target "head on" and consequently, offers greater penetration.

That's the type of question-- and answer--only the experts can handle accurately and to the satisfaction of the sportsman.

I don't think it necessary to learn the technical side of arms and ammunition for hunting. But it is essential that all hunters know the limitations of the arms they are using to prevent crippling game. For instance, a shotgun with No. 8 shot has an effective killing range up to 40 yards. To use this load at 50 yards means few kills and much crippling.

NOTHING to turn on or off but the faucet, nothing to watch. Truly automatic. Plenty hot, plenty of it. That's water heating the modern electric way!
What's more, you can put an electric water heater where it's most convenient: in basement, playroom, or kitchen. No flue or chimney connections needed! And the heat's all inside . . . water gets hot, the room doesn't.

St. Peter's Lutheran Church To Celebrate Centenial

St. Peter's Evangelical Lutheran Church of Spencerville, Indiana will celebrate 100 years of Organization on Oct. 9th.

Spencerville is 18 miles north of Fort Wayne on State Road 1. There is a marker on the church ground stating that this is the place of the First Settlement in what is now DeKalb County, 1828. This town of 500 population is built by the St. Joseph River in the southwest corner of the county.

The Church was founded by Rev. J. Carther 1849. The first members were John Leighty, Elizabeth Leighty, Abraham Cope, Catherine Cope, Charles Reed, Mrs. Charles Reed, William Downs, Susan Downs, Geo. Bittinger, Margaret Bittinger, Barbary Rummel, Mrs. Boren and the pastor, J. Carther.

The first building was frame and stood just north of the present parsonage. The Congregation now worships in a large brick building erected 69 years ago, with a brick parsonage beside the Church building, and built about the same time.

Pastors who have served this Congregation (usually along with Saint Mark Lutheran Church of Saint Joe), are as follows: J. Carther, 1849-51; J. Leidle 1851-52; William Waltman 1852-59, Curtis Caskey, 1859-60; Wm. Waltman, 1860-63; B. F. Hills, 1863-65; Chauncey Sink, 1865-68; A. Lenthers. 1869-70; W. W. Erick, 1870-79; S. Kelse, 1879-81; E. K. Baker, 1882-85; S. P. Fryberger, 1885-88; J. Nelson, 1888-92; J. R. Thomas, 1892-95; W. C. Dunlap, 1895-99; W. H. Schrock 1899-03; W. H. Habey, 1903-06; F. A. Dressel, 1906-09; Pastor Hichner, 1910-12; D. P. Heltzel, 1913-15; A.K. Mumma, 1915-21; S. P. Steffey, 1922-24; P. B. Rediger, 1926-27, G. D. Stoll, 1929-31, A. A. Fabian, 1932-34, C. J. Forster, 1935-37, Frank Stevenson, 1936-48; and W. H. Baker is the present pastor.

One pastor was E. W. Erick, whose son Wm. Erick lives in Spencerville, and is now 82 years old. The oldest living member of the Church is Mrs. Ella Horn, who will be 85 next month, and worships at church.

The morning message Oct. 9th will be by Geo. D. Stoll of Mechanicsburg, Pa., who was pastor here in 1929 to 1931. The teacher of adults that day is to be Judge Hilgeman of Fort Wayne. The superintendent is Roger Stebing.

There will ba a carry-in-dinner, and at 2:30 there will be greetings from former members and pastors. Frank Baltz will be chairman. We hope to hear much of the past and gain inspiration for the present and future.

With the aid of gifts amounting to $3500 from O. D. Wearley, the church has been redecorated and chancel furniture and church carpet installed, along with a new oil heater. Other gifts and memorials are in honor of Greeley and Elizabeth Wearley, Gertrude Carey and Ellen O. Carey, Marion Walter, Mary Dean and Ella Horn. There will be dedication of these gifts and improvements at the morning service at 10:45.

In recent years this Spencerville Parish has turned to more of Lutheran practices, and today they use the Common Service in full (as used by most Lutheran churches, and was used by the Church before the Reformation). They observe the Chief Festivals of the Church Year, take a great interest in the organizations and institutions of the Church at large.

The young people and children are being instructed, the morning service is held every Lord's Day and Holy Communion is observed every three months. So under the guidance of God, they look forward to a great day Oct. 9th and entrance upon another century of worship and service to the glory of God and the good of men.

County Concert Drive A Success

Mr. A. M. Bisel of Waterloo, announced the completion of a highly successful Membership Campaign for the DeKalb county Community Concert Association. The officers and volunteer workers were extremely gratified at the public responce to the drive which exceeded last year's initial program.

The selection committee met Saturday evening at the close of the campaign in the Mayor's office to determine the artists and dates for the coming season.

Mr. Bisel, association president, presided at the meeting which was attended by Mrs. A. M. Bisel, John Smith, Mrs. Marion Peckhart, Hugh Sanders, Mrs. Juanita Gray, G. A. Kellberg, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Sprott, Mr. E. W. Kinsey, Mrs. Walter Wineland, Mrs. Roy Cary and Mrs. Wayne Voss.

The Committee's aim in selecting the artists was to present to the people of DeKalb County the finest artists obtainable for the funds available and to bring to Auburn a balanced series that would have universal appeal.

The following program has been selected for this season subject to confirmation of dates:

Elwood Gary, brilliant young tenor soloist will appear at the Court Theatre early in November. Mr. Gary, winner of the Metropolitan Opera Audition of the Air in 1942, in addition to his operatic engagementst, is in constant demand as a radio and concert artist.

Letters to the Editor

(This column is offered to give the reader a chance to have his say. Any and all contributions are welcome-poetry, prose or what have you. All letters should have a signature to insure publication.)

To the editor of the St. Joe News-

The teen agers of the town of St. Joe have presented a birthday party to Pat Hughes on the date of Sept. 29th and are planning on having a Halloween party which will include all the teen-agers within the city limits of St. Joe.

We are planning to have a pot luck party each week and all teen-agers are inyited to come. Those wishing to join our group see Joan Shuff on Tuesday and Thursdays from 7:30 to 9:00. Every one is to pay a fee of 10c at our weekly parties to raise enough money for a big Halloween party.

We have a group of officers and we have named ourselves "The Town Nuisance" because that is probably what the people will wind up calling us. (Refering to this summer playing games) but, I guess they were young once (sometimes it makes me wonder).

Yours truly

The Town Nuisance Club

Town Farm

By EVERETT MITCHELL

Farm Commentator, heard Monday through Saturday, 6:15-6:45 a. m. on WMAQ, Chicago, 670 on your dial.

WANT more profitable hay and pasture acres next year? You can have them by doing something now, or during the next couple of months—before Old Man Winter settles down for a long stay.

Agronomists tell us that a top dressing of good fertilizer applied to the fields in the fall will pay extra dividends next summer in better pasture and higher hay yields. October and November are ideal months in which to lay down a dressing of phosphate or phosphate and potash, because the vegetation goes into the winter months with a stronger growth. As a result you'll have an improved crop next year.

On acres where legumes comprise less than half the herbage, a nitrogen fertilizer can be added to the soil. Recommended application is about 40 to 60 pounds per acre, depending upon the nitrogen content of the fertilizer used. You'll have pasture available for the herd ten days to two weeks earlier next spring.

According to tests conducted by the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Stations, application of fertilizer on good meadow sods can be expected to increase hay yields by a ton to a ton and a half per acre.

There is some advantage to disking phosphate or phosphate and potash into the soil, but nitrogen will be just as effective as a surface dressing. If you don't have the equipment for drilling in, don't worry about it because the results will be well worth while anyhow. If yours is a livestock or dairy farm, a much heavier application of fertilizer is necessary.

Seven-Day Religion

Lesson for October 9, 1949

EMPLOYERS don't care much for letters of recommendation signed by preachers. Not that they think preachers are dishonest. The employer is glad to know where the chap is on Sunday mornings. But he would rather have a letter from somebody who sees him every Saturday night and Monday morning.

Religion Won't Keep Sweet by Itself

IT IS a temptation as old as religion, to put it on one side of a wall and life on the other. But the prophets showed, once and for all, that God has literally no use for religion which has been dissected oft from life. Religion which is kept apart from life turns sour and bad. In Isaiah's time, everybody knew there was something wrong with the country.

Dr. Foreman

Isaiah's diagnosis was shocking: Religion is our principal trouble. God is tired of it. What? The pious people would exclaim. Look at the crowds in the Temple every holy day! Listen to all the prayers, count the number of tithers. If anything is wrong with our country, it can't be religion! But religion it was.

Why God Was Tired

A CATHOLIC priest would shock everybody should he call Vatican City "Hell's Half Acre." Isaiah shocked his fellow citizens by calling Jerusalem "Sodom and Gomorrah." Those cities were the worst places the Hebrews had ever heard of.

They were so bad the Lord had to destroy them by fire—not 10 good people could be found there. The prophet follows up that first shock by another. Every single expression of organized religion comes under the prophet's lash.

Sacrifices and offerings (v.11), attendance at the sanctuary, observance of the Sabbath and other holy days (v. 13), church gatherings, corresponding to our rallies and conventions (v. 13), even prayers (v. 15).

Put that into modern terms: attendance at church, Bible reading, tithing, praying—if that is all, then all is no good. It may be religion, and of course it is one kind of religion; but not the kind God wants.

Indeed, Isaiah says God hates it; he is "fed up" with it (vs. 11). What was wrong? Isaiah tells them that, too, in short simple words. "Your hands are full of blood."

Oh, the people would protest, we are not killers, we don't lay a hand on anybody. Isaiah goes on to explain: seek judgment (i.e. justice), relieve the oppressed, judge the fatherless, plead for the widow.

You don't kill outright, you churchgoers, he would say, but you are so indifferent to justice in your city, you take so little interest in the people at the bottom of the heap, that people die here, widows and orphans die, simply because no one cares.

What Makes a Town Worth Saving?

ALAS, nobody did care. One hundred and more years went by, and Jerusalem came close to its end. But nobody thought that disaster could strike. The belief had grown in every one's mind that the Temple of the Lord would forever insure the safety of the city in which it stood.

But a young prophet, Jeremiah, preached a sermon on the same theme as Isaiah's (Jer. 7): It is not the temple that will save you, it is not church attendance that will bring you the favor of God.

As the men of Jerusalem looked back to the great days of Moses, they thought of the sacrifices and offerings, the tabernacle and the rituals and all the pageantry and paraphernalia of a picturesque religion, as the great thing that God had given them.

But God remembered it otherwise. Jeremiah even says (with understandable exaggeration) that God had not said a word about sacrifices and offerings; the Ten Commandments, with all they implied, were the main thing.

What God looks for, back of all our church attendance and Bible reading, is "justice between a man and his neighbor." A place where that can be found is a good place.

Washington Outlook

by HARRY LANDO

On or about October 10 the administration will begin slashing tariffs right and left. About 250 commodities will be affected by the first announcement and many more tariff cuts will follow at intervals thereafter.

President Truman got what he wanted from Congress in the way of reciprocal trade legislation, and his administration now intends to put the free trade theory into prompt practice. Some U. S. industries are worried but farmers, for the most part, can't lose.

Theory is that encouragement for imports will get dollars into the hands of other nations, thus making it possible for them to buy more products of U. S. farms and factories.

Many U. S. manufacturers, faced with the loss of some of their tariff protection, fear that they will be unable to meet low-wage foreign competition. Farmers, as a whole, will not feel foreign competition. Fruit farmers may be hurt by lowering of tariffs on jellies, jams and candied fruits. Seed tariffs and duties on some dairy products will probably get cuts.

• • • • •

Department of Agriculture economists are worried about the coal strike.

The decline in over-all industrial activity which began early this year, was halted in August. There were many signs of increased prosperity and better markets and a halt perity and better markets and a halt to the slipping of prices for all kinds of farm products.

A long drawn out strike in coal would reverse this picture. Lack of coal could stop most U. S. industry, and coal stocks are evaporating, which would drastically cut consumers' income and cause trouble for the U. S. farmer.

• • • • •

In a move to do something about the apple and pear situation the Department of Agriculture has mapped two lines of attack.

USDA will soon begin to subsidize exports of apples and pears according to officials. The Department will pay subsidies to commercial exporters to encourage them to find more foreign markets and to permit them to sell apples and pears abroad at reduced prices.

The other method will be purchases for the national school lunch program. Purchases will be made in all important producing areas.

• • • • •

The House Agriculture Committee held a closed-door session on its future program. No official announcement was made, but the Committee is about finished with its work until next session. Its main duties will be negotiating compromises with the Senate on farm bills which passed the two Houses in different forms.

The Senate, meanwhile, on Monday finally began debate on the Anderson "compromise" price support measure. It appeared that strenuous efforts would be made to amend it, but by the end of this wek the Anderson bill was expected to have been passed in one form or another.

Following passage by the Senate, the flexible 75-90 percent Anderson bill would have to go to conference with the house, few members of which care for flexible supports. The House has already passed a bill extending 90 percent for another year.

But about the most the House can expect to do is to amend the Anderson bill in conference. The Senate is set on ending 90 percent supports.

• • • • •

The Bureau of Agricultural Economics analyzing 12,141 fatal farm-work accidents, finds that 47 percent was caused by machinery, 19 percent by livestock and only 34 percent by other means.

• • • • •

Secretary of Agriculture, Charles F. Brannan, undaunted by the Sioux City GOP blasting and not discouraged by his defeats in both Houses of Congress, continues to push the Brannan plan.

Brannan made two speeches in favor of his production payment idea last week, one in Chicago and one in Atlantic City, N. J.

• • • • •

The Commodity Credit Corporation, price support agency, has lost only about $600 million. But it has $2,350 million tied up in loans,purchases agreements, etc. This is almost half the legal limit of $4,750 million.

Rep. Jesse Wolcott (R.,)Mich. fears that CCC might run out of money and thus be unable to continue price supports. He wants to add another billion to the CCC authorization. He also wants to investigate CCC.

There is little chance that he will get either wish, at least not during the present session. CCC thinks it has enough money for operations during this year.

MY STATE FAIR TRIP

Jean Shumaker and myself were awarded an eleven day trip to the State Fair School at Indianapolis, on our 4-H record of achievement.

We left Auburn with our DeKalb County Demonstration Agent, Miss Moore, August 30th at 12 o'clock and arrived at the fair school at 3 o'clock.

Each day we had classes in the following: foods, dining room, dormitory, recreation, handicraft, and baking. These clases were very educational. We had the experience of learning to prepare food and serving over 300 persons at a meal.

We also had demonstrations, style shows and dress review in the coliseum.

We had a "get aquainted party" with the boys camp.

We toured Indianapolis and had a picnic dinner prepared by Kroger Stores. Sears and Roebuck Co. presented all the girls 'ball point pens". Then we saw the "Spike Jones" show.

We had a costume party and picnic with the boys camp.

On Sunday we attended church service in a group at the Coliseum. Whenever we went out on the grounds, the girls were always dressed in white dresses.

Other points of interest and interesting events were, blind date night, the grand stand show, horse show, cattle judging, tea party and then the achievement program, and the farewell party.

Alice Lower had the honor of being an honor girl from our county this year. There are only twelve honor girls each year.

I enjoyed the priviledge of being awarded this trip. To me it was good training for the future and also educational. We met many new friends from all over our state. This trip is very worth while, and I hope many from DeKalb County will be able to attend this school in the future.

HERE 'N THERE IN SPORTS

By LEWIS H. WALTER

FOR THE SECOND straight week, Indiana University's Hoosiers, took a second half nose dive, as Ohio State handed them a 47 to 7 defeat, an almost carbon copy of their 49-6 defeat from Notre Dame two weeks ago.

Again last week it was the same story, a fairly even first half, they held the Buckeyes to just 2 touchdowns in the first half, and then a complete collapse of defences in the second half.

This Saturday the home folks will get their first look at the Hoosiers. The famed and colorful Horned Frogs of T.C.U., with All-American prospect, Lindy Barry, come north for the game at Bloomington.

WITH THE local bowlers all seems to be well as the Legionaires got off to a fast start several weeks ago in league competition. This year the boys are bowling in two leagues, the Inter-City League at Hicksville and also in the Major League at Butler.

The Hicksville league operates on Wednesday and Friday nights with each team bowling one night a week, and the Butler league does their rolling on Thursday evening.

Bob (kangaroo hop) Ridgway, after a year lay-off from the game, is the only new member on the team from last year and along with Lavon Brunson and Harold Baker, do double duty, rolling in both leagues. The rest of the boys who make up a five man team for each league are: Harold Yeiser, Dick Freeburn, Garford Smith, Walter Stewart and Maurice Woodring.

So far the local keglers have turned in some real good performances. At Hicksville their record is 4 wins and 2 losses, while at Butlerit is 6 and 3. Last week th boys took Eysters Drug. Store of Butler 3 games in the Major League and then racked 2 wins out of three games from the Ford Sixes of Hicksville in the Inter-City League.

AUBURN AND GARRETT football games took about the same twist as they have since the opening of the sason. Zeke Young who seems to turn out a better team every year than he had the year before had his boys at peak form again last Friday evening. Their trip to Hartford City didn't seem to do the boys any harm and they racked the Airedales, a supposedly tough outfit this year, by a 25 to 0 score.

Garrett took in on the chin for the third successive game, by losing to New Haven 18 to 0 at Garrett.

The Concordia Cadets of Fort Wayne weren't impressed by the Auburn Red Devils and their string of victories and stubbornly held the Auburn eleven to a 13 to 13 tie in the rain and mud at Carr Field Tuesday evening. Auburn was tossing desperation passes on their opponents 30 yard line when time ran out. In a steady downpour through much of the frist half, fans could set that both teams were a match for each other. Both teams scored touchdowns on running plays and both missed the extra point try, with the Cadets plunging attempt for their extra marker falling short. Auburn scored early in the 3rd quarter on a pass play covering about 55 yards. Beers passed to Hathaway on the Cadets 25 and when he was bottled up at that point he lateraled off to Kelly who scampered down the sidlines for the remainder of the distance for pay dirt. Concordia tied the score on a 60 yard sustained march in the last quarter and extra point attempts by both teams were good. Concordia again rushed for their extra point and fumbled, but the officials ruled they had entered the end zone before the bobble.

Garrett will be at home for the 3rd straight game Fri., and their opponents will be no small headache for the Railroaders. The Columbia City eleven, fresh from a 53 to 6 landslide job over Buffton last Friday will probably still have Garret looking for that first win. Auburn does not play Friday evening.

Calling all outdoorsmen

By JIM MITCHELL

This is "kick-off" week for the nation's waterfowl hunters. Or, at least, sportsmen living in some of the northern border states and others who can afford a trek northward will start banging away at the mallards, pintails and other popular species of ducks.

And before the waterfowl reach the comparative safety of the Gulf Coast for a winter of relaxation, there will be a near constant barrage of shotguns for three months as the birds move ahead of the wintery blasts. With October 7 the earliest opening date under the 1949-1950 migratory regulations, gunning is legal as late as Jonuary 7 in some southern areas.

There is every indication of a fine season. Last winter's inventory showed a 12 per cent overall waterfowl increase. Reports from the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Ducks Unlimited and other agencies throughout the summer showed favorable nesting in many spots.

And it is smart to compare any duck hunting season with only the previous year; for when you start thinking back to yesteryear's shooting, the picture todayis a far cry from the past.

Waterfowl gunning, however, even today with reduced bags and shorter shooting season is a sport that ranks second to none. To sit in a blind and watch the birds circling a set of decoys or winging overhead is a thrill that's hard to duplicate in any other sport.

It's my hope that the thousands of hunters who take to the lakes and marshes get as big a thrill as I do every season- - and this thrill doesn't always come with killing ducks for just watching them is almost as rewarding.

FOR IMMEDIATE DELIVERY

YOU'VE heard a lot about new power plants now being built and how they'll make more electricity for you tomorrow.

It's all true. We are expanding facilities at a rapid rate. But there's a certain undercurrent of rumor—natural enough, but sheer rumor just the same. It concerns the reason for this new construction: If new plants are being rushed, some seem to figure, it must be to outstrip some "power shortage" that exists or threatens today. That part just isn't so.

This company is anticipating your future needs. But it also has all the power you need right now . . . today.

Fact is, we have men out constantly, calling on industries and homes and farms in person, selling them power "for immediate delivery."

Through printed advertising like this, we're telling our present customers that we have power for sale . . . more power than they're now using . . . extra power they could use to their own advantage.

We advertise nationally, too. Industrialists outside our service area are repeatedly told about the benefits of locating here. Through magazine ads and direct mail, we stress the natural and human resources of our territory, its proximity to materials and markets . . . and the abundance of low-cost, dependable electric power.

Power shortage? Not in any of the communities we serve! Greater demand, yes. The demand's been greater every year since the war. But every year we've met the demand in full. We've got power for sale aplenty.

Shortage May Reach $350,000; Deposits Transferred To Auburn

Examiners Say That Nearly All Of 903 Accounts Were Tampered With; Auburn Bank Assumes Deposits

Officials of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. reported Monday that the four examiners who have worked steadily on the books since Sept. 24 are still uncovering shortages at Spencerville bank. Nearly every one of the 903 checking and saving acoounts have been tampered with in a shortage that may reach $350,000, or over half of the bank's total deposits of $674.355.34.

The Auburn State Bank took over the deposits of the Farmers & Mechants State Bank at Spencerville during the week end. The transfer was made after the close of business at the Spencerville Bank at noon Saturday. The final legal details in connection with the transfer were completed Friday.

Stockholders of the Spencerville Bank met Friday and approved the transfer of the checking and savings accounts and also authorized the sale of the remaining assets of the bank to the Federal Deposit Ins. Corp. The directors of the Auburn State Bank met Friday afternoon and adopted a resolution whereby the institution agrees to handle the accounts. The FDIC will supply enough money to bring the total amount to be transferred equal to the deposit liability.

Officials at the Spencerville bank reported on Monday that patrons of the bank who have checking accounts may continue to write their checks on the Farmers and Mercants check forms. Officials at the Auburn banking firm stated, however, they are hoping that all Spencerville depositors will call at their earlies convenience to obtain the new forms.

Through action of the FDIC all deposits in the Spencerville bank, whether under or over $5,000, were protected and not a single depositor will lose a cent as a result of the big shortage in accounts. The only loss will be to the stockholders who will lose their investment.

Mr. Rectenwall was bonded in the sum of $35,000 with the American Surety Co., and the FDIC will file a claim for the entire amount of the bond.

CULTURE CLUB

The St. Joe Culture Club held their first meeting for the year 1949-1950, Wednesday evening Oct. 5 at the home of Mrs. Paul Drerup, the new president.

The meeting was opened by the reading of the collect.

Mrs. Lester Anthony, who had charge of the devotions for the evening, led the group in singing the club song and reading a poem entitled, "If".

Mrs. Virgil Laux gave the lessons of the evening. She read and explained the club constitution. This was primarily given for the benefit of the new members.

Court Orders Sale Of Widney Orchard Farm For Partitioning

The DeKalb circuit court has appointed W. H. Husselman and Hugh G. Sanders, Auburn attorneys as commissioners to effect the partition of the 200-acre Widney Orchard farm, formerly owned vy the late Hugh M. Widney.

The partitions is the result of a suit for partition of real estate filed by Arthur Flynn of Chicago against Blanchard V. Widney of Ft. Wayne, son of the late Mr. Widney, and H. M. Stone. second husband of the late Hattie Widney Stone. She died Dec. 2, 1948.

Flynn contended in his suit that he was the owner of an undivided one-half of the 200-acre orchard. The executor of Mrs. Stone's will, her son, Blanchard, and her husband contended that Flynn's interest in the real estate amounted to only a mortage interest of $8,000.

Flynn and the late Lee Smith of Portsmouth, O., were brother-in-laws of Mrs. Stone. At the time of Mr. Widney's death 22 years ago, it was alleged, they purchased for $20-000 the orchard from the administrator of the Widney estate. Mrs. Stone. then Mrs. Widney, advanced $4,650 towards the purchase. After the death of Mr. Smith, his widow deeded to Mrs. Stone her husband's one half share.

Blanchard Widney fell heir to his mother's share of the real estate less her husband's one-third life estate interest.

The local court, in its decision found for Mr. Flynn in his suit for partition. The commissioners were ordered to file bond of $25,000 and to sell the real estate.

Flynn's share of the distribution, according to the court finding, is to be his one-half share of the real estate, plus $400 rental for the orchard since last Decmber and less $2,325 as his one-half of the $4,650 advanced by Mrs. Stone at the time the real estate was purchased from the administrator of the Hugh Widney estate.

The $2,325 from Flynn's share and a like sum from Blanchard V. Widney and Mr. Stone's share will be distributed to the latter two. Of the $4,650, Mr. Widney will receive a two thirds share plus the difference between Mr. Stone's one-third and his one-third life estate interest which will be figured on his life expectancy. He is 67. The remainder one-half interest will be divided between the son and Mrs. Stone's second husband on the same basis as the distribution of the $4,650.

Ends 41 Year Span Of Association With News

With the reporting of several items of local news this week, Mrs. Lora E. Leighty brought to a close a period of 41 years of work with the St. Joe News.

Wednesday of this week Lora moved her permanent residence to 306 W. 7th Street in Auburn.

Mrs. Leighty began her association with the News in 1908, shortly after her marriage to the late Fred B. Leighty. She remained as Associate Editor until late in 1945. She continued to work in the office part time for nearly a year while the News was published by E. O. Steininger. For the last several years Lora has directed her activities toward the paper by reporting local interest news, which she handled very capably, we might add.

The whole community, we are sure, is extremely sorry to see her leave, and certainly all of her many friends join with us in wishing her an abundance of happiness in her new surroundings. Lora, her mother and sister-in-law, Margaret, extend a standing invitation to call on them whenever in Auburn.

'FLAMEPROOF YOUR FUTURE'

What Causes Destructive Fires

Here are Some of the Answers

Matches and smoking caused 28.88% of all fires reported to the National Board of Fire Underwriters in the ten-year period ending December 31, 1947. That means that nearly three out of ten fires were caused by smokers and the reckless use and careless disposal of burning or smoldering matches.

The following table lists the other known causes as well and was compiled from a study of several million fires for which the causes could be ascertained. Fires reported for which the causes are unknown are not included in this study.

Letters to the Editor

(This column is offered to give the reader a chance to have his say. Any and all contributions are welcome-poetry, prose or what have you. All letters should have a signature to insure publication.)

To the Editor:

A few weeks ago there was a series of articles appeared in this paper as to what various pepole thought would or would not be good for our community. Personally, I was glad to see these articles appear for they proved that there is real life in the old St. Joe community and that this spirit proprely directed toward a community project, that all citizens can agree upon, can and with a little effort toward organization will work wonders. So now lets get going and hear from various persons on what is needed most in St. Joe.

Personally I believe that every person who wrote on the tavern question was sincere and in his or her belief and we should all thank God that we live in a nation where free speech is not a crime. We only recently won a war by having all our people (wets and drys, insiders and outsiders) join in a common battle to maintain our right to disagree with each other.

I meant to end this before writing the last paragraph but, like the preacher who didn't use notes, I didn't know when I was through.

Pete Walters

Dear Editor:

Refering to outsiders, we as a club thought it would be best being we do not have rooom for all of these people together. We are holding off our out of town membership until we can find a building large enough for the group together, so you see why there are no outsiders as yet. We are hoping to organize soon, as to getting our building.

God and Nations

Lesson for October 16, 1949

WHEN the Spanish fleet was about to invade England, back in Queen Elizabeth's time, nothing the English had could stop them. But when the Armada arrived, that vast fleet had been blown to bits by a storm, and the English neatly mopped up what was left. How do you account for that? The English always said God was with them. When the Nazis had overrun France in 1940, it would have been simple for them to invade England. There was next to nothing to stop them. But Hitler delayed from summer till fall . . . and by that time the British were able to mount an invincible defence. How do you account for that? Over and over again in history the unexpected, the unexpectable, the "miraculous," has happened. Some call it chance; but others call it God.

Dr. Foreman

God In History

BUT GOD does not always or usually operate in spectacular ways. God works in history as he works in nature, out of sight, visible to the eye of faith but seldom if ever otherwise. History, from the Christian point of view, is the working-out of the purposes of God.

The pattern is not entirely clear to us, because we cannot see enough of it at once. But looking back through history, we can see signs that God has been there. This is the message of the prophets of Israel, especially of the great Isaiah.

In a troubled era, when everything seemed to be in most complete confusion, Isaiah gave out some clear and plain truths from God, and helped men then and now read the pattern of God's design.

The Life Of A Nation

ONE TRUTH is that justice is a nation's life and sin is a nation's death. God being the God of justice, his purpose is to set justice in the earth. God plays no favorites among nations. Any nation that lives by God's laws, lives; that nation that defies God has signed its own death warrant. There are no peoples who can "get by" with what they please, if what they please is not the will of God. There are people now who do not believe that. They would say, Look at Russia! In Isaiah's time there were those who would say to Isaiah: You must be wrong—look at Assyria! There is a nation that does not know God, and yet grows every year stronger and stronger.

God's Ax

ISAIAH has a startling answer to that objection. (Chap. 10.) Assyria is a tool in God's hand, no more. He admits that Assyria has no standard but force, she worships only sheer Power. But there are other nations, wicked ones, which God intends to punish; one of these is the nation of Israel.

Assyria was destined to destroy Israel once and for all, and to damage Judah so severely she never would recover. All this, Isaiah says, is in God's plan.

God does not punish an evil nation with legions of angels; he punishes it with invasions and defeats in war. Assyria was an ax in the hand of God, cutting down the rotting trees of selfish and unjust nations.

Return To God!

PEOPLE in Isaiah's time were putting their trust, just as we do nowadays, in alliances, pacts, international combinations of all kinds. Isaiah warns ominously that this will not do, by itself. Not that all alliances are bad; in chapter 19 he actually pictures Assyria, Egypt and Israel as brothers-in-arms.

But he does not hold out any political scheme or combination as the best hope of a nation. Return to God! is the prophet's call. So in our time, whether it be a general MacArthur or a theologian Brunner.

Many of our ablest men are warning us even now, that humanity is facing an alternative; Either go on the way of selfishness and war down to destruction, or else go back to the Source of justice, truth and love, the God in whom alone is salvation.

Washington Outlook

by HARRY LANDO

The Senate early this week passed the Anderson Compromise price support bill in about the expected form, but not before both political parties suffered internal upheavals.

The Democrats suffered much more. Senate Majority Leader Scott W. Lucas (D., Ill.) snarled at vice-president Barkley at the tie breaking vote Barkley cast in favor of 90 percent controls. Lucas also accused his colleagues of talking economy while voting expensive supports.

Sen. Clinton P. Anderson (D. N. M.) brought the long hidden break between himself and his successor as Secretary of Agriculture to the surface with a comment that Brannan would like to see the Anderson bill defeated so that the Brannan plan could be passed. Anderson also read the Democratic Patry platform in favor of flexible supports in chiding rebellious Senate Democrats.

G.O.P. troubles were minor and lacked the bitterness of the Democratic split. But Sen. George D. Aiken (R., Vt.) saw his hold as Senate Republican farm leader seriously challenged. A new leader promising high-level price supports in the person of Sen. Milton Young (R., N.D.) rose in contest, and Young almost won as did the insurgent Democrats.

Young and Sen. Russell (D., Ga.) had victory in their grasp and 90 percent on basics written into the Senate bill when a parliamentary manuever sent the Anderson bill back to Committee, where it was stripped of the 90 percent amendment and returned to the foor. This time discipline prevailed within the ranks of both parties and the scheduled 75-90 flexible supports carried, with a provision for 90 percent in the first year of control on basics.

There were a few minor changes. All wool, rather than only shorn wool was put under mandatory 60-90 percent supports. Mohair was dropped from the mandatory list. Basics remain at 75-90 except for their first year under controls when they must be supported at 90. Dairy products get 75-90 mandatory. Honey and tung nuts remained in at 60-90 mandatory despite the opposition of Anderson to honey.

Growing tremendously in stature, though, was Sen. Young. He believes that farmers want and are entitled to 100 percent supports. He may be wrong but he was able almost to carry the day. If it turns out that he is right about what farmers want, next year will probably see a new Senate Republican farm leader. And his name will be Milt Young.

. . . . .

In the midst of the uproar over price supports, the Senate finally passed the rural telephone bill, but it had daded many restrictions not contained in the House-passed measure and a conference will be necessary.

The Department of Agriculure, meanwhile, was releasing figures which showed that more than three-quarters of all U. S. farms now have electricity. Actual percentage was estimated at 78.2, the largest jump for any year since rural electrification programs began. In 1948, only 68.6 of all farms were estimated to be electrified.

Proponents of the more liberal House telephone bill claim that farmers will get phones just as fast if their bill is passed.

. . . . .

The Senate has generally been more careful to protect people who sell goods and services to farmers than they have been to benefit the farmers, themselves.

They took every precaution to protect private phone companies in the rural telephone bill, though their amendments will greatly slow up putting phones on farms. In the bill expanding the activities of the U.S. Forest Service they cut a section aimed at helping farmers to get on-the-farm advice about making money from trees on land not suited for crops. This was to protect a small number of people who charge farmers for that particular help.

The House is resisting the Senate in conference on both measures.

The House also favors rigid 90 percent supports and theirs will be a stormy Senat House conference on price supports, with the Senate an almost certain winner. The House may get some concessions in the form of high-price support features added to the Anderson bill.

. . . . .

The Department of Agriculture, noting the largest increase in meat output since late 1947 with steady to rising price trends, has receded from its earlier predictions that meat animal prices would drop sharply this fall.

The Outlook and Situation Board now says, "Prices of grain-fed cattle may not decline until later in the year, and then only moderately. Not much change is expected in prices of lower grade of cattle. Prices of lambs are likely to go little if any lower this year . . . the seasonal decline in hog prices this fall may be only moderately greater than the average drop of 18 percent. . "

One of Brannan's arguments for a trial run on hogs of his producports was the imminence of a huge tion payment method of price supdrop in pork prices, with the consequent necessity under present law to buy up and store huge amounts of pork.

The Outlook and Situation Board further predicts that farmers will get less money for their milk next year than this year. 1949 receipts, estimated at 3 and three-quarter billion dollars will be down sharply from last year's almost 4 and one-half billion dolars. And 1950 is expected o see another drop.

. . . . .

USDA has announced monthly hog price support levels as follows: Oct. $16.40 cwt.; Nov., $15.00; Dec., $14.-20; Jan. $14.90; Feb., $15.50; and March $16.20. The support levels are based on 90 percent of the Sept. 15, 1949 parity price of hogs of $17.-60, and are adjusted to reflect in each monthly support price the usual seasonal variations.

Corn price support rates were also announced. They ranged by counties from $1.29 to $1.69 a bushel and averaged $1.40 nationally. Rates for the 1948 crop averaged $1.44 nationally. The 1949 loan and purchase rates are based upon 90 percent of the parity price of corn as of Oct. 7, 1949. Parity for that date was $1.55 a bushel as a national average.

Calling all outdoorsmen

By JIM MITCHELL

It's not too often that I single out a certain event and write a column about it. for mostly, you readers are interested in local outdoor news. But this time I'd like to make an exception and report on the International Duck Calling Contest scheduled at Crowley, La., October 26-27.

We are all accustomed to seeing or reading about 80,000 or 100,000 people attending a football game. The annual automobile races at Indianapolis frequently draw in excess of 100,000 spectators, and some of the top horse races often draw huge throngs. But seldom do outdoor events reach such proportions attracting a gallery.

That's what makes Crowley's duck-calling contest come under the heading of "news" in the sports field, for last year upwards of 100,000 witnessed the calling contest and witnessed the calling contest and there's every indication that this year upwards of 100,000 witnessed the calling contest and there's every indication that this yead's show will pull even more people.

It certainly is a healthy sign to see any outdoor event pull a large spectator crowd. I'll grant that most outdoor sports like fishing, hunting and camping are far better participant events than for spectators Probably, too, the callers in the annual duck contest will get a bigger kick out of the whole thing than the crowd out front. But, anyway, to have any outdoor competition pull so heavily is good; I hope there's more of the same in other parts of the country.

If you think you're pretty good with a duck call and have had success in luring the birds into gun range with your "chatter", you'd better hang the old call around your neck, pack a bag and head for Crowley. There's a $1,000 riding on the winner. Of course, the best duck callers from North America will be there, too, but in such competition you never know who'll come out on top.

HERE 'N THERE IN SPORTS

By LEWIS H. WALTER

28 HOPEFULS for the St. Joe Tigers first and second basketball teams put a week of calisthenics and loosening up drills behind them and this week are getting down to the more serious business of sharpening up their shooting eyes, building up their endurance and working on various other phases of the game that make for a winning team. The opening game of the season at Waterloo is less than 3 weeks away.

New metal type, fan backboards, complete with the orange colored rims and supports have been purchased by the school and are being installed this week. The orange colored rims and supports are a regulation must this year but the new fan type backboards were added by the school as an improvement, as nearly all other floors where the boys will be playing. are equipped with that style of boards.

18 games have been scheduled for this season, 11 of them are on the road and 7 will be played at the gym here.

On Wednesday evening, November 2, both the first and second team will go though complete inter team games as a tune up for their opener at Waterloo the following Friday. All fans are invited to come down to the gym and get this pre-look at this year's edition of the Tiger squad. No admission will be charged. Coach Tatlock is hoping this workout may help them to overcome the jitters when they open their season at a hostile Waterloo gym.

GARRETT'S Railroaders eleven put on an improved look last week, but lost to the Columbia City Eagles by a 19 to 13 score. If the Railroaders keep their new look for this Friday's tilt, they may chalk up their first win of the season over Bluffton, one of the weaker sisters in the NEIC. After Columbia City had taken over the show completely in the first half, Garrett struck back suddenly through the air in the second half to tie the score at 13 all. The Railroaders game tieing play came on a 30 yard sleeper pass play, from Dawson to Fagler, that caught the whole left side of the Columbia City line napping. Columbia City roared back near the end of the game for the winning touchdown. They pushed over from the one foot line, after a 48 yeard run had set up the touchdown.

Auburn and Garrett football teams both take to the road Friday night for conference games. Auburn will be at Columbia City and Garrett at Bluffton.

. . . . .

INDIANA'S not so fighting Hoosiers seemed to stiffen their second half defense against TCU Saturday. or else the visiting Texans didn't pack the offensive punch as the other teams that have played the Hoosiers this year. Well, anyway, they only lost by a perfectly legal, 13 to 6. score. This Saturday may bring pay dirt for Indiana, in a cross country trip to visit the Iowa Hawkeyes.

Rural America

A HARVEST QUEEN is a top requirement of every school of agriculture. Here shown is lovely freshman Ruth Hawley of Hart, Michigan who was chosen to be queen by agricultural students at Michigan State College, East Lansing.

CHAMPION PRODUCTION SOW. In five years Ringold Lady Dora, owned by Meadowlark Farms, Sullivan, Indiana, has raised 96 pigs to weaning age. She is the only eighth star production registry sow of any breed. This litter of 10 pigs, which qualified her for the 8th star, weighed 447 pounds at 56 days of age. She was fed a ration of corn, oats, pelletized milk products and alfalfa pasture prior to farrowing and during the suckling period.

THE BIG THRILL. A happy kid, Bill Mason, Niles, Michigan, shows off a five-pound, six-ounce, 23-inch large mouth bass pulled from Barron Lake, Mich.

ADOPTS SKUNK BABIES. You would think it might be hard to find a foster home for a litter of baby skunks, but this mother cat at Leland, Mich., has happily adopted the family, loves them like her own.

PAINT MAIL BOXES. These Future Farmers of America, Perry County, Ohio, have created interesting job for themselves, painting mail boxes on the Junction City rural route. Cost is six cents to each box holder.

YOUNG MAJORETTE in perfect form is Lynda Forman, only five years old.

MODERN FARMING

ARE PASTURES PROFIT . . .

Or a Hole in Your Pocket

LIKE the plaintive words of that old-time song favorite, "You Made Me What I Am Today" . . . pasture land, for the most part, can be pretty much what the farmer wants to make of it.

Acre for acre, your pasture can be the most productive, profitable piece of land on your entire farm . . . or it can be one big hole in your pocketbook — wasteland that can't even pay its share of your taxes!

On thousands of farms in the midwest farmers are beginning to take a greater interest in their pastures. They're seeing pasture demonstrations that show how easy it is to turn unproductive, worn-out, over-grazed permanent pastures into hard-working profit-earning acres.

A really productive pasture is profit-insurance for every livestock farm. One seeding job done right is good for years. There's no harvesting machinery to buy as the livestock harvest for you . . . and spread soil-building manure at the same time. The pasture crop you grow goes from "land to mouth" with no storage problems in between . . . and no weather worries during curing.

Every way you look at it, good pasture pays. The pictures shown here give some of the steps in building a good pasture for bigger profits on your farm!

These cows look as poor as their pasture, and it's no wonder. The pasture has been over-grazed, undernourished and uncared-for many a year. It provides a little grazing in spring and fall, but cows can find little nourishment, if any, for meat or milk production during most of the summer. Even a pasture like this could be made highly productive and profitable!

Like the other crops you grow, your pasture needs lime and commercial fertilizer, too. This new fertilizer spreader is top-dressing pasture in Lake County, Ill., and re-seeding with a pasture mixture at the same time. The same implement can also spread lime and tow a wagon behind to speed refilling and cut spreading costs.

Sod-bound pastures may need to be "ripped up" some with a springtooth harrow before re-seeding to get a good "catch". Pasture mixtures that include legumes, usually are more productive and help the growth of other plants in the mixture by capturing nitrogen from the air and releasing it in the soil.

Before applying commercial fertilizer to pasture land, it's a good idea to take some soil samples like this. Have the County Agent or your college run a test on the samples and tell you what fertilizers your soil needs. Guessing your fertilizer requirements is costly and may do the land and your pasture yields little good.

"Nip weeds in the bud" by clipping them just before they seed, or by spraying with chemical weed killers. Weeds in the pasture cut yield of the pasture crop, and some weeds which the cows will eat can give off-flavors to the milk.

From poverty grass and briars to a heavy-matted, permanent pasture of clover, alfalfa, bluegrass and ladino within two years! That's what W. L. Yockey did on his farm in Brown County, Ohio. He followed a good pasture improvement program as shown in other pictures on this page.

The pasture improvement "pay off" comes with a lush, belly-deep stand like this. Cows on this kind of pasture can milk well right through the hot, dry summer months, and keep milk checks from shrinking despite the heat. Good pastures also cut feed bills and speed growth of hogs, poultry, turkeys, sheep and beef cattle, too.

GROUND BEEF LAYER PIE — special for family or friends. Cut in wedges, serve with gravy. Perfect for Saturday Nite Supper.

Combine 1 lb. ground beef, ¼ tsp. salt, ⅛ tsp. pepper, 1 beaten egg, ¼ cup catsup and ½ tsp. Worcestershire sauce. Mix well. Make a bread stuffing of 2 cups coarse soft bread crumbs, 2 tblsp. minced onion, ½ cup minced celery, 2 tblsp. melted butter, ½ tsp. poultry seasoning, ½ tsp. salt and 2 tblsp. hot water. Press half of meat mixture into greased casserole dish. Cover with stuffing, then rest of meat mixture. Set casserole in a shallow pan of water and bake in a moderate oven 350° F. for 45 minutes. Cut in wedges — serve with gravy made from meat stock or bouillon cubes.

PIE, PUMPKIN, POCKET EDITION — come forth fashioned into chiffon tarts.

PUMPKIN CHIFFON TARTS

3 egg yolks	½ tsp. salt
½ cup sugar	½ tsp. cinnamon
1½ cups mashed pumpkin	½ tsp. nutmeg
½ cup milk	¼ tsp. ginger

Beat egg yolks with sugar until thick. Add remaining ingredients and cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Soften 1 tblsp. gelatin in ¼ cup cold water, and add to pumpkin mixture, stirring until dissolved. Cool. Beat 3 egg whites, add ½ cup sugar gradually. Fold into cooled pumpkin mixture. Pour into baked, cooled tart shells. Chill and top with sweetened whipped cream before serving.

Nite Supper

By SUSAN LOWE

SATURDAY night is always sort of special at our house. And although we don't go in for the customary Saturday night supper of Baked Beans and Boston Brown Bread like New Englanders do, we all look forward to something different that night.

If it's a family supper, I sometimes serve cornbread and little sausages . . . or eggs baked in cheese sauce . . . again it may be meat-loaf nests. These are as much fun to make, as to eat. For this, I shape my meat-loaf mixture to form nests, baking in greased custard cups or muffin pans. When baked, I serve the nests filled with creamed peas or other creamed vegetable. It always goes over big.

At this season of the year, apples are in demand and so if it's a company meal, I often serve Ham Rolls Glace, grating raw tart apple to combine with crumbs and seasoning to form a filling for my ham rolls. A chef's magic touch is achieved with the glaze made with corn syrup, vinegar, spices and grated orange rind.

Pie is always a favorite for dessert, but did you ever try a meat pie made in layers for the main course? It's made with ground beef and bread stuffing and you use a layer of ground beef mixture and a layer of stuffing, and then more ground beef again. Bake it, cut in wedges and serve with gravy.

Speaking of pies, one thing is certain, pumpkin pie still places first with the menfolk. How about giving it a new slant by serving it as a chiffon pie with a walnut crust? Or making it into Pumpkin Chiffon tarts by baking in individual pie tins?

For the most part, these are simple little tricks and touches given to old favorites but that's all it takes to make Saturday Nite Supper something special!

HAM ROLLS GLACE

1 cup grated raw tart apple	½ tsp. ginger
½ cup dry bread crumbs	1 tsp. sugar
¼ tsp. salt	2 tblsp. melted butter
⅛ tsp. pepper	6 slices boiled ham, ⅛-inch thick.
1 tsp. dry mustard

Combine apple with crumbs, seasonings and melted butter. Mix thoroughly. Spread each ham slice with a spoonful of apple mixture and roll as for jelly roll. Secure with tooth picks if necessary. Arrange in shallow baking dish. Pour glaze over ham rolls. Bake in hot oven (400°F.) 30 minutes, basting frequently. Insert whole cloves in whole canned apricots, and place around ham rolls about 5 minutes before removing from oven; baste with glaze. Makes 6 servings.

GLACE: Combine in saucepan, ¾ cup corn syrup, 3 tblsp. water, ¼ cup vinegar, 6 whole cloves and 2-inch piece stick cinnamon. Simmer 5 minutes. Add 1 tsp. grated orange rind.

A CRUST MADE OF WALNUTS gives gala appearance to any chiffon or cream-filling pie. Press ¾ cup finely chopped walnuts mixed with 2 tblsp. sugar into bottom and sides of buttered pie-pan. Do not bake.

Stricken Suddenly While Doing Farm Chores

Brooks Trenary Was Victim of Fatal Heart Attack In Barn, Saturday

C. Brooks Trenary, 50, prominent Concord Twp. farmer and vice-chairman of the county AAA, suffered a sudden and fatal heart attack in the barn near his farm home 2½ miles north of St. Joe, early Saturday morning.

Mr. Trenary was found dead about 7:30 a. m. by his daughter, Opal, who had gone to the barn to help with the chores. Mr. Trenary had gone to the barn to do the milking about 30 minutes before.

He had suffered from a heart ailment for several years, and had suffered several lighter attacks previously, but continued work on his farm with his son and carried on duties with the Triple-A.

Friday evening Mr. Trenary and part of his family attended a chili supper at the St. Joe High School. Earlier in the evening he had taken two of his daughters, Ruth and Alice, to Waterloo, where they boarded a train for Elkhart, Ind., to visit their oldest sister, Mrs. Chester Matherly. He appeared to be in his usual good health when he started his chores Saturday morning.

He was born at Ossian, Indiana, on Dec. 7, 1898, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Trenary.

The family later moved to this county where they resided on a farm near Auburn for several years. The family then moved on to a farm near Quincy, Mich. In 1922 Mr. Trenary returned to DeKalb County and married the former Mary Witt on April 15.

The couple resided on several farms south of Butler and near the Mt. Pleasant community before making their permanent residence near the northern edge of the township line, on road 1, 2½ miles north of St. Joe, in 1939.

Surviving besides the wife, are one son, Forest, who resides about ½ mile north of his parents' home, seven daugthers, Mrs. Chester Matherly of Elkhart, Mrs. Loren Cook of St. Joe and Audrey, Opal, Ruth, Alice and Mary Lou at home; two grandchildren; a brother, Preston Trenary of near Quincy, Mich., and three sisters, Mrs. Marvel Peski of Albion, Mich., Mrs. Emma Tracey of Three Rivers and Mrs. Mary Denning of near Lansing, Mich. Three sons preceded him in death.

Mr. Trenary was a member of the Mt. Pleasant E. U. B. Church, and also a member of the Lions Club and Knights of Pythias of St. Joe. He was also a member of the Farm Bureau and a director of the co-op organization. He was very active in his work with various organizations and recently addressed over 700 paid up members of the FHA at a recognition day meeting at Purdue University. For the past six years he served as an officer on the AAA board.

Final rites were held at the Mt. Pleasant Church on Monday afternoon. Rev. A. E. Swenson, pastor of the church officiated at the services. Burial was made at Woodlawn cemetery.

Trust God

Lesson for October 23, 1949

SHOOTING WARS and cold wars were going on. A great whirlpool of international intrigue was roaring around and around, and Judah was in the midst of everything. The star of the once-great-empire of Egypt was setting, and the star of the new and powerful nation of Assyria was rising. Judah was only one of 20 or more little countries between those giants. Some of the little nations were trying to take advantage of the disturbed situation by getting up little empires of their own. All of them were scheming and scrambling for a place in the sun. Some were betting on Assyria, some on Egypt; no one knew just what to expect, but every one was afraid.

Dr. Foreman

Cowardly King, Bold Prophet

INTO ISAIAH'S little country of Judah an invading army was marching, and the hearts of king and people trembled "like leaves in the wind." Little Judah was being invaded by a combination of two ambitious powers, Syria and Israel, either one larger and stronger than Judah. Isaiah had to go out and try to calm the mind of the King. It was of no use; it was clear that King Ahaz did not believe the prophet. But Isaiah was right nevertheless.

The foreign army that looked so big would not win the war. The alliance that looked so frightening did not last. It could not last, because God was against it. Military men and others too find such things hard to believe.

Is not God "on the side of the largest battalions"? Is not "Git thar fustest with the mostest men" the one and only recipe for victory? Nevertheless, the prophet was right. In fact, whenever a prophet raised a banner inscribed, Trust in God, it was not likely to be at a time when things were going smoothly in the world. That banner most often appeared in times of trouble, of darkness and dismay, of wars and invasions.

Leagues Don't Always Last

The situation had a different angle, later on. The Syria-Israel invasion collapsed, just as Isaiah said it would. But still the little nations jockeyed and maneuvered. It looked like a death-grapple between Assyria and Egypt and every nation wanted to be on the winning side. So it was a great time of treaty-makings, of pacts and agreements and alliances.

Isaiah changed the form of his message to suit the changing times, but the core of it was still the same. To King Ahaz he had said: Don't be afraid of hostile alliances; trust in God. To King Hezekiah and others he said, in effect: Don't put all your hope in alliances; trust in God. Egypt will fail you, any alliance you form will melt away in time.

But God will not melt away. You can depend on him. Now in our time the situation is strikingly like what it was in Isaiah's day. People today are tempted to put their trust in what is big and imposing. Big nations, big armaments, big armies, big alliances.

Men once put their trust in the League of Nations, and it died (of cowardice and dishonesty, among other things). Millions put their trust in the Axis, and for awhile it looked as if the Axis powers would overspread the earth. But the Axis vanished under the blows of the Allies.

Are All Alliances Bad?

THIS does not mean that no alliance is good, or that no treaty can be relied on, or that the United Nations (for instance) is bound to collapse. What Isaiah is driving at is this: God has a Purpose to work out in this world, and the name of it is Justice, Righteousness, Peace, Love.

Any nation or combination of nations, any pact or agreement or program, that goes against God's purpose is going against the grain of things and is bound to fail. Pure "power politics" always looks impressive; but the question is: What is the power going to be used for?

If it is really for the benefit of mankind, God will bless it; but if it is selfish and unjust and against the peace of the world, it will fail, because the God of Justice has set his face against it.

Washington Outlook

by HARRY LANDO

Strangely reminiscent of the last days of the 80th Congress, farm price support legislation was caught up in uncertainties at the end of last week.

The chances still favored passage of some form of the Anderson "compromise" bill, although last Sat. saw in quick succession agreement between House and Senate conferees and disagreement.

The house has passed a measure extending present 90 percent supports for another year. The Senate passed the Anderson bill which provides 90 percent on basics during their first year under controls, but otherwise 75 to 90 percent flexible supports.

Last Saturday Sen. Milton Young (R., N. D.) and Rep. Clifford Hope (R., Kans.) got behind a compromise which would give the basics (corn, wheat, cotton, tobacco, peanuts, rice) 90% during any year in which they were under controls. The effect of this would be to keep support levels at or near 90 percent always.

Agreement was reached on this compromise, but was withdrawn a few hours later without explanation. One of the conferees told me that the Farm Bureau had put pressure on Sens. Scott Lucas (D., Ill.) and Clinton P. Anderson (D., N. M.) to force abandonment of the compromise which runs agains the Farm Bureau stand: in favor of lower flexible supports.

A new agreement will likely have been reached by Wednesday of this week, when Congress is scheduled to adjourn.

• • • • • •

Republican Congressional farm leadership appears to be changing hands even while the split within Democratic ranks grows wider and more bitter.

Lucas and Anderson, administration Senate leaders, were blocking the Administration's high price support policies. Within Republican ranks Sen. George D. Aiken (R., Vt.) was being forced to relinquish his G.O.P farm leadership to a high price support coalition between Sen. Young and Rep. Hope.

• • • • • •

Everybody knows that the assets of farmers are much greater today than they were before the war. But now much of this is due merely to inflation? The Federal Reserve wanted to know, and so the Bureau of Agricultural Economics made a study for them.

It develops that if houses, land and farm machinery all were selling at 1940 prices, U. S. farmers would still be found to have 10 percent more assets today than they had in 1940. They have almost twice as many units of farm machinery working for them, but have slightly fewer head of livestock. They have more crops stored and much more household equipment. As to bank deposits, U. S. Savings Bonds, and investments cooperatives . . . . even if the dollar were shrunk back to its 1940 value, farmers would still be way ahead.

BAE told the Federal Reserve however, that this was strictly averages. Some farmers have not shared in this prosperity.

• • • • • •

Cotton farmers will be asked on December 15 to vote on a national acreage allotment of 21 million acres and a national marketing quota of 11,733,750 bales. This will be more than 3 million bales over estimated U. S. needs.

Which points out a neat Congressional contradiction. Congress passed the cotton control law for 1950 which requires so little control that a greater surplus is sure for next. Reason? They want their constituents to be happy with their alloted acreages.

Other basic crops will probably be handled in the same way by a Congress which is not always easy to understand.

The October 1 crop report, issued last week, showed little change in crop prospects from the report of a month earlier. Spring wheat and corn dropped slightly, but other crops improved. This will be the 2nd best crop year on record, and points up the fact that weather being equal we are going to keep on producing more and more food per acre.

More help for fruit farmers is on the way. This time the Department of Agriculture promises to subsidize export of apples and pears. USDA will pay up to 50 percent of the export price in order to enable dollar-shy nations to buy and in order to provide a market for U. S. surpluses.

Apples produced anywhere in the U. S. will be eligible under the program, but winter pears will be limted to Anjou Bosc, Comice, and Winter Nelice produced in Washington, Oregon and Cal.

Auburn's football team was forced into a very tough battle with the Columbia City Eagles last Friday evening at Columbia City. A huge crowd saw the Auburn club come out ahead in a 13 to 12 dogfight that Auburn won only by their ability to succesfully kick one of their two after touchdown placements.

Garrett's Railroaders eleven now seem heading for a possible non-win season this year, with only Hicksville and Auburn remaining on the schedule. The Railroaders folded rather badly in the last half of their game with Bluffton, Friday evening, after holding a 13-6 lead at the midway period. Bluffton put on a 4 touchdown spree in the last half half and won going away by a 32 to 13 score.

Auburn has one more game on the road, that one with Warsaw, this Friday evening. After that they will finish off their remaining two games in one week at home. Royerton will play at Auburn and on Friday the 28th the annual last game of the season, grudge battle between Auburn and Garrett, will be played at Auburn.

Garrett plays Hicksville at Garrett this Friday evening for their last home game of the season.

INDIANA High School students will again be honored this coming Saturday on the I. U. campus on the second high school observance day. The main entertainment feature for that day will be the Pitt-Indiana game.

On the following Saturday, Oct. 29 the old grad will have his day on the campus and Wisconsin-Hoosier fracas will afford the entertainment for that homecoming day. Tickets will be available at the stadium for both games. Coach Smith's eager but inexperienced charges will probably enter both tilts as decided underdogs. If a body believed in comparison he could rate Pitt higher than the Michigan Wolverines, as the Panthers have turned in a win over Northwestern, who in turn edged out Michigan. But maybe that still wouldn't prove anything if we did rate Pitt higher than Mich.

The Badgers from Wisconsin way turned in their showiest performance last week with a 48-13 pasting of Navy and will probably be in top shape for the Indiana home coming game. The old grads probably wont like what they will see.

. . . . .

Saturday morning we will head for East Lansing, Mich., and the Mich. State adn Penn State game. Michigan State consistently since the war has fielded a power packed eleven and this year is no exception. In fact, so far it has been one of their brightest seasons. Their only loss was a 7 to 3 game which they grudgingly gave to Michigan U. State has been added as the tenth school to the Big Nine which will again make it the Big Ten, as it was formerly known before U. of Chicago dropped out several years ago. Mich. State will not get into the Big Ten football lineup until '52, because of schedules which are already drawn up. State has a fine stadium seating about 50,000 and looks like a good addition to the Big Ten.

SPENCER TWP. HOME EC.

Mrs. Virgil Kimes was hostess for the October meeting of the Spencer Home Ec. Club. She was assisted by Mrs. Bert Fisher.

The following officers for the year 1950 were elected: Pres.- Mrs. Lola Moore; Vice pres--Mrs. Andrew Ward; Sec.-Mrs. Vaughn Allen; Treas.-Mrs. Merl Furnish; Rep.-Mrs. Victor Kelley; Chorister- Mrs. Lynn Fisher; Pianist-Mrs. Darwin Salisbury.

Calling all outdoorsmen

By JIM MITCHELL

I read somewhere a few weeks back this statement: "The key to good hunting can be found in the farmer's pocket."

And no truer words have been written, for certainly without the farmer and his cooperation, there would be little, if any, hunting for the great masses of gunners annually parade through the fields and coverts after upland game and waterfowl.

Many of us for more years than I like to recall have been taking the farmer's place in hunting for granted. He's just a guy who owns the land and raises the game; he's supposed to let one and all hunt.

It never was sound reasoning. Of course, years ago there were few hunters and plenty of game and territory to hunt. And then it wasn't necessary to ask for permission and it wasn't hard killing a big bag of game. But that's all only memories now and we're faced with a serious farmer-sportsman problem.

And, acually, it is a problem the sportsman must solve if we're to continue to enjoy hunting.

Most farmers are good Joes; they welcome fiendship from sportsmen. And, what's more, if the sportsmen offer even a little cooperation there will be thousands of acres of good hunting land thrown open to gunning that now is hidded behind "No Hunting" signs.

It's easy for me to sit at a typewriter and "preach"--but I have the same problem of finding decent hunting territory the same as you. I've partially solved it, however, for this season; I've been working with several farmers throughout the the summer, making new friends and offering my cooperation with routine farm problems.

You can do the same. And wher the gunning season rolls around it won't be a difficult task having plenty of spots to unlimber you scattergun or rifle.

My message to you is: Be courageous. I have lived a long time. I have seen history repeat itself again and again. I have seen many depressions in business. Always America has come out stronger and more prosperous. Be as brave as your fathers before you. Have faith. Go forward.

—The last public words of Thomas Edison.
June 11, 1931

Your Electric Company's reply to Edison's challenge

On October 21, 1879, Edison announced the first commercially practical incandescent lamp.

On October 21, 1949—seventy years later—it is appropriate enough that all of us look back in gratitude.

But still—the thing that made Edison great was not looking back but looking ahead. In fact, his last public words (we quote them above) were a challenge. "Have faith," he said. "Go forward."

This company and its associates in the American Gas and Electric Company System are taking up this challenge through the spending of $357,000,000 for new plants and facilities between 1947 and 1951. By the end of that period the System, now serving more than a million customers in seven states, will have doubled its generating capacity in ten short years.

None of this power is being added to catch up with some "power shortage" that exists or threatens today. In the area we serve, there has always been power enough for all. We are looking ahead, building ahead—as Edison admonished—that this will continue to be so.

Rev. Peter Soudah Addresses Lions Club

Speaks On Problems Related To Displaced Persons; Ladies Guests Of Lions

On Monday evening of this week Rev. Peter Soudah, drawing on an extensive education and experiences in his travels, declared that America has tne opportunity to spread its spirit to the other peoples of the world by befriending the displaced persons who are coming to our country and community. They in turn will tell their friends and families at home of the actual experiences they have had with the American way of life.

There are too many naturalized citizens living in the old world customs although they have lived in America for twenty, thirty, even fifty years, he asserted. Immigrants to this country must have the spirit of America in their hearts to be worthy of the opportunities in this land.

America has an opportunity to help itself and the whole world by showing the people from foreign land the way we live, he concluded.

The evening was made more pleasant for the Lions by the presence of their wives who were honored with a a dinner in return for their efforts in support of the Lions Club. The delicious chicken dinner was served by the ladies of the Methodist Church.

Bank Swindle List Continues To Grow

Four More Accused In $350,000 Bank Swindle; Rectenwall Apparently Did Not Profit

An assistant federal district attorney Norman F. Schlatter of Fort Wayne, disclosed last Friday that Clyde Rectenwall, cashier accused in the $350,000 bank shortage at the Farmers and Merchants bank at Spencerville, apparently never profited in the swindle.

The attorney made the statement after a series of surprize arrest and indictments were handed out late last week to four men of the Spencerville community. Dale C. Wicoff, Spencerville school teacher, Ray Hoover, Spencerville grocer, Andrew J. Miller, natchery owner of Leo and Lessil O. Bardsley of Harlan, owner of a construction and excavating firm were all under arrest by last Friday, all on similar charges of aiding and abetting the cashier by writing checks for several thousand dollars more than they had in accounts.

All of the newly involved men have been released on bond.

Attorney Schlatter reported that Rectenwall apparentley was unwilling to press charges when the overdrafts on checking accounts began about eight years ago.

The bank's cashier apparently just let such overdrafts "slide", but later had to begin juggling the books and deposits of nearly all of the banks some 900 accounts.

U. S. District Attorney Gilmore Haynie of Ft. Wayne disclosed that the five men, including Roy Chaney, indicted with Rectenwall are believed responsible for $257,000 of the shortage.

The checks on which they were indicted by the grand jury are only a few which they are actually accused of writing.

Chaney, who is now also accused of writing over $6,000 worth of bad checks along with his kiting scheme, now has his account standing at an estimated minus $130,000. Bardsley is accused as having written nearly $75,000 worth of bad chekse, Miller at $30,000, Wicoff's at between $5,000 and $6,000 and Hoover's at $16,000 to $19,000.

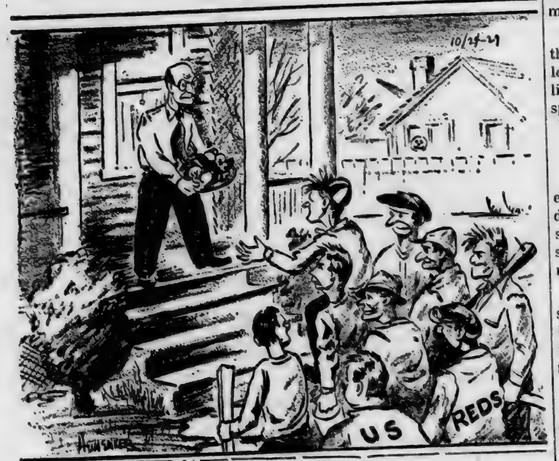
TRICK OR TREAT



Congratulations, Students

The students of our local school have undertaken the publication a school paper, the first issue of which was distributed this week.

We wish to congratulate the students on their initiative and offer our help and support. This undertaking represents an effort on their part to better themselves by opening a new field of pleasure and education. Writing and publishing are two of the most common every-day occupations which we come in contact with. This school paper will give our students a chance to express themselves not just in original writings, but also in descriptions of ther own activities. And they get an inkling of problems involved in publishing a paper.

Perhaps some of the staff will follow the start they now have into further training, and make writing, in one form or another, their life's work. Whether or not they do, let's give them a boost and aid them in any way we can. It's not too late to subscribe.

Spending Must Be Reduced

It was announced last week that the U. S. government is continuing to spend at a rate which far exceeds its income. What's wrong? Are we, the people at home, neglecting our duties as American citizens and not informing our Congressmen that we are fed up with the disgraceful waste and misdirection of the funds at their disposal—funds which we make available through our taxation system?

Or are they oblivious of the effects this wild spending has on our economic system because they have become accustomed to speaking in terms of billions? Perhaps they cannot realize how much the national debt is in relation to the individual income. On the basis of annual income of $3600 every man, woman and child in the U. S. would have to give all of his earnings for 8 MONTHS to the government to pay off the national debt. We didn't say every wage earner, we said EVERY LIVING PERSON!

This present rate of spending cannot go on indefinitely. Soon a crisis will arise when we no longer will be able to support our government in its extravagance.

We have no doubt that the intentions involved are good—aid for this and for that—. But the practicality is lost when the amounts involved in income and outgo do not balance. A man can go into a store and purchase six pairs of shoes for his six children on credit without the possibility of having enough income the next month to pay the bill. But how long would the shoe store extend credit under those conditions? Only once-and why only once? The man's children need shoes —he INTENDS to do good for his family. The deciding factor is that he doesn't have the money. AND UNCLE SAM IS IN THE SAME BOAT!

No matter what the fund appropriations are for—wasteful OR worthy —they must be decreased.

Mr. Fred E. Haberkorn

Dear Sir:

This is to let you know that your name appears in a German newspaper, but more than that you bear the same family name as the sender of this paper.

It would interest me to learn when and where your forefathers made their way over there and when and where they had lived in Germany.

My father came from Mulhausen, Thuringen, in 1853, where his father was a watchmaker.

It would please me greatly to receive a short message from you.

Friendly greetings

Dear Editor:

Let's change the subject from "little stinkers", etc.

Does anyone know who proposed the name of this township - -CONCORD; or how it received the name? Was it because of the "concord" or harmony reigning among the early settlers here? Or was it from the little settlement of the same name? If the latter, how did Concord village get its name

A PROPOSED RADIO PROGRAM WHICH IS DISTINCTLY DIFFERENT

Under the direction of the sponsor some radio station by broadcasting the request is to find a church in each state which has made the greatest progress during the year selected upon a percentage basis according to answers given to a list of questions which reveal the contriubting factors for the success of the said church. This gives the small church an equal chance with the large congregation.

For the program obtain:

1. A short sermon by the minister of the church, on record, one that comes from his heart.

2. Music by the choir, quartette, or anything special, on record, such as solos. duets.

3. Picture of church and congregation.

4. A list of interesting events in the community and it's people, due to the influence of the church.

5. A list of the program activities of the church which make it "tick."

6. When the program of the selected church is broadcast, offer the listeners a program copy of the sermon and all the activities which make this church a success.

7. When all of the 48 states have their outstanding church thus selected, the results are to be published in book form for the inspiration of other churches.

Your comment will be appreciated

O. E. Ginther

For generous personal help and encouragement in conducting the idea that it will appeal to a radio station manager and prospective sponsor, the following is their comment on the idea.:

"It seems to me that the proposition which he (O.E.G.) has, would be of great furthrance of Christianity of the church, put up in a new and attractive form."

Rev. Ray G. Upson

"Such a program would help hard-working ministers and congregations to enjoy greater success by following the plans by which other churches have made themselves indispensable to their individual communities."

Dear Ted:

I am writing this letter to you with the hope you can find room in the St. Joe News for it. As we have promised so many of our friends there letters telling them about our trip; and we find it impossible to write to each one. If you do not wish to print it, it is O. K., but if you will we can be able to relate to some of the home folks the wonderful sights we have seen and the experiences we have had.

We had a wonderful trip out. We were in eight states, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma. Texas, New Mexico and Arizona. We were a week traveling as we wanted to see all of the points of interest we possibly could.

Some of the high points of interest were the Bagnell Dam in the beautiful Ozark Mountains, the oil fields of Oklahoma, where the oil wells are even on the capital ground at Oklahoma City; also the Will Rogers Memorial at Claremore, Oklahoma. a wonderful monument and musuem built all of stone with beautifully landscaped grounds.

Then came Texas with the wide open spaces and pastures. It seemed as though the earth and sky met without any break in your view And cowboys ride the rang on horseback just inside the fences looking for broken fences, or any other trouble which might occur.

New Mexico is a very interesting state and one that has the real western atmosphere. You can really feel as though you are in the west there.

Arizona, oh yes it is a state of many wonderful sights, you all will just have to come out and see them. The Grand Canyon is worth the trip alone, large and wonderful beyond anything I could describe. The Painted Desert and the Petrified Forest, where you see logs turned to stone in every color imaginable. The Petrified Forest is very large. We drove for twenty miles in the forest and didn't see it all then.

Then came the Rockies and they are rocky. It was quite a thrill for us to drive 25 miles through them when we had hardly seen mountains before. Oh yes, we did go through one at Albaquerque, New Mexico. but the Rockies are more thrilling.

When you go down from the mountains you are in the desert for about forty miles and then we were in Phoenix, a very beautiful city of about two hundred and fifty thousands population. When you remember that at one time it was all desert, too, it doesn't sem possible that water by irrigation can do so much, for it is only by irrigation that crops are grown here. Phoenix is located in the Salt River Valley and the mountains completely surround the valley. Any direction we look we can see them. The soil is very fertile and the land is expensive to buy.

Any farm regardless of size is called a ranch. We live seven miles west of Phoenix on West Van Buren Road on the Brooks Ranch in a four room house, which is all modern and very comfortable.

We bought a grocery just across the road from our house and we like it very much.

We are all feeling fine and I am sure the climate here is what I have needed for a long time.

Today we drove south of Phoenix to South Mountain and viewed the city from Lookout Point on the very top of the mountain 1200 feet above the city. We reached there at the time the sun was settting and it was beautiful. When the lights of the city came on it looked like a lighted Christmas tree, a thrill we will never forget. It was five miles, to the top of the mountain and the Kaiser really took us up in high gear.

I think I have rambled enough for one time so will close for this time, hoping this finds each of you well and happy.

Now folks don't wait for us to write as we will write a letter to you all again in the news if Ted will allow us to do so. Write to us whenever you can, we will be looking for your letters.

As ever

on Farm

by EVERETT MITCHELL

Farm Commentator, heard Monday through Saturday, 6:15-6:45 a. m. on WMAQ, Chicago, 670 on your dial.

THIS is the season of the year when farmers, especially those in the midwest, must decide whether or not to invest in feeder cattle. One thing they can be sure of is that feed supplies will be plentiful—and lower in price this year.

Other factors to be considered are the grade and weight of the cattle, type of feed to be used, when to buy and at what price, and the length of the feeding program. Profits this year probably will be based on profitable weight gains, with margins over feeder cattle cost secondary.

Diversification in cattle feeding, as in so many other farm operations, will help spread the risk and allow for coming out on top in any market situation. Calves are the best investment for a long feeding program, while larger animals are safer for a short 90 to 120 day feeding period.

With the supply of feeder cattle down over a year ago (due to the severe winter conditions in western states) feeder cattle are expected to be in strong demand with good prices.

Remember that cattle which arrive by truck or rail are tired and need rest and quiet. They'll need water as soon as possible after they are unloaded. Good care and plenty of rest are the best insurance against those early death losses in the feeder herd.

If you're in a hurry to get the cattle on the market, put them on full feeding sooner. For a stepped-up program, try early feeding of corn and cob meal rather than shelled corn. The cobs furnish necessary bulk in the diet. Until next time, best of luck.

Washington Outlook

by HARRY LANDO

A permanent farm price support bill is now on the books supplanting the Aiken Act, but there is still considerable confusion as to what the new law is all about.

Perhaps the most noteworthy misunderstanding is about price support levels. On this score, the bill permits BUT DOES NOT DIRECT the Secretary of Agriculture to support the basic crops and dairy products at levels as low as 75 percent of parity when there are surpluses. The bill provides minimum levels, but the Secretary may continue 90 percent supports at his discretion.

The Secretary is directed to support prices of wool, mohair, tung nuts, honey, Irish potatoes at not less than 60 percent of parity. Under the bill he may support these products up to 90 percent.

The Secretary has authority under the bill to support prices on any farm commodity if there is money available after he has taken care of the commodities which get mandatory supports.

The modernized parity, using the most recent 10 years instead of the old 1904-14 base period, is in the bill. And the cost of farm labor will be considered in determining parity. These changes will result in higher parity for such farm products as livestock, but lower parity for highly mechanized crops.

The effect of lower parity on the basic crops has been delayed for 4 years under terms of the Senate-House compromise. During the first 4 years of the law, parity for basics will be that figured under either the new or the old methods. .which-ever is higher. Basics also got another concession. During 1950, if they are under controls, they must be supported at a rigid 90 percent. During 1951, they will get a minimum of 80 percent if they are under controls.

Neither House nor Senate was satisfied with the law, as finally passed. Biggest majority in the House wanted present 90 perecnt supports extended with the addition of some new commodities to the 90 percent lists. Th majority in the Senate wanted to get away from rigid 90 percent of parity and into the new parity formula more quickly that the compromise made possible.

Causing a great deal of controversy and loud protests particulary from Iowa Congressmen was the dropping of hogs, poultry and eggs from the list of commodities accorded mandatory supports.

The new law also sets up a new group of commodities, the storable non-basics. They include such crops as oats, rye, barley, grain sorghums, etc. These are the crops which, like the basics, can be stored without serious loss. The law provides that when these crops are under control they will get mandatory supports at not more than 90 percent. Strangely, the accepted bill did not contain authority for the Secretary of Agriculture to impose controls. Rep. Stephen Pace (D., Ga.) says this will be one of the first things to be taken up in the next session.

There is, of course some question as to whether the President will sign the bill into law, or whether he might veto it in view of his preference for the Brannan plan. However, sources close to the administration expect a presidential signature coupled with a renewed plea for the Brannan plan.

The Department of Agriculture has released a series of outlook reports. looking ahead to 1950.

Highlight of the food outlook is the certainty that even with the worst growing season in the past 10 years next year, we would still have at least average supplies of animal feed into 1951. With an average growing season, we will have a large feed surplus.

Feed grain supplies are at a new record high, 35 percent above the 1937-41 avrage and 8 percent larger than last year. The record carryover into this year of about 30 million tons of feed grains will be eclipsed by the carryover into next year by about one-quarter. Feed prices should be moderately lower in the 12 months ahead than in the year just past.

Expected for 1950 is an egg production year about on par with this year's. But farmers are expcted to raise some what fewer chickens and turkeys than they did this year. By fall of next year, lower egg prices are expected to have resulted in smaller laying flocks.

Prices farmers receive for their eggs and chickens, including broilers, are likely to average lower in 1950 than in 1949. Although more favorable poultry feed prices are expected for 1950, the difference is not expected to be enough to balance lower egg and poultry prices.

Meat animals may drop, though supplies will be significantly larger only in pork. Price reductions should not be great. About 7 to 10 percent more pork may be produced next year than this year. If a price support program is announced for hogs after next March 31, the rise may be even greater.

About the same amount of beef and veal may be produced this year. An unusually large part will be the better grade grain-fed. Prices should not be much lower.

The Department notes an uptrend in numbers, and expects more beef and veal to be produced in the years ahead.

'MAKE THIS YOUR BUSINESS HOME

These are the kind of times . . .

When the going gets a little tough in spots, like strikes, lay-offs and whatever strikes business conditions.--this is just when the I. G. A. Members all over America---gird their loins --- and go after it. Back in the early 30's when times were really tough, the I. G. A. Stores came through with their biggest gains. And the reason - they just wouldn't give up. This same spirit stands out like a sore thumb today. In the face of declining prices - decreased earnings on the part of the workers, I. G. A. Stores are forging ahead - with I. G. A. volume up 28% over the country - - It is no wonder I. G. A. Stores are recognized as the boys that do things. The Independent Jobber. and Retailer linked together by a great National Organization-- need not fear any competition. If he follows this plan that calls for Self. Service and prices that meet them all, not below cost on some items to fool Mrs. Housewife and raise the others up - just a little. But the right price ON EVERY ITEM. The most pathetic sight in this world is the man that kids himself. The man that thinks he is fooling Mrs. Housewife today - is doing just that. We in the I. G. A. are proud of the reputation that we have made.

New Method for Cold Prevention

Most people believe that the only way to get rid of a cold is to wait it out. A famous doctor once said that a cold could be cured in 14 days with top medical therapy, or that one could do without medicine and wait 14 days for nature to cure it. Up until now, that has been generally true.

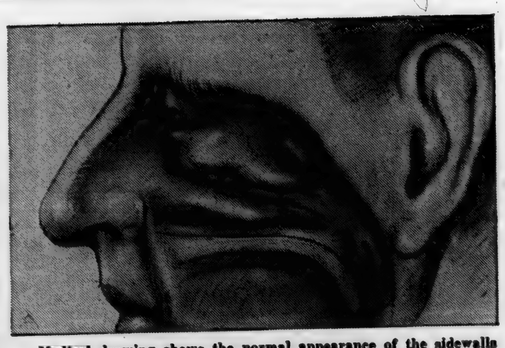
But this year it can be different. It is now possible to kill off a cold before it has a chance to get started. This is done by taking an anti-histamine pill when you feel the first sign coming on. The anti-histamine method of cold prevention was developed by the Navy Medical Department during the war. The navy administered an anti-histamine drug for colds in extensive clinical tests. After careful tabulation of results, it announced that 90 per cent of all cases where treatment was begun immediately after the first symptoms were felt, the incipient cold was stopped. In those cases where colds were well established, use of the drug produced marked relief of symptoms, and reduced sneezing and mucous secretion, thus cutting contagion.

The new ingredient in the anti-cold treatment is a rather fabulous young drug known as an anti-histamine. It is one of a group originally produced for the treatment of hay fever and other conditions generally classified as allergies. They were called anti-histamine because they neutralize or suppress histamine, a chemical released in the body when tissue is damaged or infection present. The release of too much histamine in the body produces swelling and discharge from tissue cells. When this happens you may have hay fever, asthma, or hives. Or, as scientists have now demonstrated, you may have a common cold. The symptoms of nasal allergy and a cold are about the same.

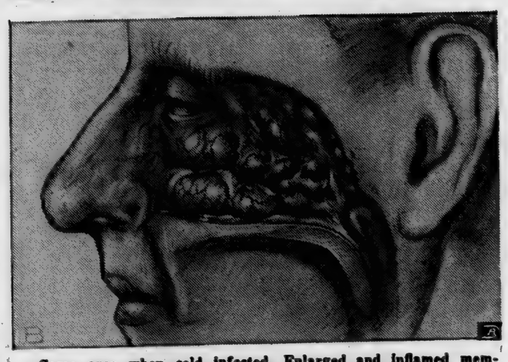
The similarity between allergies and colds caused doctors to speculate on the possibility of applying an anti-histamine to colds. If an anti-histamine would work on various allergies, why wouldn't it work on colds?

The idea was given a tryout at the cold clinic of the U. S. Naval Hospital, Great Lakes, Ill., under the direction of Capt. John M. Brewster. Navy personnel who reported cold symptoms were treated with an anti-histaminic drug. As the experiment proceeded, it soon became clear that the doctors had hit upon a major development. The pill with its anti-histamine turned the trick in an overwhelming majority of cases. The only basic proviso was that the cold had to be caught before it really took hold, although even in advanced cases it was found that the drug cut down both the severity and the duration of colds.

This winter the anti-histamine treatment of the common cold has been made available to the general public. Produced in tablet form as Caubren, the drug can be generally obtained on a doctor's prescription.



Medical drawing shows the normal appearance of the sidewalls of the nassal cavity when free of a cold infection or allergy-swollen tissue, for which histamine is thought to be responsible.



Same area when cold infected. Enlarged and inflamed membranes choke the passages, producing pain, stuffiness, and mucous secretion, in which histamine is found. Anti-histaminics, such as Caubren Compound, counteract the histamine, and reduce both mucous secretion and swelling.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

International Uniform Sunday School Lessons

By DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

SCRIPTURE: Isaiah 3; 5; 22; 29; 56: 1-8a; Jeremiah 35. DEVOTIONAL READING: Romans 13:8-14.

Choose The Best!

Lesson for October 30, 1949

IT HURT Isaiah's patriotism, and his religion too, to see how fast his country was going down hill. Most of the troubles Isaiah saw are with us today. Wealthy women spending more and more on themselves; leaders who are irresponsible, self-seeking and incompetent; poverty unprevented and uncared-for; drunkenness high and low. Isaiah, and other prophets as well, saw in the sin and drunkenness of the times the sign and symbol of national decay. To the careless, the selfish and the wild, to those who were "leaders" but were leading in the wrong direction, Isaiah kept saying, in many different ways, Choose the best!

Dr. Foreman

The Prophets' Successors

THERE WAS A TIME when the church put most of her preaching emphasis on individual religion: Get right with God! was the cry. The church of today has not by any means given up her emphasis on personal religion, but we are learning from the prophets what social righteousness means. The church in our time is the logical and actual successor to the prophet's work.

The church is doing more than ever to awaken the conscience of society, in fact the church itself has a duty to be the conscience of society. One of the problems about which our nation needs to be waked up is one that Isaiah and Jeremiah faced, only we have it in a more desperate form.

We call it alcoholism; they called it by an uglier, more suitable word: drunkenness. Even in those days drinking was a problem; it cut down the national health, wealth and wisdom. Nowadays it is worse because of two factors. One is the higher percentage of alcohol in beverages such as whiskey, unknown in those days. The other factor is advertising.

Where Drunkards Start

AGAINST ALL THIS the church must keep saying and persuading people, Choose the Best! But it does comparatively little good to say this to the confirmed alcoholic. It makes more sense to say it to young people. For the sad feature of alcoholism is that it begins in the high schools.

The Yale School of Alcohol Studies has collected evidence indicating that two-thirds of all alcoholics begin drinking habits in the early high school years.

A recent Gallup poll shows the greatest percentage of drinkers to be in the age group 21 to 30. Today, it is estimated, there are four million alcohol addicts or excessive drinkers who are in more or less constant trouble with their families and employers.

Drunkenness costs industry in America no less than one billion dollars a year, and has a lot to do with the break-up of homes and with crime generally.

Allied Youth

SOMETHING is being done to stop this, which you should know about. There is a movement known as Allied Youth, a national educational organization working in high schools all over the country. Its work is positive, not negative. It is not trying to pass laws or to bring back prohibition. What it does try to do—and it is succeeding remarkably well in many places—is to give young people a way of life that will enable them to meet social pressure for drinking without loss of "face." Every Allied Youth post in a school has three aims: I. To meet the social and recreational needs of young people.

Every New Year's Eve, for instance, when millions of Americans are getting sickly drunk, more than 6,000 young people gather in Detroit for the biggest dry party in America, sponsored by Allied Youth.

2. To establish within the school a fellowship of young people who do not think it is necessary to drink to be smart. Such a group can change the attitude of an entire school.

3. To build a solid foundation of education for total abstinence. Essentially, Allied Youth is saying to young people everywhere, "Choose the Best!"

Soil Tests Give Valuable Information About Land's Need for Lime and Plant Nutrients

CHICAGO — Soil tests taken this fall can help you do a better job of liming and fertilizing your land and filling the soil's "commissary" with a well balanced supply of plant nutrients most needed for higher crop yields and lower per bushel costs next year.

A good soil test has to start with good samples, the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee points out. That means making a sufficient number of probes. It means getting enough soil from different parts of the farm and combining samples from like areas. It means being careful to get good samples from poor-yielding fields.

On sloping fields, samples should be taken from the top, the middle and the bottom, the committee says.

You can get directions for taking soil samples from your county agent, from agronomists at the state college, or from your local fertilizer dealer.

When samples are efficiently taken, carefully tested and accurately interpreted, they can give you valuable information about your soil's plant nutrient needs. But you will want to consider additional facts in developing a program to boost your yields. Among items to consider are: What is the land's previous cropping history? What was the per acre yield? How has the soil been handled? What rotations have been followed? What fertilizer and liming treatment has the soil had? What is the land's slope and drainage and how badly is it eroded?

You can check on the plant food your crops are actually getting by watching for hunger signs on crops already produced this season. Using soil tests, cropping and land history and hunger signs will help you diagnose your soil's fertilizer needs.

Carefully-Taken Samples Give Clues to Soil's Nutrient Needs.

Good Soil Management Plus Fertilizer Produces Championship Wheat and Heavy Stand of Legumes

After This Record-Breaking Wheat Yield Was Combined, the Field Produced a Thick, High-Yielding Legume Stand.

CHICAGO—Good soil management including the use of commercial fertilizer paid off for Harold Pirtle, when he won the 1949 wheat growing championship of Southwestern Indiana with a record-breaking yield of 57½ bushels per acre.

Growing the championship wheat crop wasn't the whole story, either. After combining the grain Pirtle got a lush stand of alfalfa and sweet clover. He says the soil's good tilth and organic matter supply plus the added plant food gave it the power to produce both a high wheat yield and an excellent stand of legumes.

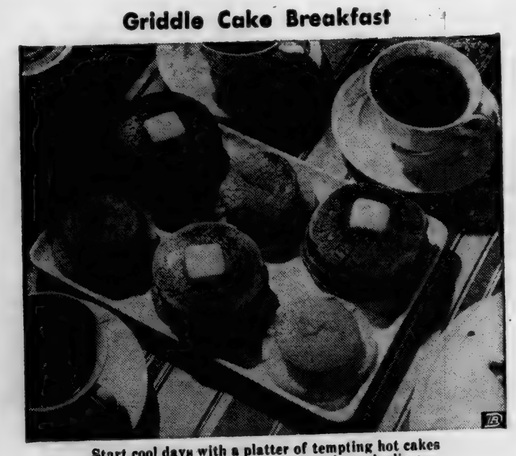
Before seeding time last fall, Pirtle had the soil tested to find out its plant food needs. When he seeded the wheat and the accompanying legume crop, he added 400 pounds per acre of 3-12-12 fertilizer. Then early last spring he topdressed the wheat with extra nitrogen. The nitrogen gave the wheat new life and put extra vigor into the legume seeding.

The championship wheat was grown on an 11-acre contest field on his Sullivan county farm near here. The field was in alfalfa during 1945 and 1946, corn in 1947 and soybeans in 1948. The organic matter added by plowed-under alfalfa helped mellow the soil, built good structure and tilth and improved the drainage.

Pirtle used Vigo wheat, the new heavy-yielding, soft red winter variety developed by Purdue University plant breeders.

The "pocket area" wheat growing championship is sponsored by Purdue University and the Southwestern Indiana Wheat Improvement Association. Howard Lathrope, Purdue agronomist, supervises the contest.

Griddle Cake Breakfast



Start cool days with a platter of tempting hot cakes enhanced by broiled pineapple and peach slices.

The brisker the morning, the heartier the appetite. That's why griddle cakes are top favorites for fall and winter breakfasts.

Give hot cakes extra glamor for a special affair by serving them with broiled pineapple, apricots, or peaches. Such flavorful meats as sausage, bacon, ham, or lamb kidneys are generally preferred to round out a griddle cake meal.

Besides pleasing the family, griddle cakes can be relied on for much good food value. Enriched flour is a good source of essential B-vitamins and iron, plus protein and food energy to keep morale high.

This recipe makes medium-thick griddle cakes. Folks who like the "thin ones" may add more liquid to the batter. In any case, the rule for light tender pancakes is the same as for other quickbreads—stirring batter only until ingredients are thoroughly mixed.

GRIDDLE CAKES

2 cups sifted enriched flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1 egg
2½ cups milk
¼ cup melted shortening

Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Beat egg slightly and add milk. Add to flour mixture, stirring until flour is moistened. Add shortening. Bake on ungreased, hot griddle.

Makes about 30 four-inch cakes.

HERE 'N THERE IN SPORTS

By LEWIS H. WALTER

AT a meeting of coaches and principals of DeKalb and Steuben County schools held at Auburn last Wed. evening, it was again voted to ask the IHSAA for permission to again hold a split sectional tourney next spring. In all probability the high school board will give its permission and the tournament will be a two-gym affair again for the third year.

Only changes in the tourney then for next year will be that the last day finals will be played in the Garrett gym instead of at Auburn as they have since the plan was started two years ago.

Reason for changing the final play of four remaining finalists to to Garrett is because the Railroader gym is undergoing a face lifting process and will present the best of facilities for tournament handling of the teams as well as the largest in the two counties. New dressing rooms have been added along with a new lighting and heating system, and permanent concrete and steel bleacher seats.

. . . . .

ST. JOE & SPENCERVILLE basketball teams are continuing a rigid practice schedule this week and will put on a final tune-up the first part of next week for the long schedule that starts the latter part of next week.

The Spencerville Raiders will be the first of the two schools to see scheduled action, and they will pack two games into their first week of play. Spencerville will play host to Harlan on Wednesday evening, Nov. 2, but will take the game to the Hicksville gym. On Friday the Raiders will continue operations on the road and will go to Butler for games with the Windmills.

Here at St. Joe the Tiger squads will go through two full length inter squad games on Wednesday nite as a tune-up for their game with the Wildcats at Waterloo on Friday. The public is invited to come down to the game and watch the work out. No admission will be charged for the evening.

. . . . .

FRIDAY EVENING at Auburn will be the time and place for the annual grudge, cut the window with the dope books, football battle between Auburn and Garrett. Auburn was denied the right of an unbeaten season this year when they lost out to Warsaw by an 18 to 7 score last Saturday evening. The Auburn eleven will probably be favored to win Friday over Garrett, although the victory hungry Railroaders may go all out in trying to put a win on the books at their last possible chance.

LADIES LITERARY CLUB

Mrs. Maurice Kline was hostess to the regular meeting of the Ladies' Literary Club Wednesday evening, October 12. Seventeen members answered roll call.

The collect was read in unison. Mrs. Charles Krise and Mrs. Vernie Monroe gave the lesson on United Nations. The plan of organization was explained and the scope of operations of each division was made clear. Some very definite accomplishments of the U. N. were enumerated.

United Nations Day was October 24th.

Mrs. Cora Curie Conducted several interesting stunts and contests. Parliamenary suggestions in the form of practical hints on public speaking were given by Mrs. Allen Haller.

The next meeting will be a social evening at the home of Mrs. Don Burley. Potluck supper at 6:30.

Calling all outdoorsmen

By JIM MITCHELL

Last week I was talking about improved farmer-sportsman relations and how the farmer held the key to better hunting. Now Henry Davis of the Remington Arms Co. comes along with a list of suggestions on how the relationship can be cemented strongly.

I'd like to pass along his suggestions, so here goes:

1—Always drive into a farmers yard and ask permission to hunt.
2—Hunt only in the areas he designates and never cross onto another farm.
3 —Respect his fences, always climbing a fence at a post or crossing at a gate.
4—Never shoot near the house, barn or near livestock.
5—Leave his fruit and other crops alone.
6— Go around fields where people are working and never walk on newly seeded ground.
7—Share your game with the farmer He enjoys it as you do but seldom has time to hunt himself.
8—On your next trip, take along a little gift for the farmer's wife or children. It doesn't have to be much, but it will show genuine interest.
9—Then, after getting well acquainted, suggest a planting program that will better game habitat, offering to finance the program or at least share in its expense.

The rules are simple; they're easily followed and don't in anyway hinder your hunting. In fact, they'll greatly improve your gunning.

I won't be so bold as to say that unless all of us follow the above rules that all gunning will vanish. But I will say that we all must adopt some sort of similar code or hunting soon will be a thing of the past. Farmers won't continue to supply the territory and game without some token of appreciation on our part.

Winners 4-H Club Has Achievement Program

Rev. D. R. Salisbury, pastor of the Spencerville Methodist Church, gave grace before three bountiful filled tables of food and an audience of 19, 4-H club members of the Winners Club of Spencer Township, their parents and guests at the Alton Park Building.

After supper, the adult leader, Robert Witt, introduced Bill Wilder, junior leader and president. The president called the meeting to order for a short business session. The secretary and treasurer, Mary Wilder, gave a report of the previous meeting and financial report which was accepted. Pledges were led by the club president.

The adult leader gave a report on achievements this year. At the fair, 12 project and 8 record book prizes were won by the club members. The total income from projects of the club was $2489.26. The club carried 46 projects.

There was a 95% member completion. Eight club meetings were held at the club members homes this year.

The leader stressed the necessity of good record books. He thanked the parents for their excellent cooperation, and their help on the float. "Without your help we could never accomplished all the various activities," he said. He thanked the club members for their cooperation at the fair, as they assisted each other as their animals were shown and judged.

Lester Boger of Auburn, gave a talk on the cooperative spirit of the club members and their parents. He praised the fine work exhibited at the fair. He presented the float trophy to Bill Wilder in behalf of the club.

Assistant County Agent, Mr. Lesiuk, congratulated the members on their good record of achievement. He said the Winners Club have the best cooperation behind them of any club he knew. He said the record books of the club were good but could be improved. It takes good record books to know if you're losing money or making a profit these days.

Mr. Lesiuk showed a movie on 4-H work and an African animal movie.

Clyde Hart of Spencerville gave a very intersting talk on the schools of yesterday. He told the 4-H members to get all the education that was offered while they could, and to make the most of it. He told of the school before his time that was a log school, with split logs for seats and an open fireplace.

Rev. Salisbury, another guest speaker of the evening, talked to the club members on the 4 H's. He said the emblem on the T shirts, the four leaf clover, is the greatest in the world, because it represents life. The HEAD for clearer thinking is to think out and learn to do the things they want to do in the future and to be able to reason. The HEART is for greater loyalty - to be honest and good. The HANDS are for greater service -- to build and create with the soil of any manual labor. HEALTH is for better living - -have clean living habits so you will have a strong body when you are older -- for the body is God's Temple, he continued. So keep your body clean and pure and you can be proud to wear these emblems.

Last, the adult leader passed out the graded record books He also presented each family a metal gate sign, "A 4-H Member Lives Here".

LONG RANGE PLANNING

Socialized Medicine Fails

Americans can learn a lesson on the falacies of socialism from the failure of the British plan to socialize medicine. The plan has become so costly and burdensome that a charge for prescriptions has been put into effect to offset the expenses which were not allowed for in the initial plan. It seems that the availability of 'free" dental care was overly attractive and the number of people who visited their dentists increased enormously. The result was that the taxtion for medical and dental care was wholly insufficient. British teeth were in bad condition from lack of proper diet during the war, and everyone took advantage of the opportunity offered. The social planners hadn't figured on that apparently.

The papers carried a headline last week that President Truman's medical program probably wouldn't be passed until 1950. We hope that was a misprint. His program or any program, for that matter, which compels an individual to contribute to national income in return for personal services, should be voted out before it has a chance to spread to other fields. The headline should have stated that the health bill wouldn't be voted on until 1950.

And if our representatives uphold the principles of this republic, the bill will be defeated.

Letters to the Editor

(This column is offered to give the reader a chance to have his say. Any and all contributions are welcome-poetry, prose or what have you. All letters should have a signature to insure publication.)

Dear Sir:

October 26, 1949

I'm sorry I'm so slow at paying my debts. But it seems we can keep pluging along and do all the work but the little job of paying a simple debt. It sort of makes me think that those people who say they "wish you would stop the paper when it's run out" are right. You might get paid sooner so it wouldn't run out. I enjoy the News for it is one way I can hear of old acquaintances.

I hope the young people of St. Joe do get a nice place to have parties and meetings. It means much more to a town than a tavern. A tavern brings no good business to a town. Where a town can be very proud of a supervised meeting place for young people.

I have two daughters the same ages as your boys and I hope they can have a good clean community center when they are young ladies, as I'm sure you hope the same for your boys.

Well, I guess I better stop for I've already talked to much, I fear.

I enjoy the paper much better since you have taken over.

Sincerely

Mrs. Marvin Keppeler

"The Beast of 'Busco"

"Old Oscar" was a turtle in a Churubusco Lake,
Who spent his nights in pleasant dreams; and when he was awake
He watched the under-water life, in mud and grass and weeds.
And lived on snails and water-bugs, - on which a Turtle feeds.
He grew in size and weight until all records he'd excel;
He had the signs of ages in the markings on his shell!
His beak was big and powerful; his eyes were large and fierce!
While his hide was tough as leather, which no hook or spear would pierce
Then Gail Harris spied this Monster in the little Hoosier Lake,
And he got his fishing-tackle, and went out this Beast to take!
He tried out ev'ry kind of hook,-he even got a seine!
But no matter what he tried it seemed his efforts were in vain!
Then he got an inspiration! He went out in a boat
With a chunk of beef on a grappling-hook, and fastened to a float;
He set his anchor firmly, for he was so certain sure
The Turtle was near starving, and would pounce upon his lure!
Now, "Oscar" grinned and chuckled, as he watched each vain attempt
To catch him with these silly baits, which he held in such contempt!
And he watched the preparations with no quickening of the blood;
For when they got too close he simply burrowed in the mud!
And while Harris sweat and fretted on the surface of the deep,
Old Oscar" took it easy in another restful sleep!
He knew there was no danger in the actions over-head,
And so he just ignored them, and snuggled in his bed!
Then Harris got an idea how to win this vital bout!
If he couldn't raise the Turtle he would pump the water out!
For, if there was no water, then the Turtle couldn't hide!
Cause he'd simply HAVE to show up, with the lowering of the tide!
So Harris got a big pump, and placed it on the shore,
And started in to pumping, for to make the water lower;
And day and night the water flew, till it was nearly gone;
But "Oscar" merely heaved a sigh, and calmly slumbered on!
Now folks begin to wonder,- as the days and nights go by,-
Just how much water's in the Lake,-and when will it be dry?
They also like to argue,- since this episode has begun-
If "Oscar" really is so big that he'll weigh half a ton!
There's some say that when "Oscar's" finally pulled out of the muck-
His weight will be stupendous! And will strain a gravel-truck!
But my opinion is that- if the Monster's EVER found-
He'll shrink in his dimensions to less than a hundred pounds!

God Our Comfort

Lesson for November 6, 1949

AS THE ENGLISH language keeps on changing, words do not always keep on meaning what they once did. "Comfort" is one of these. When our Bible was translated into English in 1611, the translation most English-speaking people use, the word "comfort" had a bigger meaning than most people put into it nowadays. We think of it as meaning soothing; but it is a bigger idea than that. God is not merely a soothing God. We think of "comfort" as meaning to make comfortable; but it is a stouter word than that. God does not always make his people comfortable. The word means to strengthen, to steel against fear and despair, to put backbone into people.

"Fear Not, O Worm!"

AT THE TIME of the prophecies we study this week, the Israelites had been kicked around a good deal. They had felt the conqueror's boots, they were discouraged, as all good people are when somehow God seems to be letting evil forces triumph. Their little world had split wide apart, their little nation had been blown to the winds.

To those people, torn by terrors and bowed down by wretchedness, people who were in serious danger of developing a once-for-all "inferiority complex," people who were about to lose all their backbone, the great prophet brings his messages: "Comfort ye my people, saith your God."

The whole idea is in this one sentence (Is. 41:14): "Fear not, O worm Jacob! . . . I am your helper, saith the Lord."

God does not indulge his people in foolish pride. Beside the Almightly they are worms, insects. Nevertheless, worm though he may be, the man who trusts in God will not be afraid. He will not trust in his own powers, he will not trust in luck, he will trust in God.

A worm by itself is nothing; but with God on his side, the weakest of men can say with Paul, "If God be for us, who can be against us?" God's men do not get their courage up by flexing their muscles or admiring themselves. They grow in courage as they grow in the knowledge of God.

Goodness And Power

ANY ONE who saw "Edward, My Son" will remember the tragedy of that family. A boy's character went slowly to pieces, because his father was determined that nothing should be too good for him. To gain his purpose the father ran rough-shod over everyone who stood in his way, and eventually ruined the lives of all around him, including his son's and his own. The mother, on the other hand, could see, as the father could not, what his indulgence was doing to the boy, making him a weakling and a rat. But she was too weak to stand up against her husband, and her life too was ruined. That story is a kind of parable.

The prophet reveals a God who is both powerful and good; but suppose God were only good but not powerful, or only powerful but not good? Then the world would be in a mess, as that boy Edward was in a mess.

But these three are all in the same God. A God who is power only, might do as Edward's father did, destroy his children without even intending to do so. A God who is goodness only, might want to do right by his world yet not be able to do so, like Edward's mother. A God who knew what was right but neither wanted nor was able to do much about it, would not be a God at all.

God Is Not Weary

SUPPOSE GOD were indeed powerful, good and wise, and yet grew tired from time to time? Suppose all God's good qualities came and went, unpredictably, like the wind on a spring day?

No; God is the Maker and Keeper of Promises, the Covenant God. He does not grow faint or weary; that is our anchor of comfort.

The earth changes, and men with it; but the Word of the Lord abides forever. His "covenant of peace" does not waver. We do not need to lean gingerly on the Almighty. He will bear all our weight.

Washington Outlook

by HARRY LANDO

Though the new farm price support bill had not been signed into law by President Truman as late as the end of last week, the Agriculture Department has for some time been looking into ways of disposing of Commodity Credit Corporations stocks under one of its lesser-known provisions.

When the bill is law and the presidential signature will have been affixed before Nov. 1. CCC stocks acquired for price support purposes may be bartered for commodities needed in the national defense and may also be used for domestic and foreign relief purposes.

The Department of Agriculture quietly began a study of relief outlets long before the bill even cleared Congress, and an announcement of conclusions should not come too long after Truman signs on the dotted line.

USDA will be sitting on a keg of political dynamite. The Secretary of Agriculture gets tremendous power to control acreagee and production; other powers greater, probably than any wielded by any other appointed official in U. S. history. But this relatively obscure section hands him unheard of political powers.

Pointing up this fact late last week was a proposal by Rep. Ray J. Madden (D., Ind.) that the secretary of Agriculture use this section to provide free food for the steel strikers of his district. Madden, representing the important Lake County, Ind., steel center, advised authorities in Gary and East Chicago to apply for such aid. Madden had received appeals for aid from strikers in those towns, and he assured them that Brannan would co-operate.

There has been no indication from USDA that anybody in the Department construes the bill as giving authority for the feeding of strikers, or that anything along these lines will be done. But if the cities involved admit the strikers to their relief rolls, the same result would be achieved. Local government relief agencies get a high priority on CCC surplus foods under the bill.

If the farm price support bill is used to aid strikers, there are certain to be repercussions. Some legislators who voted for the bill in pre-adjournment haste are repenting at leisure. . . particularly about this section. They fear numerous ways in which surplus food can now be made to serve political ends by the Secretary of Agriculture.

The Munitions Board was also jumping the gun in negotiating barter of surpluses for defense supplies before the bill was law. The section gives this outlet for surpluses highest priority of all. But everybody approves in this case. Everybody stands to gain.

The Board was horsetrading with India for manganese and mica. We would trade wheat, which India needs very badly but for which she is unable to pay. Maganese, important to our own war machine, is secured by us almost entirely from Russia. Understandably, we don't like to depend on Russia for a critical material.

This barter method will benefit more than wheat farmers. The Board also has in mind deals involving dried commodities such as fruit, eggs and milk. Price supports have been ineffective on fruit and are turning costly on eggs and milk. It is possible that fruit farmers will get more aid, now that this method is legal.

Reliable information indicates that the horsetrading is getting pretty sharp on the part of the foreign nations, and this threatens to throw a monkey-wrench into things. These countries, though they need our farm products, are fully aware that we are piling up huge surpluses. So they are jacking up prices on the strategic materials we want in exchange for our food.

The Civil Aeronautics Administration is working with private plane manufacturers to develop aircraft specifically adapted to spraying, dusting, seeding and fertilizing from the air. Also interested are the Department of Agriculture and the National Flying Farmers Association.

"Both the CAA and Agriculture will furnish funds and personel to assist in this project, " says D. W. Rentzel, administrator of Civil Aeronautics, "and in this way we hope within the next 9 or 10 months to have one experimental airplane and its dispensing apparatus in flyable shape."

The National Associated Businessmen, hearing that President Truman plans to ask for a tax increase next year, had a better idea. Simply get a billion dollars from co-ops and other tax exempt enterprises. This group, an offshoot of the National Tax Equality organization, was formed for the purose of ending tax exemptions now enjoyed by co-ops, so their suggestion was not exactly a surpise.

The parity ratio took a sharp 2 point drop between midSeptember and mid-October and now stands at only 1 percent over the 1909-14 relationship between prices farmers pay and receive..

Prices paid by farmers for things they need dropped only 2 points, but prices received for crops and livestock averaged 6 points lower.

President Truman, in signing the rural telephone bill, said that "Congress has acted to promote the general welfare of our rural citizens, and he pointed out that only 40 percent of U. S. Farms now have phones.

On another front, Federal Security Administator, Oscar Ewing was pointing out that rural infants and mothers do not get adequate medical attention. "The risk of a baby's dying during his first year of life is nearly one-third greater in outlying country places than in or near great cities," Ewing said. 50% more rural than urban mothers die in childbirth according to Ewing.

Of its $4,750 million authorization, CCC has committed $2,450 million as of July 31, according to Ralph Trigg, president of the price support agency. Meanwhile, the Government estimates that it will lose only $820 million in the 2 years from July 1, 1949, to June 30, 1951. It also says that the $4,750 million will be enough for an indefinite time.

Sen. George D. Aiken (R., Vt.) and Rep. Jesse Wolcott (R., Mich.) doubt these rosy predictions. They think CCC will run out of money with which to operate the price support program before the end of this year and that eventual losses will be far in excess of CCC guesses.

DEKALB COUNTY CROP ORGANIZED; COUNTY-WIDE MEETING NOVEMBER 1

The Christian Rural Overseas Program for 1949 in DeKalb Co. was launched at the Auburn Hotel on Monday noon, October 24, 1949. Albert Yoder, district supervisor, met with the county committee comprised of Ora Crooks, Eugene Woolever, Rev. Allen Trout, and Rev. Lawrence J. Fettig. Ora Crooks was selected as president of this county, Eugene Woolever, secretary-treasurer.

The Christian Rural Overseas Program (CROP) is a program through which commodities are solicited from farm people on a community basis and turned over to established church relief agencies of the individual donor's choice, and distributed gratis overseas to orphanages, institutions for the aged and ill, refugees and the hungry, irrespective of race or creed in Europe and Asia. Last year over 2392 carloads of food were collected from the American farmers.

CROP is sponsored on a nationwide basis by the Church World Service (serving 21 Protestant denominations,) the Lutheran World Relief, (serving 8 Lutheran synods), the Catholic Rural Life Conference, (serving all rural Catholics,) and several smaller church agencies.

Millions of people are still living in deplorable conditions, unwanted because there isn't enough food, living space, or even a job. They are, therefore dependent upon Christian charity for life-giving food. The Marshall Plan provides goods for purchase. It does not provide relief to those too poor to buy. CROP sends "Christian Carloads" of food to the poor.

The DeKalb County CROP campaign will be conducted in the following manner. The President of the Farm Bureau Organization in each township will be asked to select persons to canvass every farm house in his district. It is the fond hope of the county committee that the volunteer canvasers will travel with truck or trailer immediately to pick up the commodities offered by the farmers. The kind of of donation will not be limited. Anything from the field, the orchard, or the livestock pen will be accepted.

A county-wide CROP meeting will be held on Tuesday, November 1, 1949 at 7:30 p.m. in the assembly hall at the ocurthouse in Auburn. All ministers, church superintendents, Form Bureau presidents and S. & E. leaders, members of the home bureaus, and all canvassers are urged to attend this meeting. The public is also invited. A sound moving picture depicting the work of CROP in the past is to be shown. One of the CROP leaders who has seen how CROP works in Europe will be on hand to speak to the group. Everyone and anyone is invited to the meeting to learn what CROP has done in the past, and what Christian charity can od for the future.

The area of the state of Texas is 265,893 miles. Its fine climate and rich natural resources drew many people to it in early history. While it was a part of Mexico, more Americans than Mexicans lived within its borders.

What's the greatest standing offer ever made?

THE greatest standing offer ever made has been in effect since the days of the colonists.

It is this—reward for extra effort.

It is a basic fact of human nature that people will work amazingly hard if they get something extra for doing it.

Through the years it has stimulated Americans to invent new and better machines—to invest in new enterprises . . . to create the world's greatest industrial plant . . . to compete in free markets.

By increased use of machine power on our mass production lines, we have been able to lower costs—to produce more for every hour we work than any other people on earth.

Our productive efficiency has resulted in constantly higher wages and shorter hours. Our labor has the right to choose jobs, to organize and to bargain collectively.

No wonder that the United States, with only 7 per cent of the world's population, produces as much material wealth as all other nations combined.

Our American system has its faults. We all know that. We still have sharp ups and downs of prices and jobs. We'll have to change that—and we will.

Meanwhile, we're being challenged to make the American system work as it never worked before. Let's create new industries and expand old ones—make more new jobs for more people.

Here's a big reward for extra effort—one we all can share.

Let's show the world what Americans can do when they really try!

THE BETTER WE PRODUCE
THE BETTER WE LIVE

Record-breaking sales! That statement might fit the booming television field; it might be a report on one of the giant mail order houses. But in this particular case I am referring to the sale of stamps that are required for gunning waterfowl.

Duck stamp sales for the period starting July 1, 1948 and continuing through June 30, 1949, have just been announced by the post office department in Washington and the total was 2,127,598, a 110,000 increase over the previous high set in 1946-47.

That's a lot of duck stamps. It's a lot of duck hunters, too for a least 90 per cent of the purchasers probably went hunting. But the way they are shelling out 2 bucks each this year for a waterfowl stamp indicates that a new record is not far off. Last year's high was reached when the duck stamp cost only a dollar, still the two dollar fee apparently is discouraging few, if any, hunters.

How do the various states stack up in the number of waterfowl hunters? Topping the parade is Cal. with a total sale of 171,388. Texas is in second place with 164,075 and Minnesota is third with 162,300. Minnesota was first in the previous two seasons.

Other states in the top ten are as follows: Illinois (110,980), Wisconsin (101,842), Michigan (83,582), Louisiana (80,701), Washington (74-555), Missouri (69,269) and New York (66,809).

West Virginia and Rhode Island apparently have few gunners interested in waterfowl. These states brought up the rear with 1,859 duck stamps being sold in West Va. and 2,564 in Rhode Island.

So as another waterfowl gunning period moves into high gear it will be interesting to note comparisons with last season. But you can bet your duck call against a penny that a new record will be set for the number of hunters.

HERE 'N THERE IN SPORTS

By LEWIS H. WALTER

FRIDAY evening high school basket ball games will see both St. Joe and Spencerville schools in action. The Raiders will be in their second game when they go toButler,and the St. Joe Tigers will make their opening game bid at Waterloo.

. . . . .

TWO independent basketball teams from this area are in the stages of organization and further developments as to schedules etc, will be noted next week. Franklin Sechler has entered a team to play in the Hamilton Division of the Steuben County league and their games will all be played at Hamilton. Their players in the majority will be employees at the pickle processing factory. Frankly what is worrying Frank, (no pun intended) is a name for his team. Fearing the name St. Joe Pickles may bring back fond memories to many many a fan of the fabulous independent basketball team of several years back that roamed about neighboring towns looking for opposition who could stand up against their torrid pace. Frank fears that his team may not quite reach the success of the old team; however, the sggested name of Nubs or Crooks was frowned upon. Seriously, though, we wish his team a lot of luck and if all his boys enter with the same competive spirit as their manager, they'll do alright.

PLANS are also in the making for another Independent team from St. Joe to enter a newly formed, Ohio-Indiana baskeball league, with Butler, St. Joe, Harlan and Woodburn, probably composing the Indiana section. Don McElroy and Pete Akey are currently doing the ramroding in this outfit and a meeting of all prospective players has been set for 7:30 p. m. Thursday evening at the Legion Home.

. . . . .

On the college football scene, all eyes will turn north this Saturday to East Lansing and the Notre Dame and Mich. State game. We hope it doesn't turn out like the other "games of week" that Notre Dame has been in. State will be ending a home stay in which they have displayed a powerful brand of ball to the home folks, and they would like nothing better than to lower the boom on the Irish. As far back as three weeks when they were still in the thick of a supposedly tough schedule, all you could hear around the grounds and in town was, "gotta beat Notre Dame" State does have a powerful ground attack in Lyn (Shadrack) Chandnois, who State is pushing for the All American list, and Everett Grandelius in the other half spot. Gene Glick, who will be ready for the game is more than a capable passer for the quarterback slot, and his stand-in, Al Dorrow, who has quartered the two games during Glick's absence, is better than average. What a shame now after our best 25 cent build up, to have to pick Notre Dame. Much as we would like to see State spill the Irish, we just don't think they have the bench strength, and after a close first half the Irish and their untiring two platoons should begin to take the edge, but their win margin may not be more than 9 points.

AT Indiana University the gloom that was temporarily lifted two weeks ago has settled back again after Wisconsin's 30 to 14 victory in the home coming game Saturday. Many of the Sunday morning quarterbacks were predicting a change in the Hoosier coaching staff if Indiana doesn't win the annual Purdue-Indiana, Old Oaken Bucket grudge match on November 19.

Corn Ears Reveal Whether Plant Was Well Fed or Starved

CHICAGO—The corn you harvested this fall can give you valuable tips for getting higher yields next year, if you will take a little time to examine some of the ears.

Those ears can tell you whether the corn plant was well fed or starved. That makes a big difference in the size of your crop. For only well fed corn can produce high yields.

Look at the ears shown in the accompanying photograph. All but No. 1 show signs of plant food starvation. Ear No. 1 is a normal, well fed, fully developed ear. It has good luster and polish. It holds its finish to the tip. The kernels are deep and well filled.

Ear No. 2 was short of nitrogen. It has good luster and the kernels are well filled. Nature makes nubbins like this when there isn't enough nitrogen in the soil to make full-sized ears. That is its insurance of seed for another year.

Phosphate hunger is illustrated by ear No. 3. Here you find rows of kernels that did not fill. Because of the phosphate shortage, some silks were delayed and came out too late to catch any pollen. The kernels were not fertilized, so they failed to fill.

Ear No. 4 was starved for potash. The ear is pointed and chaffy. The cob is limber and weak.

"A few deficient ears don't make a starved crop," says the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee. "But if you have more nubbins than good ears in your crib, then more fertilizer would have made more corn at lower cost per bushel.

"When plant food starvation signs are present, you can take steps to correct the situation and boost corn yields next year. A soil test will give you an idea of what is needed to provide a full, well-balanced supply of nutrients for the crop. You can build soil tilth, structure and organic matter to get maximum yields with a crop rotation that includes well-fertilized deep-rooted legumes."

Balanced Soil Plan Gives Top Yields at Low Production Cost

COLUMBIA, MO.—A five-point program to "balance the soil's needs" and obtain maximum crop yields per acre at low production costs, was outlined by O. T. Coleman, Missouri University extension soils specialist.

Here are the steps Coleman suggests:

1. Provide plenty of plant food in available form for the crops you are growing. Crops cannot grow without nutrients.

2. Have your soil tested to determine whether the plant food supply is in balance. Growing crops need a balanced ration the same as do people and livestock.

3. Get the soil in condition so that crops can use the plant foods. This means a turnover of organic matter. You can add organic matter and improve soil tilth, drainage and aeration by growing well-fertilized deep-rooted legumes.

4. Keep water, plant nutrients and topsoil at home by conservation methods. Where needed, these may include terracing and contouring to reduce runoff and erosion losses.

5. Follow a well-balanced cropping system. Deep-rooted legumes for pasture and green manure crops need to be rotated regularly with grains. Livestock is a "must" to properly handle pasture and roughage crops in such a crop-balancing program. Tests have shown that where a crop is pastured off, about 75 per cent of the organic matter is returned to the soil. This is true of both legume and non-legume crops.

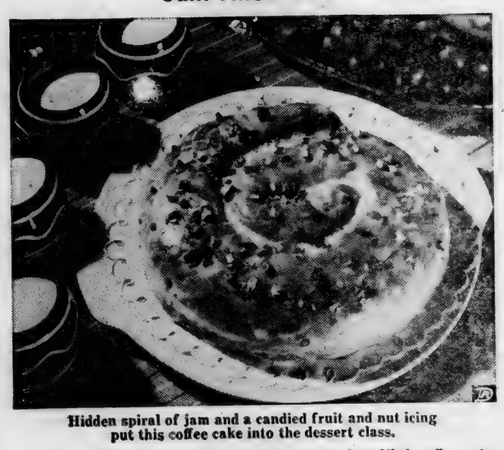
Jam-Filled Coil



Hidden spiral of jam and a candied fruit and nut icing put this coffee cake into the dessert class.

Better allow for seconds when you serve jam-filled coffee cake coil with its attractive fruit-and-nut studded icing.

Make this special occasion bread from a basic sweet yeast dough, using enriched flour for the added B-vitamins and iron it provides. Let dough rest about ten minutes before shaping so that it will be easier to handle. To fashion the coil, roll the dough out to a long thin strip, spread jam over surface, then roll up tightly. Coil the jam-filled roll into a cake pan, putting the sealed edge down. This keeps jam from oozing out and also gives the top of the coffee cake a smooth appearance.

After baking, apply a thin glaze of confectioners' icing to highlight the coil. If desired, chopped fruits and nuts may be pressed into the icing for special occasions. Despite these extras, jam-filled coil makes an economical ending to a luncheon or dinner menu.

JAM-FILLED COIL

1 package yeast, compressed or dry
¼ cup lukewarm water
½ cup milk
2 tablespoons shortening
¼ cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1 egg
½ teaspoon grated lemon rind
2½ cups sifted enriched flour (about)
2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine
½ cup jam
½ cup Confectioners Sugar Icing
2 tablespoons chopped candied fruit
2 tablespoons chopped nuts

Soften yeast in lukewarm water. Scald milk. Add shortening, one-fourth cup sugar and salt. Cool to lukewarm. Add one cup flour. Mix well. Add egg and lemon rind. Beat well. Add softened yeast. Mix well. Add enough more flour to make a soft dough. Turn out on lightly floured board and knead until satiny. Place in greased bowl. Cover and let rise until doubled (about one and one-half hours). When light, punch down. Let rest 10 minutes. Roll out to strip three inches wide and one-eighth inch thick. Brush with melted butter or margarine. Spread evenly with jam. Roll up into tight roll. Coil into greased nine inch layer pan, being sure seam side is down. Let rise until doubled (about one hour). Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) about 30 minutes. Remove from pan. Glaze with Confectioners' Sugar Icing. Sprinkle with chopped fruit and nuts. Makes one nine-inch coffee cake.

In agriculture the state of Indiana includes almost every staple crop; in mineral it produces coal, pig iron, petroleum, natural gas and many others. It also ranks high in manufacturing and in its wholesale trade.

HINTS ON HEALTH by the INDIANA STATE MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

LEG ACHE

LEG ACHE is common with children. Parents recall similar pains of their own when young, and usually give it little heed, but the possibility of rheumatic fever is reason for parental concern when the child repeatedly complains of leg ache. Rheumatic fever is the chief cause of death among children 5 to 15 years of age.

The child with persistent pains in the leg should be medically examined and if rheumatic fever is revealed, treatment instituted at once. If rheumatic fever is not present, the family will be relieved to get the physician's finding.

There is a leg ache called familial leg ache by family physicians because of a definite family history of this ache. Characteristic symptoms of familial leg ache in the child are afternoon and evening pain that often interferes with sleep. Irritability and restlessness are the only symptoms arising from this leg ache. Such aching usually follows strenuous playing, running, dancing, or the onset of cold weather.

The child complains of a steady ache extending from ankle to knee joint. The ache continues several hours or throughout the night. As the child grows older, the ache tends to become less acute. Familial leg ache usually makes its appearance between the third and fourth years.

OUR COUNTY AND SOCIAL SECURITY

By Margie L. Forrest, Field Rep.

This column will present the intimate story of Old-Age and Survivors Insurance. Its purpose is twofold.

1. To inform you of the Social Security Administrations, program that provides benefits to aged insured workers and their families, when the worker retires and to the surviving members of his family when he dies.

2. To inform you of your rights under this insurance program so that you can reap the full benefits it has to offer.

The field office which serves your county is located in Room 305, Federal Building, Ft. Wayne 2, Indiana. It has three outstanding functions.

1. The handling of all tpes of benfit claims under the Old-age and Survivors Insurance program. This is the most important function, since no benefits may be paid until the qualified person files his or her application.

2. The issuance of new and duplicate social security account number cards to all employees who work under the program.

3. The assistance to wage and salary workers, in commerce and industry, in checking their social security wage records, to make sure that the wage records kept for each worker are accurate.

If you have any questions you wish to ask, please meet me in Auburn, at the Post Office on the 1st or 3rd Thursday of any month, between 10 and 11 a. m.

OUR COUNTY AND SOCIAL SECURITY

By Margie L. Forrest, Field Rep.

Family life in America is pretty much the same, no matter where we live. Little people - millions of us - earning our living, keeping house, going to school, working together for the kind of life we all want for ourselves and for our children. We are planning for HEALTH for the breadwniner, the mother, children, the neighborhood, and the town and country where we live; for EDUCATION for ourselves and children, so that each of us can make the most of our own life and be a more valuable part of our community; for SECURITY for all the family, so we know we have something to depend upon. Individually we strive for all these things and collectively we share the risks of insecurity.

As a nation, we took our first step to lessen the problem of our financial insecurity with the passage of the Social Security Act. The cardinal aims of social security are to keep individuals and families from destitution, to keep families together, to give children the opportunity of growing up in their own homes.

The eight programs provided for in the Act may be grouped under three heads. The first group is social insurance, including unemployment insurance and old-age survivors insurance. The second group is public assistance to the needy, including old-age assistance, aid to the needy blind, and aid to dependent children. The third group is children's services, including maternal and child health service, service for crippled children, and child welfare services.

Although the Social Security Act is a Federal Law, the Federal Govrernment operates only one of the programs, that of old -age and survivors insurance. The other seven programs are operated by the States with the Federal Government cooperating and contributing funds.

Today, under the age-old and survivors insurance program alone, Uncle Sam's mailmen are delivering monthly checks to over 2,870,000 persons. Over one-half of this number are women and children. Figures show that under this progam almost 15 million workers are insured for life; that over 1,350,000 workers, 65 or over, and about 400,000 aged wives, 65 or over, are receiving monthly benefit checks; that about 645,000 children of retired and deceased insured workers and 440 widows are receiving monthly survivorship benefits. Truly, this is social security in operation.

The Fort Wayne office of the Social Security Administration is located in the Federal Building, Room 305. A representative of this office is in Auburn on 1st and 3rd Thurs., at the Post office between 10-11 a. m.

PROGRAMS AND DATES FOR COMMUNITY CONCERT PROGRAM CHANGED

Mr. A. M. Bisel, president of the DeKalb County Community Concert Association, has announced the artists for this season's series. Due to conflicting schedules it was necessary to parially revamp the program but the selecting committee felt that in so doing, they were able to obtain musicians of outstanding appeal.

The series will be inaugurated on December 15 at the Court Theatre in Auburn and will feature Frank Guarrera, sensational young Philadelphia-born baritone. January 12, will mark the second program, a piano recital by seventeen-year-old Ervin Laszlo. March 9, will bring to the court the Cosmopolitan Trio, composed of Teresa Testa, violin; Marcia Barbour, 'cello; and Robert Cornman, piano. The season will close with the appearance of Mona Paulee, on April 13.

Through the cooperation of Mr. H E. Hart, manager of the Court Theatre, all programs will be held on Thursday night at the Court. Mrs. Marion Peckhart, secretary, disclosed that tickets to the membership would be mailed the latter part of November.

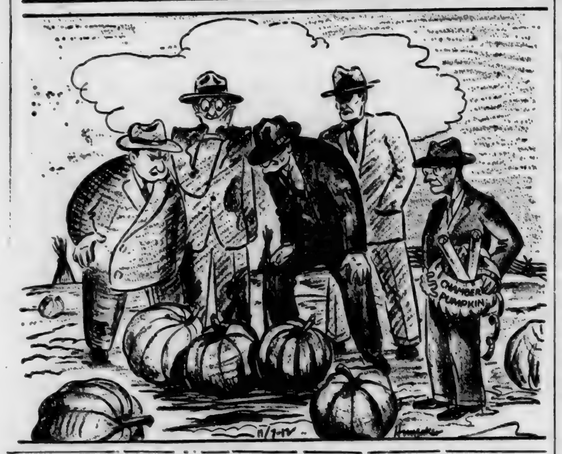
Anything in There but Seeds?



We're Losing Independence

The Indiana State Chamber of Commerce has brought forth some interesting facts and figures concerning Old Age and Survivor's Insurance payroll tax rates. The new rates rise to 1½% at the beginning of 1950 as a result of federal legislation enacted in 1947.

This means that the total tax will be 3% on the first $3,000 paid to an individual by the employer for the calendar year. The employer now is burdened with another tax increase which may extend to enormous proportions if the Social Security program continues as it has started. In Indiana alone, this increased rate means an outlay of $8,000,000 more than previous years by both employees and employers - a total of $16,000,000.

Under the present law the tax rate will be increased to 2% in 1952. However, there is now awaiting Senate consideration a House-passed bill (H. R. 6000) which would extend OASI coverage, increase benefits, establish a new permanent disability benefits program and set up tax rates (on employer and employee) of 2% in 1951, 2½% in 1960, 3% in 1965 and 3¼% in 1970.

With the increased coverages of this law and the acceptance of socialized medicine by the general public, the eventual cost per year could reach 25 to 35 billion dollars. This cost plus the cost of federal, state and local government could easily take 40 to 50 cents of each dollar of every man's personal income.

That doesn't sound very good to us. What do you think? ?

CULTURE CLUB

The meeting place of the Culture Club was changed from Mrs. Lynn Fisher's home to Mrs. Virgil Laux's home as the result of Mrs. Fishers illness.

The meeting was opened by the reading of the club collect.

The devotions for the evening were given by Mrs. James Tatlock. She read an article entitled, "Fear".

Mrs. Dewey White was lesson leader for the evening. She chose two very interesting articles from the Reader's Digest. They were "The Legend of Will Rogers," and "Polio made me Stronger."

The critic's report was given.

Mrs. W. H. Baker, who had charge of the special work for the evening, presented what was called "Edgar A. Guest Night." Several of Mr. Guests's most famous poems were read, emphasizing the important phases of his life.

Fifteen members answered the roll call with a "Quotation." One guest was present.

The regular business meeting was held.

The meeting was then adjourned, followed by a delicious lunch prepared by the hostess, Mrs. Laux.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. W. H. Baker.

International Uniform Sunday School Lessons
By DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

SCRIPTURE: Isaiah 42:1-4; 50: 4-9; 52:13-53:12; Jeremiah 38:1-13.
DEVOTIONAL READING: I Peter 2: 19-25.

Love So Amazing

Lesson for November 13, 1949

LONG AGO riding in his slow chariot through the southern sands, a puzzled reader with Isaiah 53 in his hands asked the question other readers have asked ever since: Does the prophet speak of himself or of some other? The answer given by Philip (see Acts 8) has been the answer of the church ever since: This prophecy can be understood only in the light from Calvary's Cross. Philip did not say, and we need not insist, that the prophet had Jesus, and Jesus only, in mind when he wrote.

Dr. Foreman

What we do say is that while these words might have described some one the prophet knew, might have described the whole nation of Israel, might even have described himself, still the words make but a poor picture of any one else, compared with the picture they make of Jesus.

The Scarlet Thread

ISAIAH 53 has been in the center of the church's thinking about Christ from the beginning. It may be said to run like a scarlet thread through the New Testament. It was in the back of the minds of Paul and John and Peter alike. This great prophecy sheds a light on what otherwise had been a black opaque blot—the death of Christ.

What would otherwise be simply a horrible tragedy, perhaps the greatest tragedy of history, the perfect case of complete injustice, the final evidence that there is no God, in the light of Isaiah 53 becomes a center of glory.

Instead of being ashamed of the cross on which Jesus died, the church sings, "In the cross of Christ I glory," . . . "Love so amazing, so divine, demands my soul, my life, my all."

We believe that Christ suffered not for his own but for others' sake. Suffering, not forced but willingly undergone, suffering not as mere pain but that others might be saved, suffering on behalf of others and for love of them—this is the key to the riddle of existence, this is the key to the heart of God.

Not Christ Alone

IF CHRIST'S MEN had refused to follow where he led, if all Christians had been willing to let him carry, alone, the burden of the world's sin and grief, there never would have been any Christianity—for there would never have been any Christians. Peter and James and the rest of the apostles would have refused to die for Jesus' sake. The noble army of martyrs would have been an ignoble army of cowards.

No missionary ever would have left home and comforts and country; no mother would have laid down her life for her children; the unselfish service of those who have cared for the sick and the orphaned would never have been done; indeed, had no one ever been willing to suffer for the benefit of others, one wonders whether the world could have even held together this long.

Christ died that the world might live, yes; but others also had to die to make his death avail. He died for Africa, that Africans might live; but Africans died till men like Livingstone and Schweitzer and many a less famous man and woman also went out and lived there in loneliness and died in pain.

Christ died for the little children of the poor, but until the Salvation Army and others like them went down into the slums and suffered there with and for them, those poor little people died without so much as dreaming that God might love them.

Christ died for all the lepers in the world; but until a Father Damien, and others no less Christ-like, went among the outcast lepers and became outcasts themselves for the love of Christ, those lepers died in the dark.

"Let Him Take His Own Cross Daily"

YES, Isaiah 53 pictures the self-sacrifice of our Lord, above all. But any one who has any intention of being a true servant of God must be willing to find his own life-direction right here. The world does not need more pain; it does need those who will suffer pain to serve others in Christ's name.

Washington Outlook

by HARRY LANDO

Last week State extension economists from every corner of the land gathered in the nation's capital for the 27th and gloomiest Annual Agricultural Outlook Conference.

Prospects, as outlined, pointed to a probable drop of 10 percent in farm prices on all commodities with a further decrease in income due to restrictions on productions of some commodities. In all, farm income is expected to drop 15 percent next year. Farmer's cost of production, on the other hand, will drop slightly if at all. In short, the average farmer in 1950 will have less money to spend.

Butter purchases in order to bolster manufacturing milk prices are finally dropping. In the week of Oct. 31-Nov. 4, the Department of Agriculture bought less than 1,000-000 pounds. The week before purchases were almost half again as heavy. For the year, USDA has bought over 99 million pounds.

Original idea was to buy the butter as necessary to bolster manufacturing milk prices to farmers and then to sell the butter back to the trade when shortages develop-and in such a manner as not to depress farm prices. But nobody foresaw the tremendous amounts which would come into govenrment hands under the program.

Now this reporter has exclusive infomation to the effect that the Department of Agriculture is about to offer its huge stocks for sale back to the butter processors from whom it was originally bought. Look for an announcement in not too many days after you read this.

However, it is certain that the Government will fail to get rid of any significant amount of its butter. Butter production is high, while consumption is down. The winter supply pinch probably will not materialize this season.

I have learned confidentially that he Department has had some inquiries from the butter trade, even before an official announcement. But, despite this evidence of interest, Government stocks are so large that a hugh loss is certain.

• • • • • •

The Department of Agriculture is in an even worse position in reference to non-fat dry milk solids. of which it has over 275 million pounds, also bought to support manufacturing milk prices. There is just no outlet of any importance for the stuff.

USDA is preparing to use as much as it can in the school lunch program. It has also been studying possibilities for trades with foreign nations under the new farm bill. But when all is said and done, USDA will wind up giving much of it away to relief agencies here and possibly abroad. This reporter has learned that some of it has already spoiled and is now good only for animal feed.

. . . .

While on the subject of exclusive information and also on the subject of milk, look for the Government milk marketing agreements and orders to come under close scrutiny by a Senate committee.

The Gillette subcommittee under the chairmanship of Sen. Guy M. Gillette (D., Iowa) investigating price spreads between farmer and consumer was very much dissatisfied with explanations given by dairies. The subcommittee has an idea that farmers are making too little and that dairies are making to much.

The dairies made a great point of the fact that prices to farmers were set by those Government formulas and when sued in the courts for anti-trust violations they have used the same defense. Some members of the sub committee are inclined to believe that there is justice in the dairy companies' argument.

This, in their opinion, leaves the dairies in the clear but casts serious doubt as to the value of milk marketing agreements. The sub committee intends to call more witnesses from the ranks of the dairy industry and from the Department of Agriculture. But as of today it appears to be entirely possible that the subcommittee will sponsor a resolution calling for the end of the milk marketing agreements.

Meanwhile, Gillette has announced a resumption of hearings on Nov. 28, at which time the baking industry will be probed to find out why bread prices remain almost at peak levels, though prices farmers get for wheats and fats have declined sharply. Department of Agriculture officials will follow the bakers and will be required to explain what they have done to lessen costs between the farmer and the consumer.

. . . . . .

Serious corn borer damage has further reduced prospects for the corn crop, paticularly in Iowa. But the crop and carryover will still be so large as to necessitate some form of controls on the crop next year.

I have learned that acreage allotments have definitely been decided upon by USDA officials, and that they plan to cut the 85.8 million acres in corn this year by 12 percent in 1950.

If the 1949 corn crop plus carryover equals 4,200 million bushels, in the national stockpile. With additional damage reports this last month, though, the decision on marketing quotas cannot be made for sure at this time.

The Department of Agriculture looks for slightly more favorable fruit prices next year. Consumer demand is expected to continue strong and the crops are expected to be somewhat smaller. Canada has improved import restrictions, and that may help. ECA nations will be encouraged to take more fruit.

USDA is stepping up their program of subsidizing export of fruits. Programs for paying half of the expert price are in operation on apples, pears and oranges. Dried fruits will also be pushed in the export market.

The Department of Agriculture is also buying heavily for the school lunch program, and for public institutions. The fruits market finally tends to firm up with USDA aid.

The estimates of firm prices next year indicates that USDA intends to continue all aid to fruit growers short of actual price support operations.

Writing a column about gun safety usually runs the risk of being boring to many hunters. It's the same old stuff, year after year.

Still, as the 1949 hunting season rolls into high gear, the reports are coming in of fatalities in the field. Certainly this a needless waste of life and it is a tremendous limiting factor in hunting for the future. It is a disgrace to the entire hunting fraternity.

Not all deaths in hunting can be stopped, but a great percentage of them can be eliminated quite easily. If every hunter would make the "Ten Commandments of Safety" as much as a part of his hunting as his gun and shells, many of the deaths would be avoided.

Here are the commandments--and I hope the repetition will not be too boring.

1—Treat every gun with the respect due a loaded gun. This is the cardinal rule of gun safety.

2—Carry only empty guns taken down or with the action open, into your automobile, camp or home.

3—Always be sure the barrel and action are clear of obstructions.

4—Always carry your gun so that you can control the direction of the muzzle, even if you stumble.

5—Be sure of your target before you pull the trigger.

6—Never point a gun at anything you do not wish to shoot.

7—Never leave your gun unattended unless you uload it first.

8—Never climb a tree or fence with a loaded gun.

9—Never shoot at flat, hard surfaces or the surface of water.

10—Don't mix gunpowder and alcohol.

HERE 'N THERE IN SPORTS

By LEWIS H. WALTER

THE St. Joe Tigers and the Waterloo Wildcats fought it out on near even terms for the first three quarters of their season basketball opener Friday night at the Waterloo Gym; the Wildcats, however, marched off with a 40 to 25 victory under cover of a 16 point third quarter barrage.

Waterloo held leads of 10-9; 17-14 and 24-22 at the quarter periods. Only at one point, near the end of the first quarter were the St. Joe netters able to put the game into a deadlock, with a 9 all score, and they never could take the lead.

Long armed Dick Hilkey, Waterloo's three-year varsity Junior, was the big difference and pumped in 5 field goals and 9 points by charity tosses for a 19 point evening. Bub Richmond with 7 points and Inlow close behind with 6 were tops for St. Joe.

The Tiger seconds couldn't hang on their opponents as long as their first team mates did in their game, for after a very fine display in the first quarter they folded badly and only got 6 points the rest of the game and lost 42 to13.

. . . . .

SPENCERVILLE RAIDERS, like St. Joe, didn't get their season off to an impressive start, losing a 34 to 31 ball game to Harlan last Wed. at Hicksville but came back on Friday to more than redeem themselves by handing Butler a 45 to 43 double overtime loss. Jim Leonard hit a pivot shot in the last minute to break the tie in the second extra period, to send the Spencerville fans home well satisfied with their team.

IN the Raiders opening game with Harlan Wednesday, they appeared to have the game going their way until the half, at which time they lost the lead that they never could regain. The Raiders got off to a fair lead of 11 to 8 at the first quarter but had lost the lead to Harlan by an 18 to 12 score by the end of the half. The Raiders held close all during the third and last quarter, but big Jim Harris, Halan's pivot man kept swishing the nets enough to hold off the Raiders.

The Spencerville seconds played much the same game as their older mates and after holding leads until the half, lost out also by three points, in a 29 to 26 game.

The Raiders looked like a different ball club against Butler and gave notice right from the start that they were out to turn in a better performance. Hoover with some early sharpshooting had put his mates into an early 13 to 4 lead within the first few minutes of play. Butler came back to close up the gap, and the runaway part of the game was over. Little Ed Hook, who ended the game with a 15 point total, to lead Hoover by 2, started clicking and the Windmills didn't take the lead until in the last quarter when they finally got ahead by 4 points. Hook tied the game at 43 all with time running short, and neither team scored in the first overtime period. The second overtime, which is a sudden death overtime this year, is decided by the team that makes two points first, and Leonard's pivot shot did just that.

Sechler's basketball team, playing in the Hamilton Division of the Steuben County League, will have their first test when they go against Harger's Locker of Hamilton at the Hamilton gym on Saturday evening, Nov. 12. Their game will be the third contest of the evening.

. . . . .

WE HAVEN'T had a whole lot to say lately about the St. Joe bowling team, the Legionaires, who are competing in league action at Butler and Hicksville. Some may think the lack of reports on their activities was perhaps because the boys weren't doing so well this year, however, this seems not to be the case. A member of the team assured us last Sunday that the boys were right "up there" in both leagues, and that in 6 games last week, they came out with 5 wins. Maybe the boys failure to report their socres is beacuse they have taken their success on the alleys for granted, and their good individual and team showings are just normal.

To Pay Paul

Young Clyde Rectenwall didn't know much about banking. But then, neither did anyone else in Spencerville, Ind. (pop. 300), and Clyde was as steady a young fellow as thre was in town. The farmers who had scraped together $25,000 so that Spencerville could have a farm bank of its own didn't think twice. They named Rectenwall cashier, brought in a specialist to show him the ropes and help him get started. That was back in 1914.

Clyde and a bookkeepr were the bank's only employees. The bank prospered, in a quiet way, and so did Clyde. His salary was modest ($2,880), but he and his wife, whom everybody called "Princess," never seemed to stop working. Before & after banking hours, they raised hogs and chickens on their 20-acre farm. Clyde bought a 240-acre farm outside of town, leased it out to tenant farmers. The Rectnwalls sent their son to Purdue University, later saw him set up as a grain elevator operator. They lived quietly. Sometimes Clyde and Bert Fisher, the bank's president, would go to baseball games together.

Gradually, Clyde became just about the most respected man in town. He was elected Worshipful Master of the local Masonic lodge, served as its permanent scretary. He was president of the Lions Club. Twice he was elected township trustee, would have been elected again if the law had allowed.

The Start

Last week a busy horde of federal and state investigators told Spencerville some things it had never known about its respected citizen. It all began about eight years ago, when a young schoolteacher named Dale Wicoff came to town. Everybody liked Wicoff, and when he asked Clyde for a mortgage to buy a house Clyde told him to forget it. Just pay for the house with a check, he told Wicoff. He would give him the money and hold the check until Wicoff could pay it off.

That seemed to have been the start. If Wicoff needed money, he wrote another check and Clyde paid him what he wanted from the bank's funds. Soon, Clyde was doing the same thing for other friends. He stowed away the worthless checks in a private safe. He balanced the bank's books by whittling the money off other accounts. Almost nobody asked for monthly statements anyway.

Faint Trail

The overdrafts piled up; the figures got bigger & bigger. Last month, state bank inspectors picked up a faint trail and followed it to the little one-room brick bank. Clyde suddenly left town. The examiners called the FBI.

What they found stunned Spencerville. In those eight years, respected old Clyde Rectenwall apparently had paid out some $350,000 to his friends—more than half the bank's total deposits. Dale Wicoff had gotten $6,000; Ray Hoover, a grocer, $15,000; Andy Miller, a poultry farmer, $35,000. Lessil O. Bardsley had taken away $70,000, Leroy Chaney, Jr., son of one of the bank's directors, more than $145,000. Many another depositor had been "helped" by Clyde. So far as anyone knew, Cyde had not taken a penny for himself.

The bank closed. Clyde had cost the stockholders their whole investment but the FDIC assured depositors that they would get their money. A grand jury indicted 65-year old Clyde Rectenwall for mishandling funds, the five overdrawn depositors for "aiding & abetting" him.

Silent Clyde

After the first shock, the town felt more embarrased than angry. Clyde Rectenwall, free on a $20,000 bond, returned home; neighbors saw him carrying swill to the hogs or working in his truck garden. The old man refused to talk to anyone, and nobody felt like talking to him. Bert Fisher, the bank president, who lives next door, saw Clyde only once, and turned his head away quickly, as if he hadn't seen him. Teacher Wicoff was still teaching, Grocer Hoover still working in his store. Said a townsman: "They weren't used to dealing with banks much and, I guess, didn't think what they were doing was wrong."

Cookie Faces

Plump, spicy molasses cookies with raisin faces are popular dessert for children's parties, as well as a good after-school snack.

Children love to raid a cookie jar, and how delighted they'll be to discover chewy molasses cookies with raisin faces. These cookies make homey desserts, good with smooth green apple sauce or other fruit sauces.

Both molasses and enriched flour are good sources of food iron, so cookie faces are nutritious sweets.

The cookie faces in the picture are made with raisins. Currants, gum drops, and bits of citron or candied orange peel may also be used.

Tuck a few of these easily made drop cookies into the lunchbox for their rich full flavor. These cookies are packable for shipping and keep remarkably well.

COOKIE FACES

2½ cups sifted enriched flour
1 teaspoon soda
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon ginger
½ teaspoon cinnamon
½ cup shortening
1 cup brown sugar
1 teaspoon vinegar
½ cup molasses
½ cup sour milk
Raisins and currants for "faces"

Sift together flour, soda, salt and spices. Cream together shortening and sugar until light and fluffy. Combine vinegar, molasses and sour milk. Add flour mixture to creamed mixture alternately with liquid. Drop by teaspoonfuls on greased cookie sheet. Use currants or raisins for "faces." Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 10 to 15 minutes. Makes about six dozen small cookies.

...with ELECTRIC brooding

Three-fourths of all pig losses occur within two days after farrowing. Records show that electric brooders can cut this loss as much as half.

At least 1½ pigs per litter have been saved, authorities point out, by using electric pig brooders in those first few vital days.

Pig brooders are cheap and easy to build. Scrap lumber is fine . . . and our rural engineers can help you with plans.

Electric brooders cost little to operate. Figure current used and pigs saved and you'll find a brooder gives you extra pigs for just about a dollar each.

If a pig for a dollar sounds like a good buy, why not call in one of our rural men and talk it over?

Mrs. McKay was born April 1, 1879, the daughter of the late Willard and Ida Williams. She and Mr. McKay were married at Crown Point, Ind., on Sept. 23, 1919. Butler Man Found Guilty By Federal Jury

A federal jury at Indianapolis found 27-year-old Ralph M. Knox, Butler, guilty on charge of impersonating a federal officer. The jury after only 30 minutes of deliberation handed its verdict down early Thursday afternoon.

Federal Judge Robert C. Baltzell witheld sentence pending a probation investigation.

An attractive Indianapolis waitress-girl friend of Knox attempted to establish an alibi for him earlier in the trial. Miss Marcia Brunson testified she served Knox in a restaurant about the time the government charged Knox as being in Columbus, Ind., negotiating $300 from the cousin of an inmate of the Terre Haute federal penitentiary.

Marshall Thomas of Columbus, the cousin, said Knox promised to work for the early parole of Delmar C. Schuder, former Columbus bank cashier now serving a 15-year term for embezzling $113,000.

At the time the two became acquainted, Knox was also an inmate of the Terre Haute prison serving part of a five year term for the robbery of the Spencerville bank in 1947.

SPENCERVILLE NIPS WATERLOO BY 48-46 SCORE IN FAST FINISH

The Spencerville Red Raiders put on a sizzling 13 point last quarter an flashed under the wire a 48 to 46 winner over the Waterloo Wildcats at the Waterloo gym Wednesday.

With four minutes left to play, Paschen raced the length of the floor for a lay-up shot that ended Spencerville's long uphill battle, and put them ahead 41 to 40. Hilkey tied the score a moment later on a free throw but the Raiders who had surged back to overcome a ten point lead at one time, weren't to be denied this one. Webb came thru with a rebound and then stuffed in another two pointer on a short one handed shot, and added another point with a foul line toss. Hook and Hoover added last minute charity tosses as the Wildcats fough for the ball. Leins and Hilkey hit for Waterloo to make the score close again but Spencerville had possession of the ball in center court when time ended.

Our adopted boy at Knightstown is a sophomore in High School. The group decided to bring gifts.

The American Legion and Auxiliary agreed to let the Nuisance Club hold meetings at the Legion home.

Bess Shroyer, Department Chaplain has sent the following poem to chaplains of the Indiana Units:

Let me be a little kinder; let me be a little blinder
To the faults of those about me; let me praise a little more;
Let me be when I am weary just a little bit more cheery;
Let me serve a little better those that I am striving for.
Let me be a little braver when temptations bid me waver;
Let me strive a little harder to be all that I should be;
Let me be a little meeker with the brother that is weaker.
Let me think more of my neighbor and a little less of me.

She said this poem was her Daily Creed and hoped each unit chaplain would make it hers, also.

OUR COUNTY AND SOCIAL SECURITY

By Marjorie L. Forrest

Two plans to protect old people from want are included in the Social Security Act. These are Old-Age and Survivors Insurance and Old-Age Assistance. Each of these plans serves a special purpose. They differ from each other in the way they operate and in the way they provide protection.

Old-Age and Survivors Insurance is for wage earners. This insurance helps workers to provide an income for themselves and their families when death or old age cuts off wages. It is a Federal plan and its provisions are the same in all parts of the country.

Old -Age Assistance is for peole after they are old and in want. Through it, each State, with Federal help, provides for its own needy aged. Though these plans work differently, they are alike in one important point - - both provide a cash income. This income is modest, but it enables old people to live in their own homes.

The Social Security Administration is the Federal Agency in charge of the Old-Age and Survivors Insurance system. For each insured worker, the administration keeps a separate wage record, identified by his name and Social Security Account Number. This record is necessary to determine what benefits may be due a worker or his family. To pay for this insurance, the Social Security Act levies a tax on wage earners and their employers. To learn more about this plan, you should write to the Social Security Field Office, Room 305 Federal Building, Ft. Wayne, Ind.

All the State provide Old-Age Assistance for their own needy old people. The State - not the Federal Government - decides who shall get aid and how much shall be paid to each person. The Federal Government shares the cost as long as the State plan follows the general pattern outlined in the Social Security Act. Anyone wishing to inquire about Old-Age Assistance, should go to their County Department of Public Welfare in their County Court House.

I will be in Auburn on the 1st and 3rd Thursday at the Post Office from 10 to 11 a. m.

Our Privilege to Choose

Veterans' Bonus Will Take Time

Once again it has been shown that the hearts of the American people win out over their heads. The state bonus which was voted into lawby the people of Indiana can not be paid for at least 20 years and possibly more under the present means of gaining funds for that purpose. The gross income tax (in itself one of the most unfair taxes levied) has been raised, but this raise will not be sufficient to pay the bonus as quickly as the veterans would have it.

We are at a point in our finances and appropriations where the former are continually exceeded by the latter. There isn't doubt that those who voted for the bonus had good intentions—they wished to show their appreciation for the efforts of the men in service. But, as we have pointed out before, no appropriation is justified if funds are not available to cover it—regardless of the worthiness of the project.

Lady Barbershoppers, Too

The Barbershop Quartet Parade, scheduled for November 26, has secured another oustanding unit for its program. We are speaking of the girls quartet, the Tunetwisters of Chicago, Illinois. The girls are the national champs, 1949-'50, in the fairer sex' version of S.P.E,B.S.Q.S.A, (Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America), Inc. Their organization is named "Sweet Adelines".

Ted Haberkorn, Sr., chairman of the program, has assembled a fine group of quartets for the best in barber shop singing and entertainment. One of the quartets is a brother group, the youngest of whom is 14 years old. Another is the 4th place finalist in the 1949-'50 international competition.

Also on the program will be the Ft. Wayne Chorus and several local quartets including the Colonial Four who sang for the movie-goers one evening in St. Joe this past summer.

If you haven't been to a barber shop parade before, we we highly recommend that you see this one. If you do, we'll bet you won't want to miss another.

Seems funny. Five men have been indicted for overdrawing their resources. Uncle Sam has been doing the same for years—and no one does a thing about it.

Letters to the Editor

(This column is offered to give the reader a chance to have his say. Any and all contributions are welcome-poetry, prose or what have you. All letters should have a signature to insure publication.)

Dear Mr. Haberkorn,

In my humble opinion the reprinting of the article in Time Magazine, in last weeks St. Joe News was uncalled for.

You say, "in response to many requests" ——— or was it the lack of time and effort on your part to obtain more interesting news for your subscribers, or perhaps you thought your subscribers lacked the necessary 20c to obtain an issue of Time.

NOT Yours very truly
Milton McGrath
Spencerville, Ind.

Thanks for your humble opinion.

According to the local magazine retailer, there were "approximately 100 people who asked for that issue" of Time. Now, it's a fact that very few people would ask a second time for that magazine even if he did stock up on that issue. The article just wasn't that important. If you were a businessman, would you buy 100 copies of a magazine for POSSIBLE sales when you couldn't return the unsold copies for credit? The answer my friend is "NO." — Not until you made your first million.

The article was printed as a public service.

Why so excited? —Ed.

Washington Outlook

by HARRY LANDO

The sigh of relief heard all over the nation last week came from the Department of Agriculture, where it is now almost certain that marketing quotas will be unnecessary on the 1950 corn crop. How to regulate the amount of corn grown on a farm and then fed on that same farm was a puzzle the Department had not solved.

The last crop report, issued on Thursday, revealed that the corn crop has dropped off by a huge 119 million bushels This column reported the drop in advance last week. Even a month ago, marketing quotas seemed certain. Corn borers in combination with high winds have now apparently taken the Department of Agriculture off the spot.

At 3,357 million bushels, the corn crop will still be history's 2nd largest, and the carryover at 845 million bushels will still be the largest in history. Acreage restrictions are definite for 1950.

There are many in Washington who believe that marketing quotas simply will not work on corn. From my mail, I gather that there are even more farmers who doubt that quotas will work. How, they inquire, can you check up on how much corn a farmer feeds his hogs? Send an army of Government investigators out into the field to weigh all the hogs every week or so? Or use the FBI?

With this narrow escape from an outright necessity under existing law to impose quotas on corn. . .difficult, if not impossible, to enforce. . .there will probably be pressure in the next session of Congress to change the law on corn. Many want to eliminate quotas entirely, as far as corn is concerned.

. . . . .

One of the hardest working lobbies in Washington is the one called "The National Associated Businessmen", which is of interest to farmers because the one and only purpose of this lobby is to see that Congress passes a law ending tax exemptions for cooperatives.

The NAB, which professes not to oppose co-operatives . . .only their "unfair" tax exemptions . . rarely attacks co-ops directly. They usually direct their heaviest fire at labor unions and charitable enterprises which are similarly tax exempt. Then they lump farm co-ops among "other tax dodgers," and seek to bring them all under the tax tent.

NAB has recently been aided tremendously by the fact that a charitable organization recently bought up the fabulous Tom Campbell Montana ranch for $3 million and the Rancho San Bernardo in California for $4 million. Under the law, therefore, these huge enterprises have been taken off the tax rolls.

Congressional indignations begins to mount. These transaction are not isolated cases. But they serve to obscure the fact that NAB really cares little about matters like this. They merely use those sales to to get at their real foes, the farm co-ops.

Direct attacks on co-ops in Congress killed off the National Tax Equality loby . . .which then merely changed its name and adopted an indirect approach. Co-ops became fine enterprises which, however, should be required to pay equal taxes with other types of business. Pushed to the forefront in their lobbying were attacks on the charities and arguments to the effect that the treasury needs more money.

But their mailings to business in all 48 states clearly reveal that the new tactics are no more than a smokescreen. This reporter has seen their mailings, which call on business men that co-ops are socialistic. But they tell Congressmen it is the labor unions they are really after.

This back-door approach is getting results. NAB claims that 51 Senators . . a clear majority . . agree with them, They claim that 150 Representatives (218 would be a majority) also agree. These claims are undoubtedly exaggerated. But the situation is becoming serious enough that farmers who believe in their co-op must make some countermoves.

A good beginning might be a realization that the leaders and most of the members of NAB are the identical leaders and members of the soundly defeated Tax Equality League. Then there should be an effort to drag the opposition to co-ops right out in the open. Let them argue frankly the reasons they feel co-ops should pay what taxes, and how much. Sale of fabulous ranches to charities has nothing to do with co-ops.

Maybe co-ops should pay more taxes. But let the issue be decided on its merits, without the evasions and the skullduggery to which NAB is presently stooping.

. . . . .

USDA has unofficially admitted that it will need more money to carry out the price support program. And in a manner just about as frank and honest as the opposition to co-ops.

In an official statement last month, they denied that they would need more money. Despite doubts expressed by Sen. George D. Aiken (R., Vt) and Rp. Jessee Wolcott (R. Mich.) USDA insisted that its price support fund would last out the 1949 crops and that losses would be so low as to make further money grants unnecessary next year and indefinitely thereafter.

Now the usual anonymous "high official" says that Congress will ask more money next February Said he, CCCprobably has enough money to last beyond next June, but since Congress will be out of session in the latter part of the year the Commodity Credit Corporation will ask for more money in the event it is needed when the 1950 crops reach the harvest stage.

This was not an announcement, but a statement planted with the crops. While there is no doubt that USDA will actually ask for the money, USDA officials did not want to make a pronouncement for some reason. Hence they prohibited the use of names in connection with the statement. Main question is why they denied the predictions of Aiken and Wolcott.

. . . . .

Texas farmers indicate that they will plant 50 percent less flax in 1950. Farmers in other sections are also expected to drop their acreages next fall in view of much lower price support levels. This appears to be the first genuine test of the idea of flexible price supports. The potato situation was complicated by closer plantings on the reduced acreages which, in turn, was cancelled out by bad weather. The result was that nobody is sure what, if any, effect lowered supports had on spud production.

Secretary of Agriculture Charles Brannan has maintained that lowering support levels will not of itself, decrease production of many crops.

LOCAL HOG RAISER TO SHOW 10 HAMPSHIRES AT CHICAGO EXPOSITION

Lenard M. Fisher of near St. Joe, will have 10 Hampshire hogs in the classes of the coming 50th anniversary International Live Stock Exposition, officials have announced.

The Exposition is set for November 26 through Dec. 3 in the Chicago Stock Yards.

An early tally of entries for the Exposition indicates the show will be larger this year. W. E. Olgilvie, secretary manager anticipates the biggest cattle exhibition ever staged in the United States. He states this is largely due to increased premiums this year.

Other divisions are also expected to be larger. In store for thousands of farm folk woh will flock to Chicago for the annual event will be the greatest display of America's farms.

The International Horse Show will have nightly performances and five matinees. The cutting horse contest which proved so popular last year will have the famous King ranch horses this year.

In addition to eight days of individual livestock clases, there will be the Meat Show, judging contests, 4-H Club parade, the shearing contest and score of other events.

The Nuisance had a big Halloween party at the home of John Coburn on the 27th of October.

We discussed a slogan for the club and came up with "Forward Ever Backward Never," and are planning a theme song but as yet we haven't quite decided on what we want. Aare their any suggestions from the public?

We have also been informed that the Legion has given permission to let the club use the Legion Home once a week for meetings.

This party was preceeded by a party at the home of Pat Hughes a member of the Club and was sponsored by her parents.

Another meeting was held at the home of Sally Wade which was also sponsered by her parents.

Nov. 1 a party was held at the home of Andier Herschberger and was sponsoreb by Mr. Donald and Mr. Calvin Lessing.

Now, here's a better ending!!!

They stopped fighting among themselves.

They got together like sensible human beings . . . management, labor, farmers, consumers.

And they said, "Look . . . we've got something wonderful and special here in America . . . something so good it saved all the rest of the world twice in 25 years.

"It isn't perfect yet . . . we still have ups and downs of prices and jobs. But our system has worked better than anything else that's ever been tried.

"And we can make it better still . . . we can build for peace as we built for war without even working harder—just working together.

"We can invent and use more and better machines, can apply more power. We can work out better methods in our factories, stores and offices. We can have better collective bargaining. We can develop more skills on the job.

"By doing these things, we can produce more every hour we work, at constantly lower costs.

"The bigger the flow of goods, the more there will be for everyone. Higher wages to buy the good things of life and more leisure to enjoy them!"

So that's the way they did it. And they lived happily ever after.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
International Uniform Sunday School Lessons
By DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

SCRIPTURE: Isaiah 55; 56:6-8. DEVOTIONAL READING: Romans 10:1-13.

God's Open House

Lesson for November 20, 1949

IT IS A WARM chapter, this 55th of Isaiah. Some false ideas about God melt away fast when they are brought close to it. Let us take a look at some of these notions and see how they wilt in the light of God's word. Sometimes these notions are held sincerely, sometimes they are mere excuses to keep from facing God. One of these mistaken notions is the idea that God has two lists; one is a list of people on whom he intends to have mercy, and will save; the other list being a private one, of those on whom he intends to have no mercy and will not save. If your name is on the first list, fine; but if it is on the second list, you are in a hopeless fix; for if God is not going to help you, who can?

Dr. Foreman

This is a terribly wrong notion. It confuses the true God with some sort of sultan in the sky who has a "social register" of persons he will admit to his palace. "Use this invitation as your card of admittance." No, it is not at all like that.

If you really think that admission to heaven is by card only, then cut out Isaiah 55 and present it at the gate. Cut out any verse in the Bible that says "Whosoever,"—John 3:16 for example—and present that. God keeps open house, he does not employ butlers or strong-arm men to keep out the crowds, he wants all to come who will. Do you want God? Then come. Are you thirsty for the living water? Then drink. It is as simple as that.

No Waiting

THERE IS ANOTHER notion that keeps people away from God. It is a kind of shyness. It is the feeling that maybe it isn't any use hunting for God. It is the feeling a boy has when he is lost in the woods and has about made up his mind that there is no use in walking any more, he will just sit down and wait till somebody finds him.

It is the feeling that God may be sensitive and doesn't want people coming bothering him. It is the notion that if God wants me, he will knock me down and drag me where he wants me to be. A man with a notion like that, of course, isn't likely to meet with God.

He spends his life paying God no attention whatever, not even thinking about him, perhaps. He may even go as far as he can from the Father's house, believing that God's long arm, like the long arm of the F.B.I. or the Mounties, will reach after him and get him in case God ever wants him.

Now this is a ridiculous idea and a bad one too. Isaiah would not think it true for a minute. "Seek ye the Lord," he says. "Call on God . . . return to the Lord." "Incline your ear and come!" This means you—if you will. But if you won't, God will not force you. He forces no man. He wants willing obedience, loving service, not slavery. God will have no chain on you but the chain of love. God keeps an open house, not a prison farm.

No House Of Horrors

ANOTHER WRONG NOTION, for which, alas, many a church member is partly responsible, is the notion that the nearer we get to God, the gloomier we shall be.

All the talk about sacrifice and suffering for others, such as we were thinking of last week, all the emphasis in the church on the death of Christ, all the solemnity of most church services, make people think: "God may be all right for solemn people, but not for me; I like life with a smile."

Now that is just another mistaken notion. The very persons who know the deeper meanings of sacrifice are just the persons who don't like to use that word about themselves.

In fact, it could be said that in general it is only Christians who have a right to be gay. Jesus himself, on the same night in which he was betrayed, spoke to his friends about sharing his joy to the full.

Isaiah 55 is certainly no invitation to gloom. Joy, peace, the clapping of hands are there. But how do we know Isaiah was right? There is only one way, and that is not to sit arguing about it. You never know what a party is like by staying at home.

Do you really want to find out what goes on there? Don't be content to hear others say, "It's wonderful!" God's door stands open.

WORLD WAR II MOTHERS COMPLETE FUND RAISING DRIVE TO BUILD CHAPEL FOR DISABLED VETERANS

The Mothers of World War II, Unit 91 of Waterloo, have just completed a house to house canvass of the rural area of DeKalb County for magazine subscriptions. Each day a Mother went with Mrs. Newman, the publications representative working on this project, and report that the results have been very gratifying. Unit 91 has contributed $200 toward the Chapel which the War Mothers of the state are building at Cold Springs Road Hospital at Indianapolis for the use of our veterans. It is being built so those in wheel chairs and cots may be wheeled in to enjoy the religious services.

Since DeKalb County has only the unit at Waterloo, the Mothers have worked very hard so DeKalb County may be well represented in this project. They will also be able to further help our veterans from funds received.

The War Mothers will be selling the veteran made poinsettes on the Saturday preceding Pearl Harbor Day. The funds received will help to make the veterans Christmas brighter.

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to thank the members of the Winners Class and the Ladies Aid of the Mt. Pleasant Sunday School and the Wilmington Twp. Home Ec Club as well as the many friends who remembered me with flowers and cards during my illness.

HERE 'N THERE IN SPORTS

By LEWIS H. WALTER

IN two games last week the St. Joe Tigers fell victims to the Harlan Hawks on Wednesday, here, and on Friday evening after traveling to Woodburn blew an early lead and ended up by losing by a 40 to 27 score.

Harlan's victory came by a 47 to 36 score.

The Tigers did have a fairly good scoring night against Harlan, but the Allen County squad was always ahead. Spurred by big Jim Harris who distributed his 18 points pretty evenly over the four quarters, the Hawks jumped out to a lead and were up front by a 11 to 4 score at the first intermission. By the end of the half, St. Joe closed the score up as much as they ever did in the game and at the end of the main intermission were trailing by a 21 to 15 score.

Early in the third quarter the St. Joe boys began making trips to the locker rooms and before the game had ended, four of the starting five had taken early shower baths because of too many fouls. Inlow, the only starter to go the distance got 14 points and Bub Richmond, who dressed quite early in the third quarter, came up with 10 for St. Joe.

AT WOODBURN Friday evening, St. Joe fans had high hopes for a few moments that a Tiger victory was in the making, when after 3 minutes of play they had struck quick to take a 9 to 2 lead. The St. Joe netters never could regain that opening pace, however, and they accounted for one third of their total scoring in those opening minutes. Woodburn rallied to take a slim 10 to 9edge at the first quarter mark, and had bulged it to 25-17 at the ending of the half. Shanebrook, Woodburn's dead-eye forward kept dumping in basket steadily during the last half and his 21 points total caused the Tigers no little pain. Roger Inlow and Bub Richmond were on top for St. Joe in scoring with 9 and 8 points respectively.

IN a barbershop interview with coach Everett Paschen Saturday night he readily admitted that he thought his Spencerville Raiders were improving with each game. And true enough he had figures to back up his claims. After losing their opener to Harlan they went out and beat Butler in a double overtime and then last week they beat Ashely 48 to 47 and this time it required only one overtime period to turn the trick. So you can readily see Mr. Paschen's reasoning and if all goes right they should win their next game over the regulation distance.

SURPRISE first team starter, Jim Dwyer, and Bob Hoover carried the blunt of the Raider scoring attack in racking up their win at the Ashley gym Friday night. Many Spencerville fans were leaving the gym when Hoover and Dwyer cut loose with baskets in the final minutes to overcome a 7 point lead that brought back the early leavers to watch their boys win the game in overtime.

A field goal by Hoover and successful attempts by Webb and Hook from the free throw line accounted for the overtime win, as Ashley could only cash in on 3 foul line attempts. Ellert led the Aces with 19 points in scoring and Dwyer's 13 was big for Spencerville with Hoover close with 10.

THE St. Joe seconds showed some signs of improvement although losing both of their games last week They lost to Harlan 25-18 but gave them a battle the whole distance. Friday evening's battle of the second stringers at Woodburn was a thriller with the St. Joe seconds rallying in the closing moments of the game, but failing to tie the score. The final score stood at 17 to 15. Several casualties were suffered by the St. Joe second team. Six stitches were required to close a cut above Basset's eye and McMaken suffered a wrist injury.

The Spencerville second team lost their prelim game by a 34 to 16 score.

SATURDAY night at Hamilton, completed our week of basketball, and again sorry to say our home town heros were on the short end. Sechlers team in the Hamilton Division of the Steuben County Independent league lost to Harger's Locker of Hamilton in the 3rd game of the opening round of play, at the Hamilton gym. A goodly crowd of home town fans considering the distance saw Coach Sechler's small but speedy boys lose out by a 38 to 20 score. Monroe, Tatlock, Baker, Arnette and Donnie Miller started, and although showing a good scrappy floor game. were away under par in their shooting and lacked rebound strength. Draggoo, Sechler, White and Church also saw action in the game. Their next league engagement will be Saturday, Nov. 19, meeting the Mixing Bowl also of Hamilton.

An open date in Spencerville's basketball calendar for next week has been filled with the scheduling of a game with Leo to be played at the Butler gym on Tuesday, Nov. 22.

Calling all outdoorsmen

By JIM MITCHELL

Are you having trouble hitting ducks or rabbits or quail with the old scattergun? Are you missing shots that you think you should connect on?

All of us who enjoy gunning for waterfowl or upland game at times experience trouble in hitting the comparatively easy shots. Usually, too, when we miss such shots we blame it on faulty patterns and seldom take into consideration our limitations or inaccuracies.

Naturally good shooting first depends on the hunter's ability to coordinate, to figure proper leads and to judge distances. Also, much of the success of good shooting depends on the shotgun you are using. And I don't mean the model or make of the shotgun, for good guns are made in single barrel, pump, automatic and dauble barrel models. Choice of one over another is strictly a personal matter.

But it is important to have a gun that fits you correctly and has the right boring for the game you're after.

For several decades many hunters have considered a shotgun with a 30 or 32 inch barrel, bored full choke, the all-purpose gun. Why this is true probably always will remain a mystery. It is, however, unsound reasoning.

Few game animals or birds are bagged at distances beyond 40 yds., and by far the greatest number of shots offered a gunner are under that distance.

Shooting beyond 40 yards often calls for a full-choke gun-but why penalize yourself with a "tight" pattern when most of your targets will be under the 40-yard mark. For this shooting either a modified or open bored gun is superior. This way you can take full advantage of the widest possible pattern and partially, compensate for you own inaccuracies.

So before you start condemning the shells for missed targets, ask yourself just one question: Is the gun I'm using right for my shooting?

LADIES LITERARY CLUB

Mrs. Wayne Storer was hostess to the Ladies Literary Club Wed. evening, Nov. 10, at the home of Mrs. Ed Storer.

Indiana Literature was the topic for study and Mrs. Weldon Shafer presented a broad outline of what has been accomplished in the field of letters by natives of the Hoosier State. Mrs. Allen Haller devoted part of the evening to the life and works of James Whitcomb Riley, one of our most representative and illustrious authors, whose centennial is celebrated this year. Readings were given by the leaders from Riley's poems, and Mrs. Frank Shull assisted in a pantomime "That old Sweetheart of Mine."

Mrs. Inez Hadsell read an inspiring article, "Three Lives" and conducted a scrambled word contest.

The critic suggested we add the word "Guileless" to our vocabulary, using the word at least four times in conversation in the coming two weeks.

Mrs. Alma Lung, Mrs. Geo Siamanton and Mrs. A. J. Smith were guests. Nineteen members and one emeritus member were present.

Mrs. Carlos Church will be hostess for the next meeting of the club and Mrs. Cora Curie will be the leader, presenting Mr. L. F. Tombow of Butler, who will speak on Indiana Institutions.

PLEASE

Take time to read some of the things which "I.G.A. means in the grocery business. Last year I.G.A." rose from 4th to 3rd place in volume of sales in the entire United States passing one large chain which operates many stores in the surrounding counties. As a test to convince yourself of the real worth of "I. G. A." to consumers just ask any independent grocer why he doesn't belong to "I.G.A." and he'll usually say that the retail price advertised by "I. G. A" is so low that it doesn't leave the grocer a large enough percentage of profit. In short an I.G.A. store must depend on large volume and not big profits in order to make money. The following quotation is taken from the "I.G.A. weekly news letter: "Oh the crying need for intelligent understanding and unselfish leadership in America's business.S omewhere in America there must be a few leaders who love their fellow men - - who understand what neighbor means - have understanding hearts who know that the future of the America as we have known it rests in better and better standards of living for every American.

Is it out of place here to consider the real objectives of business?

(A) To render real helpful service to all American citizens alike.

(B) To steadily improve and increase the standard of living for all American citizens alike.

(C) To make profit

When business puts (C) ahead of (A) and (B) it opens the door for unnumbered evils which constitute the only draw backs to our competitive system.

Every business man should ask himself every day, "Who is my neighbor?" In answer some one has said, "Everyone to whom we have the opportunity of doing good."

When the Service was TOO GOOD TO BE TRUE

(a short short story that really happened)

Jackson blinked his eyes and looked at the caller again.

It had been perhaps fifteen minutes since the lights flicked out in Jackson's home. About ten minutes had passed since he checked the fuses and found them all OK. Then he had waited a short while to see if when the storm subsided the juice would come back on. When it didn't, he called the power company. He remembered glancing at his watch as he phoned, remembered it distinctly. It was precisely 10:30 when the pleasant voice had said, "We'll send a man right over."

Well, there was a man there all right. And he said the electric company sent him. But Jackson's watch said 10:33. Incredible. Jackson eyed the man with suspicion. What's this guy's racket anyhow?

"Look, Bud," Jackson said. "I call at 10:30 exactly, and you drive out 17 miles from town—on slippery roads no less—and get here three minutes later. Got any identification?"

The man produced his credentials and a broad grin at the same time.

"I get it," he said. "It's been happening a lot since the company put two-way radios in our emergency cars. We're not always this quick, of course. I just happened to be leaving a job on Henderson Road just below here when the office shot me your call. But we often do show up so soon that a lot of folks react like you did. They think somebody's pulling a fast one on them."

"Fast is a good word for it," laughed Jackson. "Nice going."

"Thanks," said the man. "Now suppose I start looking for your trouble."

ROTO SECTION

When the frost is on the punkin and the fodder's in the shock,
And you hear the kyouck and gobble of the struttin' turkey-cock,
And the clackin' of the guineys, and the cluckin' of the hens,
And the rooster's hally looyer as he tiptoes on the fence;
O, it's then the time a feller is a-feelin' at his best,
With the risin' sun to greet him from a night of peaceful rest,
As he leaves the house, bareheaded, and goes out to feed the stock,
When the frost is on the punkin and the fodder's in the shock.

They's something kindo' harty-like about the atmusfere
When the heat of summer's over and the coolin' fall is here
Of course we miss the flowers, and the blossoms on the trees,
And the mumble of the hummin'-birds and buzzin' of the bees;
But the air's so appetizin'; and the landscape through the haze
Of a crisp and sunny morning of the airly autumn days
Is a pictur' that no painter has the colorin' to mock
When the frost is on the punkin and the fodder's in the shock.

The husky, rusty russel of the tossels of the corn,
And the raspin' of the tangled leaves as golden as the morn;
The stubble in the furries — kindo' lonesome-like, but still
A-preachin' sermuns to us of the barns they growed to fill;
The strawstack in the medder, and the reaper in the shed;
The hosses in theyr stalls below— the clover overhead!
O, it sets my hart a-clickin' like the tickin' of a clock,
When the frost is on the punkin and the fodder's in the shock.

Then your apples all is gethered, and the ones a feller keeps
Is poured around the cellar-floor in red and yaller heaps;
And your cider-makin's over, and your wimmern-folks is through
With theyr mince and apple-butter, and theyr souse and sausage too! ...
I don't know how to tell it — but ef such a thing could be
As the angels wantin' boardin', and they'd call around on me —
I'd want to 'commodate 'em—all the whole-indurin' flock
When the frost is on the punkin and the fodder's in the shock.

MODERN FARMING

For Extra Profit
MAKE YOUR PULLETS SHELL OUT NOW

YEAR in and year out, November and December are almost always the months of peak egg prices. This year is no exception. If egg prices follow their usual pattern of ups and downs, they'll continue on up this month and next and start on the decline about Jan. 1st, sliding lower and lower until mid-summer.

Wise poultry producers, from years of experience, know this egg price pattern by heart. Because of it, they plan their operations to get as many eggs per hen in November and December as possible.

How's production stacking up on your flock right now? Are you satisfied with it? Is there anything you can do to get more eggs the remainder of this month and next? It will pay you to check your feeding and management program closely and correct any short-comings that may be costing you egg money you'll never recover later in the season.

The pictures below show a few good management ideas that may help you boost production for bigger poultry profits.

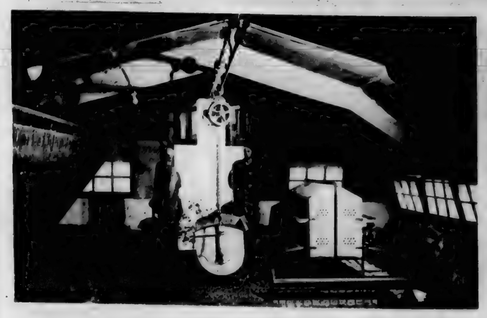
Keep mash hoppers filled at all times with a good, reliable egg mash of highest quality. Add fresh mash daily and stir the mash every time you enter the hen house to keep the birds interested and encourage eating.

Eggs are ⅔ water, which makes water the cheapest "feed" you can supply. Be liberal with it. Provide water fountain capacity of 6 to 8 gallons per 100 hens. R. M. Crittenden of Polk County, Iowa gathers eggs while his hens drink at one of their automatic waterers.

Provide plenty of "elbow" room at the feed hoppers, at least 3 five-foot hoppers for every 100 hens. Placing hoppers at right angles to the windows throws extra light on the feed and stimulates eating. Remember, it takes feed to make eggs.

In addition to mash feeding, it generally pays to hand-feed scratch grains in the litter every afternoon. If whole oats are fed in a separate hopper, hand-feed about 10 lbs. of scratch grains per 100 birds. Many top poultrymen also feed dairy by-product supplements for extra protein, minerals and vitamins.

Avoid over-crowding by providing about 4 square feet of floor space per bird. To keep appetites high, make it a practice to sprinkle egg mash pellets over the mash every noon. Never give more than the layers will clean up in half an hour.



To save on labor in cleaning the poultry house, Virgil Smith of Boone County, Iowa has installed this over-head litter carrier. Another effective labor saver is the deep litter system in which litter is built up with fresh straw during the year and requiring only one "house-cleaning" annually.

Winter or summer, spring or fall, it pays to keep an eye on egg quality. Collect eggs twice a day in a wire basket like this and keep them in the basket overnight to eliminate body heat before packing in the egg crate. A clean poultry house and clean litter will also help maintain egg quality.

Close culling, even when egg prices are good, pays off in the long run by eliminating "boarder birds" from the flock. Study up on sound culling practices or get the advice of the county agent, high school agricultural teacher, or a trained poultryman of the feed company who supplies you with poultry rations.

LIVESTOCK
need these TRACE MINERALS with Salt for Health . . . Thrift and Greater Profit!

Trace minerals are needed only in very small amounts. But those small amounts are highly important. They influence the entire hormone, enzyme and vitamin functions of the body — the basic life activities.

Few animals get enough trace minerals. Heavy cropping of land and erosion have taken them from our soil...even where the land seems richest. You lose in terms of slower gains, less milk, higher feeding costs . . . lower profits.

Protect your livestock . . . your profits. Feed Morton's Trace Mineralized Salt free choice. Be sure that your animals are getting enough cobalt, iron, copper, manganese, iodine and salt. Ask for Morton's Trace Mineralized Salt by name.

Livestock Need Cobalt

Cobalt sets up a vigorous condition in the digestive tract for better assimilation of feed nutrients. It also works with iron and copper to make healthy blood.

Livestock Need Manganese

Manganese is important to reproduction and milk in mother animals. It is also needed for sound bone growth and functioning. It is in the bone marrow that blood is formed.

Livestock Need Iron and Copper

Iron and copper unite to make the hemoglobin or red blood corpuscles which carry the oxygen needed by body cells to absorb and utilize feed nutrients. Prevent nutritional anemia.

Livestock Need Iodine

Iodine is necessary for making the hormone thyroxin in the thyroid gland which controls the entire activity of the body. Healthy thyroids help assure thrifty, vigorous, profitable animals.

FREE CHOICE SALT IS THE LOGICAL CARRIER FOR TRACE MINERALS IRON, COPPER, COBALT, MANGANESE, IODINE

Salt and the trace minerals work together for one over-all effect — thriftier, healthier animals. They work better as a team than as individual elements. Because of this interdependence, they should be supplied the most effective, economical way . . . by feeding Morton's Trace Mineralized Salt free choice.

Struts DOWN CRANBERRY LANE

By SUSAN LOWE

TIMES have changed since that first Thanksgiving. Today we live in an era of travel by plane instead of by sailing vessel . . . of electric and gas cookery rather than fire on the open hearth . . . and were our Pilgrim Fathers to awaken after some three hundred years' sleep, I'm afraid they'd rub their eyes and think themselves in the world of Alice in Wonderland.

One thing hasn't changed tho and that's the Thanksgiving Day Feast, for the plump golden brown turkey still struts down cranberry lane, followed by a procession of tangy salads, steamed fruity puddings and rich spicy pies.

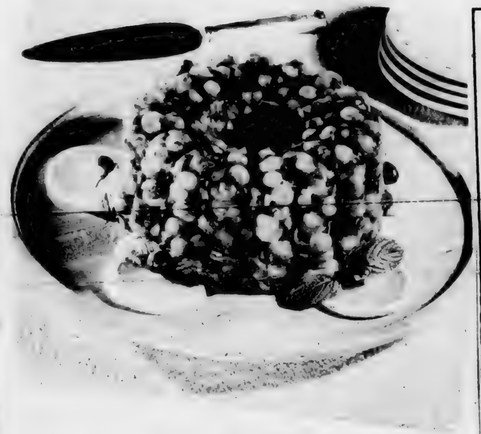
Perhaps you'd like to start your feast off in the modern manner with a fruit cup topped with cider or cranberry sherbet. Or you might serve cranberry jelly turkey with crackers spread with cheese.

Stuff your turkey with dressing to which cranberries have been added. Or try something different in stuffings — possibly a Yorkshire Golden Raisin Bread Stuffing for turkey . . . or an Orange Bread Stuffing for goose . . . Apricot Bread Stuffing for duck . . . Danish Apple Bread Stuffing or even Cornbread Stuffing for chicken.

Instead of the usual mashed Hubbard squash serve split, baked acorn squash and fill the cavity with buttered green beans or peas. Let the salad be fruits molded in cider aspic; or cranberry jelly turkeys on a slice of pineapple.

Desserts also offer opportunity for variation. Serve pumpkin pie with ginger meringue, or bake the pumpkin filling in individual pastry-lined pans; when done shred yellow cheese over each little pie to give it a fluffy golden crest. Indian Pudding — the dessert of early Thanksgiving feasts — may be brought up to date if served a la mode with warm maple syrup. If the dessert is to be mincemeat pie, make individual ones with turkey pastry covers.

The turkey still reigns — he's king for a day!



MOLDED CRANBERRY SAUCE

2½ cups cranberries	1 pkg. orange or lemon gelatin
1⅔ cups water	dash of salt
⅔ cup sugar

Place cranberries in saucepan and add water. Cook slowly until skins pop and berries are soft. Drain; measure juice and add hot water to make 1½ cups. Dissolve gelatin, sugar and salt in hot liquid. Put cranberries through strainer and add pulp to gelatin mixture. Turn into large mold. Chill until firm. Garnish with orange slice, raw cranberries and mint. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Six Men Involved In Bank Case Reindicted

Six men accused of being involved in the $350,000 Spencerville bank fraud will be rearrested on new indictments returned against them by the federal grand jury at Hammond late last Thursday afternoon.

The tentative date for the second arraignments has been set for Friday, November 25. Government spokesmen stated that the date is contingent on whether defendants and their lawyers will be able to appear in court at that time.

The original indictments, pending since last Oct. 14, were dismissed last Thursday by the government.

Judge Luther M. Swygert said that the cases are scheduled for trial in federal court at Ft. Wayne during the January term.

With the accounts of approximately 100 depositors of the bank remaining to be checked, Franklin Fell, federal accountant in charge said the estimated loss in the swindle remains unchanged.

The new, 46-count indictment charges Rectenwall with "wilfully misapplying the bank's funds with intent to defraud." The former cashier, and Roy C. Chaney, Jr. are also charged in a separate, six-count indictment with devising a check-kite scheme to defraud the bank and using the mails to carry out their scheme.

All four of the other men involved: Dale Wicoff, Andrew J. Miller, Ray Hoover and Lesil O. Bardsley are charged with aiding and abetting the 65-year old former cashier. Specific charges are that they wrote checks ranging from Wicoff's $769 to Bardsley's $3,043, after their accounts had already been overdrawn.

Mrs. Carlos Church and Mrs. Bob Davis met with the Nusiance Club Thursday night (along with other sponsors) at the Legien Home. Mr. and Mrs. Bob Davis were the chaperones on Nov. 24.

LEO WHIPS SPENCERVILLE 63 TO 48

The expetced Spencerville and Leo baketball battle didn't develop as many had thought, and the Leo Lions literally and physicaly ran away with the Spencerville Red Raiders before a capacity house at the Butler gym, Tuesday evening. The final score was 63 to 48

For Leo, although, under a new coaching hand this year, it was the same fast breaking, long passing and hard driving under the basket style of play that paid off and saw the Raiders hopes for their 4th straight victory blow up in their faces.

Leo got away fast and had a 10 to 3 lead just several minutes before the end of the first quarter, but the Raiders hit their first two-pointers of the game and closed the score a little and Leo led 14 to 10.

Spencerville fell flat on their face in the basket making department in the second quarter and didn't get a field goal. Leo led 30 to 14 at the big intermission.

In the third quarter, with Al Paschen beginning to find the range, Spencerville began to close the gap and many thought they were within striking distance for one of their whirlwind finishes, as they trailed 41 to 29.

But in the last quarter, Leo started to run - - - that is a little faster than they had been the three previous quarters, and time after time with the aid of long passes they sailed under the basket alone for perfect shots.

Paschen led all scoring and although getting off to a poor start, poured 8 field goals thru and picked 5 more on free tosses for 21 points.

M. Amstutz, Venderly and Sumney headed the well balanced Leo scoring thrust and all had over 10 points.

In the prelim contest, the Raiders put on a fast closing last quarter but couldn't catch the Leo reserves and lost 21 to 19.

TIGERS LOSE BY 43 TO 33 SCORE TO HICKSVILLE

The St. Joe Tigers lost again at Hicksville on Tuesday evening after raising the hopes of home-town fans during a fast 3rd quarter.

The Tigers continually missed free throws during the first half, making only four of twelve shots. This hurt their efforts considerably since the score at half-time was Hicksville 17, St. Joe 10.

In the third quarter the Tigers caught fire and at one time led 20 to 19. Bob Richmond sparked the rally with some heads-up guarding, intercepting several Hicksville passes and driving under for three baskets. But his efforts, coupled with lack of team work, weren't enough to hold up the Tiger score as Hicksville got hot and ended the quarter in the lead, 29-21.

The final stanza was fairly even in scoring as Hicksville outscored St. Joe 14-12. But those first quarter misses on free throws had done the damage and the score ended at 43 to 33.

Bob Richmond was high scorer for St. Joe with 9 points. Right behind were Fetters with 8 (making good on all his four free-throws), DuWayne Richmond with seven and Inlow with six. St. Joe lost only one man on fouls, Inlow in the last period.

The St. Joe seconds were snowed under, 34-8.

HOME EC. CLUB

HERE 'N THERE IN SPORTS

By LEWIS H. WALTER

The St. Joe Tigers proved no match for the Churubusco High School basketball quintet Friday evening and went down under a 46 to 23 flurry of baskets at the St. Joe gym, Friday evening.

The Busco boys got off to a good fast start and with Fredericks their big center turning in a standout performance under the boards, had little trouble with the local team.

Inlow continued his pacing of the local scorers and piled up 11 more to his credit. Frederick got 18 for Busco.

The St. Joe seconds lost a good battle to the Busco second stringers by a 21 to 19 score.

. . . . . .

Sechler's independent team in the Steuben County League won their game with the Mixing Bowl of Hamilton by a 30 to 25 score at the Hamilton gym Saturday evening. Diderich and Arnette contributed heavily in scoring for Sechler's. The league will not be active this week as no games were scheduled over the Thanksgiving Day Holiday.

. . . .

THE St. Joe Junior High team will play at Auburn on Tuesday evening, Nov. 29.

. . . . .

THE Ashley Aces turned in a beautiful giant killing job last week, knocking off two of the biggest schools in the county, Garrett and Auburn on successive Tuesday and Friday evening.

Garrett fell by a 56 to 55 score on their own floor; and on Friday the County line boys invaded the Auburn gym and led the defending super regional champs from wire to wire to win 51 to 45.

1,840 OF STATE'S SCHOOL BUSES MUST BE REPAIRED OR REPLACED

The Indiana school bus safety committee acted this week to prevent school transportation tragedies by ordering school units to repair or replace vehicles that fail to meet state safety regulations.

Letters to 1,840 school bus drivers and the trustees of townships in which the vehicles are operated promised enforcement by Police in case of non-compliance. The letters were signed by Arthur M. Thurston, State Police superintendent and Dean Walker, State superintendent of public instruction, who are members of five-man committee.

In a join statement, Thruston and Walker emphasized that the move is "to safeguard the school child in transit, as required by state law." They pointed out that 3,582 of the 5,422 vehicles inspected recently by State Police were approved.

DeKalb county, with a total of 48 buses has 10 in need of repairs and 2 condemned that must be removed from service, according to inspection records. A total of 36 buses passed the inspection.

The Thurston, Walker statement explained the condemned buses will be permitted to operate until Feb. 15 to give the school units affected time to replace the obsolete equipment. New funds for township operation will be available in January, and modern bus equipment is available.

CULTURE CLUB

The Culture Club met at the home of Mrs. W. H. Baker, Wed. evening, November 16. The meeting was opened by the reading of the club collect. Mrs. Glen Wineland gave the devotions for the evening. She read an article entitled "The Land Where Worries Cease.

Mrs. Pluma Hamilton led the lesson for the evening. She first read a humorous article, ""Mamma Spanks Me," and then chose two articles for the group to read. They were, "Indian Trail to Success" and " Your Bit Part May Be a Star Role."

It was voted to have the business meeting before the special work, so roll call was given with twenty members answering with a household hint. Some very interesting ideas were given.

Mrs. Lynn Fisher was reported as improving. The club will remember her with cards and flowers.

The annual auction was held with very good results. A large selection of goods were brought in and auctioned off.

After the auction, Mrs. Baker served a delicious lunch.

The next meting will be held at the home of Mrs. Merle Furnish of Spencerville, with Mrs. Joseph Baidinger as co-hostess.

OUR COUNTY AND SOCIAL SECURITY

By Marjorie L. Forrest

The objective of Old-Age and Survivors Insurance progam is to pay benefits on the basis of the worker's average monthly wage when he is 65 or to his family if he should die before 65. Therefore, the Social Security Administration must have a record of the pay each worker receives. This record is kept in the form of a separate Social Security Account for each worker. To have a Social Security Account, the worker must have an account number card. The worker's name, together with the number on the card, identifies his account so that wages reported for him can be properly posted to his credit.

If you are employed in a mill, factory, office, store, bank garage, hotel, cafe, boarding house, beauty parlor you should have an account number. And you should have it whether you work full time or part time, or whatever your age.

Then show your card to your employer and make sure that he takes down your name and Social Security Account Number exactly as they are shown, this is necessary for reports he must make to the Government, showing the wages he has paid to you. Take care of your card. It is like an insurance policy. It shows you have an insurance account with the U. S. Government under the Old-Age and Survivors Insurance system. This account is a record of the pay you receive which count toward your future benefits. The size of the benefits will depend upon the amount of wages credited to your account.

Our office is open from 8:30 a. m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday. I wil be in Auburn on the 1st and 3rd Thurs. at the Post Office.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
International Uniform Sunday School Lessons
By DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

SCRIPTURE: Jeremiah 1; 14:7-22; 20; 22:1-23; 32:6-10; 37-39.
DEVOTIONAL READING: Phillipians 1:12-20.

Spokesman of God

Lesson for November 27, 1949.

GOD MAKES USE of strange characters. What shall we think of a preacher who tried to beg off from being a preacher? What can we make of a man who actually reproached God for forcing him into the ministry? How shall we rate a man who in time of war urged his own nation to surrender, who was believed by almost nobody, who was repudiated by his own class and even his own family? What can we say of a man who was often in hot water with the city authorities, who spent months of his time in jail, who was called subversive, and who never got along with the established religion of his time?

Dr. Foreman

The prophet Jeremiah was that man; yet posterity honored him. His own generation thought him a liar. But some then knew, as we know today, that he was a teller of God's truth, a spokesman of God.

Was He a Pessimist?

WE KNOW (Jer. 1) that Jeremiah did not wish to be a prophet in the first place, though unlike Isaiah he shrank back not from a sense of sin but because he thought of himself as a mere child.

We know (chap. 20) that at times he was thoroughly discouraged about himself, and even cursed the day he was born. It is also true that in the last war waged by his little country of Judah before it was smashed, his advice from beginning to end was "Surrender."

No wonder people thought him a pessimist, a calamity-howler. But before we call him such names we must remember two things. First is, that his unwillingness to be a prophet, and the fact that so to speak he hated the job, marks a vital fact: he, perhaps even more than other prophets, sensed the difference between his own ideas and what God was saying through him.

Even when what the Lord said was not what they themselves would have wished to say, they spoke for the Lord nevertheless. The other thing to remember is that when everybody wants to believe a pleasant lie, and a man comes along telling the unpleasant truth, he is not a pessimist, he is simply stating facts.

Jeremiah stood by the facts as God gave him insight to see them. If they jailed him for it, he could not help that; but they could not shut his mouth nor close his eyes.

Was he a patriot?

JEREMIAH was constantly accused of acts and attitudes which today might be called "subversive," though he dearly loved his country. This was because he dared to rebuke the ambitions of his country's leaders.

They said: Our country shall be free! But Jeremiah knew it would not be free. They said: Our king will conquer! Jeremiah knew he would end his days a prisoner. Jeremiah was unpopular, to put it mildly, because he advised his country to take the only place among the nations it could take—an humble one.

Then, as now, many persons think that patriotism means believing yours is the perfect country. If anyone points to injusice in our land, some one may yell, "Deport him!" But Jeremiah showed what is a true patriot. He is not necessarily the man who approves all the foreign policies of his nation (Jeremiah approved not one), nor the man who speaks only good of his country and his people.

The best patriot is the person who, seeing his country as God sees it, will dare to speak out against evil wherever he finds it.

A Way to Know God

JEREMIAH knew God well, and the trouble with his contemporaries was that they did not know God. But Jeremiah did not say: "Know God by becoming a prophet like me," for he knew that only a few are called to be prophets. Neither did he say, "Go to church oftener," for you can see in chap. 7 what he thought of the Temple of his time.

He pointed to the good king Josiah (chap. 13). That king had found God, not in a mystic vision like Jeremiah's, not in burnt offerings and sacrifices, but in the doing of justice looking out for the exploited, caring for the helpless, seeing that justice was done.

West's Culture Assailed As Soviet Schools Open

LONDON, Sept. 1—A new school year began in Russia today and Pravda, the Communist party newspaper, exhorted teachers to fill their students with "profound contempt for bowing and scraping before the bourgeois culture of the West."

A Pravda editorial, broadcast by the Moscow radio, said teachers had failed in the past to "reveal the advantages of the Socialist system" in history and geography lessons. It charged the teachers with "passing over in silence the priority of inventions and discoveries by Russian scientists."

Pravda also said that too many children in the lower grades were failing to pass the courses.

"Serious

Dear Soviet Teachers:

We note that you have been discreetly silent on some aspects of the Communist system. And that you have been urged by Pravda to fill your students with "profound contempt" for the admiration given to ours.

May we respectfully suggest a few more things that you'd better keep quiet about if you want the young Russians to grow up convinced Communists.

Don't tell them that in America the opportunity for advancement is unlimited—that here a man can work where he pleases and change his job when he pleases, and that he has the right to organize and bargain collectively.

Don't say anything about the competitive system, with rewards for initiative and enterprise in free markets—the same system which has produced a standard of living about ten times higher than yours.

Don't mention that here people can own things and manage their own businesses . . . and invest money in new undertakings.

Don't breathe a word about the American urge to invent better machines—and more productive ways to use them.

Don't refer to a dynamic way of life that keeps on turning out more and better goods—keeps on lowering costs and raising wages, with shorter working hours.

In other words, don't give them any of the facts about what happens when free people, governing themselves and spurred by ambition, go all-out to build a new kind of country —different from any the world has ever seen.

We don't say our way is perfect—far from it. We still have our ups and downs of prices and jobs. But we know what's wrong and we're free to do something about it. Change is our middle name. And in the long run, our system always changes for the better.

P. S. About that "priority of inventions," the point isn't whether the Russian scientist Lodygin invented electric light before Edison, but what happened after it was invented. Which system—yours or ours—has mass-produced for more people the daily benefits of such inventions as the automobile, telephone, radio, refrigeration, central heating, modern plumbing and better farm machinery? The world knows that it is our system!

Calling all outdoorsmen

By JIM MITCHELL

I happened to overhear an argument the other day that some hunters were having about the various speeds game birds can fly. One of the fellows said that the grouse was the fastest another picked the pheasants and the third one stood pat on the quail.

It was a friendly argument, but after a lengthy debate none of the hunters had changed his opinion.

To start with, the argument probably never can be settled to everyone's complete satisfaction from a hunting standpoint. Tests have been made that prove the pheasant is the fastest of the three birds mentioned. And a grouse probably can outspeed a quail over a 100 yd. straightaway course.

But these speeds are beside the point in hunting. Who cares how fast a bird can fly on a speedway with no gunners.

The pheasant is a fairly slow starter, lumbering into the air from ground cover and not hitting high gear for several yards. Consequently, the pheasant gives the impression of being slow. And this slow start does offer an easier target for the average hunter.

Quail and grouse, on the other hand, are speedy starters, springing into the air and getting away quickly. The element of surprirse, the burst of speed at first and the the size of the birds make them a more difficult target. And when quail are in timber they offer a very similar target to the grouse.

A bird doesn't have to be actually flying fast to appear to be breaking all speed records when it is passing by and through the trees.

And seldom will you find grouse outside this type of cover. Quail, however, often are in the open and it is easy to judge their speed if you'll forget about shooting and just watch the birds sail off.

Washington Outlook

by HARRY LANDO

Milk prices in 1950 will be supported at 80 percent of parity, according to sources close to the Sec. of Agriculture.

The Anderson price support law, due to become effective next Jan. 1, gives the Secretary broad powers to set almost any support levels except for the basics and a few others including milk. The basics (corn, wheat, cotton, tobacco, peanuts and rice) and milk must be supported at between 75 percent in 1951 before the Secretary can drop support levels.

There has been considerable speculation about what the present Secretary, Charles F. Brannan, would do about supporting those crops on which the law allows him to drop support levels. Already publicly announced for 1950 is 60 percent on potatoes. But the potato growers, through their national organization, have asked for 60 percent as a deterrent to overproduction.

Along with the potato price support announcement, came news of an acreage cut of 85,300 acres. This is designed to cut the 1950 crop to 335 million bushels, 52 million bushels less than this year.

Although the percentage of parity remains the same, the new law computes parity differently, so that the new support price will actually be lower. Where potatoes this year had an average support price of $1.08 per bushel, next year's average will be around 96 cents.

The potato action was not unexpected. Main interest centered on what Brannan would do about such products as milk and eggs, both of which have resulted in heavy losses. There have been no official hints, and the tidings about 80 percent on milk in 1950 came through a "leak." It was authoritative, but confidential and not official.

Where potato parity will drop under the new formula, a milk parity will go up, so that 80 percent next year will not be too much different from 90 percent this year in actual money.

This is the first really good clue as to how Brannan will administer the new law, and it indicates that he will be on the high price support side.

The Associated Poultry and Egg Industries last week asked Brannan to drop support levels on eggs and chickens to 70 or 75 percent of parity and on turkeys to 75 or 80 percent. Brannan was cordial but did not commit himself.

The group contended that present support levels would lead to drastic over-production next year. They said that lower prices would encourage consumption.

The group represents large commercial producers, rather than farmers.

. . . . .

The United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization Council last week met to decide what questions will be considered at the general meeting this week.

Most important development was the virtual collapse of the international commodity clearing house idea. This scheme was unveiled by an international group of economists a few months ago. The idea was for all participating nations to subscribe in their own currencies to a fund. Then shortage nations could buy from surplus nations, pay in their own money, and the fund would pay the exporting nations in their money.

This column consulted several economists at the time, and was told that the whole thing would amount actually to another U. S. subsidy. We would be paid for our surpluses in our own dollars, and when these were gone, we'd have to put up more. Meanwhile, the fund would fill up with other currencies. Sort of an I. O. U. proposition with little chance that we would ever get paid.

And it now appears that this estimate of the plan will be the official U. S. reaction to it. Since U. S. participation is necessary, the plan is pretty dead. FAO this week will try to think up something else but solutions to the problem of U. S. surpluses are hard to find.

. . . . .

Great Britain will buy apples in the U. S. with $4 million provided by the Marshall Plan. The Government continues to try to find markets abroad for our fruit, but this is hard to do even under the Marshall Plan. Marshall Plan nations need a great many things, and our grants are being cut.

The Department of Agriculture continues to study subsidies to encourage farm exports, particularly of fruit. Now in the planning stage is a broadly expanded system of export subsidies for the years after the end of the Marshall Plan.

The Senate price-spread subcommittee headed by Sen. Guy M. Gillette (D., Iowa) resumes on Nov. 28 its quests for facts about why the consumer is paying almost as much for food despite large drops in prices to farmers.

On the 28th, members of the baking industry will be quizzed. On succeeding days, various Department of Agriculture officials will be called to testify as to differences in prices paid farmers and prices charged consumers over the past 25 years. Then this period will be contrasted with the situation today.

Stormy day will be Dec. 2, when the director of the dairy branch, Philip E. Nelson, will have questions shot at him . . . and Theodore C. Montague, president of the Borden Co. will also tell his story. The subcommittee wants facts about the milk marketing orders, which it feels may not be working too well.

. . . . .

Fewer sheep and lambs will be fed for the wintere and spring markets but the volume of cattle feeding will be as large or larger than last year, according to the Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

10 ARRESTED FOR VIOLATION OF GAME LAWS

Conservation Officers of the Indiana Department of Conservation's enforcement division are on the march carrying out the huge task of apprehending violators of various hunting and fishing laws. Arrests totaling nearly one hundred have been made in the first 10 days of November. Fines to the amount of $1,911 have been assessed and paid by violators. Scores of weapons have been confiscated as have the personal hunting and fishing licenses and free permits of those guileless individuals who have run afoul the law.

Charges upon which arrests were made included killing hen pheasants, an open season for which does not exist; hunting and possessing raccoon during closed season; hunting rabbits during closed season; no license; killing wild duck in closed season; trespassing; hunting waterfowl after sun time (one hour before sunset); hunting migratory waterfowl without U. S. duck stamp; no plug in gun; hunting migratory waterfowl before opening of season; wire trapping fish and other illegal hunting and fishing procedures.

ARTIFICIAL BREEDING ASS'N. TO HOLD MEETING AT AUBURN NOVEMBER 29

The county extension office announced that the second annual meeting of the DeKalb County Artificial Breeding Association will be held Tuesday evening, November 29, beginning at 7:30 at the City Hall assembly room in Auburn. An interesting program has been arranged which will include a talk by E. A. Cannon, Purdue University dairy specialist, on the subject, "How to Improve Dairy Production Through Better Breeding and Management." Also P. I. Higley of the Indiana Artificial Breeding Association will speak on the "Use of Proved Sires and How They Are Figured." This discussion will show the difference between proved and improved and approved sires and will show the benefits of using proved sires. Jay Gould of radio station WOWO also has been engaged to attend the annual meeting and will comment on agriculture activities in general in this area.

Directors will be elected from Concord, Smithfield, Grant, Fairfield and Franklin Townships. Although this is an annual meeting it is open to the public as an educational meeting. Musical entertainment has also been engaged.

Over 2000 cows have been bred artificially by the association and somewhere near 1200 calves now roam the pastures of DeKalb County as a result of this association.

FARMERS URGED TO GET TREES IMMEDIATELY

Hoosier landowners who desire to obtain seedling stock for land improvement purposes from the State Forestry Division, were urged today to get their application blanks in at the earliest possible date.

Richard Rambo, forester in charge of nursery supervision, warned that the supply of seedlings is rapidly becoming exhausted, due to the tremedous demands already imposed by orders received. "Our supply of Scotch and Austrian pines has already been exhausted, and we have only limited numbers of various other species," Rambo said.

Application blanks may be obtained from the State Forester's office, State Library Building, Indianapolis, Indiana. These forms should be filled out completely and forwarded at once to the State Forester.

"Get your orders in at once," said Rambo, "if you want to be assured of a delivery of seedlings next spring."

Season's Greetings

We at the St. Joe Grocery are thankful for the patronage, patience and kind consideration which this community has shown us. We are thankful to live and work in a community where we have freedom of worship, freedom of speech and best of all freedom and ability to disagree with each other on certain issues and still stay personal friends. We are thankful for the words of praise which we received during those first weeks after opening our store when we were paying out more money each week than we were taking in. We needed encouragement. We are thankful for those little groups of friends who often meet and chat in our store. Just seeing them makes us feel that we helping to make our community a little happier and therefore a little better place to live. Such thoughts are often worth more than mere money.

Diederich-Musser

Miss Norma Jean Musser of Auburn was united in marriage with Eugene H. Diederich, in a candellight service at the Trinity English Lutheran Church in Auburn on Nov. 11 at 7:30 p. m. Rev Arthur Betz, pastor, officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Albert Musser, who are now residing in New Port Richey, Fla., for the winter months. Mr. and Mrs. Herman Diederich of R. R. 1 Auburn are the parents of the groom.

An organ musicale was presented by Franklin Bartels of Auburn preceding the ceremony. The altar was banked with palm trees and two silver seven-branch candelabra and silver vases holding pink and white chrysanthemeums. The chancel was decorated with white chrysanthemums and candles in the center and on either side.

As the bride walked down the white-carpeted aisle on the arm of the groom, she wore a white ivory satin gown with a low neckline and leg-o-mutton sleeves ending in points at the wrist. The full skirt finished in a chapel train. The veil was caught to a net half-bonnet accented by pearlized orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of white chrysanthemums centered with an orchid. The bouquet was tied with white satin streamers ending in knots. She wore a single strand of pearls and tiny pearl earrings, gifts of the groom.

Mrs. Jayne Brown of Waterloo, matron of honor, wore a gown of yellow taffeta. It was fashioned with the off-the-sholuder effect, fitted bodice and full skirt which fell into tiers at the hemline of the front of the skirt. She wore matching yellow mitts and carried a bouquet of bronze-colored chrysanthemums with yellow roses in the center. Her headpiece was of bronze-colored mums and yellow roses.

Lawrence Brown of Waterloo served as best man. Roland Davis and Russell Ridgway were the ushers. They wore dark brown business suits and white boutonnieres.

A reception was held in the church parlors. The beautiful three-tired wedding cake centered the table. It was made by Mrs. W. E. Bickel of Waterloo. Nuts, punch, mints and cake were served by Mrs. Donna Haymes of Auburn, Mrs. Loma Reed of Pierceton, sisters of the bride; Mrs. Joan Swift of Eaton and Mrs. Cordelia May of Waterloo, sisters of the groom.

For traveling to Niagara Falls, the new Mrs. Diederich was attired in a cinnamon-colored dress accented with dark brown accessories. She pinned the orchid from the bouquet to her coat.

The bride is a graduate of the Auburn High School and is a member of Tri Kappa sorority in Auburn. She is employed in the offie of the Messenger Corporation. The groom is a graduate of St. Joe High School and is employed at the Co-operative Mills in Auburn. They are residing at 317 West First Street, Auburn.

Soil Conservationist Addresses Lions

Charles Baum Gives Interesting Information On Soil Improvement And Maintenance

The St. Joe Lions Club helds its November 26th meeting at the Legion home with supper served by the Auxiliary.

The guest speaker, Mr. Charles Baum of the Soil Conservation Department, was introduced by Don Burley. Mr. Baum showed slides which indicated the difference in soils in various parts of this territory and the need for proper rotation of crops with respect to the construction and composition of the soil. He cited the ruinous effects on not only our land but our economy when "exploiters" farm for cash crops and fail to maintain the mineral content of the soil necessary for best production through many years of farming.

There is a moral obligation on the part of all farmers to maintain the productivity of the soil through crop rotation and fertilization for future generations, Mr. Baum concluded.

Lions Club Completes Project

The St. Joe Lions Club was given a report last Monday night by Bill Staman concerning a project which the club undertook just a few weeks ago.

The project was under the direction of the Sight Conservation Committee with Mr. Staman as chairman. He reported that Walter Miller, 7, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Miller of near St. Joe, was taken to Pontiac. Michigan, last Saturday to be treated at the Cross Eye Foundation, which is under the the direction of Dr. L. K. Mathews. Walter, accompanied by his mother, and Mr. Staman were driven on the 360-mile trip by Dale Wicoff and arrived there Saturday morning. There were many patients waiting for treatment and Walter had to wait a short while for his turn. The treatments last a very short time, usually not over a half-hour, and he soon was on his way home with his former cross-eye affliction corrected.

The Foundation has sent photographs and literature to Lions Clubs and other service clubs all over the nation showing the remarkable results obtained by treatments there. The local Lions Club has this information. Should you desire to read about these treatments, the local club will be glad to furnish information and photographs for your inspection.

Needless to say, there's a mighty happy boy playing at home today.

The Seal of Humanity

Washington Outlook

by HARRY LANDO

An absolute breakdown of negotiations for moving food surpluses in international trade featured the first week of the United Nation's Food and Agriculture Organization's annual meeting in Washington. The breakdown was not on the surface, but the only two plans for international disposal of surpluses ran into heavy going.

Actual admission of FAO defeat came in the form of a U. S. defense of production restrictions. The United Nations subsidiary group has as one of its main problems the slashing of food production by some nations while people starve in others. The organization set itself the places where there are surpluses to those places in the world where the crops are needed. Main surplus nation is the U. S., and controls on farm production here is regarded as tantamount to a confession of failure.

Accordingly, some foreign delegates vigorously attacked U. S. plans to cut back 1950 farm production on all basic and many other crops. These delegates contended that full U. S. farm production is necessary for a well-fed and hence peaceful world.

Stanley Andrews, director of the Office of Foreign Agricultural Relations, defended U. S. farm policy as designed to produce enough to satisfy domestic and foreign demand and to provide a normal commercial carryover as well as a healthy reserve to stimulate domestic and foreign demand and to take care of emergencies.

This, according to Andrews, is sufficient production. What he meant . . . but did not say . . . was that U. S. farmers would henceforth produce for the available cash market. We cannot produce to satisfy that part of world need which is not accompanied by cash for payment.

And so the real meaning of the FAO idea for disposal of U. S. surpluses would be sufficient to head off acreage allotments and marketing quotas here.

. . . . .

Corn, wheat, fruit, livestock, cotton and tobacco and dairy farmers are among those which export markets would help to a great extent. Even with the internationa wheat agreement, wheat exports are falling. Corn exports are up very slightly and fruit is benefitting from export subsidies. USDA has had its eyes on export subsidies as a way of getting rid of dried milk an aid to the dairy price support program. But unless foreign trade can be revived to a great degree, exports will fall in all categories.

Chief scheme before the FAO was the idea for an International Clearing House. All nations would contribute in their own currencies to a $5 billion fund. Then shortage nations would buy from surplus nations, using their own currency to buy. The exporting nations would be paid by the fund in their currencies. FAO would hold the soft currencies until they could be converted into dollars.

The U. S. would have been called on for over $2 billion. When it became clear that the U. S. would not go along under those terms, advocates of the idea receded from the $5 billion figure and offeded to setttle for a billion dollar fund. The U. S. still opposed. Less expected was British opposition on the grounds that clearing house possession of soft currencies would represent future debt for the soft currency nations. This would delay the day when normal international trade in foodstuffs could be resumed, according to the British.

This was the only serious plan under FAD consideration for the disposition of U. S. surplus foods. It was the only chance to head off acreage restrictions which have already been announced.

The U. S. entering a period in which all farmers are or soon will be producing commodities which are in surplus supply, is perhaps most interested in an FAO success. That the FAO has temporarily failed does not mean that success cannot be achieved at some later date when conditions are more normal.

The United Nations organization saw its surplus disposal scheme wrecked by the knottiest puzzle in history. This enigma goes by the high-sounding name of inconvertible currencies. Some explain the situation as being formed by hard money and soft money. Dollars are hard money; all other currencies are soft. The others are soft because they can't be converted into dollars.

Convertibility can only be attained when the soft curreny countries are able to sell goods and products to the dollar nations. But the dollar nations, principally the U. S., are buying less and less from soft currency countries.

Simply stated, foreign nations don't have the dollars to buy our grain, fruit, dairy products, etc. The FAO proposal really amounted to selling on credit. The British held that this plan would only put the soft currency nations deeper in debt and postpone their recovery. U. S.. objections were based on a belief that Congress had appropriated about as much money as it intended to make available for moving U. S. food to foreign nations, despite the promise of eventual repayment in this case.

We are cutting acreages while much of the world still needs the food we can grow and although the FAO meeting still may run for some time, it cannot now find any answer this year.

The two-price system backed by the National Grange, and already a part of U. S. policy, has stormy going ahead, according to some FAO delegates. Under the so-called two price system, the U. S. would sell farm commodities abroad at reduced prices through subsidies to exporters.

At present, the U. S. is subsidizing exports of fruits under Congressional authorization to use a part of customs receipts for this purpose. The Department of Agriculture had been eyeing the possibilities for using the same money to sell dried eggs and dried milk to foreign nations at reduced prices. The new farm price support law allows some openings for use of the two-price system, and those were also being studied.

According to certain delegates, the two price system has an effect just like domestic sale of price support commodities on the open market at distress prices. This has never been done, but if it were the grain, poultry, fruit, dairy and other farmers would find their prices slipping down to nothing and U. S. food processors would soon be bankrupt. These delegates say that the two-price system will have the same effect in international trade. Normal trade would be disrupted, they say, and all farmers would suffer.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

International Uniform Sunday School Lessons

By DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

SCRIPTURE: Jeremiah 8:8-13; 23; 26-28. DEVOTIONAL READING: Matthew 7: 15-23.

Prophets False & True

Lesson for December 4, 1949

GOD is neither silent nor dead. He has his spokesmen today. We hear myriads of voices—preachers, teachers, editors, columnists, poets and politicians, all professing to tell us the truth. When a man claims to speak in the name of truth, is there any way by which his claim can be tested? It is an old problem.

Dr. Foreman

Away back in Bible times every prophet had his rivals, the false prophets. The false were far more numerous, they often had immense prestige and government subsidies besides. How was the common man to tell the true prophets from the false?

Notion of Man or Word of God?

ONE DIFFERENCE between the true and false prophets, of course, was that the false ones passed out their own ideas, while the true ones gave voice to the ideas of God. Some of the false prophets even dug down into what we now call the subconscious, and told their dreams as if they meant something.

The false prophets of our own times are still the people who draw on their own minds, even on their day-dreams, to furnish messages for the people. The gypsy dreambooks are still with us. Astrologers flourish, and not always on the side streets. All sorts of queer cults profess to tell us what is coming next and what we ought to do.

Before we take a modern "prophet" seriously we should ask: Is what he is saying his own idea or God's idea? In this 20th century after Christ, it should be easier to know God's ideas are than it was 27 centuries ago in Jeremiah's time.

For now that Christ has come, we can safely check all the self-styled prophets with the message and the mind of Christ.

Is the voice of the people the voice of God?

THE FALSE PROPHETS were always popular, the true ones seldom. Mere unpopularity does not prove a man a true prophet; but you may be sure that if a man says only what people like to hear, always tickling the ears and feeding the pride of his listeners, he is no true spokesman for God.

Not that the true prophet is always insulting his hearers. The Lord's prophets often speak comforting and welcome words, to be sure. But a steady outpouring of soothing-syrup is not what we would expect from a genuine prophet.

Man is often most proud when he is most wrong; and then God has to sweep the man down. Don't take too seriously the men who merely reinforce your prejudices and shore up your pride; they are more likely fake prophets than true. The voice of the people is not always the will of God.

Time is the Test

That great prophet Moses (Deut. 18) had already given a practical test of a true prophet: Does what he says turn out to be true? Can he really see into tomorrow? Alas, we may have to wait until tomorrow to find out for sure; but tomorrow always comes, and when it comes, the prophets of today will be shown up for what they are, true or false. Time is the test. Not, Is it likely?

Truth and Right are Twins

PERHAPS the worst feature of the false prophets who were Jeremiah's competitors was their real immorality. "Their course is evil and their might is not right," he said (23:10, American translation). "They commit adultery and walk in lies, they strengthen the hands of evildoers so that no one turns from his evil ways" (v. 14).

God's spokesman can never also speak for the enemies of God. Whenever you hear anyone talking as if we could now get "beyond good and evil," or as if the Ten Commandments were something we had outgrown, then you may know you are listening to a false prophet.

There are no new commandments but the one which sums up all of them: Love one another. Prophets of hate, prophets of dissension, of lust, these may be speaking for themselves or for the devil—but not for God.

ON THE WING

Port Richey, Fla.
Nov. 21, 1949

To our Fellow Hoosiers,

We left our home at 5 a.m. Tuesday morning, Nov. 15, owing to the pleasant weather we went by the way of Cincinatti, Lexington, Knorville and Atlanta. This route is much rougher than the western route but much more scenic. The mountains were beautiful, mingled with the green pines were the red and yellow leaves which made an unforgettable scene.

The roads are much more winding and rougher than those by the way of Louisville, Nashville, Birmingham and Montgomery.

We drove 400 miles the first day, staying at Lafollete, Tenn., a town located just below the Kentucky line.. The second day we drove 380 miles, to the town of Americus, Ga. We finished our trip to Port Richey the next day at 2:30 p. m. The distance to here by this route is 1107 miles the western route is 1200 miles. But I think "The Longer way around is the shorter way home." We are comfortably situated in Stewards Cabins, right on US 19.

The weather on arriving was on the "coolish" side but to-day we are having shirt sleeve weather.

If you happen this way the latch string is always out, stop and bunk with us.

Fishing is excellent. The commercial fishermen brought in 4,500 lb. of mackerel this morning.

Clinton Webb, who formerly lived in Spencerville, and Mr. Altenbern of Alligan, Mich., brought in 50 fish tonight which weighed around 75lb. Most of them were blackfish and grouper. They bring big catches in each evening. They use a hook and line.

We would enjoying hearing from our friends and neighbors.

From your Hoosier friend,
Clyde Hart

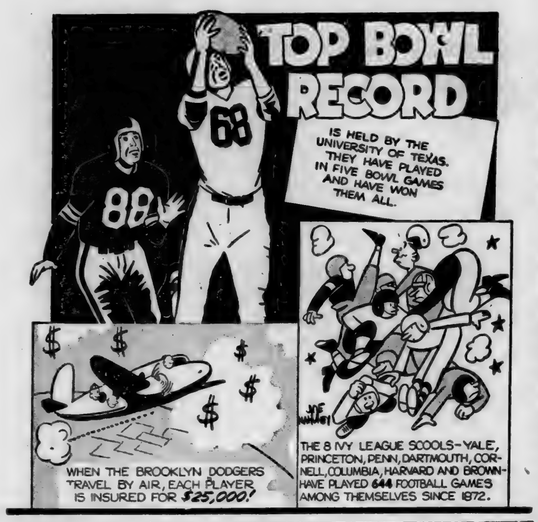
SPORTSCOPE By JOE MAHONEY



Calling all outdoorsmen

By JIM MITCHELL

Have the game hogs and illegal gunners or fishermen had easy pickings too long? Have we been too lenient with game code violators? The answer probably is yes to both questions.

Recently I heard a director of a state department of conservation remark that all of us are partly to blame for the deplorabel situation existing in most states regarding violations of the codes established to guard our wildlife resources.

He pointed out that too many sportsmen refuse to notify proper authorities about known violators. Sportsmen don't like being stool pigeons. Then, too, it was stressed that our game wardens are not all the best and devoted to duty. And, finally, the problem of just punishment for violators was injected into the discussion.

I believe teh punishment angle is one of the most vital phases of guarding our outdoor resources from those who are wasting wildlife at an unmerciful pace.

For instance, a man is arrested for killing 10 ducks when the limit is four - - and hauled before some justice of the peach for a hearing. In most cases the violator will get off with a fine of a few dollars - - and in many states this fine seldom exceeds $25.

That's not a stiff enough penalty to stop violations. In fact, boys with a lot of folding money probably fork over a $25 fine every day for the opportunity of getting double limits.

But if game code violations, at least for second or third offenders, carried a jail sentence it would be an entirely different story. No gunner or fisherman would risk having to spend a month or two behind bars for a few extra birds or animals.

So as the hunting seasons move along, let's all think a bit more about bringing the game code violations under hand. Let's enforce the laws and give game a break.

HERE 'N THERE IN SPORTS

By LEWIS H. WALTER

AS a result of a short lapse in schedules of St. Joe and Spencerville High School basketball teams, who are currently giving us most of sports material, we are giving a brief rundown of the county teams and the results of play in this month-old 49-50 campaign. Results are base on games played before Monday of this week.

ASHLEY'S ACES, who currently are second in the won and lost column, with 3 wins and 2 losses have been defeated only by Spencerville, in an overtime battle, and lost the first game of the season to a Steuben Co. five, Salem. Their early success and the fact that in that early success were victories over Garrett and Auburn within a single week, has many of the red and blue fans from the northern county line area wondering if this outfit will compare to the 45-46 sectional winners. Ellert and Buchs have been handling the top end of pretty well balanced scoring attack.

SPENCERVILLE has posted three victories so far and have been beaten only by Allen County teams, Harlan and Leo, in five games. Their three wins have been slightly sneak affairs with a double overtime win over Butler, a single overtime win over Ashley. Their win over Waterloo came at the end of a tremendous last quarter spurt. The Raiders are probably second only to Auburn in the height department, with Paschen, Webb and Leonard all ranging upward from the 6ft mark.

WATERLOO in four games have turned in 3 victories, including a well deserved win over Angola. Dick Hilkey and Don Robinson are giving coach Long a good performance under the boards, and Leins is the third man who is capable of a good scoring performance. Hilkey, who seems to be off to a terrific season as a junior has been blistering the nets quite consistently. In early games, however, personal fouls have been cutting his playing time down considerably.

AUBURN'S Red Devils started slowly under their new coach Randy Lawson, but have snapped into life in the last two games and before many more games the Devils will be presenting another high scoring outfit. Their record so far is 2 victories and 1 loss. Auburn has a tough schedule ahead, including games with three more Ft. Wayne schools. Sophomore Cal Grogcup looks more like another Scoholey every game, from his rebound work right to his red crop of hair. Beers, Wertenberg and Kelley are all potential high scorers and good ball handlers and play makers. The other forward spot seems to be more or less of a problem to the new coach. Theo Webb in that spot rounds out a team that averages well over 6ft in height; but so far the big, 6 ft. 2 inch senior hasn't showed a whole lot in the basket making part of the game. Clever, but little Meyers, can take over that spot, but hurts the teams rebound strength.

BUTLER has several good scorers in Hathaway, Beebe and Bellamy, but the latter hasn't come throughd as yet against tought opposition. The Windmills are small but are capable of going out and getting a good lead, but so far they haven't been able to hold too good, especially late in the game. They have posted wins over Hamilton and Wollcotville and have dropped double overtime games to Spencerville and Columbia City and lost to Auburn.

ST JOE'S TIGERS and GARRET'S Railroaders are still looking for victories this year. The Tigers so far haven't been able to piece together more than one quarter of good solid scoring at one time; and in several of their games were close in the third quarter, but were lossed during a last quarter let down in scoring. Roger Inlow, aided by Bub and Bob Richmond have been doing the heavy part of the scoring in early games. Burtis Dickman, who is doing most of the battling with the oppositions big men, has found the change over from second team ball a little tough, but is taking the ball off the boards a little more each game, but so far hasn't carried much of the scoring burden.

GARRETT seems to lack several good or even fair scorers to go along with their big center and pivot man, Clark. Ashley nosed by the Railroaders in their opening game, and since that they have lost to Huntertown and Kendallville. The Railroaders did give Kendallville a good battle before losing 46 to 36 and Duke Harper and Diederich did give their big teammate a little lift in the scoring department.

SECHLER'S independent team in the Steuben County League return to action with blood in their eyes and a even record of one lose and one win, vowing to get on the winning side of the ledger and stay there. Their game will be Saturday evening at the Hamilton gym and Pleasant Lake. The game is schedtheir opponents will be Lyons of uled as the second game and will probably get underway around 8:15.

THE ST. JOE Junior High basketball boys won and lost in their games at the Auburn gym Tuesday night. A good crowd of St. Joe and Auburn fans witnessed a ding-dong battle in the first game that saw our 7th grade although outweighed man for man in every position, whip the Auburn 6th grade by a 17 to 16 score. In the windup game of the evening, The Auburn Junior High won by a 29 to 21 socre over our 8th grade team.

Want A Bank? Attend This Meeting

Public Meeting To Be Held Tonight December 8

A citizens committee has been formed in Spencerville to investigate, the possibilities of regaining a bank for this community.

The members of the committee, Roscoe Walters, Paul B. Partee and W. E. Weninger, have made contacts to find out what procedure can be followed. They contacted the Lincoln National Bank in Ft. Wayne and were told that the law does not permit branch banks in other counties, hence the Lincoln Bank could not open a branch. Also, it is neccessary that a bank have a capital stock of $500,000 to open a branch. Auburn State Bank is the largest in DeKalb Co., with a capital stock of but $75,000. Withdrawal from the Federal Reserve System would permit establishment of a branch bank without the $500,000 capital stock, but Auburn State Bank will not take this step. The only alternative is a new bank.

Pledges of between $15,000 and $20,000 have been secured and the committee feels that a like amount can be raised.

Citizens interested in the welfare of the Leo, Spencerville and St. Joe communities are urged to attend the meeting tonight, Thursday, Dec. 8, at 8: 00 p. m. The meeting place is the Spencerville School.

OUR COUNTY AND SOCIAL SECURITY

By Marjorie L. Forrest

Your Social Security card is the key to your Social Security account which is kept for you by the Government. It is one of the most valuable things that you own, and should be preserved with the same care you use in protecting your insurance policy, your war bonds, and other valuable papers.

The Social Security Administration suggests that the two parts of the card be separated. Put the lower half in your safety-deposit box or in some other place where it will be secure and where you can get it, if it is needed. Carry the upper half with you when you are applying for a new job or when you go to work on a new job. If you will wrap this part of the card in cellophane and carry it in the card compartment of your bill fold, it will last you many years.

Since it costs both money and time to issue duplicate cards, and since both money and time are precious, you are urged to do everything you can to prevent loss of your card. If you do lose it, however, take the lower half to the Social Security Administration office nearest you and request a duplicate of your complete card. If you do not live in the city in which the Social Security office is located. you can still get a duplicate by writing to that office. Even if you have lost both parts of your card you can get a duplicate by either visiting the Social Security office or writing that office. You shoud be sure to ask for a duplicate instead of a new number, because you never need but one number, no matter how many different places you may work. The issuance of more than one number would cause your account to be divided and might, in the end mean a loss of benefits to you or your family.

The Ft. Wayne office of the Social Security Administration is located in the Federal Building, Room 305. A representative of this office is in Auburn on the 1st and 3rd Thursday in the month at the Post Office from 10 to 11 a. m.

Defendants Ask Separate Trials

Two defendants in the Spencerville bank swindle, Ray Hoover and Dale Wicoff, have filed motions for severance of their cases from that of the other defendants.

Both Hoover and Wicoff seek separate trials on charges they were involved in the $350,000 fraud at the Spencerville bank.

Hoover's attorney, H. S. Grimm of Auburn, filed the motion for a severance Thursday with the clerk of the federal court at Fort Wayne. Wicoff's attorney, Winslow Van Horn of Auburn, filed charges to dismiss the charges for a misjoinder, last Tuesday. The legal move was made in an effort to secure a separate trial for Wicoff.

Hoover stated in his motion that there were a number of persons named in the true bill returned against the six defendants by the federal grand jury. And the motion stated, trial together would be prejudicial and interfere with their right to a fair and impartial hearing. He also contends that the charges against him were improperly joined with the others since all crimes charged are based on separate and distinct acts. Since no conspiracy is alleged in the charges, his attorney charges, the severance should be granted.

Port Richey, Fla.

To My Hoosier Friends:

We have been here two weeks yesterday. The weather has been pleasant. The sun shines brightly each day, but the evenings are cool. We have had no frost as yet but farther south in the Everglades district they had a frost that practically wiped out the potato and bean crop. We are located on the Gulf of Mexico which accounts for the difference in temperature.

Living costs in Florida, especially groceries and meats, are very reasonable. Fruit is cheap; oranges and grapefruit sell around one dollar for a bushel. We buy bananas six cents a pound. Meat is no higher here than in the north. Bread sells for fifteen cents a loaf, sugar nine cents per pound.

Rent still stays high, most of them asking fifty to sixty dollars a month; but if I do not miss my guess they will have to reduce the price.

We have been cutting wood? ? ? Have around four cords piled up behind our cabins beside a big pile of fatty pine which we gather up in the jungles.

Our camp fire burns brightly each evening and gathered around it are people from Ohio, Indiana, Michigan and Wisconsin.

Fishing is good and some good catches are being made. As a personal item I might say that it sure ly agrees with me here as I now weigh one hundred twenty-eight pounds and feel fine.

Frank Baltz and wife, who are located at Tampa, visted us yesterday. Frank went home full, (of fish).

MIMIC

With Mama's old worn shoes
And rouge upon her lips
Grandma's old spring hat
And polish on finger tips.

An old dress of sister Mary's
A purse that auntie had thrown away
The gloves belonged to Mama
I saw a little girl today.

My! She was quite grown
Taking her dolly for a stroll
Stopping to chat with a playmate
A mimic of Mama in heart and soul.

I looked back upon the years
Very plainly I could see
This little girl I saw today.
Twenty years ago - - could have been me.

Ralphine Robinson

Editor Haberkorn:

Here we go again. Chuck has applied for another license to retail firewater and other things.

If we had a few more places of this kind and several more books like Raintree County, Tobacco Road, The Green Acre and a few others, the newspapers would not lack for news of more murders and rape of young girls, even those who are still in the craddle.

If St. Joe would like to get more business places to bring in trade, why not get a small factory or several for that matter; the town has 2 railroads, paved state highway, waterworks and several places for factory sites.

St. Joe is known all over the USA as the home of good pickles. The surrounding farms have the best of soil for all kinds of fruit, grains, truck crops and livestock.

If the new busines that is being applied for is the best St. Joe can get, it won't put many schekels in the pockets of its citizens.

Why not try it and you'll see what it's like.

Maybe it will put a little pep in our citizens.

Old Timer

For the information of "Old-Timer" and others who apparently are ignorant of the facts, there is now and has been for the past 1½ to 2 years a committee in the Business Mens Association of St. Joe ACTIVELY engaged in seeking a factory OR FACTORIES for our town.

If those who are interested in the welfare of this community had attended a meeting of this organization recently held, to which the public (including "outsiders") was invited by a notice on the front page of the St. Joe News, they would have known what the business men are trying to do. Do you know how

Personal Religion

Lesson for December 11, 1949

ELECTRICITY was discovered, long ago, but there are millions of people today who never use it and don't know anything about it. Modern plumbing has been in use ever since most of us were born; but most human beings still walk for their water instead of getting it from pipes. All inventions take quite a while to get around. So it is in the realm of the spirit. Jeremiah the prophet, it has been said, is the "man who discovered the individual." But 2700 years after his time, the individual needs rediscovering. Even in the church, some people live and act as if Jeremiah's discovery had never been made.

Dr. Foreman

A Man Stands Alone

ALTHOUGH JEREMIAH was a priest and aristocrat by birth, his own class disowned him. The story in Jeremiah 26 shows dramatically why this was. He predicted doom for his nation, and since his own "upper-bracket" people were the nation's leaders, they considered Jeremiah's attitude not only unpatriotic but a downright personal insult.

If it had been left to the priests and the official prophets, the day of Jeremiah's sermon at the temple would have been his last. To put it bluntly, the difference between Jeremiah and all the other "prophets" and priests could be put this way: He knew the nation was too rotten to last, but they thought it was plenty good enough.

They probably could have agreed with him that a wicked nation deserves divine punishment; only they could see nothing wrong with Judah.

Religion by Proxy?

THEY were mistaken many ways. Mistake number one: They thought the Temple, with all that went on in it, was much more important to God than it really was. The whole business—Temple, white-robed priests, chanting choirs, the burining of animals, the incense and the mystic lights—it had become in their eyes a sort of immense good-luck charm. They thought: Surely God will not destroy a city that contains this Temple!

But Jeremiah saw through that mistake. Institutions, rituals, organizations, ceremonies, sacraments, these are all simply means to an end, they have no value in themselves. Everything we call "public worship" is good only if and so far as it lifts and cleanses the spirits of the worshipers and brings them nearer God.

The most perfect and impressive worship, engaged in by those whose hearts are evil, becomes a blasphemy. A fine church is no substitute for fine people. A beautiful worship program will not conceal from God's eye unbeautiful souls.

Mistake number two: The priests and prophets supposed there was such a thing as religion by proxy. They thought the priests by carrying on their duties could take care of the situation.

God writes on the heart

ANOTHER MISTAKE made by those poor fools of false prophets and priests was in supposing they had the Law of God, when all they had was two tables of stone shut up in a box (I Kings 8:9). They were proud of those tables of stone, they were the Commandments of God, and they were guarded most carefully in the Holy of Holies in the Temple. Surely, God would not destroy the city that possessed the Sacred Law! But Jeremiah knew better. In the long run, the only place the Law of God does real good is when it is written on the heart.

In Jeremiah's most famous prophecy (chap. 31) he looks forward to the day when God's handwriting shall be not on tables of stone but on human hearts. That prophecy is being fulfilled day by day as persons turn their hearts to the Lord and open the book of their lives that God may write his laws there.

Yet how many people have never learned this truth! Having a great tradition is good; owning and reading the Bible is good; but it is not the Bible on the shelf that counts, not carrying a testament in the pocket, but the Word of God "hid in the heart" of those who know, love and do what God desires.

many of the public attended besides those who regularly attend? At the most, THREE.

Publicity wasn't given these activities because nothing concrete had actually been accomplished. But they were, and are, still, trying.

Now, let US ask a question: why don't some of the enraged citizens, who have criticized so freely, get their own committee and try to do something. They'll soon find out that there's more to it than saying, "Let's get a factory."—Ed.

Sechler's of St. Joe lost a hard fought game to Lyons of Pleasant Lake in the Steuben County league last Sat. night at Hamilton. Final score was 38 to 36. The last three quarters of the game were almost even in scoring with Sechlers making 25 points and P. Lake 24. A 14 to 11 P. Lake lead at the end of the first quarter was the telling. Sechler's made a good fight of it during the final periods and were in the lead several times. Gene Diederich of Sechler's captured scoring honors for the game, with 18 points. Swager got 15 for the winners.

Sat., Dec. 10, Sechlers will play Wolff Bros. of Hamliton in the first game of the evening. Playing site will again be Hamilton gym.

Spencerville's Red Raiders showed no harmful effects from a two week lay off and whipped Coesse by a 39 to 28 score.

As per the present schedule of games, Spencerville will see no action after their Friday game with P. Lake, until the County Tournament, which gets underway at Butler on Jan. 4th and lasts through the 6th.

Calling all outdoorsmen

By JIM MITCHELL

In wandering around the country hunting, fishing and talking conservation I have had the opportunity of getting acquainted with a great many fine sportsmen. You meet great guys and true sportsmen almost everywhere you travel.

But none of the fellows I've met in three decades of outdoor meandering ever impressed me more than Herb Parsons, the likeable Tennessee shooter who puts on exhibitions for Winchester-Western.

Possibly you know Herb, or have seen him shoot, for his trail has cut across most states, Canadian provinces and Alaska in staging exhibitions for the ams and ammunition firms which sponsor his work. Usually he is billed as the "world's greatest shot" or some other similiar title.

I had heard the name for years, but it was not until three years ago that I was fully impressed. I happened to have followed Herb through Alaska and eveywhere I stopped to visit with natives all they could talk about was a guy named Parsons who could do things with a shotgun and rifle that no human reasonably could be expected to do.

Since that time I have encountered this same enthusiastic devotion from Parsons fans in the States. Then, by chance, our paths crossed a couple of weeks ago in Louisiana. I watched Herb put on a show for several hundred bug-eyed fans. He shot dimes and quarters with a .22 rifle, he hit five clay targets tossed into the air with a Winchester pump. He pulled off about every difficult shot possible with both rifles and shotguns and made it look easy.

And in addition to this shooting, his verbal comments as the show moved along would have done justice to Will Rogers or other great entertainers. Parsons is a showman - - one of the best of this or any generation.

Probably it is this ability as a showman that will give Parsons a special niche in the outdoor hall of fame. But actually, the Parson behind this showmanship front is the guy that impressed me the most.

He's one of those persons who makes you feel as if you've known him for years after only a few minutes; he's the type of guy you'd like to spend a day or a week with in a duck blind or a fishingboat.

Herb Parsons has personality plus; and if you ever get a chance to see Herb put on one of his shooting exhibitions, go up and introduce yourself. You'll make a friend with one of America's finest sportsmen.

IS RABBIT HUNTING DOOMED?

It may be unless every hunter takes a little time to help this popular game animal. In the December OUTDOORSMAN, now on sale, an authority gives his know-how on inexpensive methods of making rabbit hunting better.

Santa makes work for us... but we'll handle it

To homes in our territory each Christmas, come thousands of new electric appliances, large and small. Folks plug them in, happily certain there will be power enough to run them all. And we're happy to tell you that there IS.

Matter of fact, there always has been enough power for everybody in our territory. Enough for Junior's new train set. Enough for that big new factory where Dad earned the money to pay for it. Enough for farms, stores, hospitals . . . for everyone.

The reason, of course, is not that electricity is limitless, like air. New power must be created to meet every new demand. So from 1947 through '52, this company and our associates in the American Gas and Electric System are adding 1,250,000 horsepower for new plants to make sure there will continue to be power enough for all.

Hook onto our lines with your new toaster—or your new steel mill—with confidence. And Merry Christmas!

Letters to the Editor

(This column is offered to give the reader a chance to have his say. Any and all contributions are welcome-poetry, prose or what have you. All letters should have a signature to insure publication.)

Phoenix, Arizona
December 8, 1949

Dear Ted:

Thanks so much for publishing the letter which I sent you some time ago. We have heard from sev(eral back there who have read the letter and were interested to hear from us and to know about our trip.

If you wish to publish this letter you may do so and we can answer some more questions for the folks back there.

The weather here has been ideal all fall, most of the time the temperature has been in the eighties during the day and in the high forties at night, and of course the flowers are beautiful not having any frost. Just now there is an abundance of flowers of all kinds especially roses. Agnes attended the W. S. C. S. Christmas party, and the tables were centered with roses from the garden. Isn't that something for December? But of course the folks here think nothing of it as it is the usual thing.

Everyone here is getting ready for Christmas but I don't think it will seem like Christmas to us, more like the Fourth of July, with such warm weather.

Thanksgiving Day was very warm and after we had eaten dinner we took a blanket, spread it on the grass and sunned ourselves in our backyard.

Since I wrote the last letter we have been trying to see quite a lot of the state of Arizona and have taken several short trips in about every direction. We wanted to see the scenery as well as the farming sections. One Sunday we went to Tucson that is the second largest city in Arizona. It is about 275 miles round trip from here.

On the way down we went through several mountain passes but didn't cross over the tops of any. We saw lots of cotton and it is snow white and looks like snow. What a pretty sight. You first wonder how they will ever get it all picked.

Tucson is a very pretty city with lots of new section of homes, but it only has two tall buildings. Most of them are one or two stories high. The atmosphere is very Western which we like very much.

While there we visited with Mr. and Mrs. Wolf. Mrs. Wolf is a sister of Mrs. Edwin Guthrie east of Spencerville. They took us up on mountain A. From there we could get a wonderful view of the city and surrounding community. From up there the fields of growing crops look small like small garden patches and the cars look like toys.

One whole side of this mountain is laid with large stones to form a perfect letter A. And each year students from the University Arizona there, go up and paint this huge letter with white paint, and it can be seen for a long distance. We were told this is done on several mountains in the state, but mountain A is the only one we have seen.

I want to tell you about another mountain near Phoenix and then will close. This is Camelback Mountain, one of the most famous in Arizona. It looks exactly like a camel lying down. It can be seen very plain from our place. One section of Phoenix is called Camelback. We will not be able to write to all of you at Christmas time but we do want to wish each one of you a very merry Christmas and a happy new year.

And always remember we are always glad to receive your letters and cards.

With Best Wishes
Mr. and Mrs. Ira L. Moore and Son Dick

P. S.

When writing to us please give the complete address as there are two other Ira Moores getting mail out of Phoenix, Arizona. Our address is: Box 337X, R. R. 4.

The Man By The Name of Hart

There was a man by the name of Hart,
He rode to school in a donkey cart.
He was awful good looken, but he wasn't very smart.
He was sposed to be a teacher but he's just acting the part.
Philip Warstler

Evidently Philip didn't have the nerve to bring this bit of poetry in to the News Office in person, so Becky Harts brought it for him-Ed.

Dear Mr. Editor:

Yes, here we go again - and again and again if necessary. As long as there is a menace to our town, our community and our children, we will continue to criticize and to fight against a saloon in St. Joe. You say the critics do nothing - - just who defeated having a saloon twice before?

And as for a factory or factories. Mr. Old Timer, lets put first things first and take care of the issue at hand which is so vitally important right now.

Why try to confuse people's minds by bringing up a new subject.

And speaking of first things let us read in the Bible where it says "But seek ye first the Kingdom of God and his righteousness, and all other things shall be added unto you." And if we do this we shall know whether we are for or against, hot or cold, or just lukewarm and indifferent.

A New Timer

If the measure of accomplishment in ALL matters is prevention, then St. Joe will become a ghost town, as did the western communities when the gold mines ran out. —But St. Joe will run out of businesses because the businesses will be run out of business.

We contend that a properly operated tavern would be a stimulant to business in St. Joe; and St. Joe certainly needs SOMETHING to increase its activity. If you think a tavern ISN'T the answer, name it and organize it. THEN you will be doing something.

—And if the desire for business or more business, factory or factories is "selfish" (as one person put it previously), then every individual trying to make a living is selfish, including your husband, "New Timer". —Ed.

Dear Mr. Editor:

I should like to comment on an item which I saw recently in a county paper, a reprint which I quote in part:

EXPERT SAYS BABIES ARE HURTING TAVERN BUSINESS

Chicago. - A trade expert told tavern owners that the high birth-rate has hurt their business. The baby boom of the last 10 years has tied American families to their firesides. He hastened to add however, that he is "not against babies", and that someday they will grow up and become customers". Unquote.

Now isn't that tragic! What do men and women mean by staying home and having babies which tie them to their "firesides" and cause them to neglect the "tavern owner"? There should be something drastic done about it! Even tho' the tavern owner can count each of

Is God Available?

Lesson for December 18, 1949

DOES GOD EXIST? Yes. There is every good reason to believe that he does. But when we have answered that question in the affirmative, we have not settled the most important questions of religion. There are the other two questions of equal importance: What kind of God is he? and, Is he available? Let us give some thought to this last question. One of our Christmas carols begins, "Draw nigh, draw nigh, Immanuel!" Immanuel is one of the names by which Jesus is called, for the Christian church has always read Isaiah 7:14 as a prophecy of Jesus Christ. The name means "God with us" and is the answer to the deepest cry of the heart.

Dr. Foreman

God in heaven far away, God the Creator who set in motion this mighty universe, God the All-powerful, ruling beyond the stars, God the Eternal who knows neither youth nor age.

Such a God has sometimes been believed in by men who nevertheless walked in a dark cloud of lineliness, doubting that so great a God could possibly have any interest in their own affairs.

Is God WITH us? Is God with US? Is GOD with us? That is the question that torments the troubled mind. With one voice, the whole church of God answers Yes; the name of the one in whose face we see the glory of God is named "God-with-us."

In the first chapter of the Bible we hear of a God who walked with his children in a garden. In the first chapters of the Gospels we hear songs to the God who has "visited his people;" and in almost the last chapter of the Bible we hear the promise, "God himself shall be with them and be their own God."

"When ye shall search for him with all your hearts"

MOST TRUTHS are two-sided. You have to keep both sides in mind or you will not fully understand. God is with us yes; God is with all men, yes—that is, there are no favorites with him, he refuses his presence to no one. God is always available, available to all. That is one side of the truth.

The other side is this: God is not equally with all men. Some men are alienated from God. Some men are godless. Even among those with whom God lives, we may fairly say that God is with some in a higher degree, in fuller measure, than he is with others. Jeremiah gives the clue to this truth: "Ye shall seek me and find me, when ye shall search for me with all your heart." (Jer. 29:13) Those who do not search for God will not find him.

Those whose search is half-hearted only half-find him. God does not enter uninvited. He is available, but he will not force his way in. We can see how this is when we think about Christians we know. It does not make sense to say that they are all equally godly.

We have known some great Christians of whom we might almost dare to say that Paul's prayer had been answered, that they have been "filled with the fullness of God." (Eph. 3:19.) But in other Christians, who certainly have some small seed of faith in them, it may be hard even for a kindly observer to see many signs of God's presence.

"Thou can'st, a little baby thing. . . ."

GOD IS in all things, he shines in all that's fair," as we sing the familiar hymn. But the center of the Christian faith is that God comes to man especially and most closely in Jesus Christ.

No matter how strongly men believed in God in olden times, always they looked forward, as the prophets show, to a time when God would come nearer than he had been before. True, it was a surprise when finally he came to Bethlehem, "a little baby thing that made a woman cry."

A world accustomed to kings in purple robes, in well-guarded castles, was surprised that the King of the Universe would be found as a child among the poor. But after all, which better represents the All-Available God—a King-behind his palace walls, or a child in a home that loves him?

ONLY a 49 to 15 win by our Junior High over the Angola 7th and 8th graders last Thursday at the gym here, saved the St. Joe School from a disastrous week on the basketball scene.

The St. Joe varsity suffered two stinging defeats on Wednesday and Friday of last week.

On Wednesday a ret-hot band of Raiders drove up from the south, to put on an amazing first half scoring exhibition, and had piled up an unbelievable lead of 36 to 9 at the end of the first half. The final score was Spencerville 59, St. Joe 27. The Tigers never could get started and every thing they did seemed to be wrong. The Raiders on the other hand were having one of their best evening on the courts especially in the first. Ed Hook displayed a driving brand of ball and was a thorn in the Tigers side all evening. When he wasn't driving under himself for lay-up, he was passing off to Leonard or Paschen, under the hoop.. Hook got 14 and Leonard and Paschan followed with 10 and 3. Bob Richmond got 9 points to lead the locals.

Friday evening the local team was given another severe set-back, this from the hands of the Ashley Aces was by a 75 to 29 score. In this game it was a second half scoring spree that did the damage. Ashled 26 to 16 at halftime.

The St. Joe Seconds put on a good last half rally against the Spencerville Seconds, but their 18-2 cushion at halftime was just too much and Spencerville finished on top, 30 to 23.

Sammy Morr and Kenny Walters were the big guns in the St. Joe attack and each got 17 points. The local Junior High led 32 to 5 at half time. The 6th and 7th grade lost a hard fought prelim game by a 17 to 12 score.

THE SPENCERVILLE Red Raiders, wearing their good luck charms and holding their rabbits foot, again came from the brink of defeat as they have so many times this year, and edged out the Pleasant Lake Spartans in a 32 to 30, roughouse tilt at the P. Lake goal hall, Friday evening.

It was a right down to the wire scrap that threatened to get away from the referee s at several points. The Spencerville club, minus Al Paschen, trailing for three quarters, finally fired up enough steam in the closing minutes of the last quarter to pass the P. Lake quintet, and then held on to win 32 to30.

P. Lake led 24 to 20 entering the last quarter. Leonard took a perfect pass from Webb, under the basket, for two points and Hoover came thru with 2 fielders. Myers and Cook hit for P. Lake and the score wos 28 to 26 at the automatic time out period. Hoover hit a 2 handed shot from straight out to tie the score as play resumed and the Raiders were finally starting their bid for victory. Hook sailed in and threw up a one handed shot that landed and Spencerville led 30 to 28 with just seconds to go. Myers hit for P. Lake to knot the score again, but Hoover made good on a free throw, and as the game ended Dwyer successfully converted from the charity stripe for the two point win.

SECHLER'S basketball team in the Steuben County League got back on even terms in their play at Hamilton, and with a 31 to 29 win over Wolff's of Hamilton last Saturday. They now have a 2 win and 2 loss record in league competition. Their opponents for this Saturday evening will the Waterloo, and their game will be the second of the evening.

Letters to the Ed. (cont'd)

those babies as a potential customer, are parents justified in allowing themselves to be "tied to their firesides" taking care of babies to the neglect of the tavern business? If the sacrifice IS justified then "Mommie" and "Daddy" as you bend over the bed of your 'ittie 'bittie baby keep in mind that the tavern owners are looking to you to raise that baby to keep the tavern owners supplied with customers, and start at once to instill into the little darlings head the debt he owes to tavern owners who are making the supreme sacrifice by allowing you to be "tied to your firesides" raising babies, when you should be spending your time and money with the tavern owners.

And tell that "little bundle" you got from heaven that the tavern owners are trusting YOU to raise and rear him to "become customers" of the tavern owners. And baby darling, DON'T BETRAY THEIR TRUST!

God of our Fathers! Does anyone know whether America is going backward or forward in morals?

Gertrude Borthwick

It is also a fact that the carry-out liquor business has increased while the tavern busines decreased. It's only a thought, but — what if Daddy's highball gets mixed up with Baby's formula?

Dear Editor,

If you are looking for material to print in the News, I am enclosing the law on Sabbath breaking that some of our citizens should read.

Mrs. Eva Shull

Mrs. Shull enclosed a page from the Acts of the Indiana Assembly (1941) which places a fine of not less than $1, nor more than $10 for any person over 14 who, on Sunday, is found rioting, hunting, quarreling, at common labor or engaged in his usual vocation, works of charity and necessity only excepted. But it is not to be construed to affect such as conscientiously observe the seventh day of the week as the Sabbath, travelers and those engaged in conveying them, families removing, keepers of bridges and toll gates, ferrymen acting as such and persons engaged in the publication and distribution of news, or baseball and hockey players under certain restrictions as to time of day and proximity to churches or hospitals. —Ed.

The Littlest Angel

By Charles Tazewell

Once upon a time- - oh many, many years ago as time is calculated by men - - but which was only Yesterday in the Celestial Calendard of Heaven - - there was in Paradise, a most miserable thoroughly unhappy, and utterly dejected cherub who was known throughout Heaven as The Littlest Angel.

He was exactly four years, six months five days, seven hours and forty-two minutes of age when he presented himself to the venerable Gate-Keeper and waited for admittance to the Glorious Kingdom of God.

Standing defiantly, with his short brown legs wide apart, the Littlest Angel tried to pretend that he wasn't at all impressed by such Unearthly Splendor, and that he wasn't at all afraid. But his lower lip trembled, and a tear disgraced him by making a new furrow down his already tear streaked face - - coming to a precipitous halt at the very tip end of his small freckled nose.

But that wasn't all. While the kindly Gate-Keeper was entering the name in his great Book, the Littlest Angel, having left home as usual without a handkerchief, endeavored to hide the tell-tale evidence by snuffing. A most unanglic sound which so unnerved the good Gate-Keeper that he did something he had never done before in all Eternity. He blotted the page!

From that moment on, the Heavenly Peace was never quite the same, and the Littlest Angel soon became the despair of all the Heavenly Host. His shrill ear-splitting whistle resounded at all hours through the Golden Streets. It startled the Patriarch Prophets and disturbed their mediations. Yes, and on top of that, he invariably and vociferously sang off-key at the singing practice of the Heavenly Choir, spoiling its etheral effect.

And, being so small it seemed to take him just twice as long as anyone else to get to nightly prayers, the Littlest Angel always arrived late, and always knocked everyone's wings askew as he darted into his place.

Although these flaws in behavior might have been overlooked, the general appearance of the Littlest Angel was even more disreputable than his deportment. It was first whispered among the Seraphim and Cherubim, and then said aloud among the Angels and Archangels, that he didn't even look like an angel!

And they were all quite correct. He didn't. His halo was permanently tarnished where he held onto it with one hot little chubby hand when he ran, and he was always running. Furthermore, even when he stood very still, it never behaved like a halo should. It was always slipping down over his right eye.

Or over his left eye. Or else just for pure meanness, slipping off the back of his head and rolling away down some Golden Street just so he'd have to chase after it.

Yes, and it must be here recorded that his wings were neither useful nor ornamental. All Paradise held its breath when the Littlest Angel perched himself like an unhappy fledgling sparrow on the very edge of a gilded cloud and prepared to take off. He would teeter this way - - and that way - -but, after much coaxing and a few false starts, he would shut both of his eyes, hold his freckled nose, count up to three hundred and three, and then hurl himself slowly into space!

However, owing to the regrettable fact that he always forgot to move his wings, the Littlest Angel always fell head over halo.

It was also reported, and never denied, that whenever he was nervous which was most of the time, he bit his wing-tips

Now, anyone can easily understand why the Littlest Angel would, sooner or later, have to be disciplined. And so, on an Eternal Day of an Eternal Month in the Year Eternal, he was ri-

Tiger Varsity Lose Two; Seconds Win Two

St. Joe Tigers lost two games in the past week. the first last Friday to Hamilton by a 46-36 score. They displayed a better brand of team work but just couldn't get a sustained drive going until the last quarter when it was too late.

The seconds, however. gave the fans a real thriller and came out on the top of a 23-22 score over the Hamilton seconds.

Tuesday evening of this week, St Joe was host to Metz at the local gym and during the first half played the part of a perfect host - they were behind 24-11, displaying their all-shoot-no-pass offense.

It was heard that Coach Tatlock read the riot act to the boys during intermission and apparently that's what they needed. They came out and outscored Metz by a 20-8 margin in the 3rd quarter and displayed a coordinated brand of ball that had the rooters on their feet.

With two minutes to go and the Tigers in the lead, Metz' center sank two long one-handers that spelled defeat.

Walters led the scoring for St. Joe with 13 points, 9 of which came in that 3rd quarter. B. Richmond with 9, D. Richmond 7, Fetters 6, and Dickman 2, completed the score.

Led by little Bob Kinsey the St. Joe seconds trounced the Metz seconds by a 34-24 score. It was a good steady game although somewhat marred by too much individual dribbling by St. Joe.

AWARD SYSTEM TO START AT LUTHERAN SUNDAY SCHOOL

On the first Sunday in January, every child in the Lutheran Sunday School is going to get a Sunday School pin. For every term of three months uninterrupted attendance the pupil earns a reward. If the family goes away on Sunday, the pupil will receive credit if he attends another Sunday School. If the pupil is sick, he is given credit if parents notify his teacher that he was sick.

For the first term, the pupil is awarded a pin with bronze finish; for the second, a pin with gunmetal finish (hand engraved); for the third, a silver plated pin; for the fourth, a beautiful gold plated pin (cross and crown). Thirteen consecutive Sundays will be considered as three months. Each pin is to be worn until the next higher grade is earned, but surrendered upon receiving the new one. A handsome lithographed certificate, 9 by 11 inches with seal and ribbon attached (for framing) will also be given for the 4th term of perfect attendance.

Pupils attending an additional year after the four terms, earn the second year wreath to encircle the pin. Following this, the third, fourth, and fifth year bars, comprising, when complete, a very handsome jewel.

Always the Good Provider

Season's Greetings

As the Chrstmas holidays draw near, we extend to our readers and friends a wish for a very Merry Christmas and a happy and prosperous New Year.

Whatever differences we may have in our thoughts are lost in the joy of the Yuletide season, and rightly so. For how could we justly celebrate the birth of the Christ Child with malice in our hearts.

May we never forget that only One was made perfect. All the remainder of us have our faults big and small; and, big and small, they must be forgiven. For whether we like it or not, we must live together.

Could It Be?

Whether or not our editorial several weeks ago had anything to do with it, we don't know. But there are new stop sign at some of the intersections in this community, replacing the ones which were obsolete, unreadable and hidden by weeds.

Good old Joe just ain't here no mo'

Joe Doaks was an unusually good worker and very careful about his own health.
He brushed his teeth twice a day.
The doctor examined him twice a year.
He wore rubbers when it rained.
He slept with the windows open.
He stuck to a diet with plenty of fresh vegetables.
He surrendered his tonsils and traded in several worn out glands.
He played golf, but never more than 18 holes a day.
He never smoked, drank, or lost his temper.
He did his daily dozen daily.
He got at least eight hours of sleep each night.
The funeral will be next Friday.
Joe is survived by 18 specialists, four health institutes, and 14 manufacturers of health foods and antiseptics.
He had forgotten that 60 miles an hour is too fast to travel when his tires were worn to the fabric.

Sir,

Please take back your advertisement concerning the including article -cut out of the German magazine '(Stuttgarter Illustrierte of Nov. 6, 1949.

Let your kids continue collekting sweets. Put them in a box and make a happy Crhistmas to my and my friends children, who can't have any sweets this year because all the daddy's are jobless.

If I made some faults, don't worry Sir, it is only a picked-up P. O. W. English, picked up in Texas.

With kindest regards

Just to show that our heart is in the right place a gift package of "sweets" has been sent to the children in the name of the "Little Stinkers." —Ed.

Dear Ted,

In writing the Old Timer article, I did not sign my name as I wanted to find the reaction of the readers, and of those I talked to who were waiting for the next issue of the St. Joe News to get further opinions on local topics.

The St. Joe News through its editorials has become known throughout the length and breadth of our country.

You have made a very good, big, little newspaper and altho we're on opposite sides of the fence on some things, I believe you will go far in the business of journalism.

Carl D. Carpenter

Over half a century of living near St. Joe.

Thank you. Carl. Your letter is one of the best Christmas presents we could get—Ed.

To whom it may concern:

Why all this fuss and back-biting about someone trying to make an honest living? Why don't someone make a complaint about this public nuisance uptown, meaning the Christmas Carols being played so loud every night that one has to turn their radio up loud enough to drown out the noise. Christmas Carols are very lovely but there is a limit to all things.

Please withhold my name.

Washington Outlook

. . . .

Low-income farmers are a threat to continued national prosperity, a Congressional group has been told. A "low income family" subcommittee of the Joint Committee found that farmers make up a great part of the low income segement of the population. It got figures from the Census bureau showing that almost half of our farm families, 3. 3 million of them, earn less than $2,-000 per year both from farming and non-farm employment.

In fact, the study of low income groups practically resolved itself into a study of the farm problem.

Secretary of Agriculture Charles F. Brannan told the subcommittee that although the public thinks of farm income as high, "the average farmer is a low-income farmer. That is, his family income is lower than we as a nation can afford to permit it to be."

Brannan conceded that present Department of Agriculture programs do not meet the needs of low income farm families, but he placed the blame on Congressional limitations on these programs. Brannan and other witnesses, including college professors and other Government officials, leaned heavily on the fact that incrases in earnings for low-income farmers would result in heavier expenditures for the necessities of life, thus lifting the entire economy.

Brannan cautioned against indiscriminate moving of farm families off land which cannot earn a decent living. He felt that there was no danger of adding to unemployment rolls in the city.

He advocated instead increases in activities of the Farmer's Home Administration and Farm Credit Administration. Through these agencies, he said, low-income farmers could get credit for purchases of machinery and extra land and improvements that would add to their earning power.

The Secretary also asked for a program to bring industy to backward rural areas. This would enable marginal farmers to work part time in factories and thus supplement their income. He also asked for a program to cover hired farm workers.

Brannan and other witnesses favored extension of social measures such as workmen's compensation, social security and minimum wages to farmers and farm labor.

The subcommittee has little force on farm matters, but a push is expected in the next Congress aimad at passing some program for the benefit of low-income farmers as well as the extension to rural areas of the social measures.

Agricultural Reseacrh Administration has been investigating apple refrigeration in such widely separated places as Virginia and the Pacific Northwest. ARA found that Va. storage facilities can properly cool 436,000 busehls of apples a day. But unfortunately Virginia harvests as much as two times this amount on peak days.

In Washington and Oregon, ARA found that apples at 70 degrees have a normal storage life of only 20 days. If cooled to 32 degrees within 7 days, the life expectancy is 200 days. Another 2 degrees, and the apple life-expectancy jumps to 250 days.

The longer the delay in cooling, the shorter the apples retain their quality, according to ARA.

. . . .

The battle between American Farm Bureau president Allan Kline and Secretary Brannan reaches fever pitch. Brannan charges censorship in the fact that neither he nor anybody representing his viewpoint about price supports was invited to speak at the American Farm Bureau convention. Normally the incumbent Secretary does speak.

Kline, on the other hand, says that the Brannan Plan is all settled as far as the Farm Bureau is concerned. He doesn't like it and no need for further talk. Farmers don't want to exist on Government handouts, he maintains, and taxpayers don't want to pay the bill.

The fight over special taxes on oleomargarine now appears to be entering its last phase with total victory for the oleo forces in sight.

Sen. Scott W. Lucas (D., Ill.) has promised to bring up to the floor of the Senate as the first order of business the House-passed bill repealing special taxes on oleomargarine. The bill has plenty of votes to put it over, but in the past the propect of a long, determined fight on the part of of dairy State Senators has shunted the bill into the discard.

There will be no official filibuster against the bill removing taxes from oleo. But 20 or more dairy State Senators expect to have a lot to say. In the past few years , the threat of these long talks has influenced the administration to shelve the tax repealers in order to get other things done.

The act of Sen. Lucas in giving the oleo bill top priority therefore had a double significance. It means that the taxes will almost certainly go off oleo in 1950. It also means that the administration has virtually conceded that it connot carry any significant part of its as yet unenacted program in this Congress.

. . . . .

Indicative of the troubles which can accompany attempts at Government controls over crop production, the cotton acreage allotment program ran into about every trouble in the books. Also indicative of the fact that marketing quota votes are not so very voluntary is the fact that cotton growers voted for quotas in '50 even though many were boiling made at the acreage allotments. If they had turned down quotas, cotton supports would have dropped to 50 percent of parity and prices would have collapsed. So they didn't have much choice.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

International Uniform Sunday School Lessons

By DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

'Mine Eyes Have Seen'

Lesson for December 25, 1949

WHAT can the old man see in the baby? There must have been some to ask that question, as the old, old man Simeon took the little six-weeks-old Jesus in his arms. To most eyes he was just another baby; but at the touch of him, Simeon broke out into words so filled with hope and ecstasy, so rhythmic with emotion, that his words, even to this day, are used as a hymn in all the Christian churches of the world. "Mine eyes have seen . . ." said the old man, already moving across the thin line dividing this world from heaven, could see with the eye of the spirit what was hid from the eye of many a practical man. In Simeon's mind, imbued with the spirit of the ancient prophets, the child in his arms was a center of light.

Dr. Foreman

All the rays from the dim and ancient prophecies came to a focus in this child; and from this child again there shone out to all the future years of man the hope of a better world. What the prophets have foretold, is now to be; this child is the hope of mankind.

They have seen a great light

THE CHRISTMAS PROPHECIES, our Old Testament lesson text, sing the hope of the Hebrew people. It was a hope that spread beyond themselves, their tiny hill-country, landlocked and harborless, out to the "Circle of the Nations," on to the world of vast peoples beyond their ken.

In a leaderless world, where men went blindly through life, smothered by the smoke of torches in the wavering hands of the blind, the prophets sang of the Coming One, the Messiah, God's chosen Leader, who would bring men out of darkness into light, the Divine Counsellor.

In the centuries when the servants of God were enslaved by those who worshiped only the sword, the prophets pointed confidently to the time when the leadership of the world would at least be in the hands of those who knew and understood and obeyed God.

Eyes of Flesh

NOW THE PROPHETS did not always fully understand their own prophecies, as we are told by Peter (I Pet. 1:10,11); and certainly most of the Jews did not. When they heard the word "Messiah" or "King" they could think only of the kings they had known and admired, some new David, great in battle, or another Solomon, in a greater and more golden palace.

So when the little boy Jesus was born in the dark stable under the hill, it was not everyone who could see what Simeon saw, that now the hopes of the prophets were coming true, now the Kingdom of righteousness and peace, the Realm of All Nations, was to begin.

What Simeon's fading human eye could see was no great thing — a helpless infant from a peasant carpenter's home. It was only Simeon's inward eye that saw the truth.

Eyes of Faith

YET THE EYE of faith can see more. The salvation God is bringing to the world has only just begun. As in Simeon's day the salvation and the light were barely at the horizon, so now it is still but sunrise. The colors of sunrise may be mistaken for those of sunset, by those who have been long asleep. It is only those who have watched through the night who know the sunrise for what it is.

The songs of Christmastide are songs of hope, and not only songs of remembrance. It is not the hope of fools, for the world of today is brighter than the world into which Christ was born, and the brightness shines from him.

Who would turn back this world, for all its wretchedness and frustrations, into what it would have been had Jesus never been born? At Christmas time we rejoice, not that all things have been accomplished or that all the prophecies of good have come true; we rejoice rather that the God-sent Leader, the Messiah, the Saviour, has come, and that with his coming salvation and light and glory have begun.

OUR COUNTY AND SOCIAL SECURITY

By Marjorie L. Forrest

Recently I received a letter from a wage earner asking how he could make certain that his record of wages in our Accounting Division is being kept correctly. The answer to this question is important to every worker. I am going to to tell you how to be sure.

First, get out your account number card. Have you found it? If so you see that the number has nine digits, divided into three parts. This number identifies your own account. No other person can use that number; have that number assigned to him; be paid retiremnet benefits from that number, except you and your family, upon your retirement or death. Your family also has a stake in your account.

Now let's look at the way we keep up with your wages. Every three months your employer sends in a report showing wages paid to you during that period. He puts your name, your account number, and the wages on his report. Our accounting Division posts by machines, your wages to your record. If your employer gets your number mixed up, or leaves out part of it, or uses a different name from that shown on your card, those machines refuse to accept such a report. Make certain that your employers get your name and number exactly as shown on your card.

Now, how can you be certain that you have been gtting full credit for all your wages? Write us asking for the form used for this purpose. When you get it, give the information asked for on the post card and mail it (it is already addressed). You'll get a reply giving your credits. If you do not agree with the amount show, again write to the Social Security Office, Room 305, Federal Building, Ft. Wayne, Ind. A thorough recheck of our records will then be made, and if the added wages are not located the employer involved will be called upon to clear up the matter. We also want to be sure that your wage record is correct, and we encourage everyone to ask for a statement of his account at least every 2 or 3 years. Errors left uncorrected more than 4 years are almost impossible of correction. There is no cost to you for this service beyond the stamps you use in correspondence.

I will be in Auburn on the 1st and 3rd Thursday at the Post Office at 10 a. m.

CULTURE CLUB

The Culture Club's annual Christmas party was held Wednesday evening, Dec. 14, at the home of Mrs. Clyde Duker with Mrs. James Tatlock as co-hostess.

The meeting was opened by the reciting of the club collect.

Mrs. Willard Hurni read the original Christmas story from second chapter of Luke for the devotional period of the evening.

Mrs. Virgil Laux read a Christmas story entitled, "One of the Least Ones" The story described the meaning of Christmas and how it was discovered by a little girl from the South.

The regular business meeting was then held. Twenty-three regular members and one honorary member answered roll call by "A Remembered Christmas Gift."

The meeting was then turned over to the entertainment committee, Mrs. Joseph Baidinger and Mrs. Merle Furnish who led several games and contests ending in a Christmas gift exchange.

The co-hostess then served a delicious lunch.

The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Arthur Culbertson.

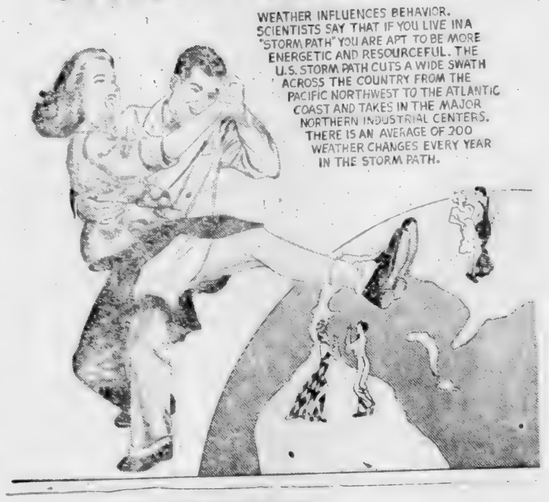
STORM PATHOLOGY



COMES THE REVOLUTION!

It's here—now—today!

For you—the American citizen—are the greatest revolutionist in history!

You have met those age-old tyrants—cold, hunger, dirt, disease—and hurled them back.

True, they have not surrendered. We still have poverty. We still have sharp ups and downs of prices and jobs. The revolution still goes on.

But it has gone farther here. We have won for ourselves more comfort, more convenience, more security and independence, than any other people since the world began.

As yet, this revolution—the Industrial Revolution—has hardly begun in other areas.

For two-thirds of the human race, the amount of food, clothing and shelter they are able to get with their best labors is never more than just enough to live on.

In the modern world that can't last.

Right now the people of many nations are faced with a choice—between dictatorship and a free economy.

And they are taking a long look at us.

At the promise of individual reward that has stimulated American invention and business enterprise.

At American technical progress, which has made mechanical energy perform miracles of mass production, reflected in constantly lower costs—and in the long run, lower prices.

At American workers—free to organize, to bargain collectively with their employers, to choose their jobs and to change them at will—with no ceilings on advancement and constantly increasing real wages for shorter working hours.

If we continue to make that system work—if we constantly turn out more for every hour we put in—if we keep on creating more wealth for all of us and more jobs for more people—then other nations will follow us.

Let's make our free, dynamic American system run so well at home that others will want to follow our example.

If we do that, we will give new hope to millions everywhere.

Calling all outdoorsmen

By JIM MITCHELL

The other day I received a letter from a hunting friend who reported on the condition in his neighborhood, then he closed the letter with this thought "I have a hunch that there are going to be a lot of loud complaints about the pre-season predictions of large game increases. . . "

All outdoor columnists and writers (me included) are inclined to be overly optimistic before each season rolls into play. First, the state authorities send out releases that game populations are on the upswing. No state likes to admit game populations are down.

Then you talk to this farmer or that one and he says game is abundant on his place and adds that it looks like a banner year for the hunters.

You make a couple of more checks then quickly knock out a story on the old typewriter that gunning is going to be the best in years; everybody who can shoulder a gun is going to get the limit.

Then what happens? The hunters flock to the fields or marshes in record numbers and only a small percentage of the gunners return with the limit kill. So immediately, they cry for the writer's scalp.

I'm not offering excuses for being optimistic in forecasting game and hunting conditions; I've learned a lesson and will temper future columns featuring predictions with "don't be surprised if hunting is the same as last season".

But one thing must be taken into consideration. The game in this state, as well as most others, probably is more abundant than a year ago. Offsetting this, however, is the ever-increasing army of hunters. A decade ago there were, for example, possibly 200,000 men buying licenses, now there's double that number.

Sure, there is more game--but the game supply has not increased sufficiently to carry on the extra burden of the increased number of hunters. So it is fair to be optimistic about game conditions; however, limit kills are just as rare as ever.

rected to present his small self before an Angel of the Peace.

The Littlest Angel combed his hair, dusted his wings and scrambled into an almost clean robe, and then, with a heavy heart, trudged his way to the place of judgment. He tried to postpone the dreaded ordeal by loitering along the Street of The Guardian Angels, pausing a few timeless moments to minutely pursue the long list of new arrivals, although all Heaven knew he couldn't read a word. And he idled more than several immortal moments to carefully examine a display of aureate harps, although everyone in the Celestial City knew he couldn't tell a crotchet from a semiquaver. But at length and at last he slowly approached a doorway which was surmounted by a pair of golden scales, signifying that Heavenly Justice was dispensed within. To the Littlest Angel's great surprise, he heard a merry voice singing!

The Littlest Angel removed his halo and breathed upon it heavily, then polished it upon his robe, a procedure which added nothing to that garment's already untidy appearance, and then tip-toed in!

The singer who was known as the Understanding Angel, looked down at the small culprit and the Littlest Angel instantly tried to make himself invisible by the ingenious process of withdrawing his head into the collar of his robe, very much like a snapping turtle.

At that, the Singer laughed a jolly, heartwarming sound and said, "Oh! So you're the one who's been making Heaven so unheavenly! Come here, Cherub, and tell me all about it!" The Littlest Angel ventured a furtive look from beneath his robe.

First one eye.

And then the other eye.

Suddenly, almost before he knew it, he was perched on the lap of the understanding Angel and was explaining how very difficult it was for a boy who suddenly finds himself transformed into an angel. Yes, and no matter what the Archangels said, he'd only swung once. Well, twice. Oh, all right, then, he'd only swung three times on the Golden Gates. But that was just for something to do!

That was the whole trouble. There wasn't anything for a small angel to do. And he was very homesick. Oh, not that Paradise wasn't beautiful! But the Earth was beautiful, too! Wasn't it created by God, Himself? Why, there were trees to climb, and brooks to fish, and caves to play at pirate chief, the swimming hole, and sun, and rain, and dark and dawn, and thick brown dust so soft and warm beneath your feet!

The Understanding Angel smiled, and in his eyes was a long forgotten memory of another small boy in a long ago. Then he asked the Littlest Angel what would make him most happy in Paradise. The Cherub thought for a moment, and whispered in his ear.

"There's a box. I left it under my bed back home. If only I could have that?"

The Understanding Angel nodded his head. "You shall have it," he promised. And a fleet-winged Heavenly messenger was instantly dispatched to bring the box to Paradise.

And then, in all those timeless days that followed, everyone wondered at the great change in the Littlest Angel, for among all the cherubs in God's Kingdom, he was the most happy. His conduct was above the slightest reproach. His appearance was all that the most fastidious could wish for. And on excursions to Elysian Fields, it could be said, and truly said, that he flew like an angel!

Then it came to pass that Jesus, the Son of God, was to be born of Mary, of Bethlehem of Judea, And as the glorious tidings spread through Paradise, all angels rejoiced and their voices were lifted to herald the Miracle of Miracles, the coming of the Chirst Child.

The Angels and Archangel, the Seraphim and Cherubim, the Gate-Keeper, the Wingmaker, yes and even the Halosmith put aside their usual tasks to prepare their gifts for the Blessed Infant. All but the Littlest Angel. He sat himself down on the top-most step on the Golden Stairs and anxiously waited for inspiration.

What could he give that would be most acceptable to the Son of God? At one time, he dreamed of composing a lyric hymn of adoration. But the Littlest Angel was woefully wanting in musical talent.

Then he grew tremendously excited over writing a prayer! A prayer that would live forever in the heart of men, because it would be the first prayer ever to be heard by the Christ Child. But the Littlest Angel was lamentably lacking in literate skill. "What, oh what could a small angel give that would please the Holy Infant.

The time of the Miracle was very close at hand when the Littlest Angel at last decided on his gift. Then, on that Day of Days, he proudly brought it from its hiding place behind a cloud, and humbly, with downcast eyes, placed it before the Throne of God. It was only a small, rough, unsightly box, but inside were all those wonderful things that even a Child of God would treasure!

A small, rough, unsightly box, lying among all those other glorious gifts from all the Angels of Paradise! Gifts of such rare radiant splendor and breathless beauty that Heaven and all the Universe were lighted by the mere reflection of their glory! And when the Littlest Angel saw this, he suddenly knew that his gift to God's Child was irreverent, and he devoutly wished he might reclaim his shabby gift. It was ugly. It was worthless. If only he could hide it away from the sight of God before it was even noticed!

But it was too late! The Hand of God moved slowly over all that bright array of shining gifts, then, paused, then came to rest on the lowly gift of the Littlest Angel!

The Littlest Angel trembled as the box was opened, and there before the Eyes of God and all his Heavenly Host was what he offered to the Christ Child.

And what was his gift to the Blessed Infant? Well, there was a butterfly with golden wings, captured one bright summer day on the high hills above Jerusalem, and a sky-blue egg from a bird's nest in the olive tree that stood to shade his mother's kitchen door. Yes, and two white stones, found on a muddy river bank, where he and his friends had played like small brown beavers, and, at the bottom of the box, a limp, tooth-marked leather strap, once worn as a collar by his mongrel dog, who had died as he had lived, in absolute and infinite devotion.

The Littlest Angel wept hot, bitter tears, for now he knew that instead of honoring the Son of God, he had been most blasphemous.

Why had he ever thought the box was so wonderful

Why had he dreamed that such utterly useless things would be loved by the Blessed Infant?

In frantic terror, he turned to run and hide from the Divine Wrath of the Heavenly Father, but he stumbled and fell, and with a horrified wail and clatter of halo, rolled in a ball of consumate misery to the very foot of the Heavenly Throne!

There was an ominous and dreadful silence in the Celestial City, a silence complete and undisturbed, save for the heart-broken sobbing of the Littlest Angel.

Then, suddenly, the voice of God, like Divine Music, rose and settled through Paradise!

And the Voice of God spoke, saying, "Of all the gifts of all the angels, I find that this small box pleases me most. Its contents are of the Earth and of men, and My Son is born to be King of both. These are the things My Son, too, will know and love and cherish and then, regretful, will leave behind Him when His task is done. I accept this gift in the Name of the Child, Jesus, born of Mary, this night in Bethelehem."

There was a breathless pause, and then the rough, unsightly box of the Littlest Angel began to glow with a bright, unearthly light, then the light became a lustrous flame, and the flame became a radiant brilliance that blinded the eyes of all the angels!

None but the Littlest Angel saw it rise from its place before the Throne of God. And he, and only he, watched it arch the firmament to stand and shed its clear, white, beckoning light over a Stable where a Child was Born.

There it shone on that Night of Miracles, and its light was reflected down the centuries deep in the heart of all mankind. Yet, earthly eyes blinded, too by its splendor, could never know that the lowly gift of the Littlest Angel was that all men would call forever "THE SHINING STAR OF BETHLEHEM!"

USDA decreed a slash of about 25 percent in cotton acreages for next year, but in legislating Congress tried to make everbody happy. Farmers who account for 5 acres or less weren't to be cut; there was less were not to be cut; there was a formula for increasing quotas for States which had no great history of cotton planting but had in late years begun to plant the crop.

The whole thing is such a mess that some farmers got cuts of more than 50 percent, while many were not cut at all. The howling was heard even in Washington and cotton legislators rushed back to town in a big hurry.

The upshot will be more legislation quickly after Congress re-convenes. This will give relief to the States and individual farmers who got unfair treatment. It will also result in more over-production of cotton next year, since the legislators will not take away from those who already have too much acreage. They will just tack on more for those who got too little, and in 1951 the acreage cuts will have to slash deeper.

The Bureau of Agricultural Economics looks for an intensification of the price squeeze on farmers next year, with prices continuing to slip while farm costs remain high.

Local Residence Burglarized

Burglars broke into the home of Mr. and Mrs. Francis B. Sible of a mile and a half northwest of St. Joe last Friday. The robbery was committed sometime between 9 a.m. and 11 p.m. while Mr. Sible was working and Mrs. Sible and her daughter were in town shopping.

Stolen were Christmas gifts, valued at over $100, four watches and several rings from a small home safe, and several dresses belonging to the Sibles' four-year-old daughter.

The home was not locked, the thief entering through the rear door and leaving by the front door. The safe, the door of which was ripped off with a bar, was located in the family bedroom.

Part of the loot was recovered late Saturday. Approximately one-third of the Christmas presents were found on a by-road near the Indiana Ohio state line. The gifts, which had been opened, then tossed into a roadside ditch, were found Saturday evening by Ora Moughler of northeast of Butler. He saw the gifts and several pieces of glassware lying in the ditch a short distance from his home.

Also recovered are most of the contents of the safe from a ditch about a mile north of the residence. Mr. Sible found several valuable papers and some keepsake jewelry, including the watches, Saturday.

Letters to the Editor

(This column is offered to give the reader a chance to have his say. Any and all contributions are welcome-poetry, prose or what have you. All letters should have a signature to insure publication.)

WE ARE PROUD OF OUR YOUNGSTERS

While many communities are trying to solve their teen-age problems, St, Joe can be justly proud of the fact that some of our young people (30 of them) are doing a very good job of solving their problems in the way of amusement and recreation.

Last August a number of our teenagers, both boys and girls, on their own initiative organized the Nuisance Club. They set up their own rules, with the idea of keeping their organization clean and wholesome while they pursued their efforts for amusement and recreation. They charge themselves 10¢ per week to help out with expenses. Earl Kinsey is their sponsor and there is a volunteer chaperon for each weekly meeting.

Recently the local Legion Post and the Auxiliary, appreciating the fine spirit displayed by these 13 yr. of age and up youngsters, decided to give them a regular place of meeting at the Legion Home. After each meeting the boys and girls clean up the rooms they use.

Boys and girls under 13 years of age cannot belong to the club, and what did the Nuisance Club do about it? They provided and distributed 113 Christmas treats to these children.

Believing that you who read this will want to aid the youngsters in a financial way, a can will be placed in each of the town's grocery stores. Country boys and girls are welcome as members, hence it is appropriate that both town and country help out in this project. They need recreation equipment and have other expenses to meet.

Let your conscience be your guide as to the amount you will drop in the can; but don't you think we should show our appreciation of their efforts by making the amount very substantial? Let's help these young people to help themselves.

Harriett Baker

We knew the club had passed out some treats because the "Stinkers" each received one. But we didn't know to what extent they had gone to spread Christmas cheer.

Now, Grownups, let's keep our eyes open for those cans in the groceries and then open our pocketbooks.—Ed.

DEKALB- NOBLE COUNTY REALTORS ELECT OFFICERS

Robert H. Wertenberger, Auburn Realtor and President of the Peoples Savings and Loan Association, located at 106 N. Main Street, was elected President of the DeKalb-Noble County Board of Realtors for the year 1950 at the annual meeting of the new members at its meeting held at the Kendallville Country Club Thursday Dec. 15. Other officers elected are Charles Hosler, Kendallville, Vice President; and C. P. Miller, Kendallville, Sec'y-Treasurer.

The objects for which the board is organized are:

1. To unite the real estate men in this community for the purpose of exerting effectively a combined influence upon matters affecting real estate interests.

2. To enable its members to transact their business connected with the buying, selling, renting caring for, and loaning money on real estate to better advantage heretofore, by the adopting of such rules and regulations as they may deem proper.

3. To promote and maintain the high standards of conduct in the transaction of the real estate business expressed in the Code of Ethics formulated by the National Association of Real Estate Boards and to enforce that code among its members in their dealings with one another and with the public.

4. To advance the civic development and the economic growth of this community.

5. To grant to its active members the right to use the designation "Realtor" under the conditions established for that use by the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

The term "Realtor" was coined to designate members of the National Association of Real Estate Boards and it constituent Boards. The exclusive right to the use of this term has been upheld by a score of court decisions.

The term designates those persons in the real estate business who have available to them the accumulated knowledge of thirty-six years of experimentation and research in real estate busines methods and standards. Realtors are those who, in the judgement of their peers in their business, are persons with personal standards and business competence of sufficient merit to warrant entrusting them with the important fiduciary relationships involved in real estate transactions. They have voluntarily pledged themselves to a code of ethics governing their business conduct, their relations with each other, and their relations with the public.

In addition to the officers, other members of the Board are: L. W. Bonbrake of Ashley. John L. Haverstock of St. Joe, C. E. Sumney and Neil Zeedyk of Kendallville. Ralph Wible of Auburn, W. O. Hall of Rome City and Robert P. Zimmerman of Avilla. There are also twelve associate members who are engaged in abstracting, banking or the practices of law.

Town and Farm

by EVERETT MITCHELL

Farm Commentator, heard Monday through Saturday, 6:15-6:45 a. m. on WMAQ, Chicago, 670 on your dial.

TODAY the accent is on youth, and this old timer is going to yield the floor to Charles Nelson, a 15-year-old DeKalb, Ill., high school student, who has some worthwhile ideas on ways to prevent livestock losses. Young Mr. Nelson was selected as first prize winner in an essay contest conducted on my "Town and Farm" radio program.

His essay was the best of the more than 2,200 submitted by rural students representing Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and Wisconsin, but all of the entries prove to me that American agriculture will be in good hands when we old hands pass over the reins.

In opening his essay, Charles pointed out that "every year the farmers and meat packers of our country lose millions of dollars because of improper handling and carelessness. America ranks high as the leading meat producer of the world, but she could increase her production much more.

"We don't have to raise more livestock, but just take better care of the ones we have now."

After outlining methods of preventing livestock losses through disease, through improper management and through shipping, Charles concludes by stumping for an informational program to educate the individual farmer in the proper handling of his stock, especially to cut shipping losses.

"Let the farmer know the facts and he will try to do something about it," he declared. Well, Charles, you can sign me up as a charter subscriber in that program. The press and radio can and must take the lead in any educational program to help the farmer help himself, not only in reducing our annual 30 million dollar livestock loss, but also in eliminating all wasteful farming practices.

HINTS ON HEALTH by the INDIANA STATE MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

INTESTINAL FLU

IN recent years there have been frequent outbreaks of intestinal flu. This infectious and contagious acute gastro-intestinal disturbance appears in epidemic form and disappears suddenly after prevailing in an area for several weeks.

Deaths from intestinal flu are infrequent and, inasmuch as the condition is self-limiting, little medical treatment is recommended. However, it is very important that this not be confused with acute appendicitis and conditions equally dangerous.

The characteristic symptoms of this mild type of virus dysentery are sudden onset of nausea, vomiting, diarrhea, abdominal cramps, general aching and mild headache, weakness and prostration. Outbreaks in various places frequently have predominant symptoms distinctive to each locality.

One outbreak may have considerable vomiting among the victims without diarrhea, while another outbreak may note abdominal cramps and diarrhea without other symptoms. The illness usually lasts between two to five days, with recovery sudden and often without after affects.

The cause of intestinal flu is not known, although some filtrable and airborne agent is suspected to enter the respiratory tract. Rest and total abstinence from food and water for a few hours eases the condition, and heat applied to the abdomen is usually soothing.

CARD OF THANKS

One half of the taxes assessed for state, county, and school purposes are due and payable on or before the first Monday in May, 1950
The second installment is due on or before the first Monday in November, 1950. BOTH INSTALLMENTS ARE OFLIKE AMOUNT.
In case either installment is not paid when due, it becomes delinquent, and is subject to a penalty of eight percent. Administrators, guardians, agents, and others, who pay taxes on property in trust and persons whose taxes are complicated, such as undivided estates, etc., are requested to settle such taxes before the last few weeks, as it takes time to make divisions and the separate receipts therefor. All persons should be careful to examine their receipts and see that all property they wish to pay taxes on is included in their receipt. Real estate transferred in 1949 will appear in new name in Treasurer's office in 1951.
THE TREASURER WILL NOT BE RESPONSIBLE
For the penalty and charges and delinquent taxes resulting by reason of any omission of the person paying such taxes to state definitely on what property, in whose name and in what township or corporation it was assessed. Persons are liable for taxes on all property owned by them on the first day of March, 1949. Property will appear in the same name for payment of the second installment as for the first installment each year.
Call on the auditor for errors or reductions claimed in taxes. The treasurer cannot make such reductions. No extensions will be given after the FIRST MONDAY IN MAY, 1950, AND FIRST MONDAY IN NOVEMBER 1950.
County orders will not be paid to anyone owing delinquent taxes; all persons are warned against purchasing such orders. The annual sale of delinquent lands and lots will take place on the second Monday in April, 1950.

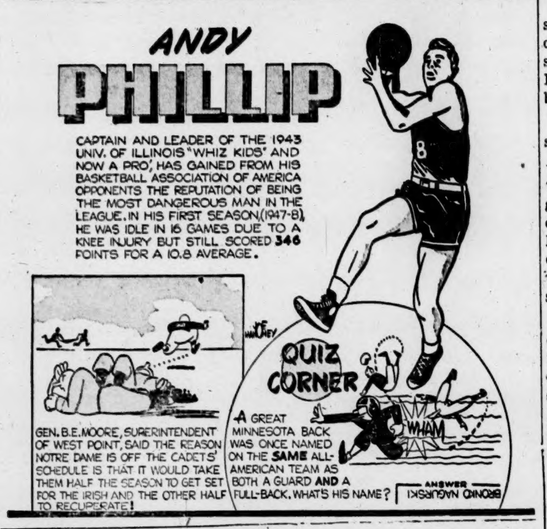
SPORTSCOPE By JOE MAHONEY



Calling all outdoorsmen

By JIM MITCHELL

I don't want to cast any reflections but you are a member of that group of habitual News Years resolution makers who say they are going to do this or that as the old year fades into the new,then promptly forgets all about them.

I'll have to admit that more years than not I have been a party to such foolishness, resolving to improve in the new year but failing to live up to the pattern.

But this year is going to be different, at least as far as the outdoors is concerned. and I'd like for you to join me in making a set of resolutions for 1950 that will make the outdoor sports better for all of us.

First, let's all treat wild life as a valuable resource - a resource that should be dearly guarded. Actually there is a selfish motive as far as I'm concerned in this resolution.

I would rather go fishing or hunting than anything else I can think of. If these sports were taken away. I'd be lost - and there are many millions of sportsmen who feel the same way.

But if we're to continue to enjoy fishing and hunting, we must conserve the wild life that makes this possible.

How about in 1950 following the ideas incorporated in a "half-limit" club that was founded some years back. A state says you can take 10 bass or six rabbits or 10 quail. That's okay, but let's only take half that number each trip afield, leaving the rest for stock.

Frankly, it means putting a moral instead of legal limit on the wild life we harvest - and the moral limit should be controlled by the amount of game or fish we can justly use on the dinner table. If your family can eat 3 or 4 rabbits, kill that many - not the number the law says you can take. And the same applies to fish.

Of course, the resolution to guard wild life is the keynote of all my resolutions - but let's add to be careful with fire arms, shoot only game that's in certain killing range, search harder for cripples and dead birds.

Also let's make it a point to treat the farmer and landowner who gives us a place to hunt and fish with more respect in 1950.

And in the new year let's all be one-man task forces in weeding out the game hogs, the out-of-season gunners and all others who frown on the game codes and laws controlling wild life. Remember, it takes only one black sheep in any area to spoil the territory for all decent sportsmen!

I've outlined the above resolutions on a little white card and put it on the wall above my desk, for this is one New Year when I'm going to stick to the resolutions. I hope you'll join me in the same, so here's my best wishes for good luck and good sport in the outdoors in 1950.

Sechlers Beat All-Stars

On Wednesday night seven men attempted the impossible and, sure enough, didn't accomplish it. There were creaks of bones as seven married All-Stars played Sechlers at the local gym and got whipped, 64-35.

Considering the fact that the boys didn't have any practice, the score wasn't too bad.

Principal thorn in the All-Stars' side was Gene Deiderich, who scored 30 points. High man for the All-Stars was Russell Ridgway with 18.

Without looking, can you say for sure? Many husbands and wives can't—because memory often fails us on familiar things. Can you remember which shoe you put on first? How many keys you carry? How much change you have in purse or pocket?

Can you remember for sure whether your electric service comes to you from a business-managed company—or a government agency?
